Report 100 Killed in Pro-Stalin Riot

By ROY ESSOYAN

TIFLIS, Soviet Georgia (AP)—Reliable sources estimated Saturday that up to 100 Georgians may have been killed when troops opened fire on waves of pro-Stalin demonstrators who tried to seize the Tiflis postoffice on March 9.

This estimate was made as this capital of Stalin's native Georgia unveiled a giant 60-foot statue to Lenin. Some 4,000 soldiers and militia rigidly kept most of the late dictator's hot-tempered fellow Georgians from the scene of the ceremonies.

All roads leading to Lenin Plaza, the scene of the unveiling, were blocked off to prevent any repetition of last month's demonstrations.

• • • •

THE UNVEILING itself was a result of a lesson learned by the collective leadership in Moscow from that incident. It appears to have embarked on a policy of ignoring Stalin here, rather than vilifying him, or gradually replacing his Georgian likeness with that of Lenin.

(The estimate of 100 killed in the March 9 disorders is the highest yet reported. Previous unconfirmed reports from western diplomatic sources had said nine were believed to have been killed. A London dispatch on April 16 quoted qualified western diplomatic informants as saying 300 persons were injured during riots in which students virtually took over the city for five days.

(Roy Essoyan, of Associated Press, is one of three western reporters allowed to go to the Georgian capital more than a month after the incident. His first report on April 15 said the city was now calm, but indicated the residents were very reluctant to talk to reporters.

(Victor Kupradze, rector of Tiflis University, was quoted by Essoyan as saying on April 17 that western reports that hundreds were killed were not true.)

AFTER A WEEK'S travel and observation around Tiflis and Gori, Stalin's birthplace, this correspondent has pieced together a startling picture of the dramatic events of last month.

Government officials either have refused to discuss those events or have denied that troops were called out or fired on the demonstrators. Other sources have given widely varying accounts.

Soviet U.N. Delegate 'Observed'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has been quietly investigating Arkady A. Sobolev, Russia's chief delegate to the United Nations, to decide whether his conduct warrants expelling him from this country.

Sworn testimony before the Senate internal security subcommittee has indicated that Sobolev may have been the key figure in luring five fugitive Russian sailors back to the Soviet Union two weeks ago.

The State Department brushed aside inquiries about Sobolev with the reply that the case was "under study." An official said he could not say when a decision would be reached.

But it was learned that an investigation conducted by the Justice Department had failed to produce evidence that the five sailors were threatened by Russian officials or intimidated into returning to Russia.

Viktor Solovyev, a 20-year-old Soviet sailor who refused to go home, told the Senate subcommittee that he rejected attempts by Russian agents to get him to visit Sobolev's headquarters. He said they threatened "reprisals" against his family in Russia if he did not return to Russia.

If the Russian agents were acting under orders from Sobolev, the Soviet U.N. chief would be guilty of acting improperly and subject to expulsion from the United States.

Union Dissolved

TORONTO (AP) — The 600,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada (TLC) closed out its affairs Saturday preparatory to merging into the Canadian Labor Congress next week. The main business of the special convention was to authorize turning over TLC's assets of $253,000 to the labor congress.

Raps Foreign Policy Attack by Stevenson

Russia Follows Stalin Principles, President Says

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower Saturday night vigorously defended his administration's foreign policy against charges by Adlai E. Stevenson that the United States is losing ground in the cold war.

Eisenhower made his defense in an impromptu speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors after his formal address to the same body. The formal address was carried to the nation by radio and television, but the impromptu remarks were off the air.

Although he did not mention Stevenson by name, Eisenhower was clearly replying to the Democratic leader who had told the editors at a luncheon meeting that the United States is "dangerously close" to losing its world leadership because the administration has "clung stubbornly" to a "rigid, unimaginative" foreign policy that is no match for Russia's new tactics.

• • • •

SPEAKING with evident emotion, the President said many people are asking who is "winning and who is losing . . . the cold war."

"Many people here at home say we are losing the cold war," the President said. "Many take the opposite viewpoint. They can point to facts rather than allegations."

Eisenhower then ticked off what he contended were victories, at least in part, for the free world during his administration. He cited Russia's changing policies as the prime and most recent evidence of the success of his policies.

Eisenhower had said in his prepared speech that there is reason for "cautious hope that a new, 'a fruitful, a peaceful era' lies ahead for mankind. While cautioning that it is "still too early" to be sure that Russia's new leaders sincerely want peace, he said "the world breathes a little more easily today."

• • • •

STEVENSON had charged that the administration had "drifted and stumbled" in foreign policy for the last three years, and had failed to come up with urgently needed new ideas to cope with Russia's switch from open aggression to eco-

Boy, 10, Wins $100,000 on Quiz Program

NEW YORK (UP)—A 10-year-old schoolboy expert on the stock market won $100,000 Saturday night on a television quiz program. He was the youngest person ever to win that amount on a quiz show.

Leonard Ross of Tujunga, Calif., answered a difficult five-part question about the New York Stock Exchange to become the fourth person to win the top prize on the NBC program "The Big Surprise."

• • • •

G. KEITH FUNSTON, president of the exchange, appeared on the program to give Leonard $2,500 to invest in any way he sees fit. Funston also gave him a five-year monthly investment plan under which he can invest $40 a month. Funston said Leonard deserved the awards for his interest and knowledge about stock exchange operations.

Previous $100,000 winners were Mrs. Ethel P. Richardson, a 73-year-old grandmother from Los Angeles, Calif.; George L. Wright III, 14, of New York, and Rear Adm. Redfield Mason of New York.

Leonard is the son of William Ross, a Los Angeles accountant. His mother, Pauline, who accompanied him here, is a court stenographer.

Leonard will have about $33,000 left after government taxes cut his $100,000 prize. He said he would give quite a bit of it to charity, including the March of Dimes and CARE. He also said he would give his father high fidelity phonograph equipment, his mother a tape recorder, and would buy a subscription to the Wall Street Journal for himself.

• • • •

THE WALL STREET Journal telephoned Leonard after the show and said he would receive a free subscription.

The dark-haired, serious-looking youngster said he was interested in stocks "as a way of people owning a share of American industry."

His interest in the stock market began about three years ago when his mother and father brought home a stock report.

Margaret Marries Newsman in Simple, Small-Town Rite

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UP)—Margaret Truman and New York newsman Clifton Daniel Jr. were joined together in marriage Saturday in a ceremony breathtaking in its simplicity and reverence.

There were but 60 guests in the church.

It might have been, except for the elegance of Margaret's gown, the wedding of any well-to-do Missouri girl. It might even have been the wedding of a Missouri judge, which is what her father was before Harry S. Truman became President.

The former chief executive was unsmiling as he stood in the nave of tiny Trinity Episcopal Church. But it was strain and nothing more. Once the beautiful ceremony was over, his broad, famous grin returned and his stride was brisk.

MR. AND MRS. TRUMAN were married in the same little church almost 37 years ago. He, like his new son-in-law, is a Baptist. Margaret and her mother are Episcopalians.

Margaret and Daniel boarded the Kansas City Chief at Union Station in Kansas City Saturday night en route to Chicago and a honeymoon at Nassau in the Bahamas. They will leave Chicago by air today for Miami on the second leg of the trip, and eventually wind up at the estate of Count Guy de le Fregonniere, French consular representative to the Bahamas.

The honeymooners entered union station through an underground tunnel and did not go through the main lobby.

• • • •

THROUGHOUT the wedding ceremony, read by Father Patric Hutton, there was the air of reverence. It had been Margaret's wish to avoid what Independence calls "hullabaloo." Outside the church there was excitement, well-mannered but plainly evident in the smiling faces of Margaret's friends in this western Missouri city of 30,000.

J. R. Hammontree, the church organist, played selections from Mozart and Bach. For the processional he played "Trumpet Voluntary" by the 17th century composer, Henry Purcell.

Mr. Truman and his lovely daughter, who wore an exquisite gown made of blond heirloom lace, entered the church behind the bride's attendants, Mrs. Coleman Branton and Mrs. John Horton, the latter the former Drucie Snyder.

They halted at the rise

Starved Boys Found After 3 Days in Closet

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two half-starved boys were found Saturday after spending 69 hours locked in a clothes closet in a vacant apartment.

Harry Strobles, a painter, heard sounds in the closet when he went to the apartment at 7:30 a.m. Saturday to paint it. When he opened it, the boys staggered out, sick from hunger and thirst.

Terry Grant, 5, and Willie Greer, 6, told officers they were playing in the apartment Wednesday when a man pushed them into the closet and pulled off the door knob.

They were admitted to a hospital for treatment.

Grandchild of FDR Weds

FORT WORTH, Texas (UP)—Ruth Chandler Roosevelt, coed granddaughter of the late President Franklin and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, was married Saturday night to Midland, Texas, oilman Henry D. Lindsley III.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the bride's father, Elliott, both were present. Elliott flew in from his home in Meeker, Colo., to prepare for the wedding. Mrs. Roosevelt flew in Saturday from Salt Lake City, Utah.

The wedding in All Saints Episcopal Church was limited to just the family and a few close friends. The Rev. James P. Dewolfe Jr., the church pastor, and Canon Curtis W. J. Junker of Dallas officiated.

A reception followed at River Crest Country Club. The couple, after a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, will live in Midland.

Los Alamitos Race Official Gets Punched

By JERRY WYNN

A race in honor of Orange County Sheriff Jim Musick wound up in an old-fashioned western brawl at Los Alamitos Race Course Saturday.

The main participants were trainer H. F. Sorter, Presiding Steward Chester C. Jones and State Racing Board inspector M. L. (Buck) Cornell.

Infuriated by the disqualification of his horse, Okie City Bob, which finished second but was placed last in the sixth race, Sorter approached Jones and asked:

"Did you disqualify my horse?"

• • • •

"YES, SIR," Jones replied and Sorter responded with a punch to the right kidney, police said. The 38-year-old Stockton horseman pressed his attack with a headlock before Cornell, fellow state inspector Ray Moug and horse identifier Daniel A. Munns could come to the aid of the 66-year-old chief steward, according to witnesses.

Uniformed officers say they finally quelled Sorter but not before he had flattened Cornell, who suffered an injured rib, broken glasses and miscellaneous bruises. Sorter bled from a cut on the left side of his head. Jones was unmarked.

Asked for comment on his actions, Sorter had only this to say:

"If he (Cornell) wants my li-

Hunt 17 Boats Missing in Catalina Race

Eighteen Coast Guard vessels searched Saturday night for 14 outboard motorboats missing during a race to Catalina Island.

An air-sea search began about dusk when the boats failed to show up in Avalon, the finishing point. More than 200 boats were entered in the race, the Outboard Motorboat Assn. reported.

The aerial search later was called off because of darkness.

• • • •

HEAVY GROUND swells and thickening fog hampered the search operation.

The annual race between the mainland and the island started early in the day. At one time 36 boats were reported lost.

Some of the missing vessels pulled in at Newport, the Coast Guard said. Most of the boats were stock outboards.

• • • •

COAST GUARD headquarters here estimated 40 or more persons aboard the missing boats.

Four boats were towed into Avalon by a fishing boat.

The 21-mile race was from the Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbor to Avalon. It was scheduled to start at 8 a.m. but was two hours late after the Coast Guard warned contestants of fog.

WATCHES OFFICERS SEARCH

Slayer of Army Wife Broods at Crime Scene for 23 Days

By BOB BECKMAN

COSTA MESA—For 23 days the confessed sex murderer of Oleta Camille Hatcher Johnson was forced by circumstances to continue living only a few steps from the cabin in which he says he stabbed her to death.

He is 20-year-old John Calvin Tipton, who rented one of the modest cabins, the College Court, 350 Avocado St., in February after being dishonorably discharged from the Army.

• • • •

THE VICTIM, who succumbed to one mighty jab of a knife into her heart the night of March 28, was the 18-year-old common-law wife of Pvt. Harold Johnson, 19, a Costa Mesa soldier.

Tipton is a well-muscled man standing 6 feet, 1 inch tall and weighing 185 pounds.

He was one of the first persons questioned in the initial hours of feverish investigation by law enforcement officers after Pvt. Johnson found her raped and dead when he returned from a tour of duty at the nearby Nike installation.

Hints of the terrific strain Tipton was under during the past three weeks came out during questioning by Costa Mesa and county authorities late Friday and early Saturday.

• • • •

WHEN TIPTON was not washing dishes in a downtown restaurant here, he usually was in his cabin brooding, officers said.

Time after time the admitted slayer watched as officers visited and re-visited the death cabin and searched the grounds for clues.

Tipton knew, it was said, that all occupants of the motel were being watched, as were residents in an adjoining trailer court.

To have packed his bag and fled would have immediately brought suspicion on him, Tipton knew.

Tipton was questioned the day after the young housewife and mother of a prematurely born baby still in Texas was found slain. Then 20 days passed before officers again tapped at his door. That was Wednesday.

• • • •

AS BEFORE, he answered their questions and watched them drive away.

But Friday evening the officers didn't ask questions but simply ordered Tipton to ac-

Guard Kills Intruder at Envoy's Home

BANGKOK, Thailand (UP)—An apparently deranged man who tried to force his way at knifepoint into the residence of U.S. Ambassador Max Waldo Bishop was shot and killed by Thai policemen Friday night, it was reported Saturday.

The man was not immediately identified. The ambassador's chauffeur said he had shown up at the embassy in the past.

Police said the man had approached two police guards at Bishop's residence saying he wanted to see the ambassador on urgent confidential business.

The guards said the man was "rather insane" and rambled on in both Thai and English.

When the guards refused to permit him to pass, the man whipped out a homemade dagger and slashed at the policemen and the chauffeur.

There was a brief scuffle before the man fled and jumped on a bus. One of the guards was shoved into the street when he tried to pull the man out of the bus. The other officer shot the fugitive.

L.A.C. Says:

No Place to Camp

Fishing season opens on the 28th of this month. Thousands of cars will be heading for mountain streams for a weekend of fishing. But many of those hopefuls will not find a place to camp. Result will be many will camp outside the camp areas. They will increase the fire hazard, pollute streams and mess up the surroundings with beer cans and paper sacks and wrappers they throw around.

Because of inadequate rainfall and snow the mountains are dry and the fire hazard is greater than in previous years. Streams are lower and crowds will be greater. Forest rangers are so few they cannot possibly police the areas over which they preside. Sanitary conditions in most of the camps are far below the standard necessary to health and safety of those using them.

As Congress struggles with billions for farm relief, foreign aid, new freeways and other public construction it ignores our greatest heritage — the mountains. Congress has appropriated only $2,100,000 for operation of the U. S. Forest Service recreation facilities. It is estimated California forests alone need more than this sum.

Following the opening of fishing season, a million California families will be waiting for the closing of school. They look with longing hearts for a trip to the mountains. It will be the summer season when children could have an opportunity to enjoy a week or more in the mountains. If those children belong to an organization which maintains a mountain resort they are fortunate. But if members of the family look forward to a camping trip together they have a great problem.

Congress also appropriated $15 million for new facilities in the mountain parks. That, too, is a meager amount. It would seem reasonable that $100 million be appropriated for bringing the national park camping facilities up to date.

It is estimated California will double its present population within the next 20 years. The rate of increase is going on daily. The desire of families to go to the mountains increases as the cities become more crowded.

The trouble is that there is no organized pressure group of people who seek adequate camping facilities. The Forest Service does not have a strong lobby as do labor unions, farmers or business organizations. Result is they get little consideration. The only way the problem can be corrected is for public opinion to assert itself. Letters to Congressmen and Senators demanding greater consideration would be helpful. All California business organizations should go on record demanding greater consideration for campers. Better facilities in our mountains would benefit all who live and do business in California.—L.A.C.

U.S. Gaining Ground in Cold War—Ike

nomic and political penetration.

Defending the administration's record in his impromptu remarks, Eisenhower listed these accomplishments of the past three years:

KOREA—He said the world "must remember" that the Communists did not conquer "as they said they would do."

INDOCHINA — The Communist were "stopped" in Northern Vietnam. Southern Vietnam today is doing "much better" and is guided by a "splendid" official in Ngo Dinh Diem.

IRAN—The situation looked "so desperate" that many feared former Iranian Premier Mohamed Mossadegh would "lead Iran behind the Iron Curtain." But Iran was saved and its oil is again flowing to world markets.

He also pointed with pride to Egypt's agreements with Britain on their long Suez dispute, the Trieste settlement, and the defeat of Communist attempts to overthrow Guatemala.

EISENHOWER drew heavy applause mingled with some cheers and whistles from the editors when he told them after he went off radio and television that he would like to talk some more.

He urged the editors to help keep the American people informed about foreign affairs.

He said there is "nothing more important" than to "get away from demagoguery, partisanship as far as we can and get the naked truth before the people."

Foreign policies must change to keep "in tune with the world's aims," he said.

In his prepared speech, the President noted that the new Russian regime has "seemingly moderated" the Stalin policy of violence and hostility.

But he added these words of caution:

"It is still too early to assess in any final way whether the Soviet regime wishes to provide a real basis for stable and enduring relations.

* * * *

"DESPITE THE CHANGES so far, much of Stalin's foreign policy remains unchanged. The major international issues which have troubled the postwar world are still unsolved.

"More basic changes in Soviet policy will have to take place before the free nations can afford to relax their vigilance."

Eisenhower said "many of the wrongs of Stalin against other nations" still prevail under the new Soviets' leaders. He said the United States must be "tireless in our efforts to remedy these injustices and to resolve the disputes that divide the world."

cense, I'll gladly give it to him."

Chances are that is what will happen at the next meeting of the State Racing Commission. Sorter was escorted by Orange County Deputy Sheriff Dean McLeod to Santa Ana headquarters where he was held on battery and disturbing the peace charges filed by Cornell.

Racing Secretary Ed Burke summed up the day's excitement on and off the track with "ain't this a real Wild West meeting!"

Report 100 Perished in Soviet Riot

ants, however, events reached a climax on March 9, the third anniversary of Stalin's burial, when the demonstrators tried to storm the postoffice. Some say they wanted to send an appeal to the United Nations. Others said they wanted to seize that hub of communications. The informants gave these details:

Whatever the reason, troops opened fire. For days afterward the city was like an armed camp. Tanks and troops patrolled the streets. A midnight curfew was clamped on the city.

* * * *

APPARENTLY it all started on March 5 with a peaceful demonstration to honor Stalin on the anniversary of his death. People poured into Tiflis from all parts of Georgia. In the face of official hesitation between the demands of the people and the orders from Moscow to permit no homage to Stalin, the crowds grew.

Rioting finally broke out March 9 when crowds stoned buses, seized cars and stopped traffic. Egged on by hotheads or by provocateurs, they were screaming to take over the city before they were through.

Inflamed by mounting arrests, several thousand surged toward Stalin park and milled around a 50-foot statue of the son of Georgia.

* * * *

"THESE WERE YOUNG people," one informant said. "They didn't know what they wanted. By this time provocateurs were inciting them."

It was close to midnight when like a human sea the demonstrators poured out of the park and headed for the central post office on the main street.

Facing them on the steps of the Council of Ministers Building, next to the postoffice, machineguns were mounted. Troops guarded the postoffice itself.

"As the crowd came over a rise the troops fired over their heads," the informant said. "The crowds kept coming and the troops then turned their guns on them."

The speaker pointed to fist-sized chips in the stucco walls of a restaurant across the street.

"That's where some of the bullets hit," he said. "All these plate glass windows are new. They were smashed to bits."

The crowds apparently scattered after this. By dawn Tiflis was quiet again.

But one Georgian said, "We'll never forget March 9."

* * * *

SO THE AUTHORITIES took no chances Saturday at the unveiling of Lenin's statue, 10 feet taller than Stalin's.

Mounted militia, state security forces and regular garrison troops cleared the main streets two hours before the ceremony.

Every entrance to Lenin Plaza —which was called Beria Square after another Georgian who was Russia's police boss until he was executed after Stalin's death— was blocked off by double cordons of troops and militia. Buses and military trucks were parked across each exit to the square.

Admission to Lenin Plaza was granted only to about 5,000 picked representatives of trade unions, collective farms, industrial organizations and other groups. They were marched into the plaza in orderly columns between uniformed cordons and were flanked on all sides by troops and militia throughout the 50-minute ceremony.

The rest of Tiflis' 800,000 population was out of sight behind the barricades leading to the square or bottled up indoors.

Vassily Mzhavanadze, Communist Party boss for Georgia, opened the ceremonies with a speech praising Lenin and the new collective leadership principle. Other party members, including old Bolsheviks, trade union delegates, a locomotive engineer, a collective farmer and a 14-year-old girl spoke.

No speaker mentioned Stalin. But as the crowd dispersed, a little girl blinked up at the new 60-foot high statue and asked her mother, "Is that Stalin?"

The mother hushed her.

"Stalin is no more," she said. "That is Lenin."

'Did Not Bury Wife's Teeth,' Scott Asserts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—L. Ewing Scott disclosed through his attorney Saturday that he believes his missing wife, Mrs. Evelyn T. Scott, 63, still is alive even though police are studying the possibility of murder.

Scott's wife vanished in May of last year, but Scott did not report her disappearance until March of this year. The missing woman's upper bridge of false teeth and two pair of her reading glasses were found buried on the grounds of her Bel-Air home.

The attorney for 59-year-old Scott, Seth M. Hufstedler, quoted his client as saying:

"I do not know how her teeth and glasses became buried or who buried them. I certainly had nothing to do with it myself."

At the same time, the District Attorney's office is preparing to go before the County Grand Jury with the case Tuesday. Dist. Atty. S. Ernest Roll said Scott may face counts of grand theft and forgery in the handling of his wife's $600,000 estate. Roll emphasized, however, that there would be no counts involving murder.

Meanwhile, police handwriting experts were studying 20 checks made out to the missing woman. The checks were from eastern firms which handled Mrs. Scott's property.

30,000 Homeless in Philippines Fire

MANILA (Sunday) (AP) — A fire swept through seven blocks of Cebu's business district Saturday, leaving 2 persons dead, 30,000 homeless and damage officially estimated at between 4 and 5 million dollars.

Mayor Sergio Osmena Jr. reported at least 1,000 houses were destroyed. The big blaze started at police constabulary headquarters.

Aged Woman Victim of Strangler

PASADENA (AP)—A coroner's autopsy Saturday disclosed that Mrs. May Havorka, 73, was strangled in her rooming house Thursday.

When her body was first found, it was believed she had died a natural death. A full autopsy was ordered, however, when bruises were found on her neck.

Police said the door to her room apparently had been forced by the assailant. The coroner reported several of the elderly woman's ribs also were broken.

Officers began questioning 20 residents of the rooming house.

before the altar, where Father Hutton, clad in a hand-embroidered cope of gold, read from a prayerbook held by his red-robed acolyte.

The group, with Mr. Truman at his daughter's arm and John Knox Barrow Jr., of Ahoskie, N. C., at the elbow of the bridegroom as best man, remained at the rise until the part of the ceremony when Father Hutton asked:

"Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

If Mr. Truman spoke, he was not heard. The former President placed Margaret's hand in Father Hutton's, who in turn placed it in Daniel's. Then Mr. Truman stepped back to his pew.

The couple took three steps forward and Father Hutton began the form phases of the ceremony. Daniel's voice was clearly heard at first but became softer later. Margaret spoke softly throughout.

* * * *

THE MARRIAGE pledge was almost identical for both Margaret and Daniel:

". . . Till death do us part, according to God's holy ordinance, and thereto I give thee my troth."

Father Hutton neared the end of his solemn ritual by blessing the single ring of the ceremony, a plain band of gold. Mrs. Horton had lifted Margaret's veil as the couple stepped forward. Daniel's kiss was brief.

Father Hutton pronounced the pair man and wife "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," ending the brief ceremony for the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Truman and the only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Daniel, Sr., of Zebulon, N. C.

Margaret was radiant in the gown brought to Independence by its designer, Micol Fontana of Italy. Her veil, until it was lifted in the ceremony, floated only a little below her shoulders.

Ushers were Turner Catledge, managing editor of the New York Times for which Daniel is assistant to the foreign news editor, and George Backer, New York realtor and former president and editor of the New York Post.

After the ceremony when the newlyweds came out of the church, they were beaming as they gave photographers about three minutes. Mr. and Mrs. Truman followed them.

Mr. Truman wore semi-formal attire, as did other male members of the wedding party. Mrs. Truman, who may have shed a mother's tears inside, was smiling as she emerged from the church. She wore a lovely mist grey Swiss silk. Her flowers were white orchids.

When the wedding party was outside, the crowd of an estimated 1,500 persons were permitted to go inside the church. They saw the beautiful floral decorations, which included woodwardia ferns, string smilax, arrangements of giant white mums and glads, carnations and stock.

The wedding party returned to the house which gained world fame as the "Summer White House." There the reception became the center of attraction.

Margaret and Daniel cut a four-layer cake with white frosting and pink carnations at the reception in the dining room of the Truman home, but they didn't have any of the cake themselves.

About 175 persons entered the Truman home where champagne and cocktails were served along with hors d'oeuvres. For drinks, two bartenders set up service on a screened in porch and were serving champagne, scotch, bourbon, martinis and sparkling burgundy.

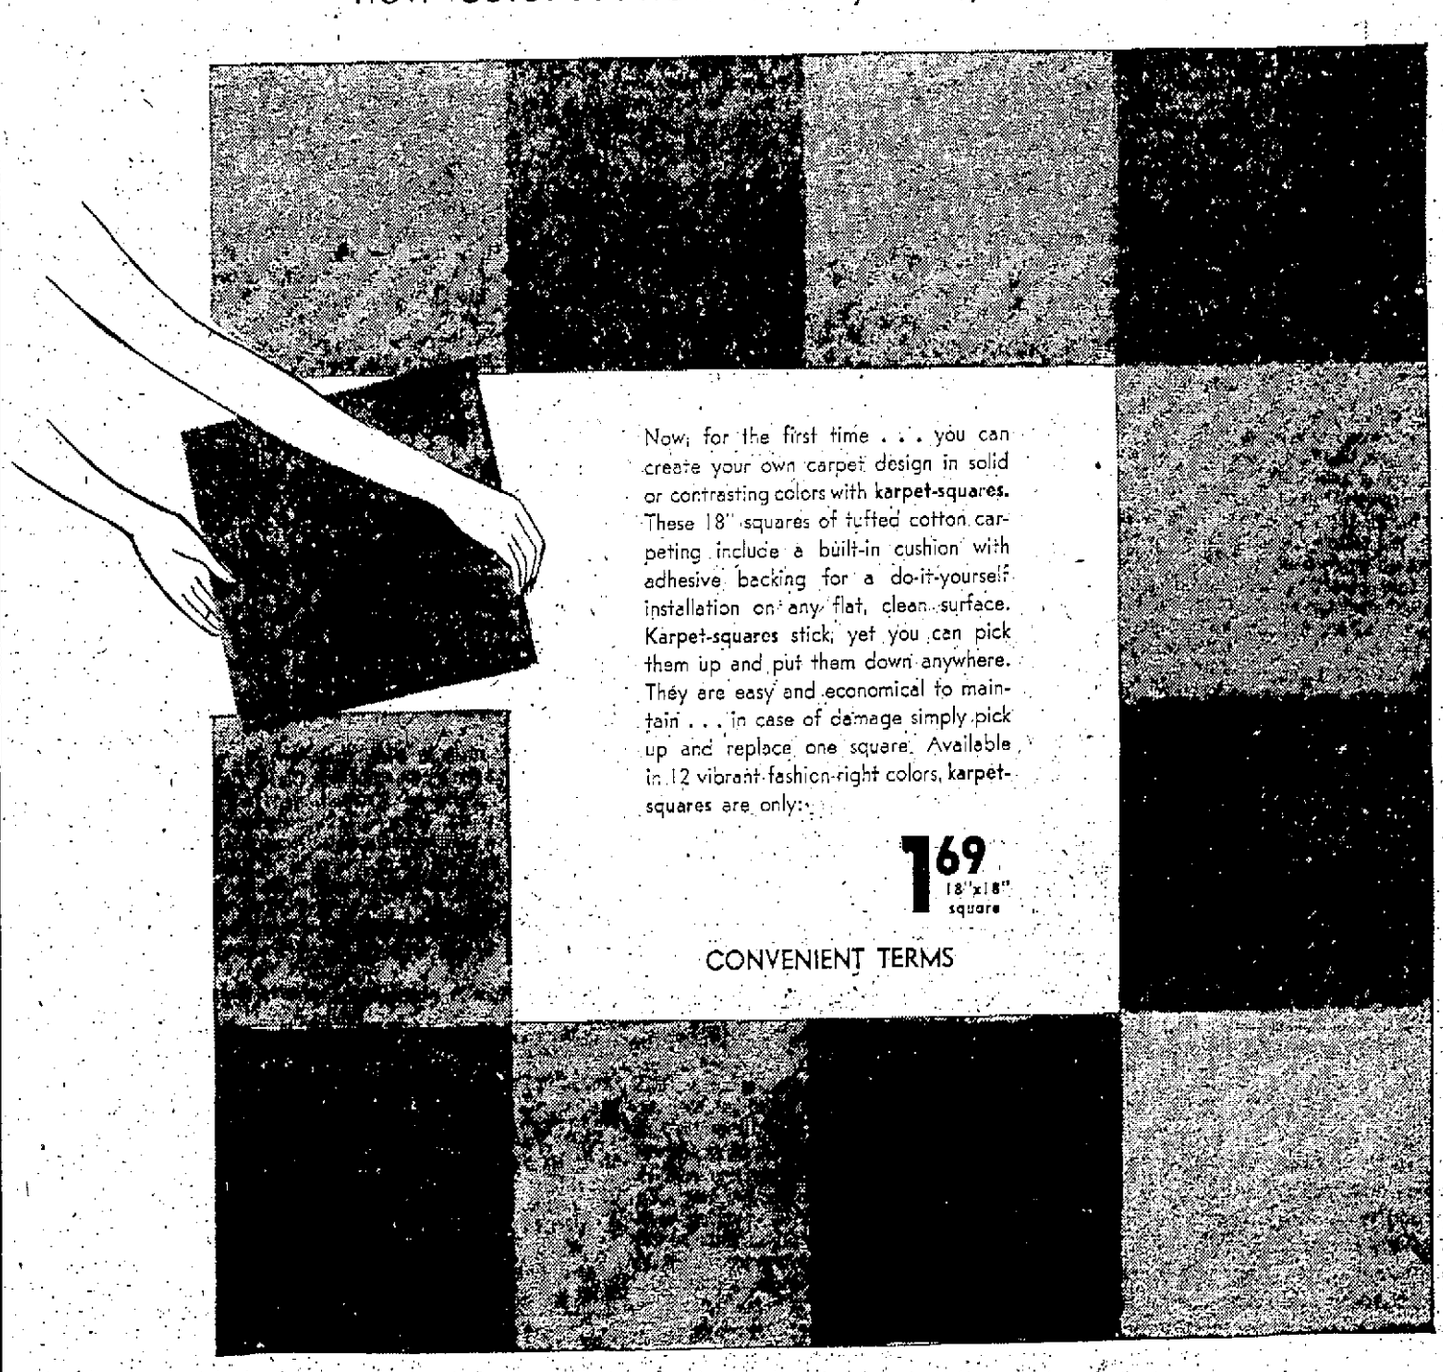

The hors d'oeuvres included small cakes, turkey, wafers and candies.

Mr. Truman headed the receiving line, followed by Daniel's father and mother, the bride-groom and Margaret.

They left Saturday night for Chicago aboard the Santa Fe's Kansas City Chief. From there they will fly at 10:30 a.m. today to Miami and from Florida will go on to Nassau, where they will honeymoon on the estate of Count Guy de le Fregonniere, French consular representative to the Bahamas.

Pioneer of U.N. Declares Atoms-for-Peace Progress Is Proof of Organization's Value

Students Given Essay Awards at Rally Here

The Israel-Egypt peace action moves toward a realistic atoms-for-peace program during the past week have proved the United Nations' practicability and necessity, one of America's leading exponents of the U. N. said Saturday night in Long Beach.

Clark M. Eichelberger, executive director of the American Association for the United Nations, told a banquet meeting of the group's Long Beach chapter that support for the world cooperation organizations was at an all-time high because of the successes.

"The action of the United Nations in averting war between Israel and Egypt has shown how efficiently the organization can operate in bringing about world peace," said Eichelberger.

* * * *

EICHELBERGER, whose headquarters are at the United Nations in New York, was principal speaker at the Long Beach chapter's annual meeting. High school students were honored for winning U. N. examination contests.

"U.N. progress is making President Eisenhower's 'atoms-for-peace' program a reality," he said, "and this will help to build the resources of the under-privileged nations so that their people can live in peace and prosperity."

Eichelberger is a former officer of the League of Nations secretariat and has been a consultant of the U. S. State Department on U. N. affairs. He was a member of the American delegation to the 1945 San Francisco U. N. Conference.

"Local groups such as the Long Beach Chapter of our United Nations Association can help make clear the need and functions of the world organization," he said.

* * * *

MAJOR ISSUES to face the United Nations in the forthcoming years will include disarmament, peaceful use of atomic energy, technical assistance to needy nations, the problems of colonialism and help for new nations and settlement of misunderstandings between nations, Eichelberger said.

Winners of the local chapter's $25 bonds for examinations and essays on the U. N. were: Poly High School—Richard Andrews, first, Don Rogers, second; Wilson — Richard Ashcraft, first, Roger Smith, second; Jordan—Larry Warner, first, Mel Brown, second.

All six of the winners will be eligible for national competitions for trips to Europe and Mexico as well as scholarships. Edward Castagna, local U. N. Association president, presided at the meeting. Doris Watts was contest chairman.

Masked Man Scared Off by Siren Blast

PARAMOUNT — The siren blast of a speeding patrol car scared off a hooded armed bandit during a robbery attempt at 16220 S. Paramount Blvd. Saturday night.

Sheriff's deputies said the gunman entered Louise's Beauty Shop at 6:30 p.m. and flashed a .32 caliber revolver at 63-year-old H. C. Venable and Mrs. Venable, who were cleaning up the shop owned by their daughter, Mrs. Louise Prusso.

When the couple declined to reveal the location of the cash register, the bandit reportedly put one arm around Venable's neck and poked the gun in his ribs.

At that moment the siren on an unidentified patrol car speeding past the location was sounded and the gunman fled through the rear door.

The Venables were able to provide deputies with a description of the bandit and the getaway car driven by an accomplice. The vehicle, a 1955 station wagon, was found abandoned later, deputies said. It had been reported stolen earlier in the day.

The Venables told deputies the gunman wore a stocking cap over his head.

30 CAP Planes Hunt Lost Navy Trainer

SANTA BARBARA (UP)—The California Air Patrol Saturday called out 30 planes and ground teams to search for a TV2 Navy jet trainer missing since Monday on a flight from the Naval Air Station at Alameda to nearby Pt. Mugu Naval Air Missile Test Center.

The missing plane carried one Navy flier, who has not yet been identified.

COOPERATIVE NURSERY SCHOOLS

Created Do-It-Yourself Projects, L.B. Parley Told

The cooperative nursery school is the original do-it-yourself project, convention delegates to the California Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools were told here Saturday.

PATUCK

Financial savings, though, are secondary to the benefits a parent derives from such a program, according to Pat Underhill, a convention committeewoman.

Young parents, especially, are able to strengthen the family structure through the co-op's parent education program, she points out.

More than 100 delegates are attending the three-day convention ending today in Lafayette Hotel.

Co-op nurseries are financed and managed by a group of parents, but teaching duties are handled by a professional instructor. However, mothers and fathers also attend the school regularly to assist.

* * * *

ONE OF THE observers at the convention is Miss Sooni Patuck, a nursery school teacher of Bombay, India, who commented that the co-op movement has not yet reached India.

"The parent-teacher movement appeared in India only recently," Miss Patuck said.

Dr. Vivian Todd, consultant to the Long Beach Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools, said in a luncheon address that she foresees permissive legislation to enable pre-school children to be included in the public school program eventually.

Dr. Todd added that such a program would have to include mothers in the picture for the 3- and 4-year-olds.

'Mustard Gas' Drug Helps Fight Against Lung Cancer

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—A new drug similar to the deadly mustard gas used in World War I has shown promise in the treatment of Hodgkin's disease and other forms of lymphatic cancer, it was announced Saturday.

The American Cancer Society said two University of California scientists have found that the sulfur mustard drug "also appears to have beneficial effects in certain patients with lung cancer."

It was emphasized that the findings are based only on extensive animal experiments and tests on 27 human patients. Final clinical evaluation must await more extensive use on patients, a cancer society spokesman said.

The new drug, known as SM-1, was devised by Dr. Ethelda Sassenrath and Dr. David M. Greenberg, and has been used experimentally in the University of California hospital here.

"Two or three weeks after SM-1 is given intravenously, tumor masses and lymph nodes shrink and large spleens decrease in size in patients who respond," the spokesman said.

Sulfur mustard appears to be less toxic, longer acting and more easily administered than nitrogen mustard, another poison gas which Germany prepared for World War II but did not use, he said.

Because SM-1 is relatively non-toxic in effective doses, it can be administered in the outpatient clinic. Some patients given nitrogen mustard frequently become so sick they are often kept in the hospital a day after treatment, the spokesman said.

company them to the Orange County jail.

There, the questioning was more exacting and at times the athletically built dishwasher wavered slightly in his answers. About midnight he blurted out his confession—the first of three he was to give by Saturday noon.

"I'm glad of it," Tipton said of the confession. "Now my conscience is clear."

Officers quoted Tipton as saying he took a 6-inch blade butcher knife from his cabin kitchen and "on an urge" went to the door of Cabin No. 11—rented by the Johnsons only two weeks before—and forced his way inside.

* * * *

HE ASSERTEDLY included in his confession a tale of how the young woman resisted his advances. Believing she was about to scream for help, he plunged the knife into her chest. Then, officers said, he raped her.

By 1 a.m. Saturday the native of Georgia whose parents, reportedly are dead, was softly repeating his confession in more detail into the microphone of a wire recorder.

Shortly before noon Saturday, the confessed killer again went through his confession, and this time the words were taken down by a shorthand stenographer.

* * * *

TIPTON'S EYES were wet when he was brought face to face with news cameramen early Saturday morning. He became unnerved as flash bulbs popped.

Dist. Atty. Robert Kneeland, who participated in most of the last interrogations, said Tipton "of course shows lots of remorse."

Asked if the young slayer at any time broke into tears, the district attorney said: "No, not exactly; but his eyes were damp."

Kneeland said a murder charge is being prepared and probably will be filed sometime Monday.

3 Boy Players Hurt in L.B. Baseball Games

Fire Razes House, 4 Men Flee

Firemen fought flames reaching 50 feet in the air in a vacant house at 1574 Sonoma Ave. Saturday night but were unable to save the frame structure.

Witnesses said four men were in the house when the fire started in the rear section but they fled the scene before the firemen arrived. Three neighbors told firemen they dragged two of the men, clad in shorts and undershirts, from the smoke-filled structure.

The rescuers, Leon Corey, 37, Hobert Layman, 22, and Leon Freeman, 28, all of 31 Mendocino Ave., said two of the men were outside and that they dragged two others out.

Freeman said one of the men was burned about the face. Police were looking for a gray 1939 Buick sedan in which the men were supposed to have driven off. Neighbors on each side of the house fought the flames futilely with garden hoses until firemen arrived.

BANNERS OF U. S. and Ecuador Advance in Flag Display at Lakewood's Pan American Festival

Thousands See Flag Rite and Parade

Lakewood residents wrote a new chapter in the Good Neighbor story Saturday amid the color and music of a two-hour parade and a solemn pageantry of banners as the community celebrated its 10th annual Pan American Festival.

Starting at noon, some 75 parade units marched down Bellflower and Del Amo Blvds. to Pan American park, where Bancroft Junior High School students presented a U. S. Flag to Dr. Oswaldo Gonzalez, consul general of Ecuador. Thousands witnessed the ceremonies.

The festival was marred only by a pre-parade accident in which Sr. Stanley Lindo, consul general of Haiti, and two passengers with him in an official car were injured.

The accident occurred after a reception at Lakewood city hall when the driver slammed on the brakes suddenly, hurling the victims against the front seat. Lindo required five stitches to close a cut in his lip.

THE FESTIVAL CULMINATED Saturday night with a dinner-dance at Lakewood Country Club in honor of the Latin American representatives and the coronation of Festival Queen June Shephard.

Twenty-three awards were presented to winners in the various parade categories.

Junior-sponsored band winners were Ozzie's Band, San Diego, first; Bishop Playground Band, second, and Long Beach Junior Concert Band, third.

West Berlin Hits British Release of Red Kidnaper

BERLIN (U.P.)—West Berlin police and city officials Saturday angrily protested the release by British authorities of a Soviet major suspected of kidnaping an East German refugee.

West Berlin police headquarters said they arrested Maj. Gurig Felichkin last March 16 on suspicion of kidnaping Wilhelm Klamka last year.

In line with a four-power agreement on the treatment of allied nations in Berlin, police said they transferred Felichkin to British custody. The British turned the major over to Soviet authorities almost immediately, they charged.

* * * *

A BRITISH announcement said Felichkin was held three days before being turned over with a "strong protest" citing his "suspicious actions." A spokesman said Felichkin was not an army officer but a civilian member of the Soviet occupation forces.

He said the British had no other choice in view of the four-power agreements providing that nationals of one occupation power arrested in the sector of another in Berlin must be transferred to their own authorities.

West Berlin police said Felichkin came to West Berlin last year posing as a French intelligence officer and made friends with Klamka, who was working at the time as a West Berlin customs official.

* * * *

LAST JUNE 8, police said, the major knocked Klamka out with a pistol and spirited him into East Berlin in an automobile bearing French occupation license plates.

Klamka, 48, was sentenced to life imprisonment by a Communist court on charges of being a western spy, according to the police.

Red Scientist Tells Nuclear Peace Plans

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's top expert on the hydrogen-bomb disclosed Saturday he plans talks in London with British scientists on harnessing the powerful thermonuclear force for peaceful uses.

I. V. Kurchatov, a Soviet scientist who took the lead in Russia's H-bomb research, now is in Britain with Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev.

He disclosed his plan in a letter to an A.P. correspondent.

"During my visit to England, I hope to discuss with English scientists—my colleagues—work in the field of atomic energy and a number of questions connected with the practical use of atomic energy, particularly nuclear reactors for power stations and controlled thermonuclear reactions," the letter said.

* * * *

THE H-BOMB is frequently called the thermonuclear bomb. Unlike the reaction which produces the A-bomb, the thermonuclear reaction has not yet been controlled here, Kurchatov said last week.

So far as is known here, controlled reaction from the raw materials of the hydrogen bomb has not been achieved by the West either.

Kurchatov's statement that he intends to discuss the problem with the British therefore takes on added importance.

Dramatist, Wife Missing on Flight

ERIE, Pa. (U.P.)—A $1,000 award was offered Saturday by Mrs. Anna Pollock for information leading to the whereabouts of her Broadway producer son and his wife who have been missing since last Sunday.

Gordon W. Pollock, whose stage hits include "Time Out for Ginger," "Red Roses for Me" and "Wake Up, Darling," took off in his Cessna 180 plane from Detroit bound for Erie. He was accompanied by his wife, Naomi.

The last word received from the 28-year-old producer was Sunday night when he radioed an Erie airport that he was approaching the southern edge of Lake Erie.

New Drugs a Boon to Insomnia-Ridden

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—New drugs—and more advice—are available for the millions who find trouble wooing sleep.

Three new types of sleeping pills have come along in the last few years.

One group is sold over-the-counter in drug stores, with no prescription needed.

All these drugs are actually antihistamines, says George Larrick, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). At least one also contains some scopolomine, an old sleep standby.

The antihistamines were developed to combat hay fever, asthma, skin rashes and other allergies. They also were advanced a few years ago as help in combatting allergic symptoms of the common cold.

As allergy fighters, one drawback was that some antihistamines often made many people drowsy. This was the key to using particular antihistamines as sleep inducers.

When one manufacturer first marketed an antihistamine this way the EDA objected, Larrick said. The manufacturer produced clinical studies to support his claim. The FDA had an independent medical center make studies, giving the drug to some persons and not to others, and back came word that it did often have sleep-inducing effects.

Since then a number of firms have marketed this type of sleep pill.

Used in the low dosages recommended, the antihistamines are safe, and do not cause any harmful effects, Larrick said.

A SECOND CLASS of sleep pills, sold on prescription only, came from research aimed at developing nonbarbiturate, nonhabit-forming sleep inducers. They do not poison, and harmful effects even from tremendous overdoses have rarely been reported.

There are at least five drugs in this group, each based on a different chemical formula. They induce sleep within 15 minutes to an hour, with sleep lasting from two to eight hours, clinical tests report. None produces a "hangover" the next day, as barbiturates may do.

These drugs do not affect everyone in the same way—they vary in efficiency of inducing sleep and don't make some people sleepy at all.

Third in the sleep aid line are some of the tranquilizing or calm-down drugs, widely used for nervous tension and emotional conditions. Chlorpromazine, Meprobate, and Reserpine are examples. All must be used under a doctor's supervision.

Car Driven by Girl, 13, Kills Autoist

LOUISVILLE (AP) — A Shelbyville, Ky., man was killed Saturday when his automobile collided with a car driven by a 13-year-old girl who was driving for the first time.

The victim was Frank J. Scobee Jr., 26, who was en route to Shelbyville from his job in Louisville.

State Troopers William Martin and Morgan Elkins said the girl, Julie Ann Walker of Louisville, told them she had been ordered by Roscoe Rouse, 36, to drive "or you'll have to walk."

* * * *

SHE SAID ROUSE "had been drinking" but she protested she didn't know how to drive until ordered to do so. She had driven only 250 feet when the car went out of control.

The officers said Rouse denied forcing the girl to drive but said his mind "was a blank" about events leading to the accident.

Rouse and the girl were riding alone. They were injured, along with three other persons in Scobee's car.

Shelby County Atty. William H. Hays said a manslaughter charge will be placed against Rouse when he is released from a hospital.

"I'm not dead. I am hitchhiking from Indianapolis to Los Angeles and got a little tired—so I went to sleep."

Barefoot was booked at Blythe on a vagrancy charge.

Youth Now Denies Slaying Motel Man

SAN PEDRO — Eighteen-year-old Robert Williams rescinded Saturday afternoon his earlier confession of the murder of Matt Manestar, 56, well-to-do Harbor City motel owner, but police said they are holding him as a suspect.

ROBERT WILLIAMS
May Face Detector

Investigators eliminated as a murder suspect a 15-year-old Wilmington boy named by Williams when he recounted details of the slaying.

The youth admitted, though, police said, that he participated in the burglary of the Fries Ave. School, Wilmington, in company with Williams a week or two after the murder. The boy was released to the custody of his parents pending a Juvenile Court hearing.

Williams, an inmate of a California Youth Authority institution, earlier told Det. Capt. Ralph Weyant that he fired two shots into Manestar after robbing and kidnaping the motel owner early last Jan. 23.

Weyand said: "Williams included details of the crime that are known by only a few policemen."

Weyant said the suspect may be given a lie detector test Monday.

Williams was committed to a Youth Authority institution in Tracy early in February for beating up his girl friend.

Miners Toil to Uncover Father of 7

SUNNYSIDE, Utah (U.P.) — Weary rescue workers who dug three coal miners from the mass of coal and stone that trapped them for 40 hours continued their search Saturday night for a fourth and still missing miner.

Relatives and searchers of the missing man still held hope that Joseph Otterstrom, 53, would be found alive. However, less optimistic mine officials doubted a miracle, like the one that saved the lives of the other three, would be repeated.

Otterstrom, the foreman of the trapped crew and father of seven children, was last seen Wednesday when he talked with the three miners who were rescued. Rescue workers feared that Otterstrom had not found safety under mine machinery as the others had and was covered under the tons of rock and coal.

NEW, YOUNG WIVES SECRET OF SAGE, 96

FRESNO (AP) — Something new in recipes for longevity: Marry a woman considerably younger than yourself every 20 years.

That's the advice of Arthur Reed, 96, of Caruthers, who pedaled a bicycle 25 miles yesterday to have a look at Fresno County's centennial festivities here.

Reed, who hopes to live 29 years longer, told newsmen:

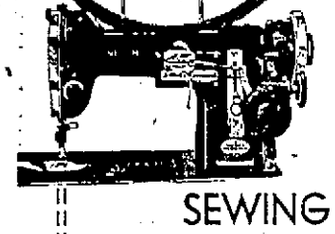

"You know, I found a formula for staying young. Every 20 years I manage to marry some woman much younger than I am."

His present wife is his third.

DEBRA WAS BORN TOO SOON

Blind Child Now Learns New Life

By BRYAN HODGSON

There are a lot of things which 4-year-old Debra Lee Martin will never understand.

She'll never know what sunshine means.

Or why her house has switches on the walls.

Sparkling words of light and color will be mysteries to her, and pictures merely fabric in a frame.

And Debra Lee will never know what eyes are for.

She was born too soon, and the oxygen which saved her life destroyed her sight.

* * * * *

DEBRA IS the daughter of Chief Warrant Officer W. A. Martin and his wife, Alpha, of 3108 Volk Ave., Lakewood. She was born prematurely on Nov. 16, 1951, in the Navy hospital at Portsmouth, Va.

"At first we didn't think she'd live," Mrs. Martin recalls. "She weighed only two pounds, five ounces. Then, just after she was pronounced out of danger, the doctors discovered she was blind."

Debra's blindness has an ugly name — retrolental fibroplasia. Researchers have discovered that it's caused by giving too much oxygen to incubator babies. Today, doctors carefully control the oxygen during incubation, and the disease does not occur as frequently.

"Debra was born before anyone knew much about the disease," Mrs. Martin said. "They put her in an isolette with another baby who needed more oxygen. The other baby lived, too.

"But she could see, and Debra was blinded for life.

Yet a world without light doesn't have to mean a life without happiness, either for the victims or their parents, Mrs. Martin believes.

"I still shudder when I hear phrases like 'doomed to a world of darkness'," she says intensely. "After all, if a person is adjusted to a handicap, then he's not really handicapped at all."

* * * *

HELPING DEBRA to adjust to her invisible world has been the Martins' main interest since they overcame their initial shock.

"At first, she was a very happy baby," Mrs. Martin recalls. "She learned to walk at 16 months—early for a blind child—and was outgoing and friendly.

"Then, instinctively, she seemed to realize that something was missing. She began to develop 'blind-isms' like banging her head on the wall for hours on end, or pulling her hair out in handfuls. She never felt secure unless she was in her crib."

The Martins talked to parents of other blind children, wrote letters to medical authorities, and learned all they could about the problems of bringing up a sightless youngster.

Recently, they formed an organization called Parents of Blind and Visually Handicapped Children. This group, which now has 38 members from the Long Beach area, enables parents to help each other with their problems and plan activities for the youngsters.

They have also studied Braille in preparation for the time when Debra begins learning to read.

* * * *

TODAY, AFTER MONTHS of patient guidance, Debra is learning to cope with her lightless world.

"It's a lot like watching child psychology in slow motion," her mother says. "A blind child must be pushed to do almost everything at first—to play with new toys, or be curious about her surroundings.

"Then, slowly, she will try it on her own.

"You'll never know the joy of seeing her do something simple by herself, like opening a door just because it's there, or touching a knickknack in the living room."

Debra has learned to ride her trike, and is fascinated by her large collection of records. She can also feed herself, although she still refuses to take solid foods.

"Her front teeth and jaw were injured seriously by falls when she was 2, and we think this has made her afraid to chew," says Mrs. Martin.

Four days a week, she stays at a Los Angeles nursery school for blind children, where she learns to play, sing and even dance with other children.

Later she will attend special classes for blind children at Stevenson Elementary School in Long Beach.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH SHE IS still nervous, and seldom sleeps at night, Debra is gradually learning that her special world can be a happy place.

Recently a neighborhood child came to play.

"You know, I'm blind too—when I close my eyes," she confided to Mrs. Martin.

"Debra turned to me and said, 'Bonnie's a nice girl. She's a little blind girl.'"

Bill, the Martins' 9-year-old son, is proud of his baby sister now, although he was a little dubious at first.

"He used to ask us why God made such a big mistake," Mrs. Martin said. "But now he understands, and when his friends mention Debra's blindness, he tells them to shut their eyes and see how easy it is."

Perhaps life will never really be easy for Debra.

Slowly and painfully, she'll have to learn the things that other children take for granted. She'll take many frightening tumbles, and bruise herself often as she learns.

But warmth and love do not require the eyes, and beauty lives in sound as well as sight.

And these are things that Debra Lee can understand.

WALKING TOWARD BRIGHTER LIFE

French Rout Strong Rebel Algeria Band

ALGIERS (UP) — Veteran French colonial troops wiped out the dichard remnants of a strong rebel band in a wild charge up a heavily-wooded hillside barely 15 miles frm the big city of Constantine Saturday.

French authorities reported 40 rebel bodies were found on the battlefield on the outskirts of the dusty settlement of Grarem. Six French soldiers were killed and at least nine wounded.

In all, French security forces killed 107 Guerrillas in scattered clashes throughout the terrorist-ridden Eastern Algerian department of Constantine in the past 24 hours.

* * * *

FRENCH AUTHORITIES reported that at least 21 pro-French Moslems were assassinated by nationalist extremists during the same period. It was the biggest single day toll taken by terrorists the French said were acting on instructions from the Clandestine National Liberation front.

Only a few rebels survived the clash, which began when insurgents killed two French soldiers and wounded nine others in an ambush outside of Grarem.

French officials said their troops overran the remaining hilltop positions of the rabels to complete the destruction of one of the biggest guerrilla bands in Northern Constantine.

Grace, Prince Shun Hotel, Stay on Yacht

POLLENSA, Majorca (UP)—The royal Monacan yacht carrying Prince Rainier and Princess Grace on their honeymoon slipped almost unnoticed into this port in the Spanish Balearic Islands Saturday.

Pollensa was the first real land-fall on the honeymoon cruise. But the prince and his bride chose to spend the night in the privacy of their yacht rather than ashore.

Rainier invited hotel officials aboard the yacht to thank them for preparing a "bridal suite" but said he and Grace would spend the night abboard ship.

The whereabouts of the famous honeymooners had been the subject of daylong speculation. Their yacht was variously reported steaming toward the Isle of Capri, the mainland Spain, east and west and in other directions.

New Records AT CITY LIBRARY

World wide travelers are invited to reminisce with the new recordings of foreign flavor. The Public Library announces the following additions to its lending collection in Lincoln Park: "African Music from the French Colonies" (Columbia Folk Series); "Hawaii Calls" (Al Kealoha Perry with chorus and soloists); "The Japanese Koto" (modern Japanese music); "Tahitian Rhythms" (Augie Goupil and his Royal Tahitians) and "Your Musical Holiday in the West Indies" (a Calypso Carnival).

3 Mideast Nations Sign Military Pact

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Yemen signed a three-power treaty pact Saturday to strengthen Arab armed forces in the tense Middle East.

The treaty was signed at the Saudi-Arabian diplomatic capital of Jedda after a meeting of the three heads of government. Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser signed for Egypt, King Saud for Saudi-Arabia, and Imam Ahmen for tiny Yemen.

* * * *

(IN LONDON, the Israeli embassy said Britain is shipping a small consignment of arms to Israel by ship today. The embassy denied London press reports that the order was large and contained big guns.

(The press reports said the weapons were being loaded aboard the Israeli ship "Galila" which is to sail today.

("It does not contain tanks, airplanes or any heavy equipment whatsoever," the embassy said.)

The new Middle East pact signed at Jedda dovetails with a similar mutual defense pact drawn up last year between Egypt and Syria.

ATTEMPTS HAVE been made to get Jordan to join the network of alliances which form a "southern tier" of military defenses.

Purge of Books On in Nevada

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Such popular novels as "Mr. Roberts" and "From Here to Eternity" are on the list of publications which the Nevada Council of Catholic Men is asking the state's booksellers to purge from their shelves.

In what it calls a "drive for decent literature," the council also asks removal of "The Seven Year Itch," "Blackboard Jungle," "Battle Cry," "Nana," "To Have and Have Not," "God's Little Acre" and "Tobacco Road."

Magazines suggested for deletion from newsstands include "Cavalier," "Confidential" and "Playboy."

* * * *

THE LIST sent the state's book dealers, including druggists and other newsstand operators, includes some 200 books and magazines which have been termed indecent by the Council of Catholic Men.

The state chairman of the campaign, Paul Laxalt of Carson City, said the list was prepared and furnished by the National Organization for Decent Literature. The organization has headquarters in Chicago.

Laxalt declined comment on the inclusion of novels which have been widely read and later seen as stage plays and movies.

"We've got to stand by the list," he said. "If we make one exception the list would be chopped up."

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the list, Laxalt sent booksellers a copy of the state law on obscene publications and a letter saying, "two of our representatives will call on you to see what progress you have made."

State law makes it a gross misdemeanor to sell obscene and indecent publications, but makes no provision for who is to decide which publications fall into that category.

The men's council recently reported that 50 per cent of the dealers in the Reno area are following its recommendations.

Ike to Talk Budget With GOP Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower will huddle with Republican congressional leaders Tuesday to discuss recent forecasts of budget surpluses and accompanying pressures for an election-year tax cut.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH) disclosed Saturday that the budget situation will get priority at Eisenhower's weekly White House meeting with Republican legislative leaders. Bridges said Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey also will be present.

Bridges said he has conferred already with Treasury Department officials and with the President's aides.

* * * *

IT WAS UNDERSTOOD that the purpose of the White House huddle would be to make plans for playing down any talk of tax cuts—at least for the time being. The administration first wants to take a close look at government spending and receipts in late May.

Bridges said he is skeptical about forecasts of a big surplus and talk that the government may be able to finance a tax cut.

He said the budget also will be the "first thing" for discussion at a meeting of the Senate Republican policy committee after the White House huddle.

* * * *

BRIDGES IS CHAIRMAN of the policy committee. He is also top Republican on the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee which drafts government spending bills.

Staff economists of the Congressional Economic Committee this week forecast a $2 billion budget surplus for this fiscal year compared to the $200 million forecast by the treasury. The staff report warned of inflationary pressures and said there should be no tax reduction.

Fiat Bares Car to Operate With New 'Liquigas'

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Fiat Saturday unveiled a new six-cylinder, 200-horsepower "liquigas" automobile motor that runs with liquid gas instead of gasoline or diesel oil.

The new 10,675-CC motor had been the best kept secret of the Italian automobile industry, and was the highlight of the big Turin International Auto Show which opened today.

Thirteen nations were represented with 450 exhibits of cars and accessories. First day spectators admired the big, luxury models—mostly of foreign make—but spent most of their time around the low-price cars.

The motor operates on a liquid fuel formed under pressure from a mixture of propane butane propilene, isobutan and butilene gases.

Its advantages were described as more silent operation, less engine wear, and lower cost.

Students Back Hiss Appearance, Contend 'He Won't Convert Us'

(Editor's Note: Alger Hiss, convicted of perjury and branded as a traitor, will speak at Princeton University Thursday. Student reaction to the resulting controversy is reported here by Robert A. Sklar, 19-year-old Princeton sophomore. A former sports correspondent for the Independent, Press-Telegram, Sklar is on the Daily Princetonian staff and is majoring in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.)

By ROBERT A. SKLAR

PRINCETON, N. J. —Princeton University undergraduates, who have earned an unusual reputation for political apathy in recent years, have been shocked, dismayed and somewhat puzzled by the national controversy precipitated when the American Whig Cliosophic Society invited Alger Hiss to speak here Thursday.

SKLAR

In the face of wrathful protests from congressmen, alumni, veteran's groups and the general public, nevertheless, most students have been adamant in their support of the undergraduate debating society's refusal to cancel the speech by the former State Department advisor and convicted perjurer. Hiss is scheduled to speak on "The Meaning of Geneva" in his first public appearance since his release from prison.

ALGER HISS
Poll Favors Speech

Bolstered, perhaps, by President Harold W. Dodd's reply to a stream of critical letters and telegrams that the university would not interfere with the invitation, nearly 90 per cent of the answers to an undergraduate poll early last week approved of the speech. A spot poll a week later, taken following denunciations of the scheduled appearance of Hiss in dozens of newspaper editorials and on the floor of Congress, showed an even stronger degree of support.

* * * *

IT IS CLEAR, however, from opinions voiced in upperclass eating clubs and dormitories all over this usually peaceful campus, that few if any of those students favoring the speech are at all sympathetic to either Hiss or his views. They are even dubious of the motives and intensions of Whig-Clio in extending the invitation, expressed in a statement by society President Bruce D. Bringgold:

"While the society does not approve of Hiss' record, we feel that his views should be of general interest to the faculty and student body."

Most undergraduates, instead, believe that sensationalism and the prospect of drawing a good crowd motivated the "Cliosophs", a good deal more than curiosity. The society's once enormous campus influence has dropped sharply in recent years, and a speech by a mid-western senator under its auspices last year drew an embarrassing 40 listeners.

"He never should have been invited," one undergraduate said in a concise summary of the prevalent opinion. "It's giving an honor to a convicted perjurer and traitor. But now that the invitation has been given, I'll stick by it in the interest of academic freedom."

"Isn't that the American way?" his companion added. And many concurred with the editorial statement of the Daily Princetonian, which said in part:

"Princeton's reputation will suffer more if the bid is rescinded than if Hiss comes here as scheduled. It would imply that Princeton is an institution that can be browbeaten by outside pressure groups."

* * * *

OPPOSITION to the speech was based more on the unfavorable effect it will have on the university than on the speech itself. "It's damned unfortunate," one senior said in a slow southern drawl. "It'll be a mechanism for slamming us. I'm sure many people are convinced that we are slightly un-American."

Despite their own feelings on Hiss' appearance, all undergraduates were united in the opinion that the general public has misunderstood the matter. "I'm surprised," a member of Whig-Clio said. "This is a lot of uproar over nothing. Hiss won't convert anyone. This is a liberal college; we're willing to hear all, but we're intelligent enough to reserve our own opinions."

A possible serious note was added when rumors circulated Friday that American Legion groups, who have been barred from campus for the speech, have invited undergraduates to picket the hall in their place.

Previous to that some undergraduates were predicting that the speech might touch off one of Princeton's annual spring riots. If pickets appear, they now say, there may be a bad scene, possibly a free-for-all.

One worried university official summed up the feelings of a good many local observers in one short sentence:

"I just hope it rains that night."

MANY USE OLD TRICKS

Swindlers Rake In Million Every Year

By ROGER D. GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Inspector David Stephens of the U. S. Post Office Department read the teletype message and shook his head wearily.

"It's a vicious racket . . . vicious. The wonder is that people are still falling for it."

The message came from Chicago. It told how postal inspectors had arrested a swindler who preyed on scores of bereaved families by sending them cheap Bibles addressed to the deceased —for $5 C.O.D.

But the Chicago incident is just a drop in the nationwide bucket as the fast-buck boys, charity racketeers, mail-order gypsters "boiler room" crews and other fly-by-night operators fleece the American public out of millions of dollars a year.

In the charity field alone, the Better Business Bureau estimates at least 120 million dollars fall into the hands of charlatans and get-rich-quick promoters.

* * * *

IN THE CHICAGO "Bible swindle," the culprit watched obituary notices published in newspapers and mailed out 100 Bibles C.O.D. In the names of the dead persons. Survivors assumed the deceased had ordered the books and paid for them. The reported $5 Bibles cost $1 apiece.

Stephens, whose nationwide force of 1,005 postal inspectors investigates through-the-mail crimes ranging from extortion, fraud and forgery to mail theft, said the charity racket is the most lucrative of all the myriad traps baited for kind-hearted but gullible citizens.

A recent case, he said, involved an outfit which billed itself as the "Department of California Handicapped War Veterans"—implying it was an official state agency—and solicited funds for alleged hospital care of veterans.

In three months, he said, the promoters took in $136,000 and pocketed $97,000 for "expenses."

* * * *

STEPHENS said the Post Office Dept. is now getting many complaints about so-called charity organizations and outright swindlers flooding the mails with unordered merchandise — ballpoint pens, neckties, cheap wallets, goodluck pieces, "guaranteed" family coat-of-arms and other gimcracks. Usually it is offered on "10-day approval" terms.

As long as the trash isn't sent C.O.D. and doesn't violate postal regulations against fraud or deception, there is little the Post Office Department can do about it.

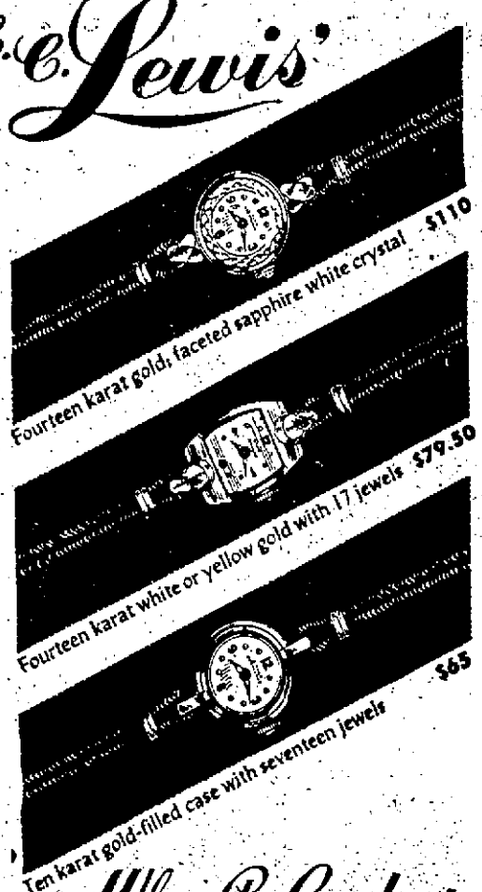

Leland S. McCarthy, managing director of the Washington Better Business Buerau, offers this advice:

"There is absolutely no legal obligation to return anything you didn't order, even if it's accompanied by stamps to cover return postage. You can keep the stamps or give them to some worthwhile charity.

"And you can do what you like with the merchandise, without paying for it, unless the sender calls at your home in person or sends an agent to collect it within 30 days. Even then you can demand storage charges for keeping the parcel.

"My advice is that if you don't want the merchandise, throw it on top of the trash can. Maybe the garbage collector can use it. Otherwise, let your conscience be your guide. If you use it, of course, you should pay for it."

Graham's Attorneys Favor Women Jurors

DENVER (AP) — The state thwarted Saturday a defense move to seat a predominantly feminine jury to try John Gilbert Graham, 24, on a charge of murder.

Court-appointed attorneys for the accused killer of his well-to-do mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King, 55, moved on the sixth day of the trial for acceptance of a tentative jury made up of seven women and six men. The 13th—a woman at this time—hears the case but does not deliberate on the verdict unless a regular is excused during the trial.

Dist. Atty. Bert Keating upset the defense move by exercising his 11th peremptory challenge to excuse Helen Pugel, a school secretary.

* * * *

MRS. KING DIED with 43 others in the crash of an airliner that exploded last Nov. 1 shortly after leaving Denver. The state accuses Graham of putting a dynamite time bomb in her luggage before taking out $37,500 flight insurance on her life.

The prosecution has left only four peremptory challenges which allow it to remove prospective jurors without stating the reason. All but two of its 11 challenges have been used to excuse women.

The nine peremptory challenges used by Graham's lawyers have removed men. The defense has six challenges left.

Among the prospective jurors called to the box Saturday were W. R. Ancell, who said he knew Graham as a schoolboy at Yampa, Colo., and Glorida M. Hansen who worked with Graham briefly in 1951. Both were excused.

* * * *

THROUGH MIDAFTERNOON 194 prospective jurors had been called to the box for examination. They have been chosen from a 600-name panel.

Of those called 73 have been excused when they said they would not inflict the death penalty. Fifty-seven were released when they said they had fixed opinions that would not be changed by evidence.

Union Officer Ousted From Red Hearing

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A union official was ejected forcibly Saturday from the hearing room of the House Subcommittee on Un-American Activities.

Hustled from the hearing as the climax to a verbal battle with Rep. Gordon Scherer (R-Ohio), subcommittee member, was Tom Chapman, identified as a shop steward for the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union.

* * * *

THE INCIDENT followed several verbal rows between uncooperative witnesses and members of the subcommittee which wound up its week-long hearings here.

Although most of the week concerned inquiry into possible Communist activities among Hollywood's musicians, Saturday's questioning was mainly into alleged Communist Party membership of ILWU officials.

A union delegation swelled attendance to near the 300 mark as four union officials, Chapman, Sid London, Al Caplan and Lou Sherman, were called to the stand.

The four union men clashed with committeemen, refusing to admit any connection with Communist activities under questioning by Frank Tavenner, committee counsel.

* * * *

Rayburn Raps Ike Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sen. Alben W. Barkley said Saturday night that the Eisenhower administration is following a foreign policy of "massive confusion" and "utmost confusion."

Rayburn said, "The way this administration has handled our foreign affairs, the free world stands in the direst danger it has ever faced."

He also said the administration "has turned its back on the farmers in the face of conditions that forecast the loss of prosperity to many."

Barkley, Kentucky Democrat and former vice president, also belabored Republican domestic policies and ridiculed GOP claims of prosperity.

The two veteran Democrats shared the platform at a Woodrow Wilson centennial dinner attended by about 2,500 party members in the national guard armory.

Many Democratic bigwigs were present for the $100-a-plate dinner which climaxed two days of formal and informal huddles on 1956 campaign plans and problems. Among the guests were Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 presidential nominee and 1956 contender, and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, an inactive candidate for the nomination. The other major candidate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, kept a speaking date in Oregon.

Both Rayburn and Barkley were sworn in as members of the House on March 4, 1913, the date of the first Wilson administration. Both lauded the Wilson, Roosevelt and Truman administrations while denouncing the Republican record with particular attention to the Eisenhower administration.

Barkley said he respected President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as men of good will and good intentions. But he said he would be happier if these intentions were translated into "a firm, understandable, dynamic foreign policy."

Kefauver Claims Ike Hinders West

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver told the Young Democrats of Oregon Saturday night that "the Eisenhower administration, by its failures in the field of resource development, has put a ceiling on the progress of the West."

Kefauver came into this power-conscious region in search of write-in support for his presidential candidacy. He assailed Douglas McKay, the resigned secretary of the interior, and praised Sen. Wayne Morse.

McKay resigned to seek the Republican nomination to the Senate seat for which Morse seeks renomination as a Democrat.

Kefauver, climaxing a meeting-filled day that began at 4:30 a.m., had some off-the-cuff remarks ready on the President's farm bill veto. "A hard, cruel blow" to farmers—especially the small farmers—he called it.

Oregon's 16 delegates will be chosen May 18 and will be pledged to the candidate getting the biggest number of write-in votes. Both Kefauver and Stevenson organizations are active in urging their candidates' names be written in.

Adlai Urges U.S. Call Off Pacific H-Bomb Test

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said in a speech Saturday that the administration should consider calling off the H-bomb tests in the Pacific next month.

America is losing friends around the world because of a growing reputation as a "militarist" nation, the Democratic presidential aspirant said.

"I believe," he said at a luncheon meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, "we should give prompt and earnest consideration to stopping further tests of the hydrogen bomb. . . . I question the sense in multiplying and enlarging weapons of a destructive power already almost incomprehensible."

Administration officials told reporters that the H-bomb tests scheduled to be held at Bikini sometime after May 8 will go ahead as planned.

Top Russ Face Jibes at Oxford

LONDON (UP)—Latvian refugees showered the touring Russian leaders with anti-Communist leaflets Saturday and thousands of boisterous Oxford University students lampooned them by singing "Poor Old Joe."

Firecrackers set off by students momentarily alarmed the Russians and their security guards. But for the most part, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev appeared to enjoy the demonstration. They beamed and waved and raised their arms overhead in double-fisted salutes. They willingly gave autographs and smiled at the hundreds of students who snapped their pictures.

* * * *

THE HUBBUB generally was good natured, although there was some booing. It was the noisiest reception the Russians have received since their tour started Wednesday and was in marked contrast to the general silence which has greeted them in London.

The singing students' parody of "Old Black Joe" kidded the Russians about the current anti-Stalin line. They surrounded the Soviet leaders at every stop, and one group of them burst into "Yo Ho Heave Ho," to the tune of the "Volga Boatman."

The Soviet delegation left Oxford after a tour of the colleges and historic sites and drove directly to Chequers, Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden's country estate, for a private weekend of talks.

A few hundred sightseers waved to them as they drove through the gate. Only one policeman was on duty. It was a complete switch on the tumultuous welcome they received in Oxford.

* * * *

THE SOVIET LEADERS laughed and appeared to enjoy it immensely, although the crowd of 5,000 at the Oxford city hall broke through police lines and guards had to link arms to carve a path for the two portly Russians. During the excitement, a police car collided with a limousine carrying Soviet officials, but no one was hurt.

The anti-Communist leaflet bath was the first untoward incident recorded on the 10-day Soviet tour. To forestall possible street demonstrations in London today, Scotland Yard canceled all police leaves and ordered reinforcements to the downtown district where 11,000 Polish and Ukrainian refugees have scheduled marches.

Student Death Laid to Fumes

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The death of Joseph Sheldon Abrams, 25, UCLA graduate student from Northbrook, Ill., was listed Saturday by police as accidental.

The coroner's office said death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning and detectives discovered that Abrams' one-room apartment had three gas appliances, stove, refrigerator and floor heater.

The body was found Friday. Abrams, a sociology student, had been here since the fall of 1954. Police said his apartment was littered with Young Socialist League literature and correspondence indicating he was active in an off-campus branch of the league.

Officers said a check was going made of heaters in the building where Abrams' apartment was located.

Wedding Rites of Former Escort Attended by Meg

HOLKHAM, England (UP) — Princess Margaret went to the wedding Saturday of one of her former boy friends.

The Princess went to the ancient church of St. Withburga here for the marriage of handsome Colin Tennant, 29, and Lady Anne Coke, 23, who with Margaret was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Queen Elizabeth. The Queen did not attend today's wedding.

Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth attracted hundreds of visitors to this little Norfolk town for the ceremony. Some 100 persons attended the wedding and 1,000 crowded into the reception afterward.

Tennant once was one of Margaret's escorts, and at one time, it was thought he might marry the 25-year-old princess.

Cost of Roads Edges Upward

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Bureau of Public Roads reported Saturday that the cost of building highways edged upward toward record levels during the first quarter of this year.

The bureau's price index, using 1946 as the base, went up 1 per cent in January, February and March to 132.4. It was 131.1 in the final quarter of last year.

The index for the first quarter was 4.2 per cent above the 1955 average of 128.4, but 3.1 per cent below the record 136.6 in 1952.

Riesel Under Guard, Eyes Yet in Danger

NEW YORK (UP) — Labor columnist Victor Riesel still was under constant medical examination and treatment Saturday and his chances of seeing again with his acid-burned eyes were "dangerously uncertain."

A vial of sulphuric acid was thrown in Riesel's face near Times Square early April 5 after he had made a radio broadcast attacking labor racketeers.

He has been in St. Clare's Hospital under constant guard and treatment since.

A bulletin issued from his bedside Saturday said Riesel's condition remained "materially unchanged" and that every measure possible was being taken to head off complications.

"His facial burns are showing definite signs of healing," the bulletin said.

WHAT CONGRESS DID

WASHINGTON (UP) — Status of major legislation in Congress:

FARM—The Democratic-controlled House Agriculture Committee voted to grant President Eisenhower $1.2 billion to set up his crop-cutback soil bank. House action is expected Wednesday.

HIGHWAYS—The House Public Works Committee approved a huge 13-year $51.5 billion federal-state highway construction program, largest in the nation's history.

HOUSING—A Senate Banking Subcommittee approved a catch-all housing bill. It went far beyond Mr. Eisenhower's requests in calling for $10,000 low-cost public housing units in six years and a special program for elderly persons.

APPROPRIATIONS — The House Appropriations Committee voted $598 million to run the State and Justice Departments and the federal courts next year. It scuttled the President's request for $3.8 million for a floating Cinerama ("movie palace."

MILITARY — Senate action pending on a House-passed bill to authorize a $2 billion military construction program.

FOREIGN AID—House Foreign Affairs Committee continues consideration of $4,672,475,000 foreign aid request. Economy bloc hopes to cut it by $2 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY — Senate Finance Committee continues work on House-passed bill liberalizing benefits for women and the handicapped.

POSTAL — House Commerce Committee still considering bill to raise most postal rates.

MEDICAL AID — Senate Armed Services Committee considering $75 million House-passed plan to set up hospitalization program for military dependents.

SCHOOLS—House Rules Committee still delaying floor consideration of $1.6 billion federal school aid bill.

SUGAR — Senate-House conferees still considering quota bill giving U. S. producers bigger share of any increased consumption.

NAVY—Senate action pending on House-passed, billion-dollar atomic Navy expansion bill.

DAR Installs Missourian

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. Frederic A. Groves was installed as president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution Saturday before weary delegates to the drawn-out 65th Continental Congress.

The youthful grandmother from Cape Girardeau, Mo., became the 22nd DAR president.

She launched her administration by asking for the help of the two women who, until Friday night, were her rivals for the top job. And she pledged to "keep faith" with the society's past.

Constitution Hall, stripped of the concession booths which had given it a holiday air all week, was less than half full for the installation ceremony. Many delegates brought suitcases with them so they could hasten their departure for home.

Pope Urges World Group to Aid Lepers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius XII has proposed formation of an international committee to help lepers.

President, Benson Confer on Price Support for Corn

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower conferred Saturday with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson on the administration's plan to provide price support for midwestern corn growers who overplant their acreage allotments.

Benson told reporters afterward that he will announce "shortly" the support price that will be provided under this new program.

Benson said he and the President also discussed the other boosts in farm price supports ordered by Mr. Eisenhower when he vetoed the farm bill. The White House conference lasted almost an hour. Benson said it touched "in only a general way" on the administration's soil bank proposal.

URANIUM IN MALAYA

Singapore (UP) — The recent discovery of uranium in Pahang State, Central Malaya, has sparked speculation that there may be substantial deposits in the country.

ONE IN 100 LIVE ABROAD

Yank Colonies Circle Globe

By CARL CRANMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

By strict definition the United States consists of 48 states and a federal district.

But around 1½ million Americans—nearly one out of every 100 Americans—live beyond the accepted boundaries of the United States and its possessions and many have created for themselves "Little Americas" in nearly every corner of the world.

They are the servicemen and their wives and children, the diplomats and experts in the many assistance programs, the engineers, technicians, businessmen, missionaries, artists, writers, the expatriates and the retired.

The great outpushing — the great military bases, the colonies of Point Four technicians, the new factories and offices springing up from the tremendous growth of American industry and business—has taken with it the supermarket, the refrigerator, the hard top convertible, Hollywood films and the TV station.

All that the Americans have taken with them on this invasion in reverse to remind their foreign hosts of a land that once was cowboy and Indian country are their kids in blue jeans and Davy Crockett hats.

The cosmopolitan influence of these hundreds of thousands when they return to the United States is of course, incalculable. But one thing stands out: the tendency to live in "little suburbias" of their own, rather than mixing with the people while overseas, dilutes the American impact on the foreign scene.

Associated Press correspondents abroad were asked to report on the Americans in their areas.

Highlights of their dispatches follow:

* * * *

FRANKFURT, GERMANY—Nearly 400,000 Americans live in West Germany. Most are soldiers and airmen guarding the Iron Curtain frontier, their families, civilian employes of the armed forces, diplomatic personnel and businessmen.

Generally, the Americans are a bit clannish, primarily because they find the language difficult. The U.S. Army and Air Force, for example, have big community centers wherever the men are stationed.

But some Americans appreciate German opera, the scenery, the many tourist attractions, the restaurants with their heaping portions. And American youngsters can be seen in Bavarian lederhosen (leather shorts) jabbering in fluent German, and German kids in cowboy jeans yelling in comic book American-ese.

* * * *

TOKYO—One minute you're driving down a narrow Oriental lane between rows of bamboo and paper houses through swarms of bicycles, motorcycles and pedestrians.

The next minute you are in a different world — pastel-tinted bungalows and duplexes surrounded by trim lawns, rows of late model cars and scrubbed, freckled kids wearing blue jeans. There are several of these transplanted islands of America in Japan with names like Washington Heights, Sagamihara, Shrapnel Village and Area X.

The Japanese government, by agreement with the United States, has built more than 13,000 comfortable, well-heated dwellings which house more than half the 24,400 U.S. service families in Japan.

There are 170,000 Americans in Japan, including 675 members of State Department and other civilian government families and about 8,500 missionaries, businessmen, students and teachers.

Military families can buy 19-cent Ethyl and dollar steaks, and enjoy 25-cent movies and dance orchestras several nights a week. A maid can be hired for $28 a month, at most. Americans in Japanese neighborhoods find living more difficult. The rent on a western style, three-room house is $100 or more a month.

* * * *

LONDON—The 100,000 Americans, ranging from soldiers to movie actors, who live in Britain find it easy to slip into the British way of living. Many form close friendships with their British neighbors.

Some American children are enrolled in U.S. Air Force schools, but most go to British schools.

The boys may wear cowboy boots with their English school uniforms, and gain prestige with their British playmates by posing as descendants of fierce Indian fighters. The girls cultivate English accents which set the rest of the family's teeth on edge.

Supermarkets in a few neighborhoods make the American housewife feel more at home. But the housing problem is likely to dominate her conversation. Rents are around $120 a month for a furnished place. And by American standards it is likely to be almost uninhabitable in winter when pipes burst and the housewife, face blackened from soot, spends hours stoking a fireplace.

* * * *

PARIS—There are about as many Americans living in France as in Little Rock, Ark.—around 100,000.

For about 80,000 of them, men in uniform and their families, life is as if they were on a U.S. island. At the 39 Army and Air Force installations housing, post exchanges, schools and commissaries are provided. They can buy canned goods and clothing at duty-free prices.

"We never meet any French people and we hardly know we're in a foreign country" says the wife of an American lieutenant colonel living near Paris.

* * * *

SEOUL—Korea means hardship in one way or another for most of the 62,000 Americans who live there. All but about 2,000 are in military uniform. All but 700 missionaries and educators and 100 businessmen are on the U.S. payroll.

But mountains of foodstuffs, cosmetics and recreational extras poured in by ship enable those connected with the government to live well, American style at reasonable prices.

Civilians have many problems in this war-ravaged land. Many rats, open sewers and water unfit for drinking present sanitation difficulties.

Of the 100 businessmen, about half live at the Bando Hotel in Seoul at a cost of $12 or more a day.

* * * *

GENERAL—Bloody nationalist rebellions sweeping from Tunisia to Algeria and Morocco have changed for 15,000 Americans living in North Africa the picture postcard portrayal of life amid palm trees, lush oases, veiled women and dazzling beaches.

Of the 8,000 to 10,000 Americans in Spain, about 5,000 are employes of the armed forces.

Approximately 3,100 Americans take revolutions in their stride and eat 20-cent beefsteaks in Argentina.

There are thousands of Americans in other countries—nearly 50,000 in Mexico, 13,000 in Cuba, 7,000 in Central America, 35,000 in the Philippines, nearly 10,000 in Brazil, 5,000 in Turkey, 5,500 in India, 4,200 in the Azores, 4,300 in Israel, 5,300 in Australia.

The wartime phrase: "You never had it so good," lingers in many places, but there are problems, not all of them large. In Cairo, for instance, there is an American who has to take his 3-year-old son with him to go shopping because the boy speaks Egyptian; father does not.

And on the other side of that coin is the American in Britain who found his 10-year-old son was an expert on the War of the Roses but had never heard of Andrew Jackson.

* * * *

REGIONAL POLITICS

L.B. Kefauver Camp Protests 'Squeeze-out' by Demo Study Club

A protest of "squeeze-out" and discrimination rose from the Long Beach Kefauver camp.

A Democratic candidate accused the registrar of voters of denying voters their constitutional rights.

With these controversial developments, Democratic activities bounced back to front stage this weekend and it looked as if the 1956 primary election campaign was at long last beginning to warm up. All of this followed a week of Republican prominence in the news, with Rep. Craig Hosmer here from Washington to kick off his reelection campaign and former Gov. Dan Thornton making a Long Beach speech keynoting the GOP ballot drive.

* * * *

CHARGES SQUEEZE-OUT

The discrimination charge was leveled against the Long Beach Democratic Women's Study Club—largest Demo organization here—by Mrs. Lucille Toll, a member of the delegation ticket favoring Sen. Estes Kefauver in the California primary.

Mrs. Toll declared the executive board of the Study Club voted on April 16 not to permit a speaker for Sen. Kefauver at its candidate's day program May 2.

* * * *

THIS, SHE SAID, was palpably unfair because the club has recently heard two leading supporters of Adlai Stevenson—Mrs. Goldie Kennedy, state chairman of "Women for Stevenson," and William Rosenthal, Stevenson's Southern California chairman. Because of these appearances, Mrs. Toll asked the club to permit someone to speak for Kefauver at the May 2 meeting.

She was turned down, she said on the grounds that Mrs. Kennedy is an official of the state Democratic committee and was pinch-hitting for Atty. Gen. Edmund G. Brown, a state official, while Rosenthal is a former member of the State Assembly.

Mrs. Toll asserted that the speech by Mrs. Kennedy in March turned into an out-and-out pitch for Stevenson, and Mrs. Kennedy called the former Illinois governor "the most wonderful man of our times."

Study club by-laws, Mrs. Toll said, prohibit support before the primary of one Democrat against another. "This year," she said wryly, "there seems to be a way of circumventing these rules. The general membership of the club, I'm sure, prefers to hear all views."

"We Democrats supported the 'New Deal' and the 'Fair Deal' but some of us balk at the 'Raw Deal'."

The charge against County Registrar of Voters Ben Hite was made by Democratic Congressional Candidate Raymond Simpson. He made a formal protest to Hite for shutting off voter registration during the period between the primary election registration deadline, April 12, and the primary election, June 5.

Simpson asserted that such action is in violation of the spirit and the letter of the election law. He demanded in his letter that Hite immediately furnish registration supplies to all deputy registrars and authorize them to resume registration.

* * * *

IT HAS BEEN established procedure in Hite's office for years to close down registration in the 53-day period before an election, during which no one can register for that election. Hite told the Press-Telegram this is the practice in all counties of the state.

Hite said, however, that he would not refuse to register a qualified person coming to his office in Los Angeles during the period in question.

* * * *

SIMPSON INSISTED registration opportunity should be kept on full-scale basis, at any time. He quoted the election code, which reads:

"Registration of electors shall be in progress at all times except during the 53 days immediately preceding any election when registration shall cease for that election as to the electors residing in the territory within which that election is to be held."

Simpson said that the words "for that election" are the key to the situation, and that registration may be continued for subsequent elections under the code. Hite's action, he said, is depriving citizens of their right to register now for the November general election.

BARKER BROS. BROADWAY AT LOCUST (DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH) — HEmlock 6-9251

Los Angeles' Super Hoosegow

By Ted Krec

WHEN Long Beach builds its new $4,660,000 Public Safety Building, you can just bet that it won't look like the ones you used to see in the small towns back home—a red brick building with a clock tower and a wooden fireman on the balcony.

They build them differently these days—and Long Beach has a shining example to follow. The city's big brother, Los Angeles, has completed a Police Administration Building at 1st and Los Angeles Sts. that is, without doubt, the showplace of the city.

Constructed on a site of 358,758 square feet, the structure is a modern miracle from the electronic elevators in the lobby to the glassed-in jail at the rear.

THE NEW HOME of Los Angeles Police Department has eight floors above ground and one below, with a total floor space area of 312,078 square feet exclusive of the parking areas.

But let's start at the beginning—with those electronic elevators in the lobby. If you push the button with a pencil, no elevator. You must push it with a finger, for it is activated by heat. The speedy cars are hooked into the intercommunication setup, too, so that you can talk out of the elevator and persons can talk in to you. This facilitates shifting of loads in event of overloading on one of the cars.

The entire building — except the jail—is air conditioned. The jail was neglected in this regard because prisoners are held here for a maximum of only four days, for processing. However, there are compensations for the hapless prisoners, for in the trusty quarters FM music is piped in on the intercom! The only bars are on the doors, the rest of the walls are three-quarter-inch-thick glass. Even the visiting rooms are glass, and prisoners and their visitors talk via telephone.

STATISTICS ON the building? The land cost $2,600,000 and the building and all the ultramodern equipment came to $7,015,779. There are 25,000 square feet of glass; 22,000 cubic yards of concrete were poured; 5,000 gallons of paint were used in the decorating. And just a couple more: 3,700,000 pounds of reinforcing steel and 78 miles of electric wire!

Size defies description. There are seemingly miles of corridors, hundreds of rooms, and all is done in simple, modern, unostentatious style. The building is functional inside and out.

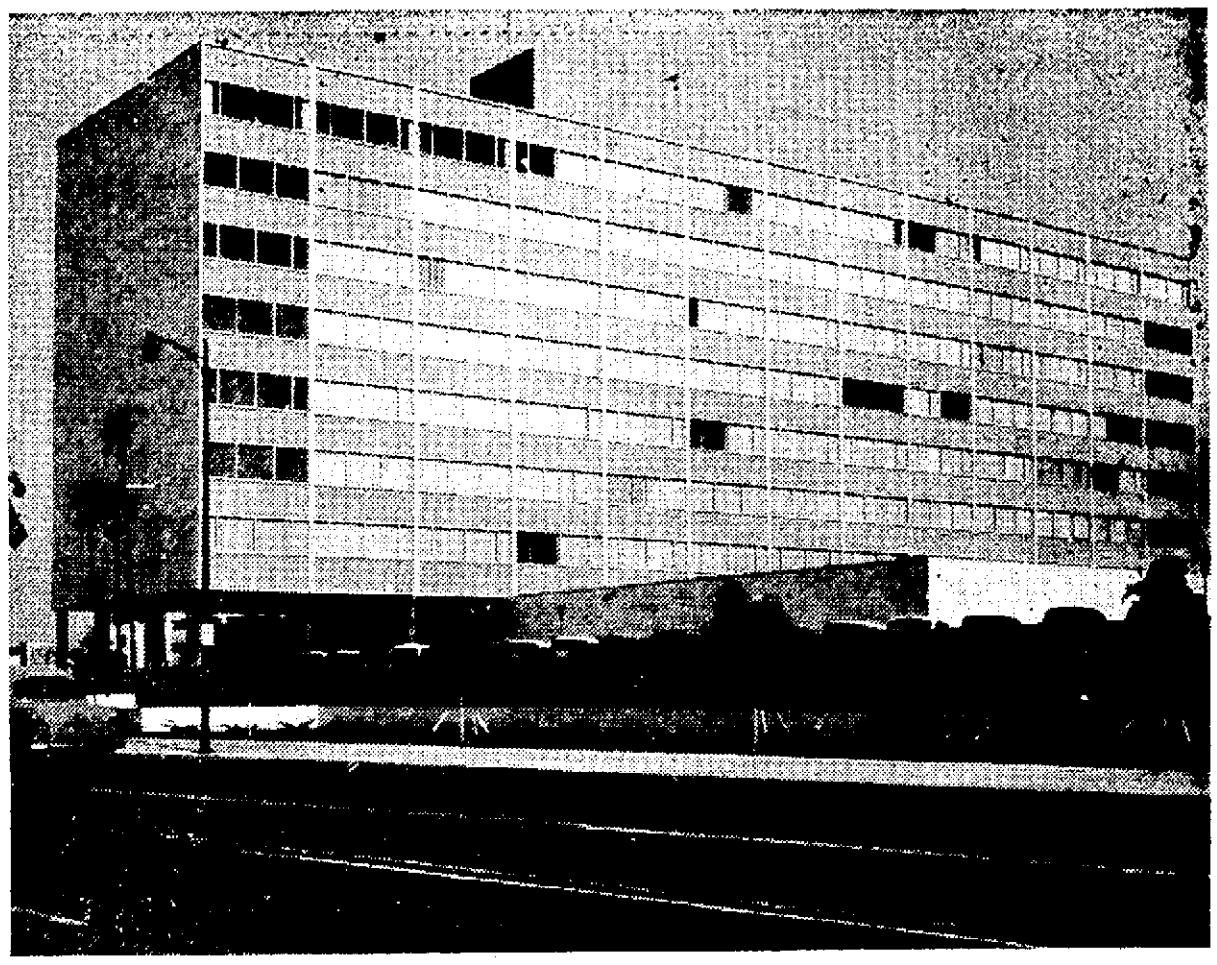

Communication throughout the building, exclusive of the intercom setup, is by telephone (there are 500 phones) and by pneumatic tube. This tube system is the latest thing, too. The person sending the object through the tube dials a number on a device similar to a phone dial. Then the cartridge containing the papers is put into the tube—and away it goes to the proper department. Oh, yes, there are big cartridges called "boxcars" which can be used for sending bulky file folders or even guns.

ON MANY OF THE massive windows are vertical aluminum blinds which can be regulated over their entire length merely by adjusting one slat.

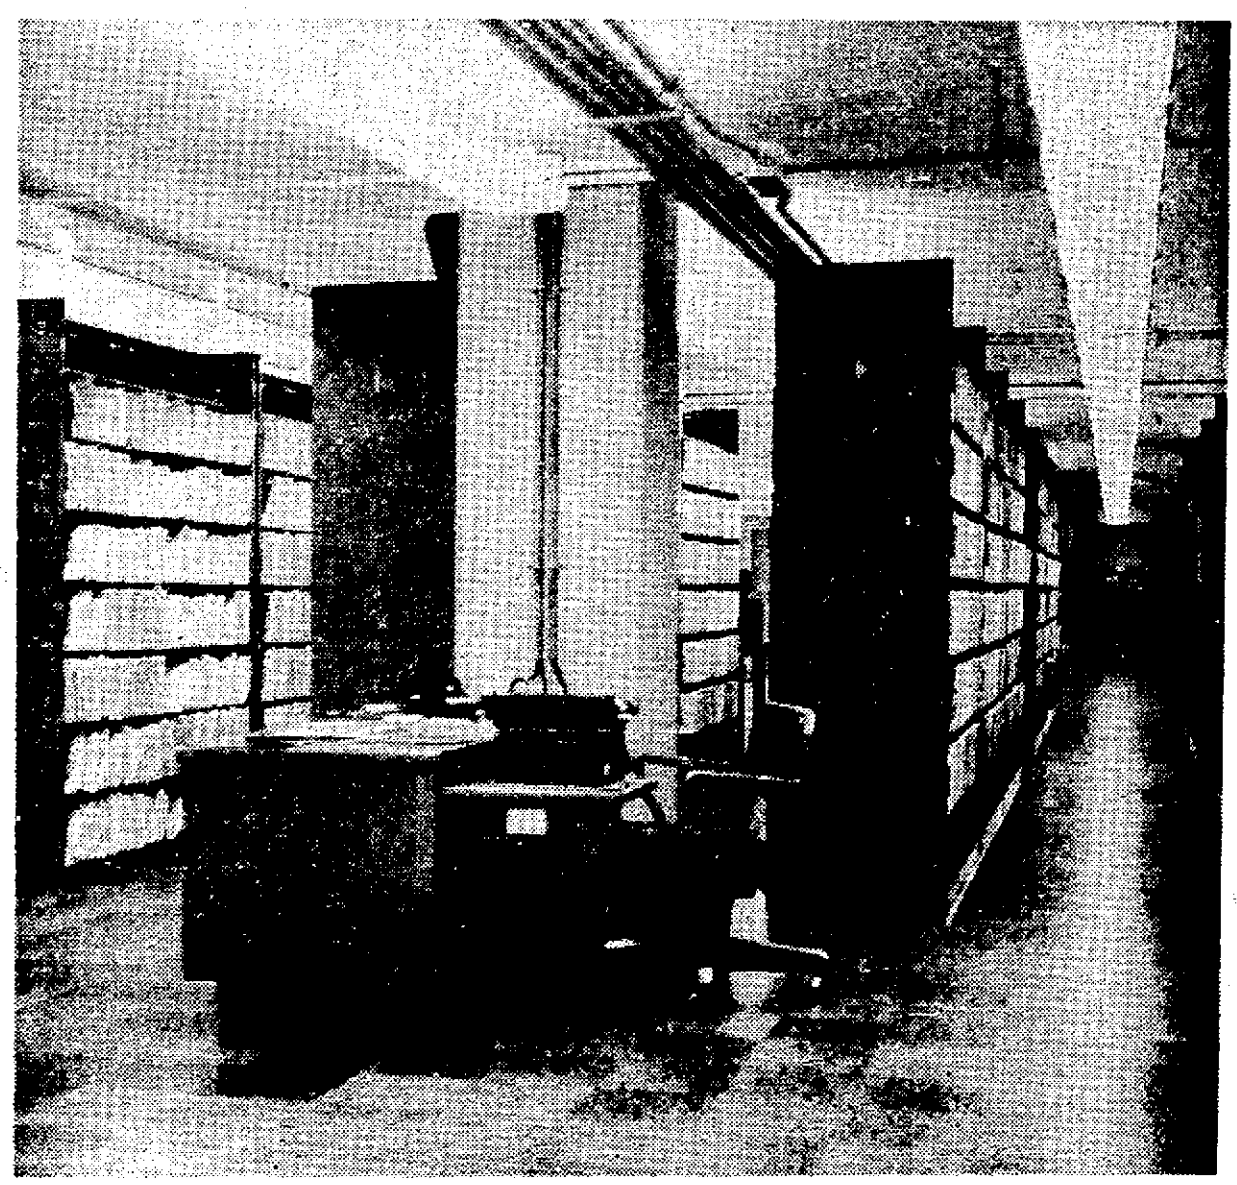

The building has its own television or movie studio, where pictures can be filmed, and the auditorium, which seats 452 persons, is full of surprises. Here the familiar lineups are held, but in an ultramodern way. In the first place, the auditorium is equipped to televise lineups for coast-to-coast use. Secondly, due to clever arrangement of lights, a suspect can be shown under any conditions in which he was seen — moonlight, neon, daylight or other lighting.

However, this array of switches can be a bit baffling, too. Take the incident that occurred when the attractive policewoman was showing some youngsters through the building. She herded them into the auditorium and was flashing the switches for them when she hit a special one. This one means a prisoner is escaping. She knew almost instantly what had happened, for help came pouring in over the stage as jail officers responded to the alarm. But that wasn't all! The back doors of the auditorium were hurled open and

In this lineup room—a modern auditorium—suspects may be seen in any light. Lineups can be televised.

IT SPREADS THROUGH ENTIRE FAMILIES

Epidemic Called Rockpox

By Albert Eagle

AN EPIDEMIC is spreading slowly through Southern California. The disease is seldom fatal, but it can ruin marital relations unless both spouses catch it. The afflicted become completely demented, and even form clubs with fellow sufferers. The clubs travel to beaches, mountains and deserts, which only aggravates the condition.

Rockpox, or more commonly rockhounding, is a contagious but enjoyable hobby sometimes caught by entire families.

The reasons are hard for people to understand unless they have been exposed to it.

"Why collect rocks?" they ask, "my back yard is full of them."

THE ROCKHOUND will explain patiently that even rockhounds don't particularly want clay boulders and hunks of granite; but show them a good gem stone and the symptoms of rockpox become evident.

Traveling in search of prize specimens is as much fun as displaying them. Camping in inaccessible spots and tramping over beaches in search of prizes is a sport in itself, claim the rockhounds.

The Southland area is rich in mineral specimens of beautiful and interesting structure and also in gem stones.

THE DESERT AREAS such as Barstow and Death Valley yield many gems: agate and the richer-colored jasper, opals with their hidden fire, all tints of smoky, rose and amethyst quartz and garnets, to name a few.

Areas of roughly crystalized rock, particularly around San Diego, Pala and Riverside produce aquamarine, sphene, rainbow tourmaline, topaz and sapphire.

Along the beaches, especially on rocky coasts, the ocean will occasionally toss up pieces of mottled jasper; agate, breccia or puddingstone and, farther north, near Willow Creek, beautiful Monterey jade.

IN THE WILEY WELL district of the Mojave, in the Houser Beds, are the mysterious round rocks with holes and scenes in them. These are geodes, formed when agate in a water solution filled in an ancient hole in the rock. When completely filled, without the central hole, they are termed thunder eggs. When cut with a diamond grit saw, some display pictures of indescribable beauty, due to a marbled or banded interior.

Another nearby area is Mint Canyon, above Los Angeles. Scattered along the ground among other stones, there is Howlite, and various tints of blue agate. Howlite is white with black markings and makes striking bookends or spheres.

There are two methods of working the stones. The most popular is the lapidary machine that cuts oval, round or square smooth stones called cabachons. Some machines can facet stones, or cut the little faces which give the diamond or emerald its brilliance.

A GOOD MACHINE for polishing in quantities is the tumbler. The stones when polished are called baroques, and are often of irregular shape, which lends itself to modern free-form jewelry.

Minerals, or naturally occurring crystallized chemicals, are often as prized and rare as gem stones, and sometimes even more beautiful. Most crystals are of regular geometric form. Even common salt takes on beauty as a mineral, forming perfect clear squares often tinted by impurities.

The mineralogist in Southern California can collect literally on his front door step. The beginner taking a drive along the coast highway between Palos Verdes and Corona Del Mar will find many interesting specimens.

ALONG 101 HIGHWAY, just west of the Arcades at Newport, the inland bank for about a mile is laced with fairly good sheets of gypsum called selenite. The fiberous or thready satinspar is found along with it, and an occasional fossil.

Above Point Vicente in Palos Verde, about a mile up Crest Road, the northern bank is made up of glassy plate-like crystals about an inch in size. This is barite, or heavy spar. They are found in clusters or roses, and glow bright yellow under an ultra-violet or black light.

The entire Point Vicente area is also laced with barite. In the Livingston quarry, just inland from Portugese Bend, there are pyrites, dolomite marble, terminated quartz crystals and many other specimens.

ALONG THE BEACHES, below Corona Del Mar, one can find fairly good jasper. It is mottled yellow and black. There is some petrified wood in the gullys along the beaches, with very good wood markings. There is also breccia, stones which nature has shattered and recemented.

These three collection areas are all within a 45-minute drive of Long Beach, and can still afford a beginner the fun of collecting without traveling too far.

You don't have to be a mountaineer to take up rockhounding. There are many elderly people who can't go on field trips who, through shrewd trading and buying, have a wonderful collection. There are also entire families who collect gem stones and make jewelry.

IF YOU WISH to become a rockhound there is a club in Long Beach which meets the second Wednesday of every month at Belmont Recreation Center.

Rockhounding will add pleasure and purpose to a trip. It can be turned into a profitable and absorbing hobby. It is a family hobby which appeals to young and old.

Try it yourself and see; but remember, rockpox is contagious.

Barite crystals make showy display pieces. Crystals are employed commercially to make paint, pigment.

Rockpox can be a family affair. Here a family spends a weekend prospecting and panning for gold in a California stream. They found few small nuggets.

Macy's Workers End 11-Day Strike

NEW YORK (UP)—The 11-day strike of 8,000 employes of Macy's, the world's largest department store, ended Saturday. The settlement was negotiated by a special three-man committee appointed by Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

Terms of the agreement were not announced, but an official of the retail, wholesale and department store union, which called the strike, said it would mean "more wages and better conditions" for union members although it did not include the 37½-hour work week the union had demanded.

Ramona, poignant outdoor play given near Hemet, is presented annually to huge crowds. This is part of the capacity audience at one of 1955 performances. The play is based on Helen Hunt Jackson's famous novel.

Ramona, played by Dorothy Bailey for her 6th season, is in love with Alessandro, played by Maurice Jara, but their romance is troubled as Senorita Moreno, household head, wants Ramona to wed her son, Felipe.

Ramona Loves Again

THE TRAGIC BUT BEAUTIFUL STORY of the undying love of an Indian maiden for a handsome brave who returns her devotion with his life is being re-enacted this weekend as the people of Hemet and San Jacinto reopened the Ramona Outdoor Play for the 29th season.

Presented in an acoustically perfect outdoor amphitheater at the outskirts of Hemet, the play opened yesterday and continues at 2:30 p. m. today, April 28 and 29, and May 5 and 6. Since its inception in 1922, it has been seen by more than 600,000 visitors from all parts of the world.

The cast of 350 is made up of residents of the Hemet-San Jacinto Valley, many of them descendants of families involved in the episodes that inspired the famous novel, "Ramona," from which the play is taken.

Dorothy Bailey of San Jacinto will play Ramona for the sixth year and Maurice Jara of Claremont has the part of Alessandro, the Indian hero, for the fifth year.

Senora Moreno (Fanchon Jennings) tells Ramona she will be sent to convent unless she gives up Alessandro as her lover.

Alessandro urges Ramona to run away, be married to him and live in peace among own people. She consents. They depart.

Pablo (Charles Seares), worker on rancho, and flirtatious Dolores (Linda Hagan) offer lighter moments of play with romance.

Alessandro appeals to the Sheriff (played by O. E. De Vinna) for aid after being told that his and Ramona's lives are in danger.

Ramona's baby dies and Alessandro is murdered. Felipe begs Ramona to wed him, forget cruelties suffered, and seek happier life.

WHO KILLED EVALINER CROCKETT?

The Case of the Black Necktie

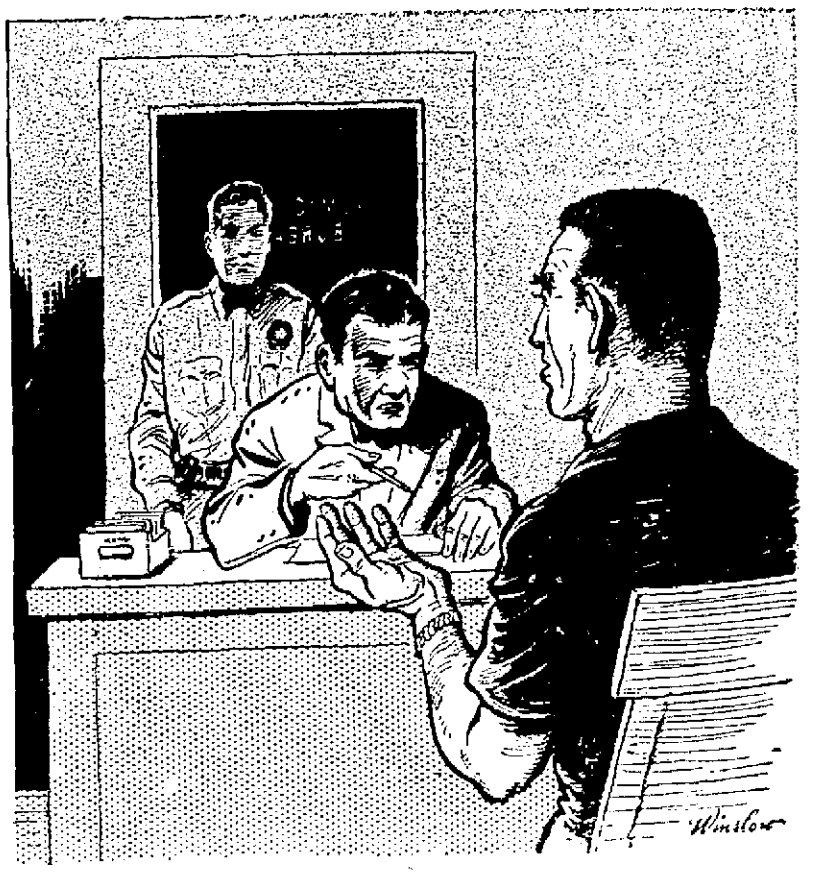

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of articles on unsolved mysteries in the Long Beach area to appear in Southland Magazine.)

By Vera Williams

WHO GARROTED pretty Evaliner Crockett, 27, of Los Angeles and tossed her lifeless body out of a speeding car in Wilmington two days after Christmas 1953?

And why?

Police do not know the answer to either question although they have questioned hundreds of possible suspects and run down dozens of clues.

Drawing by Clyde Winslow

Police have questioned several hundred suspects in the Evaliner Crockett murder, and all were released.

THE BODY of a shapely woman was found lying on a dusty stretch of Lomita Blvd. east of Eubank Ave. in Wilmington about 8:30 p.m. Dec. 27, 1953.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Thompson, 1414 E. Sandison St., Wilmington, driving home from a church meeting, found the body.

The woman was clad in a gray suit which had a black felt-trimmed bolero cape, pink blouse and one black pump. The other shoe, an earring and empty purse lay nearby.

A MAN'S BLACK necktie was knotted tightly around the victim's neck, and an autopsy disclosed that she died of strangulation. She was not pregnant.

After several days of investigation, the body was identified as that of Mrs. Evaliner Crockett, 27, of Los Angeles. The mother of two small children had been reported missing since the afternoon of Dec. 27 by her husband, Charles Crockett, of Los Angeles.

Her body was lying face downward beside fresh auto tire marks. Police believe she was strangled in the automobile by someone she knew and was pushed from the moving car.

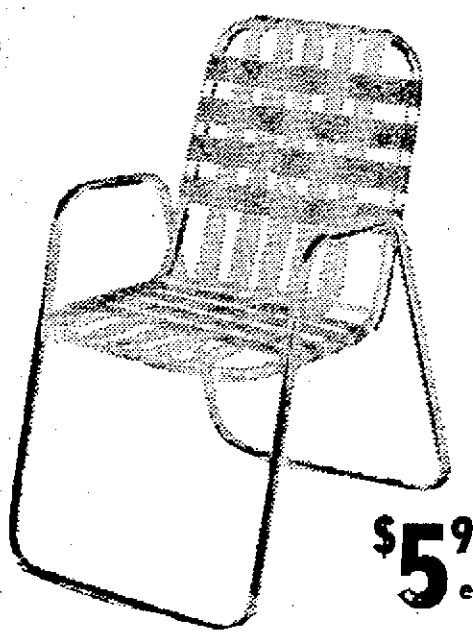

HUBERT J. DUNWOODY, 236 Covina Ave., Long Beach, reported seeing a man and a woman in a car parked along the lonely stretch earlier in the evening. Dunwoody was a guard at a nearby oil company tank farm.

In the next few months, police questioned several hundred persons and arrested five men as suspects. All were released after they presented alibis that held up under investigation.

Police still are looking for the murderer.

Independent SUNDAY Press-Telegram

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, APRIL 22, 1956

With MALCOLM EPLEY

ALONG with five other adults, I've just been through a heartwarming and enlightening contact with three dozen teen-agers.

We six were judges of the Bank of America's achievement awards program through which thousands of dollars are distributed to deserving high school seniors to help finance their college educations.

Our zone interviews were held at City College, and we observed these young people in a demonstration of their knowledge and their thinking on social and cultural problems, their general attitude about life and the things around them.

It was heartwarming because they proved to be wholesome, intelligent, understanding and generous in their feelings toward each other in a competitive situation.

The other judges and I were not surprised at this, but certainly our confidence in the oft-maligned younger generation was bolstered and extended by this experience.

WE INTERVIEWED the 36 youngsters in groups of nine. They were divided according to their fields of interest—science and mathematics, fine arts, liberal arts and vocational arts.

Members of each group took seats in front of the judges in a semi-circle and just began talking. They proved at ease, alert and full of ideas. The conversation was lively and it covered a broad scope of subjects. Opinions expressed showed maturity and depth.

IT WOULD have done a lot of oldsters good to hear the youngsters in liberal arts discussing the problem of the non-voter.

One Lynwood girl, a pretty blonde, said she didn't want to be pessimistic, but she felt it was too late to do much about the older people who are apathetic about their duties as citizens. They had been in the old groove too long and probably are beyond redemption, she averred.

But a winsome lass from Torrance disagreed. We've got to remember, she said, that people over 21 compose the larger percentage of the population, that most of them are going to be around a long time, and we just can't let them go on through life neglecting their citizenship duties.

Some oldsters, I'm sure, would have been ashamed at hearing these teen-agers worrying about them.

I WAS impressed at the vocational arts interview session by the amount of talk about help given high school students through contacts with the business, trade and professional people of their communities. Vocational guidance conferences, at which adult "pros" come in to advise interested high school students, and opportunities to see actual operations in plants, business offices, etc., come in for warm praise.

It was apparent that more of this is done in some communities than in others.

Last week's vocational guidance day at Jordan High in Long Beach, when a score or more local citizens participated in conference with the students, was given a solid accolade by the girl from Jordan.

But a boy at a nearby community, who plans to be an electronics engineer, said sadly that there are several plants in his area where he would like to spend some time, but he has never been given a chance.

IT WAS especially interesting to note how social-minded were the bright youngsters who are primarily interested in science and math.

One might expect the "scientists" to be introverts, spending their time in lonely laboratory vigils or with their noses in books, paying little heed to the world outside the room.

But these kids were intensely interested in social problems as related to scientific achievements.

WITH few exceptions, the activities records of these top high school students of the area showed activity in some phase of church work.

One of our judges was Rev. Bruce Kurrle, Compton Presbyterian minister. The good reverend must have found real encouragement in looking through those reports.

Visitors to Top Record of 85,000

Parents and other interested citizens in record numbers are expected to visit the 68 Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill and Avalon public schools this week in the 37th observance of Public Schools Week.

Last year's record outpouring of visitors totalled an estimated 85,000.

On the eve of the week-long program, Wenzel Fabera and Herbert E. Bromley, co-chairmen of the sponsoring citizens' committee, urged local parents to take advantage of this opportunity to get better acquainted with their children's teachers.

"During the school years, a child spends one-third of his waking time in school—more hours, sometimes, than he spends with his parents," Fabera said. "Next to mother and dad, teachers have the greatest influence on the life of a child."

* * * *

DOUGLAS A. NEWCOMB, superintendent of schools, joined the citizens' committee in inviting all adults to visit their neighborhood school during the week and reminded them of this year's theme, "Better Schools Build Better Communities."

Opening today, the observance will have special recognition in many churches. Special music programs featuring public school groups will be given in some churches.

Visitors will see youngsters mastering the three R's, exploring the world of science, learning about their American heritage and taking the first steps toward a lifetime vocation if they go back to school during the regular school hours.

Each of the school segments, however, has scheduled one open house night for those who are unable to visit during the day. Monday is City College night, Tuesday for elementary schools, Wednesday for senior highs and Thursday for junior highs.

* * * *

THE SPOTLIGHT Monday evening will be on the annual Industrial Arts Award program at the City College campus at 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway. More than 1500 exhibits of things made by junior and senior high and City College classes will be displayed. Judging will be completed during the day.

Another Monday evening program will be the annual North Long Beach Public Schools Week program starting at 7:30 p.m. in Lindbergh Junior High auditorium with six schools participating.

Public Schools Week was started after World War I to focus attention on the needs and accomplishments of the schools.

Elks to Give Scholarships

Scholarships totaling $700 will be awarded seven Long Beach and Avalon students at a Public Schools Week program in Long Beach Elks Lodge Monday night.

The students are Rose Ann Wood, Long Beach City College; Dennis Nelson, Jordan High School; John Leonard, Wilson High School; Bruce Tucker, Poly High School; Donald Fregeau, Long Beach State College; Wayne Ennis, St. Anthony's High School, and Miles Kara, Avalon High School.

The students were selected because of outstanding records in scholarship, student activities and citizenship. Each will receive $100 and will be eligible to compete for state and national scholarships offered by the Elks.

Chest Specialist

Dr. Arnold L. Freed, chest specialist, will speak on "Selective Case Finding Pays Off" at the annual meeting of the Long Beach Tuberculosis and Health Assn. at the Lafayette Hotel Thursday.

DOWNTOWN TO BLOSSOM

Flower Pots Will Hang From Pine Ave. Posts

Downtown Long Beach will burst into bloom Tuesday.

Downtown stores will feature floral displays by professionals and amateurs who will be competing for $1,500 in cash prizes.

Along Pine Ave. from Ocean Blvd. to 7th St., 108 flower pots containing blooming ivy geranium will hang from lamp posts.

The event, known as "Downtown in Bloom," is sponsored by Long Beach Retailers Associated and civic-minded inviduals. The LBRA hope to make the three-day event, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, an annual affair.

However, Vito N. Romans, Retailers manager, said the ivy plants hung from the lamp posts may be maintained the year around if some persons or organization will undertake to care for the plants.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the displays in the stores and on Pine Ave., Robert Obert, director of the City Park Dept., will have a display of plants, shrubberies and blooming flowers on the west side of the City Hall.

Prizes for professional florists will be: First, $500; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50, and fifth through tenth, $25 each.

Prizes for amateur flower arrangements: First, $200; second, $100; third, $50; fourth through ninth, $25 each.

The prize money has been put up by the participating stores. Judges will be Lovell Swisher, chairman, who is on the advisory board of the Descanso Gardens, and for five years has been on the board of directors of the Hollywood International Flower Show; Yvonne Benafell and Hal Halchester.

Judging will be completed on the first day of the event, and winners announced immediately.

* * * *

FLORAL DISPLAYS will be set up at the Bank of America's 1st and Pine and 4th and Pine branches, Barker Bros., Buffums', California Bank, Dobyn's, First Western Bank, Fisher's Chinaware, Frances Children's Shop, Grayson's, Al Greenwood, Honeywell & Carpenter, Imperial Hardware, Jeri's, Kay Jewelers, C. C. Lewis Jewelry, Mandel's, McCrery's, Melba's, Montgomery Ward, National City Bank, Newberry's, Pavey's, Penney's, Sav-On Drugs, Schinnerer's, Sears, Roebuck, Security First National Bank, Van Dell's, Walker's and Winstead Bros.

Fred Wiesenhutter, owner of Park Nursery, 3842 E. 10th St., has donated the 108 flower pots and ivy geraniums for the decorations on Pine Ave.; Otis (Buck) Weaver, of the D&R Blacksmith Shop, 1160 W. Broadway, donated the brackets for the flower pots; Bill Harris, of Acme Sheet Metal Works, fashioned containers to hold overflow of water and Wade Orris, manager of Imperial Hardware, donated chains for the fixtures.

First Navy Wives Sign for Contest

The first Navy wives to enter the Mrs. U. S. Navy contest signed up Saturday as world headquarters were opened at the Wilton Hotel.

Prizes valued at up to $100,000 will be awarded.

William F. Hickey, San Diego, national president of the sponsoring Fleet Reserve Association, was on hand with other high ranking association officials.

At a press conference, Hickey revealed that purpose of the Sept. 15 contest is to honor Navy wives who have contributed to their husband's decision to continue the Navy as his career. Only wives of enlisted men—bluejackets and chief petty officers—may enter.

* * * *

"WE ARE LOSING many a valuable man because his wife and children write him to come home," Hickey said. Since it costs $10,000 to train an electronics technician, for example, the Navy wants to keep him.

"Seventy-five per cent of the difficulties in retaining enlisted personnel is caused by concern over wives and children at home," said Hickey.

President Hickey revealed the first place winner will receive $2,500 cash, an expenses paid trip to many U.S. cities and to Honolulu. A house may also be given the winner, Hickey said.

* * * *

FINALISTS WILL BE selected in 34 Navy commands throughout the world. With their husbands and children, if any, they will be brought to Long Beach. No government funds are used in connection with the contest.

A panel of enlisted men will judge the contest, based partly on an essay entitled "Why I Am Proud to be a Navy Wife."

On hand Saturday to enter the local Navy command's contest were a group of Navy wives, two whose husbands now are overseas. They included Eleanor Williams, Kanzatta Bernard, Lajoy Sargeant, Gladys Griffiths, Elizabeth Crabtree, Margaret Browning, Louise Nicolaus and Winnie Arsenault.

Assigned to the contest headquarters here is Lt. Cmdr. George Beck of Washington, D.C., an aide of Vice Adm. James L. Holloway, chief of Naval Personnel, to assist in liaison work with the Navy, Fleet Association, and Long Beach city officials.

Union to Ask Pay Increase for Teachers

A flat $500 annual increase for the 1956-57 semesters for all teachers in the Long Beach Public School system will be asked by the newly organized Long Beach Federation of Teachers.

Webster Kimball, federation salary chairman and a state college accounting professor, said the proposal will be outlined before the Board of Education at 4 p. m. Monday.

The Teachers' Assn. of Long Beach previously asked a 5 per cent pay increase for instructors. This boost would give salary increases ranging from $250 a year.

Robert Krogfoss, union salary committee member, said the increase is necessary because the "dropouts" of Long Beach teachers were "beyond the level" for stability.

RC Mobile Bank Arrives Monday

The Red Cross mobile blood bank will be at the Red Cross chapter house, 319 W. Broadway, from 3 to 7:30 p. m. Monday.

"The need for blood is constant and the only way it can be met is through donors giving blood," said Mrs. Lotta Kling, blood donor recruitment chairman.

Individuals wishing to replace blood used by family or friends may do so Monday.

RESTA'S SUCCESSOR

Pasadenan Will Conduct Long Beach Philharmonic

Appointment of Lauris Jones as permanent conductor of the Long Beach Philharmonic was announced Saturday by Charles Evett, president of the Long Beach Philharmonic Assn.

This fills the vacancy left by the retirement last November of Robert Resta after 20 years as conductor of the Long Beach Philharmonic. Since that time guest conductors have occupied the podium.

Jones will complete his current season with the Santa Barbara Symphony, which he has conducted for the past three seasons, and the Pasadena Symphony, where he has worked with Dr. Richard Lert as associate conductor since 1947.

* * * *

THE 1956-57 SEASON will not be Jones' introduction to Long Beach music lovers, however. In November he conducted a Junior League sponsored performance of the children's opera "Pepito's Golden Flower" by Mary Louise Caldwell, which had its premiere under him a year ago in Pasadena.

Jones has pioneered in the presentation of a number of contemporary works. In Pasadena in 1952 he gave the first West Coast performance of Gian Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors," fast becoming a Christmas classic.

Born in 1917 in Visalia, Jones received his A. B. as a music major in San Jose State College, and his M. A. in music from Columbia University. He now is working for his Ph. D. at USC.

* * * *

HIS EXPERIENCE includes Santa Barbara Symphony, three seasons; Pasadena Symphony Assn. conductor, nine seasons; Eagle Rock Civic Symphony, three seasons; Oneonta Congregational Church, choir director, four years; Pasadena Civic Chorus associate conductor, nine years. He formerly taught at Los Angeles City College, and California Institute of Technology, and has been a faculty member at Occidental College since 1951.

In World War II he was an aerial navigator in the Pacific, serving in Australia, the Solomons, New Guinea, Tarawa and Japan.

He has a wife, Jeanne, and daughters, Barbara, 13, Elaine, 9, Kathy, 5. The family lives in South Pasadena.

Expert Warns More Jet Noise to Come; AF Wing Meets Here

By BOB WHEARLEY

Americans might as well learn to live with the ear-splitting thunder of supersonic jets and rockets—because "aviation is tending toward more noise, not less."

This warning was voiced Saturday by Col. Harry W. Shoup, chief of the combat operations center of the Continental Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, Colo. Shoup spoke at a symposium in the Lafayette Hotel in connection with the eighth annual convention here of the Air Force Assn.'s California Wing.

One of the highlights of the convention banquet Saturday was the presentation of a certificate of merit to Trevor Gardner, former assistant air secretary who resigned last February with a ringing blast at the Eisenhower Administration's missile program.

Gardner told a reporter that the current investigation of him by the Senate and Justice Department is "the standard way of rewarding an industrialist for three years of government service."

Investigators reportedly are seeking to determine whether Gardner severed all connections with his firm, Hycon Manufacturing Co. of Pasadena, before taking the government post. Gardner said Hycon is engaged in production of guided missiles, electronics and ordnance equipment.

* * * *

COLONEL SHOUP called for "pre-conditioning" of individual communities and the nation to win acceptance of jet noises as a necessary nuisance.

Building isolated air bases to spare the tender ears of city dwellers is impractical he said, because—

"Part of our air defense is necessarily located to protect population centers . . . Any other policy would be like putting the city fire department out in the country.

"We cannot expect effective Air Reserve participation if our reservists have to use most of their limited time just trying to get to their bases."

However, he said the Air Force will continue to try to keep its bases away from population centers "insofar as it is financially possible and tactically sound."

Thus far, said Shoup, many noise-suppressing devices have proved "unacceptable" because they hurt the performance of planes.

* * * *

AT A RESERVE FORCES CLINIC held at United Artists Theater, Col. J. M. Price, Long Beach Air Force Base commander, disclosed tentative plans to permit wives of reservists to live with them on the base during week-end training sessions. A building at the base will be redecorated for that purpose, he said.

TREVOR GARDNER
Awarded Certificate

Another participant in the clinic, Col. Ronald Wilson, 4th Air Force deputy chief of staff for materiel, said the short-term lease the government has at Long Beach Municipal Airport "precludes any new major construction" of reserve facilities there at this time.

Gil Wilson, national president of the AFA and publisher of Flying magazine, told the California wing at its banquet in the Lafayette Hotel "proper military spending and emphasis on airpower doctrines in the past decade have kept the dictators of the world off our backs."

If the same policies can be continued another 10 years, "we will have really assured peace for mankind," he said.

Others who received citations in addition to Gardner included actors Reginald Denny and Vince Barnett; Maj. Gen. Robert B. Landry, 4th Air Force commander; Lt. Col. Henry W. Yeagle, installation engineer at Edwards Air Force Base; Joanne Affronte, convention chairman, and Col. John Alison, vice president of Northrup Aircraft and commander of the Reserve's 452nd Tactical Bomber Wing, headquartered in Long Beach.

DOCTORS TRY MENTAL DRUG

Enter World of Insane

In a world that exists only in the minds of the insane; where a minute may seem to last a week and a man may learn to fear his own image in a mirror, psychiatrists of Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital are experiencing the horrors of mental illness.

Drugs which induce temporary insanity are used by the doctors on themselves to cause the hallucinations and anxieties of schizophrenia and other mental disorders.

How these daring experiments help the psychiatrists to treat patients will be described in detail in a series of articles by staff writer Ben Zinser, beginning Monday in The Independent and Press-Telegram.

Screams Rout 'Tenant' in Attack Try

Screams of a 21-year-old apartment house manager frightened away a husky attacker who seized her as she showed him an apartment at 605 W. 1st St. Saturday.

Marjorie J. Heberp told police that the man asked to be shown an apartment.

"Does anything go with this?" he asked when they looked at Apt. No. 2.

"Yes," the woman replied, "dishes, bedding and—"

She was interrupted when the visitor threw her onto the bed.

Her screams brought Robert Lynn, a tenant in Apt. No. 1, running to the scene. The attacker fled. He was described as 30 to 35 years old, 6 feet tall, weighing about 180 pounds. He was dressed in sport clothes.

Police Will Auction Dinghies, Sailboats

Seven boats — including rowboats, sailboats and dinghies — will be sold at auction by the Police Department Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the city yard, 16th St. and San Francisco Ave., Officer E. E. Wolthausen, police property clerk announced. The boats were found and impounded by Harbormaster Thomas O. McInturff.

This Is Tennis Without the

Photos by the Author

Paddle tennis gives a good workout and test of skill. Game is fun for the "thirtyish" player who finds regular tennis has become bit too energetic.

By Blaine Nels Simons

THE AVERAGE tennis player, upon becoming "thirtyish," finds that he reaches the far corners of the court a step or two later than the ball gets there, and that in running to the net for a play at a drop shot, the ball has bounced dead before he reaches it. An afternoon's tennis is then no longer fun, but only one of weariness and complete frustration. Forgetting that few long-distance runners and no sprinters at all are "in business" after 30, the thirtyish tennis player either gives it all up or plays on against weaker and weaker competition.

Today, however, many tennis players in this category, as well as many who have never played before, are finding the game of paddle tennis the answer to their problems. Actually begun as a sport in 1898 by Frank Peer Beal, now a New York minister, paddle tennis has only in recent years really caught the fancy of sports-loving Americans.

The benefits of paddle tennis are obvious to those who are old enough to realize they are not young any more. First of all, a paddle tennis court in length is 44 feet, according to American Paddle Tennis Association standards, as compared to 78 feet for a tennis court. In a run from baseline to net, therefore, the paddle tennis player has only 22 feet to go, while the other has 39 feet. Secondly, a regulation tennis court measures 36 feet wide; a paddle tennis court 20 feet wide. From mid-court the latter player must then cover only 10 feet on either side of him, while the tennis player must watch 18 feet to either side. Tennis nets are three feet high; the others two-and-one-half feet; hard low drives hitting the net in tennis are often scoring volleys in its smaller counterpart.

THE BALL USED is generally the regulation tennis ball on the West Coast; a sponge rubber ball on the East. In the West a bounce underhand serve is customary; in the East the overhead smash serve is in style, as in regular tennis. The paddle is a cross between a regular tennis racket and a ping-pong paddle in size, but more closely resembling the ping-pong device in appearance. The economy of the game is reflected in the fact that the paddle face itself is made of hard, perforated wood which, of course, never wears out or needs restringing as in tennis. (See photograph.) The court markings and rules of paddle tennis are exactly like those of regular tennis. Gone, however, are the long runs; back is the fun of tennis. Gone is the frustration of seeing a healthy teenage boy or girl across the net from you; back is the feeling of equality no matter the age.

The American Paddle Tennis Association estimates that over 6 million Americans play paddle tennis at some time or another. Balmy Southern California, with weather conducive to all-year sports, is fast becoming alive with private and public courts. Long Beach itself has three public courts located on Ocean Blvd. and 54th Pl.; on winter weekends these courts are crowded with paddle devotees and in summer draw many players daily.

SEVERAL LOCAL paddle tennis clubs are in existence, the oldest being the Alamitos Bay Paddle Tennis Club composed of 21 members and headed by B. P. Weill as president. Weill can recall when, years ago, he and other members of the club would block off side streets from Ocean Blvd. on the peninsula, put up a net and play paddle tennis all day. Subsequently, the game "caught on" all over town, and the existence of many courts for the sport then relieved the bay group from the hazards of chasing stray balls out onto Ocean Blvd.

Ike Not 'Sick Man,' Says Reporter

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Democrats may have trouble tagging President Eisenhower as a "sick man" in the coming presidential campaign, according to United Press White House correspondent Merriam Smith.

Smith told the Cleveland City Club Forum Saturday the President is working longer hours than ever before, and there are indications he will actively campaign for reelection.

"In view of this any attempt by the Democrats to make a campaign issue out of 'sick man Eisenhower' is apt to boomerang," he said.

* * * *

SMITH SAID any illness of a major nature would change the picture but that it appeared "most unlikely the President would be defeated for re-election unless such an illness did occur."

Eisenhower's campaign duties will be more active than is generally assumed, the dean of White House correspondents said. The President won't limit his speeches to a half dozen cities, but on the other hand will not whistle-stop the country.

* * * *

SMITH PREDICTED Richard Nixon would again be the Republican Party choice for the vice presidency on the Eisenhower ticket. He ruled out the possibility that Eisenhower would pick Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio as a running mate.

Adlai Stevenson has the edge as the Democrats' choice, he said, but it is unlikely any Democrat can beat the President.

In answer to a question on the likelihood of former President Harry Truman running again Smith said he did not believe Truman would consent, but admitted, "the White House brew is awfully heady."

Ike Judgment Not Sound, Eleanor Says

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, with 19 grandchildren and 71 years, Saturday said she's still plugging for what she thinks is right.

The former first lady was here for the wedding of one of the grandchildren, Miss Ruth Chandler Roosevelt, to Henry D. Lindsley III of Midland, Tex., Saturday night.

Honorary chairman of the New York Committee for Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Roosevelt is speaking in his behalf throughout the United States.

Spoke for him twice in Minnesota, she related in an interview. "We didn't do a lot of good there but we did carry those two places," she added with a prideful note.

Of Stevenson's chances of nomination, Mrs. Roosevelt said, "The man in front always has a hard time—the first stones are thrown at him."

* * * *

ASKED ON WHICH points she believes President Eisenhower has fallen short of what she expects in a President, Mrs. Roosevelt said she feels that Eisenhower "has not made the presidency as important as it really is" and has attempted to delegate to a sort of "general staff" duties and powers which should be exercised only by the President of the United States.

Also, "I feel he has not had the best judgment in choosing his general staff," she said.

Of New York Gov. Harriman, oft-mentioned seeker after the Democratic nomination, Mrs. Roosevelt said she has "admiration for Mr. Harriman—I have known him since he was a little boy."

* * * *

BUT SHE'S not for him so far as the Democratic nomination is concerned.

She also said that the question of segregation is not a domestic issue. "It is an international issue."

"Two thirds of the people of the world are colored," she said. These peoples will question the motive of the United States so long as they know Negroes in this country are segregated from white citizens at any level, Mrs. Roosevelt added.

Boy, 5, Injured in Power Mower

Michael J. Graeber, 5, suffered painful injuries Saturday when he was caught in a power mower near his home at 3426 Studebaker Rd.

At Seaside Hospital the boy was found to have fractures of two bones in his right wrist.

Police said the mower was operated by Jerry D. Jaeke, employed by the Lakewood Water and Power Co.

Theft at Boat Yard

Fourteen lights valued at $560 were stolen Saturday from the Pacific Towboat and Salvage Co. yard at Pier D, Berth 35. Ernest A. Judd, 56, of 4616 E. 6th St., spokesman for the company, reported the loss to police.

DREAMER ON THE LINE

Catching a dream of summer fun is Scott Edmondson. He'll pay his way to the Summer Day Camp of Catholic Youth Organization, Community Chest agency. Less fortunate lads will be aided in attending camp by CYO's annual cartoon comedy show starting at 9 a. m. Saturday in Crest Theater.

VISAS ABOLISHED

BONN, Germany (UP)—In a visa requirements for travelers move to ease international trav- from member countries of the el, West Germany has abolished council of Europe.

Here's Chance for Vacation With Salary

Applications from older youth and young adults for summer jobs in camp counseling will be taken Thursday from noon to 8 p.m. on the east side of Building F on the lower campus of Long Beach State College.

Arrangements for interviews have been made by the California Department of Employment.

"These jobs are for experienced individuals who want to spend their vacations with pay in mountain and seashore children's camps," according to Mrs. Shirley Wilson, who will conduct the interviews. "Numerous openings exist for junior, senior, waterfront and craft counselors, and program specialists."

* * * *

SALARY FOR full camp season (8 to 10 weeks) range from $75 to $500 with full maintenance and transportation.

Salaries will depend on amount and scope of leadership experience, extent of educational preparation, variety of camp skills, and employed evaluation of personal qualities and capacity for leadership.

Appointments should be made through the College Placement Office of Long Beach State.

range in age from 20 to 50, though most are over 30. It will take but a few minutes' observation of the game to realize that these players are going as fast and furiously as those playing regular tennis.

SKILL OR KNOWLEDGE of tennis arts is helpful to the paddle tennis newcomer, though the changeover is not immediate. Weekly, tennis players out for a little diversion will find themselves completely outclassed and outscored by the average paddle tennis player. Many come back for more and soon find themselves preferring the smaller court game to the large. Newcomers and oldtimers alike seem to find more enjoyment and exercise in sprinting around a paddle tennis court than they did in running crosscountry races around tennis courts. To me, tennis courts seem to get larger each year.

Today, I can, in stride, whomp someone 10 years my junior and be miserably defeated by someone 10 years my senior. Therein lies the enjoyment of paddle tennis. You're never too old.

more officers cascaded onto the scene from first-floor offices, weapons at the ready.

MUCH OF THE CREDIT for the extreme utility of the building should go to the men of the LAPD Planning and Research Division. These visionaries, given a bare room, can be relied upon to get the full measure of usefulness out of it. To do this they put a piece of ruled graph paper over a metal plate. Then, with scale model pieces of furniture, each one magnetized, they can envision exactly how the room will look. The magnetism holds the models against the graph paper and the planners can get an idea of where to place everything—a 3-D planning board!

Many of the officers themselves, veterans in their jobs, have contributed developments and inventions to enhance the new building. Almost every department boasts two or three of these department-developed pieces of equipment.

As soon as the building was opened, it began to catch the public's fancy, mostly because of the modern design. And that interest didn't center just in the Southland area, either.

The boys at LAPD still chuckle about the letter they received from a crossroads hamlet in the midwest. It said:

"Gentlemen: Would you please send us a copy of the plans for your new police building . . ."

San Blas, Mexico's Sleeping Beauty

By George C. Booth

SAN BLAS nods peacefully on Mexico's west coast, 962 miles south of Nogales, Ariz., and well into the tropical zone. The village probably has everything that has been sung or fabled about a tropical retreat. A tropical moon, a lazy lagoon, coconut palms drunk with the sun, brown-skinned fishermen who sing as they head their boats into the setting sun, and beautiful dark-eyed maidens who dance with baskets of flowers on their heads — all of these are part of the daily life.

However, the true romance of San Blas is hidden deeper; it is embedded in the cobbled streets or guarded by the toothless old fort on the hill; it is buried in the silted-up harbor and cherished by the bronze belled church in the plaza. Longfellow captured some of this feeling with one of his last poems:

What say the Bells of San Blas
To the ships that southward pass
From Mazatlan?

Four hundred years ago San Blas was a terminus for the Manila galleons; the town's cobbled streets were once the end of a paved road that crossed Mexico to Vera Cruz carrying fortunes in Oriental goods. In 1579, Sir Francis Drake freebooted the Santa Ana as she neared San Blas with a cargo valued at $20,000,000 — a feat that puts the Brink's holdup far down the line.

IN THE MIDDLE 1600s French and English pirates harried the port so steadily that a stone fort was built on a high bluff dominating the harbor. A few years later Padre Junipero Serra built his monastery headquarters behind the fort and set out from there to establish missions in California. Since then the harbor has filled in and bananas grow where ships once anchored.

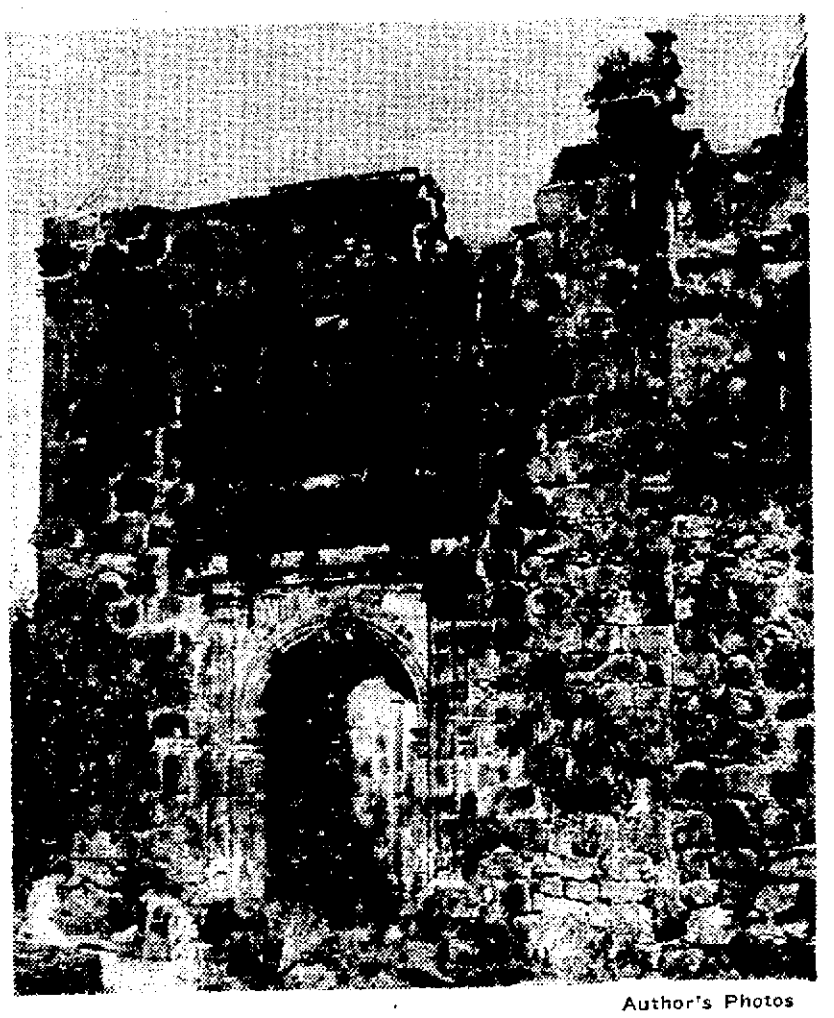

Today's tourist who comes to San Blas on a 22-mile, paved turnoff from the west coast highway and stops at the palatial Playa Hermosa Hotel on the beach suspects little of the town's history. Tall coconut palms shade thatched homes whose doors are always open; the standard greeting of the townspeople is "That which you wish."

Visitors who wander through the town are greeted with friendly "good mornings" or "good afternoons," but no one tries to sell them anything. Those who want novelty go to the beach, where they can hire fishing boats or take a trip in a dugout with an outboard up one of the many rivers. On these jungle trips the sightseer is certain to spot iguanas and alligators sunning themselves or to see flocks of parakeets flying through the trees.

SWIMMERS HAVE a choice of two of the Pacific's finest beaches. Playa Hermosa fronts the town and extends two miles of wide, shell-strewn strand. Malanchin Beach is three miles south of town and offers a half moon shoreline flanked by banana plantations.

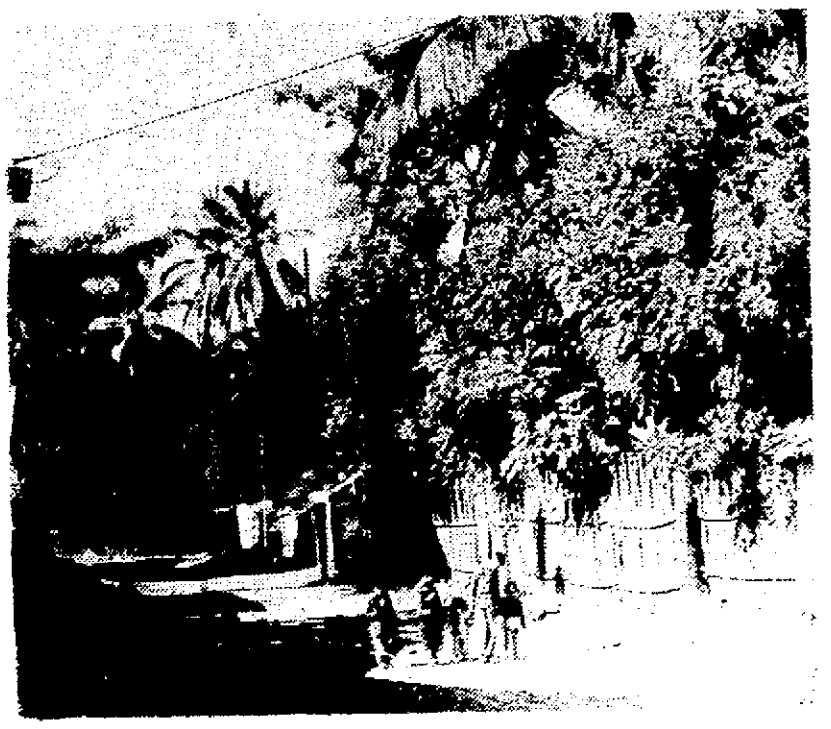

Tourists will find three modern hotels in San Blas, and a cafe in the center of town that is equally surprising for its excellent cuisine and low prices. Many Americans park their trailers on one of the two beaches and settle down for a lengthy stay.

It matters little whether the visitor stays a few hours or a few days, as soon as he steps out of his car the somnolent spell has him.

Father Junipero Serra planned and equipped his mission-building expedition in this San Blas building.

Tropical charm abounds in San Blas. This is a quiet side street in that easy-going Mexican coastal city.

San Blas has three hotels; one of them, the Belmar, is managed by Jose Espincosa and sister, Magdalena.

COMMANDS CRUISER NOW

Submarine Hero Returns to City

By LEE CRAIG

In 1932, a Texas youth named Charles Cochran Kirkpatrick, a newly commissioned ensign on the battleship USS Pennsylvania here, was married to a Georgia girl in All-Saints Episcopal Church.

Several weeks ago, Kirkpatrick and his wife came back to Long Beach where, as a captain, he commands the cruiser USS Bremerton.

During the intervening years, Kirkpatrick established himself as one of the Navy's outstanding combat officers while earning three Navy Crosses, an Army Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Purple Heart and Legion of Merit.

* * * *

THE NAVY CROSSES were earned while Kirkpatrick was skipper of the submarine USS Triton during the first dark months of World War II.

On a war patrol in the China Sea north of Formosa, the American craft sank three enemy ships and damaged a fourth. On her way home, the Triton used her final torpedo to sink an enemy submarine.

Around Christmas, 1942, the Triton was ordered to Wake Island, held by the Japanese, where the submarine anchored offshore to guide B-24 bombers in the first American raid on the island.

Kirkpatrick's Army decoration came after the Triton responded to an emergency call from Gen. MacArthur and intercepted a troop convoy on its way to reinforce Japanese forces on New Guinea, where hard-pressed Americans were fighting to control the island. Several ships were torpedoed and the convoy diverted.

CAPT. KIRKPATRICK . . . Where Did the Triton Go?
—(Staff Photo)

The Triton was ordered next to Brisbane, Australia, where Kirkpatrick received orders to report as aide to Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet and chief of naval operations.

A few days later, Kirkpatrick watched with mixed emotions as the Triton moved out of Brisbane on her next patrol, his close friend and classmate in command.

The Triton never returned. Even Japanese naval archives after the war failed to give a clue to her fate.

* * * *

KIRKPATRICK'S final combat assignment was to command the radar picket destroyer USS Shea.

During the Okinawa invasion, a Jap suicide pilot, riding a radio-controlled flying bomb, struck the starboard side of the Shea under Kirkpatrick, who was standing on the bridge.

The bomb went through the ship, exploding after it struck the water on the other side. Eighty-five men were killed or wounded and Kirkpatrick himself sustained a leg wound.

Kirkpatrick and his surviving crewmen stayed with the heavily damaged ship, which limped thousands of miles to Philadelphia Naval Shipyard for repairs.

By coincidence, the Shea is now based at Long Beach as the flagship for Rear Adm. M. E. Murphy, commander, Mine Force, Pacific Fleet.

Kirkpatrick lives at 72 Claremont Ave. with his wife, Lalla, and their nine-year-old daughter, Shelley. Another daughter, Lalla B. Kirkpatrick, 22, lives in Boston.

Miss Lucy and Pastor to Marry

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — Negro coed Autherine Lucy, who was the center of controversy at the University of Alabama, will be married here today to a Baptist minister.

The bridegroom is Rev. Hugh Foster, an education major at Butler (Negro) College in Tyler, Tex., who preaches at two Baptist churches now, at Teague and Powell, Tex.

Miss Lucy, who is living in Dallas for the present, said about 500 invitations have been sent out to the formal wedding in St. John Baptist Church, one of the largest Negro churches in Dallas.

Miss Lucy said some white persons have been invited to the wedding and there will be no segregation in the church.

The couple will live in Tyler, where Foster will get his degree next December. But Miss Lucy said she still has hopes of returning to the University of Alabama, where her enrollment set off mob violence.

An appeal of her expulsion from the University has been filed in federal district court in Birmingham, but no date for a hearing has been set.

Ike Will Open Safety Conclave

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower will open the Conference of Occupational Safety here May 14-16, Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell announced today.

The 3,000 delegates also will hear addresses by Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson, Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington and Mitchell.

This year's conference will be devoted to problems of community safety programs.

DELAPLANE

"I am a college student, male, 21, with very little money but a big yen to see Europe. What about it?"

THE NETHERLANDS government operates 9,000-ton student ships in the summer with dormitory accommodations for $152.50, New York or Montreal to Southampton. Three round-trip sailings in June, two in July, one in August and two in September. Book through Holland-America. If you want a little more luxury, including a full bar instead of beer only, you can put up $27.50 more and go via Holland-America's virtually one-class ships Maasdam and Ryndam. All take eight days for the crossing.

Hitchhike when you get to Europe. This is a much more acceptable mode of travel over there than it is here. And you'll get to know the people better. But travel light or you won't fit into some of those small European cars.

Here is an unscientific analysis culled from college students who have done it. France, very good. You can get a ride free, or possibly for 500 or 1000 francs, from Paris to the Riviera by going at 2 or 3 a. m. to Les Halles, the big wholesale food market in the middle of Paris, and shopping around for a truck heading south. Camion (truck) drivers are your best bet in France. England and Holland, very good but short hauls. Belgium, not so good. Spain, not enough cars. Italy, fair. Germany, not bad if you avoid the autobahns. Scandinavia, not many cars on the highway.

Some of these kids say they got three and four-day rides and free meals thrown into the bargain.

If you don't want to hitchhike, travel third class.

Be sure you have "Student" stamped in your passport so you can take advantage of student deals I've mentioned before, special museum rates, etc.

"You are always mentioning cheap places to live in Mexico and Europe. Isn't there any such in the United States?"

I UNDERSTAND, especially through reports from Texas, that Arkansas is now the land of milk and honey.

I don't know how far the land rush has gone there, but you can buy land covered with trees, wild berries, springs and streams and overlooking a river for not too much. Taxes are low. The natives are friendly, sometimes even quaint and original.

They say that food is less expensive than most places and that anything will grow there. The place is covered with ginseng, the plant that kept the Chinese living so long. Lots of beauty and lots of building material—rocks, clay and logs available from the Forest Service.

"I have to go to Rome this summer, and I am tired of looking at ruins."

GET A TAXI DRIVER to take you to Piazza Santa Maria in the Trastevere section. There are a dozen restaurants around there with offbeat entertainment. And up in the park you'll find a pleasant outdoor dancing spot. I forget the name, but it may be Casa Rosa.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to: Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

She's the New Vargas Girl

When Vargas, prime exponent of girlie drawings and delight of magazine gawkers, visited Paramount, he was vastly impressed with the physical attributes of Carol Ohmart, studio's newest star, who makes her film debut in "The Scarlet Hour." He called her the "New Vargas Girl" and asked to paint her.

The posing gets under way and Vargas sketches out his picture. Carol, he says, has that "rare peachy skin." Look at Vargas, fellows, not the model.

Now the final result—Carol Ohmart, by Vargas. Paramount rates Carol high among its new stable of stars. "Scarlet Hour" was filmed in VistaVision.

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—The Senate recessed all day Tuesday and the transcript of the House of Representatives brief session started out this way:

MR. KEATING (R-N.Y.)—Mr. Speaker, may I inquire at this point as to the program for today?

MR. McCORMACK (D-Mass)—I am very glad my friend, the gentleman from New York, makes that inquiry. There will be no legislative business today.

MR. KEATING—I thank the gentleman. The information is very illuminating.

The rest of the proceeding was taken up with the following:

A brief speech against importing Polish hams; a longer soliloquy on recruiting young men for the foreign service, a eulogy to Herb Plews, rookie second baseman on the Washington baseball club—"one of the few Montanans ever to make the major leagues," followed by a recital of Plews' lifetime batting average and his performance in such places as Quincy, Binghamton and Norfolk.

The lack of activity in the Congress was easily explained. It was the opening of the baseball season and all the legislators reasoned that if Eisenhower could take time off to watch the ball game, so could they. There may have been no quorum in the Capitol, but it could easily have been called out at Griffith Stadium.

In line of duty, one of these reporters went out to the stadium to keep an eye on the President, the congressmen and only incidentally the ball game. Priding himself on being in essence a better sportswriter than he is a Washington reporter, he scouted the Yankees and the Senators and reported back as follows: "The future of both teams is assured. The Yankees will win the pennant; the Senators will win the cellar."

The third week in April is always quite a week here in Washington. Not only do we have the opening of the baseball season, but we get the annual convention of the newspaper editors and the yearly meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Hotel rooms are at a premium and "big wheels" who generally get rooms whenever they want them have been known, during this week, to sleep in hotel lobbies.

Greatest confusion in town occurred at the Statler Hotel which was headquarters for two conventions: the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME). The two organizations were constantly getting the other's mail and phone calls.

Benefit Curbs to Kin Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Olin E. Teague (D-Tex) said Saturday the House Veterans Affairs Committee has found hundreds of cases where government benefits piled up for incompetent veterans are passed on to distant relatives.

Teague called for a law to turn back to the U. S. Treasury unused Veterans Administration payments to mentally ill veterans upon their death, unless the money can be inherited by a widow, child or dependent parent.

Teague said he would push a bill which would allow government recapture of VA compensation payments from an incompetent veteran's estate after his death, but not that part accruing from interest, investments or other sources. That would be when there is no widow, child or dependent parent to inherit the estate.

Largest wind harp in the U. S. is this one located at Solvang, Danish town north of Santa Barbara.

Solvang's Wind Harp

By Bertha Blanchard

IF YOU HAVE ever listened to the wind play sweet music on the strings of a wind harp, you are indeed fortunate, for there are only a few wind harps in the world today.

Largest and most unique wind harp in America is located on the grounds of Atterdag College, in the Danish town of Solvang, north of Santa Barbara. Originally, this wind harp adorned the top of the Greek exhibit building at the 1915 World's Fair in San Francisco. That same year, Rev. Benedict Nordenloft, who built the college, brought the harp to Solvang and perched it high on a hillside among the whispering pine boughs, over-looking the Atterdag Bowl.

The harp tower stands on four steel pillars, about 15 feet high. Inside the lower globe, pipes are hung on chains. Close to each pipe is a solid lead ball, smaller than a golf ball, hanging on a chain. When the wind blows, both ball and pipe move and as they strike, make a musical sound.

THE PIPES ARE of different lengths and therefore give off different tones. The long ones give off deep tones, the shorter ones a higher note. When the wind is strong, these musical notes can be heard two blocks away.

This wind harp descended from the ancient Aeolian Harp, a stringed musical instrument, played automatically by the wind. Wires stretched across an open framework or a box of thin wood were tuned in unison. The play of the wind across the strings caused them to vibrate and produce harmonic effects.

The principle of natural vibration of strings by the pressure of the wind is familiar to all who have heard telephone wires "sing" in the breeze, the sound being intensified by the posts which practically act as soundboards.

THE HARP was named for Aeolus, the Greek and Roman Mythological deity, who controlled the winds.

Perhaps the earliest record of this quaint instrument is the ancient account of King David and his kinnor, or small harp, which he had suspended over his bed. When the wind swept over the strings in the silence of the night, musical sounds emitted seemed to be as if the chords were struck by some supernatural agency. It is also related that St. Dunstan of Canterbury hung a harp over his couch, but he was charged with sorcery. In an old Irish poem, we read of the delightful music produced by the wind on the strings of a cruit or crott.

San Francisco, April 18, 1906

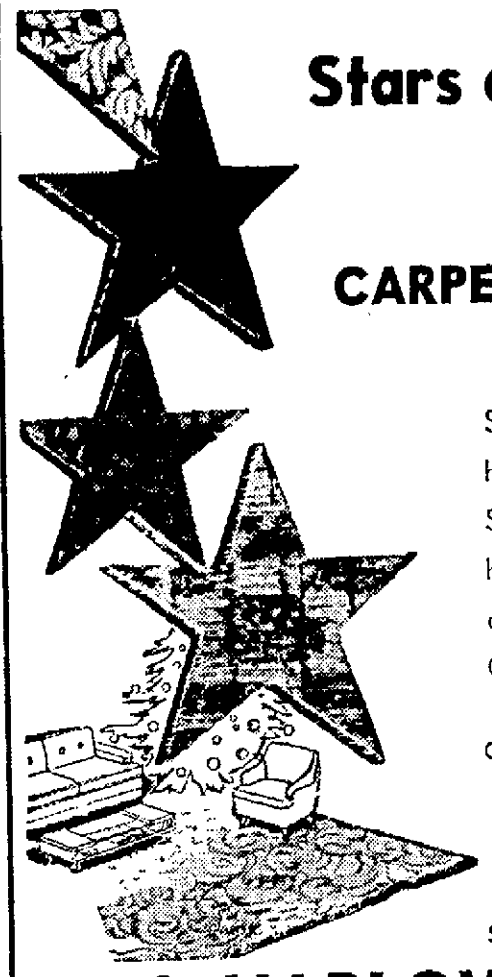

One of the great fires of history followed a 5:12 a. m. earthquake at San Francisco fifty years ago.

Hammond Lumber Company had offices on the 4th floor of the Merchants Exchange building on California Street.

Everything inside our offices was destroyed, excepting, by good luck, the contents of our office vault. The papers therein were browned from the heat. Some banks could hardly decipher the charred records they later removed from their vaults, such as a $100,000 note, very black indeed, which our company paid off, framed and hung in our office.

Platter Boss of the Juke Box Jury

By Terry Vernon

Press-Telegram TV-Radio Columnist

SOME smart pundit once said, "You can take the boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy," and in the case of William Moore it's a good thing.

When I walked into Don the Beachcomber's in Hollywood the other night to have dinner with Moore and his charming wife, professionally known as Beryl Davis, Bill jumped up and practically yelled across the room, "Over here, Terry."

No other star would be caught dead raising his voice in the sacrosanct precincts of Don's place except to sing his own praises. Not so, this part-Cherokee boy who came from Henrietta, Okla., and hasn't yet let Hollywood force him to upstage anyone. He is just the same as he was when he broke through the golden gates of fame and fortune years back—it's a charm that no school can teach, a personality that fits him like a glove and wins him friends who stay friends—even in a town that loves knives in the back better than pheasant under glass.

ACTUALLY BILL came to Hollywood as a writer and he had a script with him to prove it . . . a script that one producer took a look at and immediately declared, "the only thing good about this is the name of the leading man" and tossed it back at the budding author, who was then employed at Barker Brothers at $15 a week.

That did it . . . and William Moore of Henrietta became Peter Potter of radio, movies and TV fame and during the past years has amassed a comfortable bank account, a beautiful and talented wife and some small fry to haunt his swimming pool.

Changing his name seemed the magic formula to success and Peter Potter started out in radio, wound up doing some stage plays, then parts in some movies but primarily became a radio disc jockey—sort of a Louella Parsons or Hedda Hopper of the discories. If Peter took a record and played it on his shows, then sales were pretty sure to hit a new high.

SUCCESS DIDN'T come easy to Peter—he worked at it and still does. He is on the air a

Potter finds top stars always eager to appear on his show. Here he is with Sammy Davis Jr., Eddie Cantor.

Is There New Hope at Last for FLAT CHESTED WOMEN?

France Acclaims Scientist's Tablet Formula

Now Available for Self Home Testing

Complete Safety Established

Paris, France: Flat chested women are given new hope at last. A scientific formula containing a special extract of Galega is said to have given such satisfactory results authorities have approved the sale of the product for self home treatment.

1000 WOMEN WANTED

to test this new French way that may help develop a firmer, fuller, natural bosom. NO MASSAGING...NO CREAMS...NO EXERCISE...NOTHING TO WEAR!

French scientists have made tremendous contributions to the world's medical knowledge. Yet we in America often have been reluctant to accept their discoveries sometimes for years. Madam Curie... Pasteur... many French Scientists... today their discoveries are an inseparable part of our science. But there was a time when American medical opinion often seriously doubted the very value of what we accept as fact so completely today.

Important Decision

Now we are faced with another important decision. After years of work and experimentation, French scientists say a unique prepared extract of Galego taken internally in tablet form as directed, may help many flat chested women develop naturally the firmer, fuller bosom that adds so much to feminine charm and womanly appeal.

Completely Safe

Already the safety of the preparation has been firmly established by tests conducted in a leading scientific laboratory. At the same time the value of the product in helping the bosom fill out has not been accepted as yet by current American medical opinion. If you are in normal health, you can become part of these tests and try this new discovery yourself at home and in secret. Our product is called "La Vie." In 6 weeks you either are satisfied or you need only return the empty bottle and your trial is free.

Let Peter Potter spin a record on "Juke Box Jury" and the sale of that particular "platter" starts climbing.

lot of hours each week and has a terrific following among those who like the newest recordings of the older tunes. Peter brings a freshness to the microphone because he personally knows nearly all of the performers who are appearing on his record shows.

"Juke Box Jury" was the actual turning point in his career, however, and this panel show has become one of the most popular in the Southland. He has also had it on the network as summer replacement for top-rated shows.

Recently Peter couldn't negotiate with KNXT satisfactorily so KRCA jumped in and made a counter-offer that Pete could not refuse. So he shifted the show to a new time and station but remained right up in the top rungs of the rating reports.

WE ASKED HIM about the numerous stars who appear on his "Juke Box Jury," and Peter said he was amazed at the number of persons who want to get on the show.

"It's not a high budget show, you know," he said, "and what we pay must look like peanuts to the stars who command five- and six-figure weekly pay-checks. But I'm real pleased at the waiting list we have. When we need someone to fill in it is a cinch to get a top star and I just don't know why."

Peter and Beryl used to live on a "ranch" in the San Fernando Valley but traffic became too heavy on the freeways so they got a place near Hollywood, high in the hills overlooking the smog-filled valley. It is only ten minutes to his studio by Jaguar. They have two children Bill Jr., 7, and Mary Bell, 3, and the youngsters don't know Peter Potter at all. They know he works on the radio but are innocent as to his profession. Fact is, Bill Jr. has only seen his dad on TV once and didn't care much for the show since there were no cowboys and Indians riding that-a-way.

Prepared junior foods take much of drudgery out of raising a family, as Mrs. Lawrence Maguire finds in feeding her daughter, Mary, and son, Michael John.

COOKING

Here's Help with Junior's Meals

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

SPEAKING of "holler" days, there's a National Baby Week in the 1956 calendar from April 25 right through May 2. Actually, in the good old U.S.A., it's Baby Week the whole year round.

There's one sure way to be a howling success with the bawling department — that's by keeping in mind that its members are entirely individual with personalities to match. Each one's different, yet each is best.

Right from the cradle up, we like our children to be happy and satisfied. We train them for adventure, and for full expression of the gifts they have been given. Even in the matter of diet, wonderful strides are being made every day.

WHAT A BLESSING for mothers that they no longer have to measure, mix and stir, for the infant of today has its own food from pre-cooked cereal (corn, wheat, oats and rice) to every vegetable the garden can muster or the fruit trees can produce. They owe much to the large food companies which have specialized in the production of baby foods.

Diets for Mary and Mike run the gamut now of the vegetable kingdom from strained carrots, sweet potatoes to green beans, frozen orange juice and dry cereal.

TIME WAS, TOO, that baby shifted highchair gears from strained foods direct into high living at the family table. But now, thanks again to prepared food companies, the toddler can be given that smug feeling of sharing family meals yet having his own chopped foods from the junior cans and jars. Junior can favorably compare his own chopped carrots and green beans that may wear a garland of riced, hard-cooked egg yolks.

In most cases a pediatrician prescribes for each individual child, so we won't attempt today to add to or detract from his advice. However, the few random suggestion given below may help a bit.

HOW TO INTRODUCE SOLIDS: A small, narrow-bowled spoon, preferably with a long handle, should be used for feeding your baby solid foods.

The first solid, which probably will be cereal, should be thinned to a semi-liquid state with water, milk or formula. As your baby becomes accustomed to the different consistency, add less liquid.

It might be advisable to thin his first strained meats, fruits and vegetables in the same way.

It is a good idea to introduce your child to new flavors one at a time in order to avoid confusion and permit you to examine his reaction to each. Continue one food for a week or so until the baby is accustomed to it, then introduce a second.

When you first feed your baby solid food, he might appear to reject it. Remember, however, that heretofore he has been used to obtaining his food from a nipple by a sucking reflex. Now he has to adjust his tongue and swallowing mechanism to the heavier texture. It is best to place the food midway on his tongue; thereby prompting an almost unconscious swallowing action.

Never force your child to eat unwanted foods. If he rejects a new flavor, try another; come back to the first a week or so later.

Some babies eat new foods best when they are hungriest—at the beginning of a meal. Others are too fussy and not in a mood for experimenting until they have had a bit to eat. See which is the case with your baby, then proceed accordingly.

But remember: Relax! take it easy! Make mealtime fun for both you and baby.

SELF-FEEDING: Somewhere along the way, perhaps as early as six months, your baby will begin grabbing the spoon with which you are feeding him. This is the first step toward mastery of his own knife, fork and spoon.

The best thing to do when your child starts holding tightly to the spoon is to give him a second one — a straight-handled spoon which will be easy for him to handle. Let him practice picking it up, putting it down, directing it to his mouth.

Once your youngster is sitting in his high chair, you might allow him to experiment by guiding his hand with the spoon from his plate of food to his mouth.

Once you see that junior is able to manage the spoon — even a bit shakily — don't sit and watch him. Nonchalantly look out the window for a minute or two, talk with others at the table; return for a few words of encouragement; now and then help him a bit when he gets tired.

The foods you feed him as well as the utensils you give him can mean a lot in helping your baby along the road to self-feeding.

WHEN YOUR BABY is eight months old, or earlier (just as your doctor recommends), it's about time to shift to junior foods. Prepared under the same high standards as strained foods, these diced vegetables and finely minced meats are the way to a well balanced diet for the toddler.

Texture is the chief difference between strained and junior varieties. Many of the old favorites are present. They are still mildly seasoned so as not to impair the child's palate for natural food flavors nor prove irritating to the digestive tract.

Not all junior foods are of the same consistency. Listed below are those which might be considered "transition" foods because of their finer texture. Perhaps you and your baby would like to try these first:

Beef Lamb Beef heart
Pork Veal
Chicken farina vegetable porridge
Applesauce Peaches Pears
Apricots and applesauce
Pears and pineapple
Custard pudding Butterscotch
Pudding Chocolate pudding

Patrolman Kills Gunman Who Shot Deputy

A 32-year-old ex-convict who wounded a sheriff's deputy was cornered after an 80-mile chase early Saturday and killed by another officer in Santa Ana.

Robert Neri Monteverde, Placentia, was slain by California Highway Patrolman James M. Bergman.

The wounded officer was Deputy E. H. Swanson, 28, of the Norwalk station. He was shot in the right arm when he and his partner stopped three men at 186th St. and Pioneer Blvd., Artesia.

Swanson, firing with his left hand, then wounded Monteverde with three shots. Monteverde stole a car and drove to Santa Ana, where he was slain.

Bus-driver Dale Hudson, 33, of 659-A Molino Ave., suffered abrasions of his right hand.

Prowler Collapses

A prowler grappled Friday night with cafe operator Louis Arvitt in his home at 214 2nd St., Seal Beach, and finally fled.

Arvitt said the intruder demanded the keys to the cafe, where the day's receipts supposedly were kept, threatening him with two knives. The cafe owner said he grappled with him and chased him to the foot of the Bolsa Ave. bridge, where the prowler collapsed and was seized by police. Arvitt identified the man as Carl W. Bailey, 46, of 142 Main St., Seal Beach.

TOO CLEVER

Innocent Driver Convicts Self

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—When his car was stopped for a routine check, 20-year-old Edward Akin ducked his temporary driving permit and showed police a license belonging to his uncle, William C. Akin.

He was charged with displaying a fictitious license and got a $100 fine and 30 days in jail.

Pleading guilty in Municipal Court Saturday, Akin, a steelworker, explained:

He had a passenger with him when his car was stopped. He didn't know it then, but his passenger was a licensed driver, which made his driving on a temporary permit perfectly legal.

15,000 March in Syria, Protest French Envoy

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Fifteen thousand demonstrators marched through the streets of Damascus Saturday shouting anti-French slogans and demanding expulsion of the French ambassador.

Police threw a heavy guard around the French embassy and other French buildings. No violence was reported. The demonstrations were held in connection with a three-hour general strike called by Moslem religious leaders to protest French policy in Algeria.

Boy, 6, Injured Darting Into Car

Peter M. Conlan, 6, got a bump on the head and possible injury to the left hip Saturday when he was struck by a car at Alamitos Ave. and 7th St. The victim, who lives at 1046 Hellman Ave., is at Seaside Hospital.

Driver John L. Templeton, 52, of 1424 E. 2nd St., told police that the boy darted in front of his car. Templeton was not cited.

Southern Yard May Build Atomic-Powered Tanker

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The Birmingham News Saturday said Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp., Pascagoula, Miss., is expected to build the nation's first atomic-powered tanker.

Irving Beiman, News business editor, wrote in Sunday's editions that while actual award of a contract for this purpose is still months away, informed sources declare Ingalls "is known to be regarded with the highest possible favor in plans for developing 'push-button' naval and maritime equipment."

"THE INGALLS COMPANY has submitted a proposal, along with three other shipbuilding companies to construct the nation's first atomic tanker, for the U. S. Maritime Commission. It will be designed to speed petroleum fuel to Navy jet carriers at sea, among other things.

"The Pascagoula yard has been in constant operation since it opened, while other yards—both naval and civilian—have suspended work periodically since the end of World War II.

"Government observers also are said to have been impressed with the fact that Ingalls is the one yard in the nation which has not lost its top staff or workers, and has had no major labor strife.

"The Gulf Coast also has a climate advantage over other shipyards.

"It is no secret that Navy and maritime officials look forward to the time when vessels will move under atomic power and fuel supplies will no longer be needed for such vessels."

Dear Dr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills, but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that responded wonderfully. After the first treatment, was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method."

Signed: Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "For over 30 years I have been going from one doctor's office to another hopin' to find someone to help me with my asthma and stomach condition. No one knows how much I had suffered until I came to Dr. Chan. Night after night I had to sit up because I wasn't able to lie down to sleep. I was coughing and wheezing most of the night, besides my stomach was full of gas. After taking Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy for one week, I began to improve. Now, after five months of continuous treatment, my asthma and stomach troubles are just about over. I wish to recommend this treatment to anyone who is anxious to get well. I am sure that Dr. Chan will do all he can to help you as he has helped me."

EVERYBODY LOVES A BARGAIN!

LOOK AT THE VALUES AMERICA'S DYNAMIC CHEMICAL INDUSTRY OFFERS YOU TODAY, WITH A PROMISE OF MORE TO COME!

Chemical manufacturers this year will pick up a check for over 350 million dollars . . . so that you may spend less to live better.

This is the chemical industry's annual investment in research (more than that of any other industry) which is creating the new "miracle" materials for home, farm and factory . . . as it improves and lowers the cost of basic chemical products. For example —

YOUR MENU Bountiful harvests of recent years owe much to improved agricultural chemicals which have increased crop yields almost 20% . . . and better feed additives which have put a plump chicken in every pot (and within range of everybody's pocketbook). They've made America's menu more varied, more delectable, more nutritious than ever . . .

YOUR WARDROBE Gone are washday blues! "Non-Shrinking" . . . "wrinkle-resistant" . . . "little or no ironing" . . . "steadfast colors" . . . "water repellent" . . . these are fast becoming standards of quality in the fabrics you buy for your family and your home. And wonder of wonders, you're spending far less of the family budget (30% savings on clothing alone) than the average American of 20 years ago.

YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH AND WELL BEING
Almost a full ten years have been added to life expectancy as compared with 1940. Better community sanitation . . . improved personal hygiene . . . better nutrition . . . and significant victories won by the antibiotics over infectious diseases—all have their roots in chemical progress. For example, 12 short years ago, penicillin cost over 1,000 times more than it does today.

YOUR PRESENT AND FUTURE HOME
About one and one quarter million new homes will be built this year, and millions more will be done over by enthusiastic do-it-yourselfers. Paints, lacquers and protective coatings — all dependents of the chemical industry — help in adding durability, ease of maintenance, and color to make yours a better neighborhood to live in.

TOMORROW Cattle fodder from sawdust . . . electricity from atomic energy — all hint at what the future holds through chemistry. By taking abundant raw materials from forests, oil wells, seas—and even the air — by transforming them into products that serve the needs of industry and the consumer at the right price . . . the chemical manufacturers of America offer you a better way of life—at bargain prices!

Quaint Hideaway in a 'Sleepy Hollow'

Antiques, including spinning wheel, cobbler's bench, pie safe now holding TV, are of interest in living room of Lloyd de Blois family's home.

By Eileen Ball

JUST A FEW blocks off the busy thoroughfare of Long Beach Blvd. is a "sleepy hollow" sort of community where a handful of houses nestle under old shade trees along quiet, block-long streets.

In the midst of this area is a quaint bungalow and barn sheltered by lofty eucalyptus and wept over by lacy willows. It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd de Blois, 4650 Ruth Ave., and their daughter, Mimi.

The house, barn and guest cottage are located on an irregularly shaped and spacious lot that is informally planted with trees and shrubs. The rustic architecture of the buildings set in the wooded site look like a bit of New England dropped in the midst of this city.

WHILE THE COTTAGE abounds in romantic charm, it is somewhat lacking in the sort of new innovations that earmark the more "modern" dwelling. Such features as forced air, electric dishwashers and inter-communication systems are as alien to this house as to a country farmhouse of a generation or two ago. And this is just the way the de Blois family likes it!

So remote and withdrawn is this home from the high-powered, high-pressured city hassle that a visit is like a vacation at a countryside inn. A pathway leads to a long, covered veranda grown over with English ivy and pink cabbage roses. The porch is faced with old brick salvaged from an old house wrecked years ago. On the veranda stands a long, spindle-back church pew.

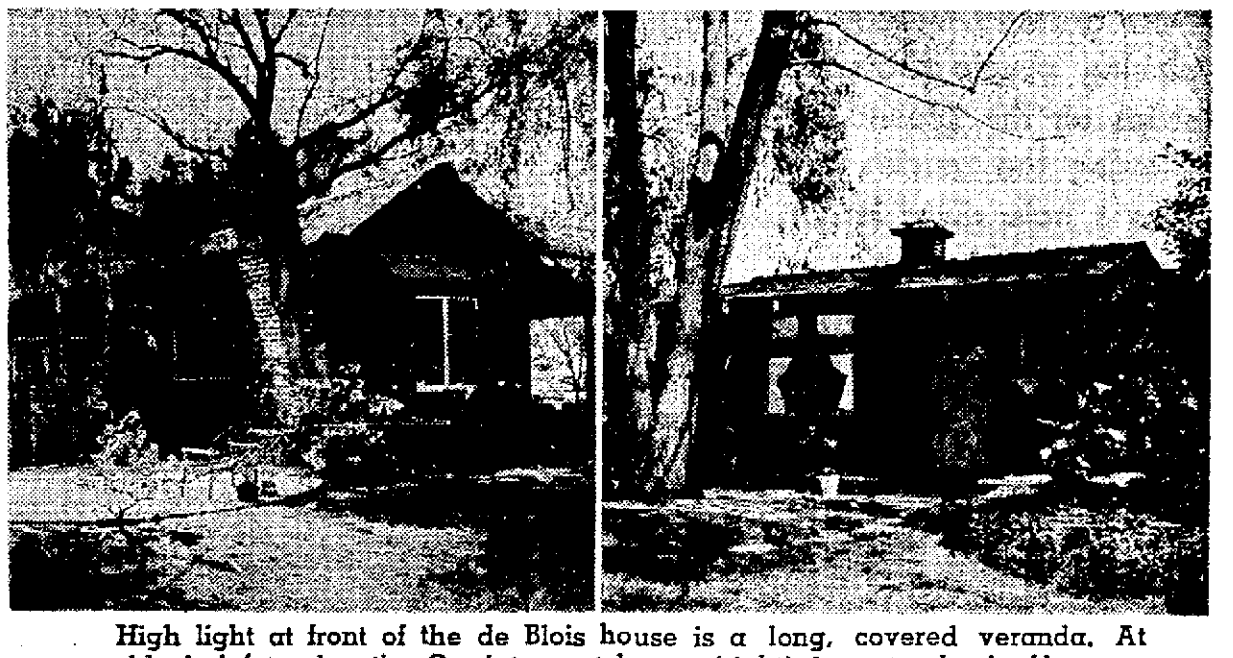

THE HIGH-PITCHED ceiling of the living room has exposed pine rafters. The walls are paneled in vertical, waxed knotty pine. And the furnishings are authentic early American antiques.

Near a fireplace of old brick stands an apple green rocker and an old spinning wheel, both about 100 years old. Other antique appointments include a cobbler's bench, a rare cabbage slicer (which looks a lot like a cobbler's bench), a pair of spinners' chairs and a pie safe. The latter is an amusing wood cabinet with perforated tin panels set into its double doors. The design punched in the tin was once calculated to please the eye while discouraging flies and little fingers from sampling the pastries closeted therein. (Now enclosed in the pie safe is a television set.)

A WINDOW SEAT on the north wall has French windows that swing wide to the garden. Hanging over this alcove is an antique lantern, its six panels of amber glass overlaid with ornamental tin.

On the wall opposite is a balcony which runs the width of the room and off which opens the loft bedroom occupied by Mimi. A steeply-ascending wood staircase leads to this quaint, sloped-ceiling room with its old-fashioned trundle bed and antique rocking horse.

Under the scallop-trimmed balcony is the area designated as High light at front of the de Blois house is a long, covered veranda. At side is informal patio. Quaint guest house (right) has storybook flavor.

Girdle Hurdle

Travel which requires sitting for many hours in a plane, train or car, is very taxing on the flow of blood and other fluids through the body. Keeping a good circulation requires body motion according to a recent article in the official publication of the American Society of Travel Agents. The society advocates an hourly walk for all and, in a special note to the ladies, advises them to "leave their girdles at home."

MR. AND MRS. R. W. E. LEWIS
No Johnny-Come-Lately Nomads, They

Mrs. Ralph Waldo Emerson Lewis, 2321 Atlantic Ave., has lived in Long Beach 75 years.

Seventy-five years is right. And "Ralph Waldo Emerson" is right.

Mrs. Lewis came here when she was one year old, and believes she was the first white baby brought to Long Beach. She reports Ruby Reed was the first white child born here and Courtney Teel, a Los Angeles attorney, was the first white boy born here.

Lewis, 80, a painter and paper hanger still on the job, is a great-nephew of Ralph Waldo Emerson and was named for the essayist and poet. Incidentally, he has lived in Long Beach since the 1890's. The Lewises recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

"I was born in Garden Grove, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Saunders," Mrs. Lewis says. "When I was one year old we moved to Perris Road (Santa Fe) and Hill St. We were flooded out three times—there was no Los Angeles River flood control in those days. A team of mules got us out once, a team of horses once, and the third time we got out by boat. My father said that was enough.

* * * *

"HE BOUGHT 50 acres of the American Colony Tract—40 acres on the west side of Atlantic, 10 acres on the east side and moved our house to Atlantic Ave. and 23rd St. I went to school at the old Cerritos school on Willow St., then the Pine Ave. school at 6th and Pine—I walked from here to there — and then my father gave an acre and a third at Hill and Atlantic for the Burnett school. I went to school there, too.

"I've seen Atlantic change from 50-acre parcels to 50-foot lots."

Her father gave land on American Ave. from Hill to Burnett to the Pacific Electric, and Lewis and her brother, Albert, cutiman, a bearded sheepherder who when she was a child, Gus Fulworked for the Bixbys, herded down the eucalyptus grove so sheep between their place and that the Pacific Electric could town. "He had a couple of dogs," run its tracks to Long Beach in says Mrs. Lewis. "My mother 1902. used to cook things and send them down to him."

"Those trees were tough," The Lewises built their five-Lewis grins. "I wouldn't have room frame house in 1922 and done it if I hadn't been in love they have lived in it ever since. with Frances." But with the exception of the short time, when as a bride she

When they were married, Mr. lived in the Daugherty house and Mrs. Lewis rented a six-room downtown, and a few trips north house, furnished, on 1st St. near and east, she has lived on At-Lime Ave. for $6 a month from lantic, in that immediate area, C. J. Daugherty, father of Earl for 68 years. Daugherty, flier for whom Daugherty Field is named. They decided the rent was too high, so they moved back to "the farm."

* * * *

ATLANTIC AVE. in those days was a dirt road. "Two ruts, each a foot wide, and a foot deep. It was adobe, and by the time we had walked to Anaheim Rd., the adobe had rolled up on our feet until they looked like footballs."

Mrs. Lewis remembers that the entry. Hanging on the paneled wall nearby is an old hayrake, cranberry rake and small pine shelves.

Amusing brass and glass hurricane fixtures hang on the walls for the sake of illumination. Daylight is dealt with equally cleverly with the placement of a small colored glass window high at the crest of the ceiling.

FOR COMFORT'S SAKE, this 17x22-foot room has been carpeted in cocoa-colored, deep-tufted cotton which harmonized nicely with the upholstered settle that may be drawn close to the fire.

The master bedroom, located directly under Mimi's upstairs room, opens off the living room and, in turn, has French doors that swing open to a secluded side garden. Fan-shaped steps of used brick are partially overgrown with ivy and framed with myriad little English garden flowers.

Novelty is achieved in the bedroom by installing cedar shingles for finish of the wall opposite the doorway. Since the area opens directly off the living room, attention is attracted to the unusual treatment whenever the bedroom door is opened.

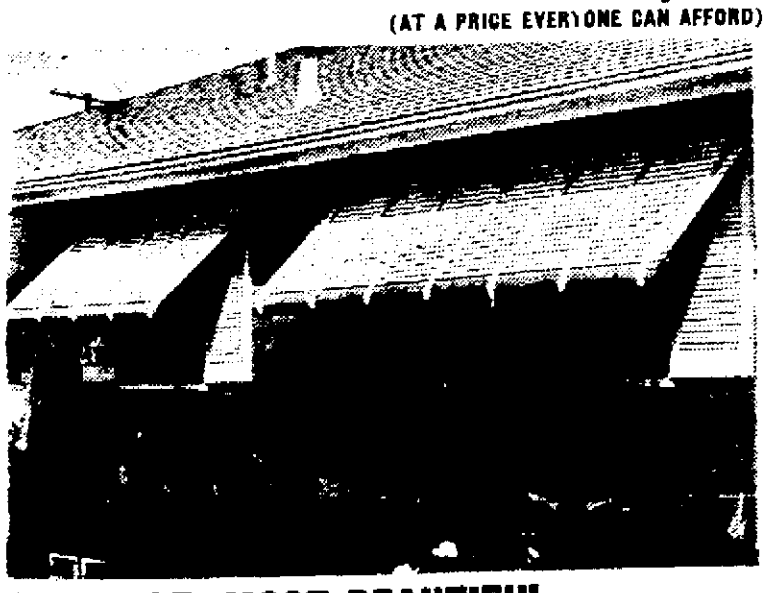

The bed (a plain boxspring, mattress and legs arrangement) is pushed against the other wall, against which stand 10 antique louvered shutters. The mellowed old pine shutters create a charming headboard for the bed which is lighted by a hanging Paul Revere lantern over 75 years old. By the bed is an old oil lamp, converted to electricity. It stands on a dough box that serves nicely as a bedside table.

Reminiscent of little room in which "Heidi" slept is Mimi de Blois' bedroom, reached by a stair, balcony.

Quaint Hideaway

Opening off the living room to the east is the kitchen with its round table, old rush-seat, ladderback chairs and its very old butter churn.

THE PATIO, which hugs the house close in the ell established for it by the placement of living room and kitchen, is paved in a semi-circle with used brick. Old hickory and wicker furniture blend harmoniously with the plants growing informally all around. Filtering the sunlight into fragile patterns over the patio is a huge old weeping willow and a pepper tree. The pleasing presence of brick masonry is introduced by the back of the living room fireplace. One portion of the structure opens to the patio to form an outdoor barbecue. Utensils and dishes used for outdoor cookery are handily—and surprisingly—housed in an amusing old bread wagon that stands nearby on the lawn. Once a horse-drawn conveyor of fresh bakery products, this boxey little wagon seems perfectly suited to its new role.

Back of the house is an old barn in fine repair that, until recently, was used as a ceramic studio. The de Bloises, who have owned the property only since September, have plans to convert the kiln to a fireplace and the barn to a residence.

Already highly livable, on a smaller scale, is a pert, brown-and-yellow guest cottage with Dutch door, cupola and shed-roofed veranda.

Tender Trap Opening Friday at Community Playhouse

"The Tender Trap" has its local stage premiere at the Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St., Friday. This recent Broadway success is a farcical merry-go-round of women going in and out of a Manhattan bachelor's life. The bachelor, Charlie (Bill) Weightman was never too popular back home, but when he arrives in New York he becomes a man-about-town. The flames in his love life include: Betty Joe Estes, Irene Faubion, Donna Borrege, and a very designing young woman with definite domestic plans, Kathleen Vaughn. The masculine members of the cast are: Cliff Medaugh, Corky Teska, a business associate, and Henry McCann, a real gone musician.

Education Topic for Masonic Club

M. A. (Bud) Duncan, member of the Long Beach School Board, will speak on education problems at the meeting of the Long Beach Masonic Club Thursday noon in the Wilton Hotel.

The Public Schools Week program will include student musicians. William T. Corbusier will be chairman of the day.

'R-R-REALLY BIG'

NEW YORK—Herb Shriner's been tagged by CBS to be one of its 'r-r-really big" men next year—with an hour variety show—but he claims he doesn't intend to be any genius.

"If you go all out, you may go on right through the other side of the room," Harmonica Herb says. "I don't plan to come up with anything revolutionary.

"I'll see if I can get away with some more of my singin'," he adds. "I've got great hopes for the show, but to tell the truth, me and Pixie never buy anything when the payments last longer'n 13 weeks.

"Television's too uncertain. Firin' is bound to go on forever in television. Everybody fires people, but Godfrey and Sid Caesar are the only ones that get caught at it. I'm sure some day some big TV star is going to come on and say 'I think I've had it, as of right now I'm firing myself.'"

Herb's been trying to find out what night he'll work.

"I look 'em square in the eye and say 'What night am I on?' and they say, 'if we find out, we'll try to get permission to let you know.'

"Bein' a hi-fi nut, I'll probably have some music, to take the taste out of your mouth from my own singin'.

"And I'll continue interviewin' people. I was thinkin' of interviewin' people that stand up and I've always wondered what those people'd have said if Ed had allowed them to say anything."

Herb's become a "packager" now—"I got to build my own bunch," he explains.

This means the boy from Fort Wayne will be a corporation like Jackie Gleason and Perry Como.

Kipling's Children Get Together

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

FIRST of the British writers to receive the Nobel Prize for Literature, Rudyard Kipling gave to the world some of its most wonderful classics in prose and verse. Certainly everyone who has ever read what he has written has found a gem or two to be remembered always. To read his stories or ballads usually calls for more of the same, with the wish that his entire writings might be brought together in a single collection.

Now, in answer to the continuing popularity of this acknowledged master who died 20 years ago, much of Kipling's best has been published in a two-volume set by John Beecroft. It is titled "Rudyard Kipling: A Selection of His Stories and Poems" (Doubleday, $7.50), and is the May selection of the Literary Guild.

Packed in ostentatious jackets which Kipling himself would have loved—because they smack of India where he was born and where he spent many happy years—the contents at once become a prize for those who know or do not know this writer. First off, in Volume I, is his most famous novel, "Kim," the tale of a street-Arab apprenticed to the Indian Secret Service, a beautifully vivid panorama of Indian life with a detective twist. There follows the "Jungle Book" in which Kipling personalizes the tiger and other denizens of the Indian jungle for the child Mowgli, whose teachers they become; his incomparable "Just So Stories" for children including "How the Whale Got His Throat" and "How the Leopard Got His Spots," and, finally, selections from "Puck of Pook's Hill."

Volume II contains 27 of Kipling's miscellaneous short tales, his own story about himself, and more than half a hundred of his most famous poems, including "Danny Deever," "Mandalay" and "The Ballad of East and West," each marked by a verve and robustness so characteristic of Kipling's writings.

In his introduction, Mr. Beecroft quotes Somerset Maugham as saying that Kipling is ". . . our greatest story writer. I can't believe he will ever be equalled. I am sure he can never be excelled."

Maugham, like Kipling, speaks great truths masterfully.

LONG A STUDENT of philosophy and comparative history, actor Lew Ayres recently made a globe-circling trip to seek understanding of the many doctrines in his continuing search for spiritual truths. The result is "Altars of the East" (Doubleday, $4.50), in which he explores colorful religions of which little is known in the United States.

Mr. Ayres has written a sequence on Hinduism, another on the Jains, the Parsis and the Sikhs; the two branches of Buddhism, and Confucianism, Mohammedanism, and Judaism, all of which represent the spiritual ideals of 1½ billion persons.

While Mr. Ayres was once a conscientious objector, he lets it be known in this work that he believes peace may be good and that it can also be evil, that the peace with which he is concerned "is surcease of international armed conflict for a sufficient period to allow time, energy and money to tackle and overcome the subhuman environment degrading and demoralizing more than half the world's inhabitants."—F.T.K.

PETER GIBBS
. . Knows African Colonies . .

A fascinating new book which reveals strange ways in which colonies were created in Africa — with trail-makers like Cecil Rhodes and Leander Starr Jameson stirring life in its pages—is "A Flag for the Matabele" (Vanguard, $3.50). Author is Peter Gibbs, who has lived in Africa and Rhodesia for the past 20 years.

WITH 1956 political battles beginning to shape up, "This Is Nixon: The Man and His Work" (Putnam's, $2.75) should be must reading for those who admire the Vice President and wish to defend him, for those who dislike this young man who's almost certain to be Eisenhower's running mate, and for those who want a closer look at the man before deciding whether they will or will not support him.

Written by James Keogh, an editor of Time, the book is compact but still is a definitive look at the 36th Vice President — where he came from, what he believes, what he says and where he stands. Here, certainly, is ample proof that he is the most active vice president in the country's history, and there are generous quotations from interviews and speeches.

Actually, Nixon is almost a "home town boy" since he was born in nearby Yorba Linda on Jan. 9, 1913. This is a full, readable account of this rising young American from that day until now, when he is probably the most controversial figure in politics.—F.T.K.

THE BEGINNING struggles of modern Israel are those of a people with a world against them. "Vanquish the Angel" by Diana and Meir Gillon (Day, $3.50) begins with Yoel as a child of the older Jews who grows into his birthright and returns to Israel with an English education and a gentile wife. At that time the British blockade impressed the Israel people into a secret battle against authority. Bombs and bullets comprised the language of resistance, and every Jew had his own place in the struggle for freedom.

All is not well between Yoel and the lovely Olivia. A fight for a state grows into a fight for a marriage, when Olivia turns to a British officer for comfort in a fashion which it seemed could not be given her by Yoel. It is the secret Jewish network which has to disclose to Yoel that his wife is suspect. From then on the novel gains in tension, until at last Israel is a state, the British leave but the Arabs attack. The reader will gain a new understanding of what comprises Jewish independence with the reading of this fine novel. —G. L.

DETAILS OF BEING a Navy wife are many and varied, often frustrating, but the ultimate achievement is a grand life, in the opinion of Florence Ridgely Johnson who, more than 20 years ago, married a young junior lieutenant. Today, her husband is a rear admiral. That other Navy wives may have the benefit of her experience as they "report for duty," Mrs. Johnson has written what she terms "a service manual for the naval officer's wife." It is "Welcome Aboard" (U. S. Naval Institute, $3.50), and in it, carefully titled by chapters and efficiently indexed, are the answers to a myriad of questions confronting the new member of the vast Navy family.

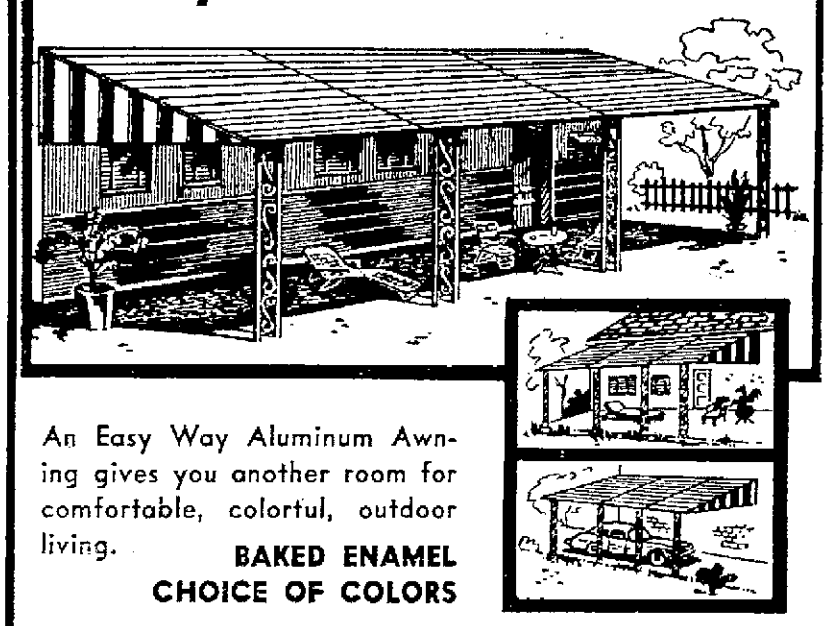

SABRINA KANE, from the novel of the same name by Will Cook (Dodd, Mead, $3.50), was a pioneer immigrant to Illinois. Her husband died en route, and the beautiful lady determined to continue to the new land. She could swing a bullwhip as good as any man, though she was "hardly taller than a rifle and weighed less than a barrel of rum." Had her own ideas about bossing men, too, until she ran into Benjamin Travis, who finally conquered her.

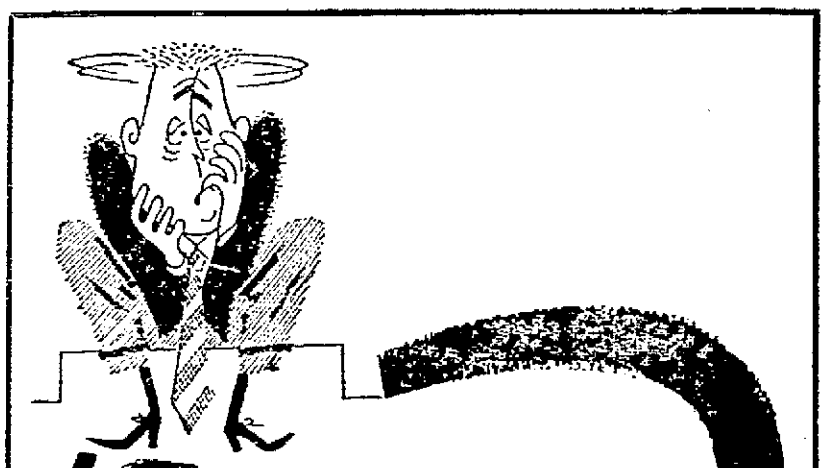

"MURDER IS WHERE You Find It," and you'll find lots of it in the book of that name by Robert P. Hansen (Mill-Morrow, $2.75). You ought to be able to guess the ending, too.

DOGS AND CATS, big and small, pedigreed and alley, have definite personalities, repaying in love and trust those who care for them, says George DeClyver Curtis in "Cats' Tales & Dogs' Days" (American Press, $3). In his California mountain home he has had a variety of these furry pets and he writes of them with charm. The volume is well illustrated.

DELL CONTINUES to publish exciting First Editions, or original stories not hitherto printed in book form. Titles this month include "The Devil's Spawn," Robert Carse's story of revenge and primitive passions; "The Great Locomotive Chase," a story by MacLennan Roberts based on the Walt Disney production and on authentic Civil War documents; and "The Angry Man," fast-action western yarn by T. T. Flynn (all 25c).

Crossroads of the Pasteboards

Citizens have their fun at Lincoln Park Card Club.

By Margaret Vassau

UNPRETENTIOUS in design and crouched in cloistered anonymity beneath pepper trees is the Lincoln Park Card Club, where people from all parts of the world meet to while away the time in pleasant but competitive companionship — a crossroads of the pasteboards. On a staggered basis of first come, first served, three hours' playing time is alloted to each individual.

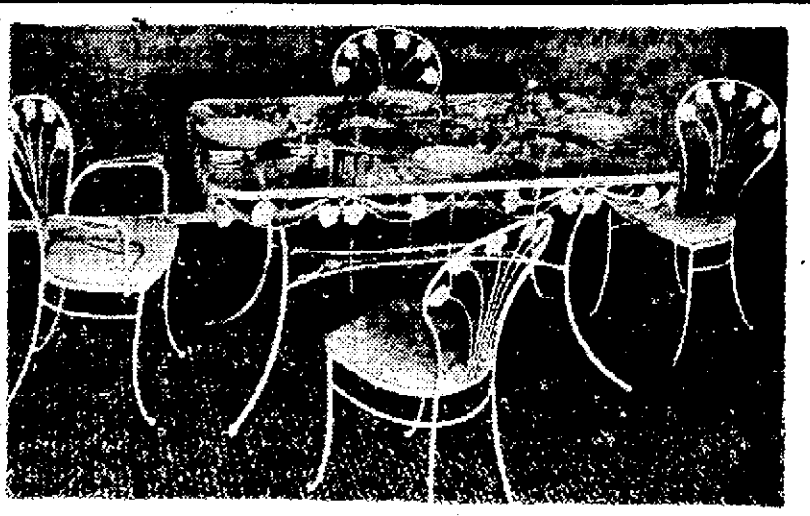

The club is strategically situated in the midst of the urban hotel district and draws much of its patronage from this source. Erected in 1948 at the insistence of 300 local eager beavers who had been courting pneumonia in a crude shed with a canvas roof, it now boasts a cosmopolitan membership of more than 1,500 men and women.

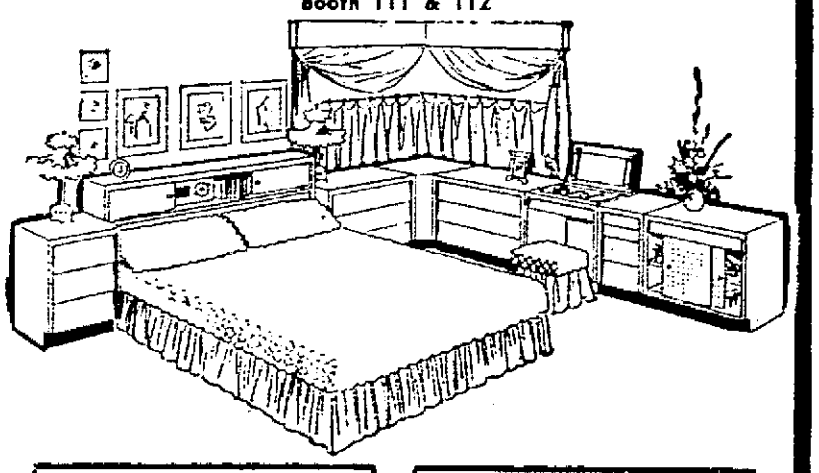

Planned, and originally built under the auspices of the Recreation Commission, the club is now self-supporting and even has a little surplus capital which is pooled and diverted into an entertainment fund. The dues are nominal, 50 cents per month, $2 semiannually, and $2 if paid on a yearly basis.

YEARLY PATRONS only are allowed a voice in the selection of officers, who are responsible for the maintenance of the club and the conduct of its members. The affable and urbane president, Ed Millett, waives a salary and donates his time and energy to the cause, and the competent and agreeable secretary, Mrs. Barbara McFiggen, welcomes newcomers, keeps the accounts straight, and collects ruthlessly from the veterans, many of whom regard the club as a home away from home.

The chairs were formerly designed for utility, not comfort, and perhaps with the thought in mind that an aching back will make a player less reluctant to leave an interesting game when

Pointing out qualities of a Long Beach city seal fashioned in seashells is Anita Canas, 12, president of Huntington Beachcombers. Dr. Strang to 'Explore' Great Future of Music in World of Electronics

Care to listen to a concerto for audio oscillators, or maybe a fugue for tone synthesizers and tape recorders?

Such weird and wonderful musical productions may not be too far off, Dr. Gerald Strang, chairman of the Long Beach City College music department, believes.

Dr. Strang, who is also a noted composer, will explore these and other musical possibilities next Friday when he delivers the second annual Faculty Honors lecture before members of the Faculty Club on the Lakewood campus.

His topic will be "Music in America — the Next 50 Years," and Strang cheerfully admits that his opinions may raise a lot of musical hackles.

* * * *

AMONG OTHER THINGS, he believes that the composer of tomorrow may have to have a degree in electrical engineering.

"They have electronic gadgets now which can duplicate the tone of any known instrument, and carry that tone higher and lower than the instrument ever could.

"For instance, the entire score of the movie 'Forbidden Planet' was produced without a single musical instrument. Sounded good, too.

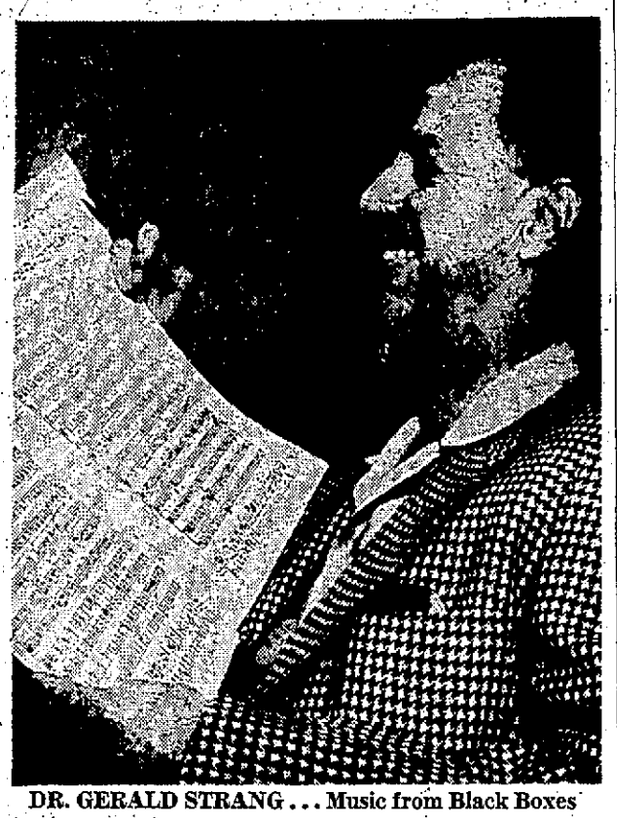

"At Columbia University they're experimenting with music which cannot be played by conventional means. Tape-recording passages played on ordinary instruments, they speed them up or slow them down to produce sounds unobtainable by the instruments themselves," Strang said.

"Developments like these may alter our whole concept of music, and introduce an infinite range of tones and pitches."

However, music from little black boxes is only one facet of music's future development, Strang says.

"Much of the modern music produced in recent years has not been intelligible to the audience," he declares. "In the next 50 years I think that composers will attempt to consolidate past experiments into a new musical form with all the emotional and technical significance of the old.

"Who knows—we may be on the verge of a new age of musical giants," he says. "And we could use a few. A lot of the so-called modern music has just been like looking for new ways to make old beer."

DR. GERALD STRANG . . . Music from Black Boxes

* * * *

STRANG, WHO HAS BEEN a composer for more than 25 years, doesn't intend to go overboard himself on modern trends.

"I like to experiment a little, but my main purpose is to write music which is pleasant to play and pleasing to hear."

Strang believes that new musical developments will come from the Americas — European composers are stifling in their own traditions.

"American composers have always had the big problem of getting their music heard. The lucky ones have the even bigger problem of getting it heard twice," he says.

Strang's own music has reached a wide audience. He was one of seven composers represented last fall in the First Annual Chamber Music Concert of the American Composers' Alliance, and a number of his works have been performed at the Evenings on the Roof concert series in Los Angeles.

* * * *

POSSIBLY HIS MOST ardent admirer is a man in Buenos Aires named Juan Carlos Paz, who directs a contemporary music group there.

"I've never met him, but he's asked for everything I've ever published, and has written for my unpublished manuscripts as well," he says.

Strang doesn't think that there is any future in combining jazz and classical forms.

"Such music is neither flesh nor fowl. Contemporary composers should draw on it, certainly, but not try to mix the two."

As for rock and roll, Strang eyes it with a mild but philosophical astonishment.

"I don't think it has any real significance," he says.

"It's just a fad, and musical fads—classical or popular—never last long."

Playwright M'Arthur Dies at 60

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles MacArthur, 60, playwright, movie writer and husband of Helen Hayes, the actress, died Saturday in New York Hospital of a kidney ailment and severe anemia.

The co-author of the famous newspaper play "The Front Page" entered the hospital Wednesday suffering from nephritis. His illness became known when it was announced that Miss Hayes had cancelled a May 6 television appearance in the play, "The Cradle Song."

* * * *

MISS HAYES was with her husband when he died. He had lapsed into unconsciousness shortly before death.

Besides Miss Hayes, he leaves an adopted son, James. Their daughter, Mary, a fledgling actress, died at the age of 19 of polio on Sept. 19, 1949.

While MacArthur wrote plays and movie scripts on his own, he teamed numerous times with Ben Hecht. They collaborated on "The Front Page," a play about newspaper work in Chicago where both had been newspaper reporters.

* * * *

THEIR MOVIE, "The Scoundrel," won them Hollywood Oscars.

MacArthur was born in Scranton, Pa., Nov. 5, 1895, the son of the Rev. William T. and Georgiana Welstead MacArthur. He was educated at Wilson Memorial Academy in Nyack, N. Y.

Theater Club Honors Muni and Robinson

NEW YORK (UP)—Actors Paul Muni and Edward G. Robinson, who are as famous for their movie making as for their Broadway stage appearances, Friday night were honored by the Lambs Club for their contributions to the theater.

Muni, Robinson and nine others all were awarded silver mugs in the famed 82-year-old theatrical organization's first ceremony honoring theatrical figures. The awards will be made every year.

Big Tropical Fish Exhibit Set Saturday

One of the most dazzling collections of tropical fish to be seen anywhere in the state will be on display at Municipal Auditorium during the 23rd annual Long Beach Hobby Show. The exhibit will open a four-day run Saturday.

Admission to the show will be free, according to officials of the sponsoring Recreation Department and Long Beach Hobby Clubs Council. Show hours daily will be noon-10 p. m.

The main floor of the big auditorium will be packed with the displays of 48 hobby clubs and 82 individual lobbyists.

* * * *

THE HOBBY SHOW is strictly non-commercial and is rated as the greatest exhibit of its kind in the western part of the nation, according to Mrs. Lois DeLano, show manager.

"It will be a working show," Mrs. DeLano explained, "with spectators invited to discuss hobbies with the many exhibitors, who will be seen actually performing the skills necessary to their avocations."

CARD CLUB

his alloted time has expired. In November, 1954, however, the powers that be seem to have had a change of heart (or personal experience playing cards the hard way) for comfortable chairs with seats padded with two inches of foam rubber in an eye-arresting and durable green plastic, and sturdy tables with shining masonite tops were installed at a cost of $2.483. Of this, $1,700 was contributed by the city, the remainder paid from the club fund.

THE DOORS are opened at 8 a. m. by Millett and are closed at 10 p. m. Canasta, hearts, pinochle and the old standby, bridge, are the popular games. Gambling, of course, is taboo, but most of the players are expert at any game they espouse.

Membership in the club is an excellent investment and gives the purchaser the privilege of sauntering in when the spirit moves him and displaying a technique acquired, for example, in Dubuque to three diehards from Alaska, Canada and Muskogee, Okla.

Players occasionally find that a stubborn foursome has taken up squatters' rights at a table which they have been watching with a covetous eye, but a stern word from Mrs. McFiggen will dislodge the offenders pronto and the table is theirs. They look at their watches. Three hours, they remember, and no favorites are played.

Bachelors, Note

Eligible bachelors in the United States, fearing the Leap Year's tender trap, would be wise to go to Japan, suggests Pan American World Airways. It seems that 1956 is the Year of the Saru, or Monkey, and Japanese girls are putting off marriage thoughts until 1957. Why? "Saru" also means "going away" and feminine logic reasons that any mates acquired this year might take the double meaning seriously and take off for parts unknown.

PET PARADE

Pets Are Good Medicine

By Eleanor Avery Price

FAITH IN GOD is the best known support for those who suffer pain or who undergo tragic experiences. But "Faith without Works is dead," and service to all harmless living creatures, human or dumb, is work of the highest order.

The list is endless of those who have found relief from sorrow and trouble by loving and caring for pets—animal, fish, or fowl. The stories of two are told in this article.

MRS. PEARL DREWRY of Lakewood has been an unfortunate victim of that dread disease, muscular dystrophy, since she was three years old. A fine husband, a lovely daughter named Diane and talents for painting and sewing have been precious gifts from faith to her, but Mrs. Drewry also has found that the pleasures of having small pets who need her loving care give her immeasurable comfort.

Mrs. Drewry has George a parakeet, a tiny squirrel monkey called Lucy, and a kitten, Queenie. Although she enjoys the antics of all her animal friends, Mrs. Drewry feels there is no pet better for one in her condition than an affectionate, soft, purring kitten.

In many instances, especially for afflicted boys and men, a dog of the right breed brings great pleasure and solace. and to this John G. (Johnny) Hunt, now official photographer at the Wilton Hotel, happily attests.

TWO YEARS AGO, following extreme illness, discouragement hung like a heavy, black mantle over Johnny's head until his cousin, Terry Hines, director of public relations at the same hotel, brought him a Japanese spaniel puppy so small she could be held in the cup of one hand.

Terry deliberately left Johnny alone with the puppy so that the young man, a bed invalid, would have to manage alone. And he did. Whereas he was refusing to help even himself, he could not let a tiny puppy shift for itself. Johnny got up out of bed and tended to his pet, and in return the puppy gave him affection and understanding beyond measure.

Before long Johnny had a "new lease on life.

Named Princess Ya Keena of Nik-Cin, but more endearingly called "Doggy," this little spaniel is the sweetheart of the Wilton Hotel and is right on hand to meet all guests, including celebrities who come there.

SPONSORED BY the Leland Schencks of Long Beach, Japanese spaniels will be featured just inside the entrance to the Hobby Show at the Municipal Auditorium, starting April 28 and continuing through May 1. The Schencks will be pleased to tell about their work with the Japanese spaniel and their efforts to place the right one in the right home.

Thousands of people "discovered" this breed of dog at the Hobby Show last year, and many ill or discouraged persons came especially to see this small dog with the big dog's personality, a dog who knows when to be quiet and when to romp.

According to Lois De Lano, show manager, the entire Hobby Show is non-commercial and admission is free. Hours are from noon to 10 p.m. daily during the show period.

LAKEWOOD DOG Obedience Club Drill Team practice and obedience refresher course are both being held Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. in the southwest corner of Veterans Memorial Stadium grounds. Spectators are invited. The Club has accepted the invitation of the Harbor Cities Kennel Club to take charge of the obedience trials at the kennel club's show June 23 and 24 at the Veterans Memorial Stadium.

A FREE BASIC training class for dogs owned by kids ages 8 to 14 inclusive will start on Saturday, May 12, from 11 to noon at 5400 Cherry Ave. At least one parent must attend his child when the dog is entered. The class will be conducted by Joe DeBeck. For other information, phone GA 23564.

HOLLYWOOD DOG Obedience Club will hold its trials in North Hollywood Park May 6. On the same date, there will be a boxer puppy match in the Glendale Auditorium.

George, a parakeet; Lucy, squirrel monkey, and Queen, black kitten, are special pals of Mrs. Pearl Drewry.

Affectionate natures are Japanese spaniel feature.

Community History —Esprit de Corps

Carillo knew that his hundred men, woefully lacking in military equipment and ammunition, were no match for Stockton's force. . . . (He) gathered a vast cavalcade of wild horses from the ranchos and assembled them behind a gap in the hills . . . dispersing among them as many mounted troops as he could muster. He kept the whole body in constant motion passing and repassing the gap, the horses raising such clouds of dust that it was impossible to see that most of the horses were riderless. This was kept up long enough to give Stockton the impression of a vast army of cavalry, and so effective was the trick that Stockton withdrew immediately. . . ."

Ranchos of the Sunset. Published by Security Trust and Savings Bank, May 1925.

THIS MEXICAN WAR episode is one of countless fascinating stories in the history of the community of Long Beach. In a flower-filled garden of a Los Cerritos hacienda, headquarters for the California Army, the unusual strategy described above was invented by Gen. Carillo.

Few of our citizens know this story or the others which add immeasurably to the charm of living in the land where the "ranchos of the sunset" once flourished.

Historically speaking, any town is a flat, blank, colorless face to the new arrivals from other states.

But beneath the surface, in terms of time, is the depth, the shape, the color — the story of how the town began, the adventures it has seen, the people who made it what it became.

A town is like a person. More interesting, more instructive, warmer, easier to like if you know the story of its past, its troubles, failures, and its triumphs.

THAT PEOPLE thirst for this understanding is demonstrated by the encouraging attendance at the current series of lectures on local and regional history, presented at La Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos, now a city museum—and the site of the hacienda where the wild horse strategy of 110 years ago was plotted.

Life in the populous centers of Southern California tends to lose the flavor of community esprit de corps. The same forces that push people close together spatially, work to hold them apart otherwise — apart and lost from one another, apart and uninterested in community identity.

This need not be the case if the residents have an opportunity to absorb the local color. The lecture series at La Casa Rancho Los Cerritos, today and on subsequent Sundays, offers such an opportunity, which we earnestly recommend to those who live here.

'Plowed Through a Bumble Bee's Nest'

(One in a series of Sunday reproductions of cartoons by the famous "Ding" Darling.)

HERE WE GO AGAIN! President Eisenhower's veto of the farm bill isn't the first time a Republican president has aroused strenuous political discussion by disapproving agricultural legislation. In May of 1928 Congress passed the McNary-Haugen bill, and President Coolidge vetoed it. At that time, Jay N. Darling ("Ding") drew this cartoon. The McNary-Haugen bill was the first big measure for relief, but never became law. It would have had the federal government manage the marketing of farm products, selling enough abroad at a low price so there would be no surplus at home and price at home would be higher, the costs of it all being "equalized" to all farmers participating. The year 1928, like this one 28 years later, was a presidential campaign year. (Hoover defeated Al Smith.) So . . .

California Demo Sentiment on Adlai and Estes in Fluid State

NOW COMES the season when politicos, newspapers and other observers get those questionnaires asking how things look for the coming election.

One has arrived at this desk from an agency that wants to know about the outlook in the California Democratic primary.

EPLEY

Answering that one is about like forecasting the sex of an expected baby. One can make a guess with a 50-50 chance of being right — or wrong.

The fluidity of California's Democratic sentiment on the presidential preference issue makes pure guesswork out of a forecast at this stage. The indication that victory is yet to be forged is a challenge to the two candidates and their workers.

SENTIMENT HAS BEEN running back and forth, apparently in accordance with the showings of the candidates in other states' primaries. When Sen. Kefauver knocked over Adlai Stevenson in Minnesota, there was a great Kefauver surge in California. When Stevenson made a fair showing in Illinois, his California stock jumped, and he probably gained further when Kefauver flunked the popularity test with President Eisenhower in New Jersey.

This seems to indicate that neither candidate has a large band of followers who will stick through thick and thin. California Democrats want to be on the bandwagon of the man with the best support nationally. The candidate's chance of victory is more important than his position on issues.

ATTY. GEN. EDMUND G. BROWN, bellwether of the Stevenson forces in the state, apparently doesn't agree with the growing opinion that Stevenson and Kefauver are going to kill each other off and that a dark horse with some such name as Symington or Harriman is going to the wire at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Brown says that the Democratic winner at the June 5 primary in this state will be the party's standard bearer in the general election. Stevenson and Kefauver are the only California candidates, so Brown is ruling out all other possibilities.

Probably what the Attorney General is thinking is that Stevenson will win in California and that Stevenson will win at Chicago. Stevenson's top man in the state could hardly be looking at it any other way.

BUT THE KEFAUVERITES aren't going for any talk like that. L. A. Pipkin of Long Beach, for instance, is certain Kefauver will repeat his 1952 victory in California.

Brown and Pipkin are dedicated to their respective candidates. But objective observers may see it otherwise. From here, it appears that the crystallization of sentiment is yet to come, and that it could go either way. A few more weeks, and the prospects should begin to clear.

DAVID LAWRENCE

Tax Cut Proposals Will Again Pose 'Sign-or-Veto' Dilemma for President

WASHINGTON. President Eisenhower soon will find himself up against another sign-or-veto dilemma, and this time it will affect everybody and not just farmers. The politicians will be offering bills to reduce taxes, and Mr. Eisenhower probably will veto any that are passed.

LAWRENCE

It's true there's a surplus coming in the federal budget for the fiscal year that ends June 30 next. It will be at least $2,000,000,000, instead of the forecast of about an eighth of that sum made last January in the President's message.

The Treasury has experts who can estimate on the basis of the way installment payments are coming in just what the receipts will be by June 30. Hence it is pretty well assured now that there'll be a surplus of at least two billions on the so-called ordinary budget.

In fact the "cash" budget, which is merely a tally of money received as against money to be paid out during this fiscal year, will show some more than $4,000,000,000 surplus. The official forecast last January on the "cash" budget was about a fourth of that amount. All these estimates may turn out on the low side, as the Treasury hasn't had a chance yet to total up the income-tax payments made on Monday of this week. There are indications that record totals soon will be announced.

With these favorable trends in the flow of money into Uncle Sam's pocketbook, the taxpayers will be asking, "Will there be a tax cut?" The politicians, particularly the Democrats, will be urging the passage of a law granting a tax reduction to persons of low income or even a percentage cut straight across-the-board.

ON THE SURFACE, the figures would justify a tax cut, but to do so might actually be fiscally disadvantageous to the country. The Federal Reserve Board at the present time is trying to head off any more inflation and is restricting credit. Tax reductions are usually voted when business isn't good and when the country needs the stimulus of private spending.

Since it is the administration's program to keep prices stabilized and the purchasing power of the dollar from going downward, the President would most certainly veto any tax-reduction bill passed in such prosperous times as the present.

But what about the politicians? They will press their measures. In the past, when one party has been in control of Congress and the other party has had its man in the White House, the custom has been to pass measures in the Senate and House which the President was expected to veto, and the political hope was that the electorate would become irritated and vote against the party in power. These bills have always been called "pop-gun" measures because their sponsors never expected them to become law but merely wanted to embarrass the administration in power.

The arguments, of course, are powerful against using the surplus for tax reduction. For one thing, the public debt in recent years hasn't been reduced and it would be a healthy thing to apply the surplus against the debt. The dollar would grow stronger all over the world and the dangers of inflation would be considerably reduced.

THE TROUBLE with a tax reduction law is that it would add to the spending power of the present boom, start a new round of wage increases and a corresponding rise in the prices of the articles of necessity which the farmer and the city worker have to buy. It would, indeed, put the brakes on prosperity and could cause a business recession. That's why a presidential veto would seem to be certain, though it may prove embarrassing for the Republican candidates to face the electorate with the responsibility fixed on them for refusing to reduce taxes.

JOHN S. KNIGHT

Now for Important Stuff Like Baseball and Derby

NEW YORK — With Grace Kelly and Margaret Truman both married, happily we hope, perhaps some attention will now be paid to important matters like baseball and the Kentucky Derby.

After reading reams of hysterical reporting from Monaco, whose 20,000 people live on a plot of land twice the size of a good golf layout, nothing much was proved except that Margaret Truman is a nice, sensible American girl.

"Sentimental and sweet and simple" was Margaret's wedding theme. To be sure, Grace Kelly cried at the altar, but were they tears of sentiment?

KNIGHT

Coinciding with Grace's marriage was the New York opening of "The Swan" in color and cinemascope. It is billed as "the love story of a princess," starring, of course, one Grace Kelly.

It was amusing to read in the pre-wedding buildup of Prince Rainier's terrible temper with photographers. Someone like Henry Wallace could tell him the time to worry is when they don't want your picture.

I never met the prince but got acquainted with Margaret's Clifton Daniel Jr. in London during the war. He had quite a way with the ladies and was well liked and highly respected by the newspaper corps.

Cliff and Margaret should make a go of it. We're not so sure of Grace and her prince. Tiny Monaco, like the rest of Europe, is a man's world.

BUT BACK TO BASEBALL and the Derby. Someone has a calculating machine that says Detroit will win the American League pennant but the Yankees and Boston look stronger. The Dodgers should repeat if they get good pitching.

Rival trainers are claiming that Needles, the Florida-foaled Derby favorite, has a "big knee." Hugh Fontaine, Needles' trainer, answers: "So what?"

Of course, the big answer will come on May 5 when Needles will have no weight advantage against such highly regarded colts as Head Man, Career Boy and Calumet's Pintor Lea.

MY FRIEND, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corp., takes exception to a statement in this column that the proposed hike in steel prices may not be justified.

He makes the point that the steel industry had no obligation to see "that there are no steel shortages." But he asks: "Where do we get the money" to build the required additional capacity?

The answer seems simple: You save it from earnings and you borrow the rest.

But Ernie says, "this simply cannot be done on the present earnings basis."

NOTE: Earnings in the steel industry are the highest in history.

WHEN THE Soviet Union offered to support a United Nations settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, it produced the usual skeptical reactions in Washington and from most of the U. S. press.

Mr. Dulles said he would welcome a "genuine" Kremlin effort. The New York World-Telegram said the Russians are waving an olive branch in one hand while brandishing a gun in the other.

Isn't this line wearing a bit thin? Wouldn't our position be stronger if just occasionally we conceded that the Soviet Union might be sincere?

This doesn't mean letting down our guard, or being taken in by Red propaganda.

But we could be a little less shrill, and not always quite so certain that the Russians are leading from weakness.

AFL-CIO Political Chiefs Almost Give Up on Adlai

WASHINGTON — Interesting piece of political intelligence: The AFL-CIO's political chiefs have practically written off Adlai Stevenson's chances to win the Democratic nomination.

PEARSON

James McDevitt and Jack Kroll, who operate the political arm of the big, merged labor organization, took a careful political survey after the New Hampshire and Minnesota primaries and declared in a secret report to the AFL-CIO Executive Committee: "Unless the present trend changes radically, it would appear most unlikely that Stevenson can get the nomination."

Before the primaries, Kroll tried to persuade Sen. Kefauver to settle for the vice presidential nomination on a Stevenson-Kefauver ticket. Kroll talked for an hour with Kefauver, trying to coax him to sit down with Stevenson and make a deal for the vice presidency.

Every time Kroll mentioned a Stevenson-Kefauver ticket, however, the tall Tennessean quietly changed the subject. He still hadn't committed himself as he got up to leave.

"What about it?" Kroll pressed as the senator walked toward the door. "Will you talk to Stevenson about a Stevenson-Kefauver ticket?"

"I would be happy to talk to Stevenson," smiled Kefauver, "about a Kefauver-Stevenson ticket."

A LOT OF PEOPLE will be watching the Florida primary vote for governor for straws in the wind on the segregation issue.

The man who is fairly sure to come out on top is Gov. Le Roy Collins, who is opposed to integration, but who is a moderate.

Collins is opposed by a variegated field of candidates of which the two most important are rootin-tootin' Gen. Sumter Lowry, a retired Army officer who has been pounding the race issue for all it's worth; and ex-Gov. Fuller Warren, an old-line Democrat who got into trouble with Sen. Kefauver during the crime probe and never did accept Kefauver's invitation to testify regarding the dog tracks of Florida and who was behind them.

Warren got some amazing contributions when he ran for governor the first time, including $154,000 from William T. Johnson, head of the old Capone gang and a dog track organizer; also $154,000 from Louis Wolfson, the Florida junk dealer who last year tried to acquire the Montgomery Ward mail order house.

Florida moderates and middle-of-the-roaders have been solid behind Gov. Collins. Such differing newspapers as the conservative Tribune and the liberal St. Petersburg Times are also strong for him. If he wins on the first ballot, as seems likely, it will prove that the South is not going in for rabble-rousing as much as some northerners think it is. dressed a letter to President Eisenhower urging that he call a conference to consider the entire segregation problem.

TOWN MEETING

Labor Politicians Missing the Boat

TO THE EDITOR:

Labor in California, particularly in Long Beach, is in need of some honest self-appraisal before it is too late. And this criticism is from a militant labor supporter.

Upon checking into the endorsements made by labor concerning candidates for Congress, I find that the only candidates who have received labor's endorsement are those who have no real opposition, representing districts that have been so gerrymandered as to elect a Democrat every time. In districts where the Democratic candidate has a fight on his hands, labor sits on the fence. Why does labor make endorsements at all if not to help elect a candidate? Which candidate can best use shoo-in or the one who has a 50-50 chance? Obviously, help is only needed where there is a struggle. A doctor doesn't vaccinate against a disease to which the patient has a natural immunity.

IN LONG BEACH Democrat Simpson, a liberal, is running against Republican Hosmer. Labor has made no endorsement here.

Are there so many liberal Congressmen that labor can afford to pass up one more when invariably a liberal vote is a vote that benefits labor? Once more, labor has missed the boat thanks to poor leadership in the Committee on Political Education.

Ike Faced Farm Issue Squarely

TO THE EDITOR:

An account in your paper April 15 told about James P. Patton, president of the Farmers' Union, making a disrespectful attack on President Eisenhower.

The union official would for political expediency rather run away from the farmer's problem than to face it.

Sure, it would be easier to keep paying more subsidies to create more surpluses, and let "George" worry about unfair taxation, and $1,000,000 daily storage costs just to keep in good standing with the farmers to garner some votes.

NEEDLING the taxpayers for continued and higher subsidy payments to be the farmers customers for more than they can consume will not solve the farmers' problem any more than to throw more cereal in a pan of rice would keep it from boiling over. The farmers' problem is their problem and needs to be solved where it originates. It can never be entirely remedied in Washington.

President Eisenhower had the courage to veto a farm bill he believed would do more harm than good for America without fear of losing popularity. And for the benefit of Mr. Patton, he did not rush home from the ninth hole to fire Secretary Benson. He and Mr. Benson see eye to eye. They believe the sinews in men's souls should be strengthened, not softened. Contrary to Patton's idea they are not running away from the problem, but facing up to it.

Lakewood Citizens Should Vote Again

TO THE EDITOR:

I note a recent announcement that Congressman Hosmer has notified the good citizens of Lakewood that a post office building will be built in their city. Also some time ago the announcement of the Lakewood City Council to the effect that a civic center will eventually be established.

Before these projects are undertaken, the citizens of Lakewood should have a final chance to vote on annexation to the City of Long Beach. This opportunity has never been given to that area as was the various other districts around Lakewood, which all voted overwhelmingly to annex.

AT THE TIME Lakewood voted to become a city there was great apathy on the part of the voters, far less than 50 per cent of all persons qualified to take part casting their ballots. Since that time it has been revealed that the Southern California Gas Co. provided most of the campaign funds in behalf of the movement to incorporate the City of Lakewood.

Before the above building projects are started, the good citizens of Lakewood should be given a final opportunity to vote on annexation to the City of Long Beach.

Writes Eulogy on Late Dr. Evans

TO THE EDITOR:

We just lost an exceptional young man here in Long Beach. He never won fame nationally or internationally (although he earned it) but he did win great honors. He won the heart, faith and confidence of pet owners from Los Angeles to Laguna Beach for his kindness and gentleness in his treatment and surgery of their pets.

He saved the lives of hundreds of pets. He loved pets and our pets loved him, the late Dr. Milton R. Evans, Veterinarian, who operated the small animal hospital on Redondo Ave.

Dr. Milton R. Evans was struck down by an incurable disease when he was only 41 years old.

His funeral service was attended by hundreds of his grief stricken friends because he was humane, honest and a loyal American with top rating in his profession. May God rest his soul.

FRANK CARR.

Hits Ike, Nixon 'Special Interests'

TO THE EDITOR:

An orchid to E. R. Smith for his excellent appraisal of "Ike the Golfer," and a big bunch of onions for C. W. Campbell who went to great lengths to extoll the virtues of Eisenhower and his two hatchet men, Nixon and Dulles.

Mr. Campbell says "Nixon is deeply informed and deeply dedicated and that his record is great for a man of 42."

I am led to believe by his remarks that he is the one who is not informed.

It is inconceivable that a man with a record such as Nixon's should preside over the Senate of the United States.

And as for Ike he is a tool in the hands of big business.

The next four years could very well prove to be the most critical in the history of our country. If the people fail to elect friendly and sympathetic representatives, the powerful lobbies will recklessly increase the burden on wage earners and further favor special interests.

Adlai E. Stevenson was right when he said, "I'll tell you what this country needs. It needs some drivers more than it needs putters."

HOW TO Build a Handsome Modern Couch; Bookcase With Individual Look

1. HANDSOME MODERN couch has a plywood slab on black-painted dowel legs. Facing of mahogany finishes the base around all sides, and two iron supports hold the slanted back rest. Seat is made of 4-inch foam rubber, encased in unbleached muslin and slipcovered in upholstery material. Snaps are tacked to the plywood slab to secure the seat to the base of the couch.

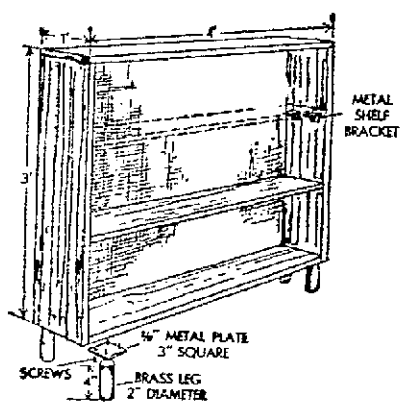

3. LEGS OF 2½-INCH doweling are screwed to corners of the plywood slab. The facing is attached to the slab with corner braces, spaced at regular intervals along the inside, and glued together at the corners. The insets show braces used for back rest and for bracing the corners.

2. FOOT-WIDE BACK rest is screwed to two iron supports, each placed 9 inches from either end of couch. Facing along back of couch is indented to allow space for brackets—see drawing for details.

4. BOOKCASE WITH an individual look is simply a 3x4-foot open-ended mahogany box with ¼-inch brass screening nailed onto the inside of the back. Two shelves are placed a foot apart.

5. DRAWING SHOWS dimensions of bookcase, as well as leg-mounting detail. Legs are 4-inch lengths of 2-inch brass tube, brazed to 3-inch squares of metal, which have screw holes for fastening them to the base.

CAMERA ANGLE

Cameraman on Skis

By the Shutterbug

HOW TO MAKE a business out of a hobby has been demonstrated by John Stephens, 391 Wisconsin Ave., free lance photographer, at Sun Valley.

Stephens came to the famous Idaho resort at Christmas time on a skiing vacation and stayed as a member of the staff of the Sun Valley News Bureau. His specialty is ski-action photography.

In addition, he shot movies for Pictorial Research Inc., when Pictorial made a wide screen production for Todd-AO.

TWO BUG-EYE CAMERAS—one weighing 200 pounds and one 20 pounds—were used to make the picture which will be shown as a short with "Oklahoma."

In the film made at Sun Valley, the 200-pound camera, on a sled, followed skiers downhill so that the audience will have the sensation of skiing down Baldy Mountain. Stephens skied with some of the scenes, and helped choose locations for other scenes. The camera was originally designed to be worn strapped on with a harness. Stephens felt safer carrying it where he could get away from it in case of a spill. However, the spill never came.

A member of the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club and Skrid and Finne Ski Club, the Long Beach photographer is known for his ski action pictures taken at Snow Summit and Big Bear Lake, as well as water skiing pictures.

LONG BEACH Camera Guild will have another travel program Wednesday evening in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Kyle Holmes will show a short movie on the Great White Throne. A. H. Martin will show color slides taken on a recent trip to Europe.

WINNING FILMS will be shown and trophies awarded at the annual banquet of the Southern California Assn. of Amateur Movie Clubs at 6:30 p. m. April 28 at the Petroleum Club, 4365 Atlantic Ave. Films have been judged by the Northern Council. This is the big event of the year, an inter-club contest of the best movies.

President of Baylor Talks to Lions Club

The president of Baylor University, Dr. W. R. White, will be speaker at Friday's luncheon meeting of Downtown Lions Clubs in the Wilton Hotel.

Orphaned as a small child, he grew up working on an East Texas farm to provide a living for his grandmother and himself. He enrolled in Rusk Academy when he was 18 and attended school regularly for the first time in his life. He milked cows, curried horses and carried wood to pay his school expenses.

Subsequently he attended Baylor and Howard-Payne College and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Baylor University, located at Waco, Tex., has more than 6,000 students. Dr. White has been president since 1948.

Chairman of the day will be the Rev. Dr. Charles L. McClain, pastor of Truett Memorial Southern Baptist Church. President Joe Robbins will preside.

Jap Mission to Get Bodies of War Dead

TOKYO (AP) — A government mission will go to the South Pacific this summer to collect bodies of Japanese war dead. About 80,000 Japanese soldiers were killed in western New Guinea, northern Borneo and the Celebes in World War II.

Dentures first, money LATER at Dr. Campbell's for over 20 years

WHY NO MONEY DOWN

"I don't have to worry about paying my expenses as a dentist if I am interested first in giving service," Dr. Campbell said. "I have found through trial and error that every one of my offices must give a lot of credit to be prosperous. In the past, when one of my offices curtailed credit, this office became less prosperous. People gladly pay for good service when you are thinking of them before the money. My records prove that insisting on cash, even in small amounts, hurts my dental practice. No money down helps my dental practice."

SEE YOUR SAVINGS

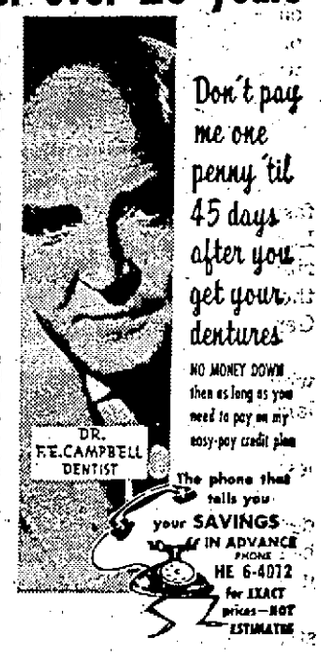

When you go to buy something at a department store you see article tagged with a price. You don't have to be a good bargainer to get a good price. "I am doing this in dentistry," Dr. Campbell said. "Each sample denture, which you choose from has a price permanently molded into the denture. You see the denture, you see the price, you take your choice."

Zinnias thrive throughout entire summer to brighten the outdoor garden and to color indoor arrangements.

GARDENS

These Are Sun Lovers

By Bob Gilmore

WARM WEATHER is on the way, and you can expect the temperature to keep on rising for the next few months. Not all plants are capable of flowering when the mercury moves into the higher brackets. Yet your garden need not be without color just because the sun is at its peak. Proper plant selection will keep your landscape glowing all through the summer season.

The zinnia should be high on your list. These annuals love warm, even hot weather. They are natives of Mexico and are very much at home throughout this area. Some are as small as a button, others are large as a dinner plate. Their color range is quite complete and dozens of distinct types are available. Zinnias are sun lovers and will prove highly colorful both in the outdoor garden and indoors as cut flowers.

Marigold will also perform well during the next few months. Both French and African types are available. This classification is somewhat misleading for both come from Mexico and the region south to the Argentine. Generally speaking, the main distinction is a matter of size of both plant and flower. The African types grow taller and Double hollyhocks are among beautiful perennials to enhance gardens. They reach peak in mid-summer.

Perennials Bloom Early

By Walter Finch

JUNE GARDENS, most beautiful of the year in northern states, almost wholly rely for their delightful displays upon hardy perennial flowers. These same perennials do well in gardens of the Long Beach area where their period of bloom commonly is earlier and longer.

Since early blooming perennials are fully mature when spring arrives, they can develop their flowers much faster than an annual, which must grow to maturity from seed, before it flowers.

A perennial plant lives for years, returning each year to greet you, an old and welcome friend. Yet most can be grown from seed as easily as vegetables, provided they are started in the spring and given the same care as vegetables during their first year.

THE COMPLETE garden should have annual and perennial flowers, for each has its contribution in beauty to make during the garden year.

Not all the perennials flower in June. By choosing early, mid-season and late varieties it is possible to obtain a "succession of bloom" which will insure in your garden a constant display from earliest spring until autumn of these lovely flowers, which are usually the garden headliners during their season.

HERE ARE SUGGESTIONS taken from the long list available of perennials that can be grown from seed:

Blue—Anchusa myosotidmora, 1 ft., April-May; Anchusa Dropmore, 5 ft., June-July; Delphiniums, Pacific Hybrids, 5-6 ft., June; Linum perene, 2 ft., May-August; Platycodon, 2-3 ft., June-September.

Yellow — Anthemis, 2 ft., all summer; Coreopsis, 2 ft., all summer; Gaillardias, 2 ft., June until fall.

White — Arabis, 1 ft., April; Shasta daisies, 2-3 ft., June-August; Boltonia, 4-5 ft., July-October.

Red and Pink—Hibiscus, 3 ft., August-September; Gaillardia Burgundy, 2 ft., June until fall; Pyrethrum, 2 ft., June; Dianthus plumarius (clove pinks), 1½-2 ft., June; Columbines 2 ft., June; Double Hollyhocks, 5-7 ft., July.

SEEDS ARE AVAILABLE of many other perennials, as well as biennials, which live two years, and can be grown from seed by the same simple methods.

Like the hardy vegetables, seeds of hardy perennials can be sown as soon as the ground has been prepared. Sow seeds in rows, as you sow radishes. When they begin to crowd, thin them out, moving excess plants to other rows. Give them the same care in feeding, cultivating, and watering as you give vegetables, and by fall you will have substantial clumps with heavy roots, ready to move to permanent places in your garden.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

TV is becoming more and more "colorful" as equipment is being made available to the studios for colorcasts, and more and more people are finding an extra $800 or $900 lying around so they are buying color receivers.

"Renaissance on TV," featuring Dr. Frank C. Baxter, will be a colorcast on (2) at 4 p.m. Artist Rico LeBrun will visit Baxter and together they'll show and discuss such great works of art as "Creation of Adam" by Michelangelo and "Vulcan's Forge" by Tinoretto.

This is the first time that famed works of art have been shown on TV in full color and should prove a very interesting experiment.

Another colorcast will be "Zoo Parade" on (4) at 3:30 p.m. with Dr. Marlin Perkins of the Chicago Zoo showing more films of the Deeber animal capturing headquarters in Africa. The safari will be followed and we'll see animals captured by use of the lariat and also visit a pair of newly-captured rhinos.

DRAMA — Emmett Kelly, world-renowned tramp clown of Ringling Bros. circus, has never spoken during his acts but he does on TV tonight when he stars in his first dramatic role on "Telephone Time" at 5:30 p.m. on (2). He plays the role of a German tramp who turns the German military system upsidedown by posing as an officer . . . The final "Front Row Center" is on (2) at 12:30 p.m. starring Mercedes McCambridge and Katherine Bard. Tale of a woman who loses her 10-year-old son and then forms an attachment for a neighbor boy that is so great it nearly wrecks several lives . . . A beautiful woman's struggles against alcohol, her unreasonable jealousy and an unjustified feeling of insecurity end in tragedy when "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" on (2) at 9:30 p.m. Phyllis Thaxter and Warren Stevens are featured . . . Betsy Palmer, Jessie Royce Landis and Gene Lyons head the cast of "Goodyear Playhouse" on (4) at 9 p.m. in a study of women in big business. Sort of a femme version of "Patterns," the play deals with a woman whose desire for success leads her into a web of company politics and personal enmities until she comes to a major crossroads of life . . . Host Ronald Reagan stars on "G.E." Theatre" at 9 p.m. on (2) as a gambler who returns to his home town to settle down to respectability. Only the minister accepts him and on Sunday the minister distributes one dollar bills and asks the congregation to use them to make money for the church. The gambler uses "The Lord's Dollar" to gamble with three of the town's big shots, cleans them good and finds his life taking a new course.

GUESTING — Hostess and special guest of the "Comedy Hour" on (4) at 8 p.m. will be Gloria DeHaven and the most outstanding act will be Baron and Candy, a couple of jazz-playing chimps with a new sound in music. William Bendix, Shecky Greene and Jonathan Winters will be featured . . . "The Ed Sullivan Show" on (2) at 8 p.m. offers Tony Martin, Alfred Hitchcock, Marion Marlowe, Sam Levenson, The Ames Brothers, Senor Wences, Enzo Stuarti, the Alcetty act of balancing-juggling and The Three Goetshis, a unicycle act. Ed and his wife take off for Tokyo after the show and next Sunday Eve Arden takes over as emcee . . . Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will "Face The Nation" on (2) at 2 p.m. discussing the farm bill veto . . . Adlai Stevenson faces the panel on "Meet the Press" at 6 p.m. on (4) . . . Dimitri Tiomkin, Oscar-winning songwriter, plays his new "Prince and Princess Waltz" for the "Mary McAdoo Show" on (4) at 4:30 p.m. . . .

Machine Smarter Than Man Seen

PRINCETON, N. J. (UP) — A British scientist claims science now can produce a machine more intelligent than its maker.

Dr. W. Ross Ashby said in his book "Automata Studies," published by Princeton University Press Saturday, that such machines "are possible in the sense that their building can start today."

"If physical power can be amplified why not intellectual power?" Dr. Ashby asked.

He said that while time to get an answer from a brain machine might be a discouraging factor, "it is not impossible the method may be successful in those problems to which the question is specifically addressed."

What we call "gummosis," a gummy substance oozing out through the bark of trees and shrubs . . . especially peach trees . . . can come from different causes. Frequently, however, it is due to irregularity of watering; to letting your tree become too dry and then, to offset your neglect, giving it too much water. It's the same as though you, yourself, fasted for several weeks and then suddenly ate a big meal. The sap channels in the tree become shriveled from lack of moisture and then, when much water is poured through them suddenly, something has to "give" and that something is the bark, which breaks.

If you use what we call the "basin" method to water your fruit trees, be sure to put plenty of bean straw or other humus into the basin before the hot weather arrives. This will hold the moisture you give to your trees and keep it available to the fiber roots during the hot days.

Garden Tips

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Make certain that your dahlias and mums are well supported with adequate stakes. Often the plants grow taller than originally anticipated. Both dahlias and mums have a tendency towards top-heaviness, especially if disbudding is kept at a minimum.

Annual plants now in flower should be picked frequently. The seeding process utilizes a great deal of the plant's strength that otherwise would be diverted into producing more flowers.

Newly seeded lawns should be kept constantly moist until the young grass plants are well established. Apply frequent light applications, not heavy downpours.

Sun Lovers

produce larger blooms, often measuring five inches across.

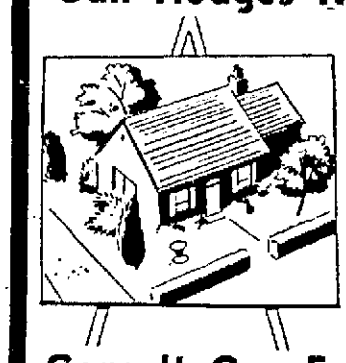

FRENCH MARIGOLDS are more dainty than their so-called African relatives. Many varieties rarely ever grow taller than six or eight inches and as such are well qualified as edging and bedding plants. One of the most interesting members of this group is the Midget Harmony which is ball-shaped and may be raised as a pot plant. Colors run to orange, gold and yellow.

Alyssum is a low-growing annual of fast growth and great ease of culture. The plants tend to re-seed themselves and will prove an almost permanent part of your landscape. Most varieties have a fairly restricted color range, including only shades of white and lavender. One of the most interesting is known as Carpet of Snow. The plants spread across the ground at a height of about two or three inches. The flowers have an intense shade of white, thus providing a beautiful white carpet for an outdoor living room.

FOR A BRILLIANT show of color, try the portulaca, often recognized as the sun plant or Moss Rose. Both single and double-flowered mixtures are available. The plants are low-growing and spreading in habit. The color range is dazzling with tones of white, pink, red, yellow and purple. The stems are often reddish in tone. Within certain limits, the hotter the sun the better your portulaca will grow.

Other varieties that should do well during the balance of the summer season include gaillardias, gazanias, gerberas, statice, salvia, geraniums, linum, nicotiana and mesembryanthemum, also known as iceplant.

County Fair first prize was awarded hooked picture by Darlene Lerwold, whose crafts assist crippled and needy.

One-Woman Welfare Bureau

DARLENE LERWOLD, a nurse who lives at 15724 S. Stevens Ave., Bellflower, comes close to running a one-woman welfare bureau.

In the last eight years in Bellflower, Long Beach, Council Bluffs, and Omaha, she has given 50 braces and nine wheelchairs to patients, largely polio victims, who needed them.

And she has made the money for the braces and wheelchairs by making and selling hooked pictures and rugs, nylon and fiber flowers, and the like. Now she is making Easter rabbits and chickens from styrofoam balls and chenille.

Her "Mr. and Mrs. Currier Go to Church," a snug couple in a sleigh, won first place for hooked pictures at the last Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona. A pansy rug took first place for hooked rugs, and a floral picture took fourth in its field.

"I contribute all the materials and my time," she says. "I dye the wool. I can get 26 tones of one color."

IN ADDITION to wheelchairs and braces, Darlene Lerwold regularly remembers persons in the Iowa School for the Deaf at Council Bluffs, the Christian Home in Council Bluffs, Hattie B. Monroe home for crippled children in Omaha and the Masonic Boys Home in Omaha.

"I also make layettes for unwed mothers and occasionally hospitals call on me for layettes for patients who do not have them," she says.

She has a daughter, Mrs. Don Meredith of Lakewood, and two grandchildren, Myke, 4, and Kathye Jean, 3.

Philatelic Find

A PHILATELIC find, hidden in an old desk since 1903, will mean at least $1,000 to its owner, Mrs. Cameron Craig of New York.

The stamps, an unused block of 25 of the 1848 one-cent Broadway post office locals, were given to Mrs. Craig by an uncle who had discovered them in his grandfather's desk.

Mrs. Craig had no idea the stamps were worth that much when she sent them for appraisal and verification to the Philatelic Foundation in New York.

After the uncle died, Mrs. Craig went through his papers and found a 1912 edition of Scott's Catalogue. This reminded her that she had the block of old stamps and that's when she sent them to Miss Ethel Harper at the Philatelic Foundation.

The Broadway locals have a bright history in themselves. Started by James C. Harriott in 1848, the service carried letters throughout the city and to the post office at one cent for each letter or parcel carried.

JUNIOR LEAGUE PROJECT

Dental Clinic Aids 40,000 Youngsters

It was a momentous occasion Friday when the 40,000th child was treated at the Children's Dental Health Center, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

His parents, like the parents of all children treated at the clinic in its 24-year history, paid only a nominal sum.

Children of low-income families receive dental care at the price they can afford to pay at the center, a project of the Junior League, aided by other organizations.

The clinic, staffed by two full-time dentists, two dental assistants and an office force, is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Children of pre-school age through junior high school are treated.

* * * *

CLINIC FIGURES show that from September 1955 through April 15, a total of 1,423 children were treated. The clinic figures: total operations (an operation is anything done to a tooth), 8,123; total chair appointments, 3,791; completed cases, 811; number of X-rays, 1,471.

The youngest child who has received care at the clinic is 3 years old. One 5-year-old "dental cripple" coming to the clinic requires 35 fillings and one extraction.

There is a 14-year-old child who needs the following work done: Three crowns, 24 deep cavities filled, one extraction. Also the child has lost five permanent teeth which must be replaced. The cost of this work to the patient will be $112.40. The family is able to pay 70 per cent of the clinic's low dental fees. The dental work will cost the clinic $160.55.

* * * *

TRAINED CLINIC VOLUNTEERS instruct patients in the correct way to care for teeth and gums. Any child unable to afford a toothbrush is given one. Parents and children are instructed in proper diet. Dental education is considered one of the most important phases of the clinic work.

The center, a non-profit community service, was created in February 1932, fulfilling the dream of Dr. Robert E. Anderson, a children's dentist, to provide care for children financially unable to receive dental attention.

The Junior League of Long Beach adopted the clinic as the league's project in 1936.

The clinic also has the support of other organizations, including Children's Dental Foundation, PTA Council, Board of Education, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Harbor District Dental Wives Auxiliary, Harbor District Dental Assistants Society, Belmont Shore Lady Lions, California Community Foundation, Catholic Parochial Mothers Clubs, Children's Benefit League, Hollywood Turf Club, Elks, Bachelorettes and Los Angeles County.

* * * *

THE CHILDREN'S Dental Foundation was organized in 1952 to administer and promote an endowment fund. Members of this administrative board include members of the Third District Dental Society, Junior League and interested individuals. By expanding the endowment fund, effectiveness of the clinic services can be multiplied.

Mrs. Robert Sully recently succeeded Mrs. Franklin Waters as president of the Junior League. Mrs. Robert Godwin is recording secretary of the League.

Mrs. John B. Fowler is president of the foundation, with Mrs. John Christopher, clinic chairman. Mrs. Edwin J. Squire is education chairman for the clinic. Mrs. William Cheney is treasurer of the foundation.

Funds raised at the Yale Glee Club concert June 19 in Poly High School auditorium, sponsored by the Junior League and the foundation, will go toward financing the work of the clinic. Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby Jr. is chairman of the committee sponsoring the concert.

Many members of the league and the foundation are active as volunteer workers in the clinic.

PATIENT NO. 40,000

A blond boy becomes the 40,000th patient at Children's Dental Health Center. Dr. George R. Johnson writes the report. The clinic has been sponsored 20 years by Long Beach Junior League.—(Staff photo.)

EINAR PETERSEN
The Wives Love Him

"Wives who cook and do the dishes,
"Should be granted three good wishes,
"A grateful mate, a well-kissed cheek,
"A Talk o' the Town dinner every week."

THAT LITTLE poem is printed on the menu of Einar Petersen's Talk o' the Town restaurant, 3980 E. Ocean Blvd. The words delight all the wives who read them because there's nothing they'd rather do than dine with Einar Petersen EVERY night, if their husbands would permit it.

Petersen, who took over as Talk o' the Town host owner last December, treats his patrons to wonderful food, prepared with painstaking care and served with polished professional techniques. He features mouth-watering charcoal broiled steaks, all sizes and varieties to fit all appetites; sensational prime rib of choice Eastern beef, au jus, and splendid sea food and poultry selections.

Those entrees are offered on complete dinners guaranteed to please the most finicky diners. Included are a fresh shrimp appetizer, choice of delicious onion soup or soup du jour, a big salad with croutons and choice of beverage; baked or French fried potatoes, toasted cheese rolls, choice of beverage and choice of dessert, including superb Danish apple cake. Dinner prices start as low as $1.85, complete, and range up to $3.25 for the prime rib and $3.95 for a choice 12-ounce filet mignon. Among the nice extra touches are free cigarettes and after-dinner mints, presented with the check.

PETERSEN has been a familiar figure to Long Beach restaurant-goers for years. A veteran of three wars, he formerly operated the Hotel at the Lafayette Hotel and Einar Petersen's Army & Navy Club.

The Talk o' the Town, recommended by the Hillsway restaurant guide, serves dinner daily from 5 to 11 p.m. and from 3 to 10 p.m. Sundays. Talented Bill Clark plays the piano nightly.

Vannevar Wins Alamitos Derby

By JERRY WYNN

Vannevar, a tall chestnut gelding with a stride that wouldn't quit, won the $20,000 Pacific Coast Quarter Horse Racing Assn. Derby before 12,358 fans at Los Alamitos Race Course Saturday.

While the touted Go Man Go was forced to zig-zag out of contention and Sure Now was never sure, Vannevar charged down the 440-yard straightaway in :22.2, two-tenths of a second off the world record, to beat outsider Dolly's Ace to the wire by a head. Arizonan was third, a neck behind Dolly's Ace.

Vannevar's rich triumph overshadowed a world-record equaling trip by Diamond Mae in the supporting feature, the $3,500 Miss Princess Stakes. The four-year-old mare raced the 350 yards in :17.8.

* * * *

IT WAS an all-around banner day in the young history of the Orange County track. The attendance smashed the previous mark of 10,732 set on Derby Day last year and the total wagering of $695,951 and the single race betting on the Derby, $100,687, were also all-time marks.

Taking nothing away from Vannevar's sterling race, the Derby was more a story of Go Man Go's failure at the post and the questionable strategy of his jockey, Tommy Chavez, to get him untracked.

All eyes were on the sensational roan colt, a 4-5 post-time favorite, as quarter-horse racing's finest field in history came out of this gate. But to the astonishment of all, Go Man Go didn't go.

* * * *

HE SAT BACK as the ground seemed to crumble underneath him, and when he started to run, he found his path completely blocked by his quick-starting neighbors. He moved from his No. 7 lane around No. 8. Still no room. Around No. 9. Still no room. Then to the rail and room.

In a blur, he streaked down the outside to the chants of Go Man Go. But it was all in vain. With far too much ground to make up, his gallant effort was only good for fifth place, a neck and three noses (a quarter of a length) behind the winner.

Chavez had no excuses to offer for the disastrous start or for his maneuver to the outside. Many of the jockeys were of the opinion that he should have kept straight ahead and forced an opening.

* * * *

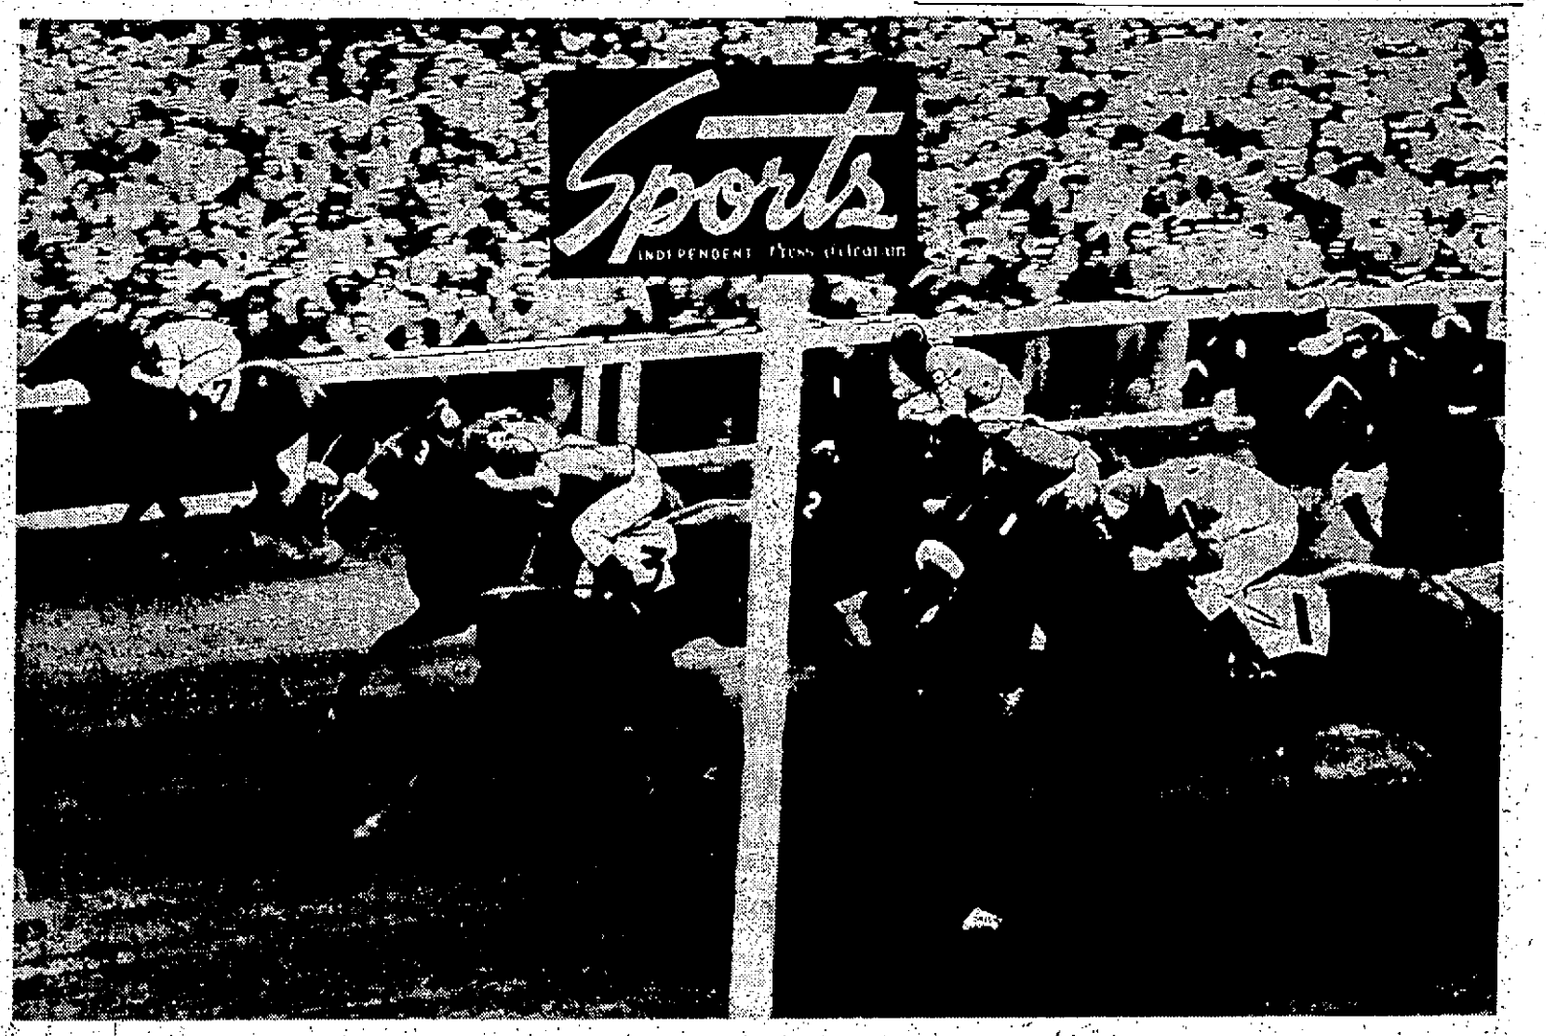

MEANWHILE, Vannevar ran straight and swift as an arrow. Given an expert ride by Lloyd Ballou, the Dee Garrett-owned and Willie Kelley-trained Oklahoma horse, took the lead from Arizonan near the start and never lost it.

"I hit him just once about 35 yards from the wire," said Ballou, "and that was enough. He had a stride that wouldn't quit."

The third choice in the wagering, Vannevar returned $13.20, 6.90 and 4.90; the surprising Dolly's Ace, 31.40 and 11.10; Arizonan, 5.30. Sure Now closed fast for fourth. After Go Man Go came Clab-Win, Do It For Me, Jayhawker Bar, Chief Win and Prosser's Bar.

Diamond Mae, with jockey Henry Page in the irons, was in front wire-to-wire but only finished a nose ahead of Miss Myrna Bar, who was two and one-half lengths ahead of Pokey Vandy. The winner paid $5.70, 4.20, 3.10; Miss Myrna Bar, 9.00 and 5.60; Pokey Vandy, 4.70.

The program was enlivened by a stream of longshots, three inquiries and some extra-curricular fisticuffs described on page A-1. Without question, it was quarter horse racing's most exciting day.

A's Tally 13 in 2nd, Win 15-1

KANSAS CITY (U.P.) — Slim Art Ditmar hurled a one-hitter at the White Sox Saturday and his mates exploded for 14 hits and 13 runs in the second inning for a 15-1 win before 15,688 fans.

The game avenged a 29-6 drubbing Chicago handed the A's a year ago this corresponding Saturday in Municipal Stadium.

Two men were out before the A's could muster their first run in the second inning, but it made little difference as they batted around twice and knocked three Sox pitchers from the mound. That one-half inning took 40 minutes.

* * * *

CHICAGO'S LONE run, uncarned, came in the fourth inning and robbed Ditmar of a shutout. Earl Battey got the lone single and scored the run.

Jim Finigan started the record second for the A's with a single between pitcher Sandy Consuegra's legs. Joe DeMaestri doubled to the leftfield fence. Then Ditmar hit to short and Power to the pitcher for two fast outs and it looked like just another inning.

* * * *

HEC LOPEZ, who went in to run for Finigan when he sprained his ankle at third, came up for the first time and tripled to right center. DeMaestri and Ditmar singled, bringing on Harry Byrd.

Power and Jacobs singled, Slaughter walked, Simpson and Zernial singled, and Morris Martin took the mound. Martin struck out his first batter, Ginsberg, to retire the side.

The inning set a new American League record for runs scored in the second inning and also tied the major league record set in 1890 by the New York Giants. The Red Sox scored 17 in one inning in 1953.

9:03.1 2-Mile by Dellinger

EUGENE, Ore. (U.P.) — Oregon's Bill Dellinger, 1954 NCAA mile champion, ran the third fastest college two-mile in the country this season as Oregon defeated Washington State, 72½-58½, in a Northern Division dual track meet here Saturday.

Dellinger's time was 9:03.1. He was pressed for the first six laps by Washington State's John Mitdbo, a Norwegian exchange student, but Dellinger pulled away in the seventh and eighth laps, running them in 66 and 64.1 seconds.

Max Truex of SC has run 9:01.5 this season and Jim Beatty of North Carolina has been clocked in 9:01.8. Dellinger's effort is among the top 10 two-mile times in college track history.

Jim Bailey, last year's NCAA mile winner and Oregon's other ace distance man, set a meet record of 4:11 in the mile.

Charles Wins TKO in Ninth

WINDSOR, Ont. (U.P.)—Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati Saturday night won by a technical knockout over young Don Jasper of Duluth, Minn., in a battle of heavyweights, at the Windsor Arena. Referee Johnny Weber stopped the bout at 2:46 of the ninth round of the scheduled 10-rounder.

The former heavyweight champion weighed 195. Jasper came in at 191.

Charles slashed open half a dozen cuts about the face of the former railroad worker, who had won 17 of 21 previous professional bouts — 14 of them by knockouts.

Charles, out of action since late December, flashed his style of old only in the late rounds when he stepped back out of the way of Jasper's wild swings and kept his left in the younger man's face.

Charles' last fight was a TKO loss to Young Jack Johnson in Los Angeles.

Baker Runs Wind-Aided 9.3 Century

COLUMBUS, O. (U.P.)—Thane Baker set an American record and tied a world mark Saturday at the Ohio Relays to become a top Olympic sprint hope.

Baker, a first lieutenant at the Lockbourne Air Force Base and previously a Kansas State speedster, spurted to a 9.3 100-yard dash victory and then raced to a record setting 29.4-second 300-yard dash.

The 100-yard time equaled the world mark but the serviceman was aided by a tailwind in excess of eight miles an hour that prevented it being entered in the record book.

Because Baker ran around a curve and was running both into and out of the wind, his 300-yard time which broke the 1946 American record of Herb McKenley of Illinois can be certified as a new mark.

Six Ohio Relay records were set, including one by Harrison Dillard, two-time Olympic champion who was making his first appearance here. Dillard won all three high hurdle heats, stepping the finals in 14.0 seconds.

Glenn Davis of Ohio State won the 400-meter hurdles in 54.4.

O'BRIEN BEATS NIEDER: 60-2

Longhorns Crack 440-Relay Mark

LAWRENCE, Kan. (U.P.)—Four flying Texans Saturday blazed a 40.1-second quarter mile relay, the fastest time in track history.

Officials of the 31st Kansas Relays said they will submit the mark of the University of Texas team for record recognition.

George Schneider, Jerry Prewit, Bobby Whilden and J. Frank Daugherty shaved one-tenth of a second from the best previous speed in a 440-yard relay as 15,000 cheered.

The Texans eclipsed the 40.2 record set last year by another Texas University team at the Modesto, Calif., relays. Prewit and Whilden were part of that effort.

Baylor University, which led until the anchor leg, when Daugherty sprinted ahead by just a foot, was second. Officials felt there was little doubt of acceptance of the new record. A 10-mile-an-hour breeze hindered as much as it helped around the K-U Oval.

* * * *

IT WAS A record-shattering day. Bill Nieder of Kansas put a new shotput mark of 59 feet 7⅞ inches into the books the first time he tossed the 16-pound iron ball.

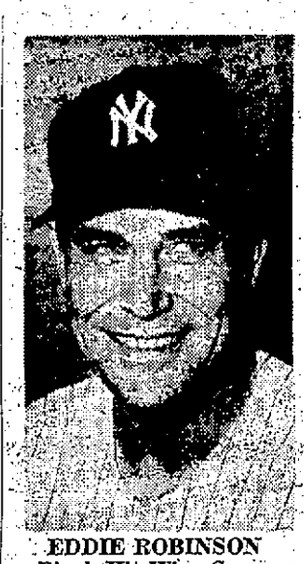

An even longer toss, 60-2⅞, came from world shotput king Parry O'Brien of the Air Force. O'Brien was on exhibition and not a meet competitor.

Phil Mulkey, sophomore at Wyoming, took the 10-event decathlon with a record 6,393 points.

Gene O'Conner, Kansas State, led all the way to take the 400 meter hurdles in record time of 52.2 second, three-tenths under the 1952 mark of Lee Yoder, Arkansas. At that, he barely beat Willie Atterberry of Compton College.

Whilden dashed 100 yards in 9.4 to tie the record time of Cy Leland of TCU in 1930.

Charles Dumas of Compton College won the AAU division high jump at 6-8¾, a new stadium record. Kansas freshman Wilt Chamberlain tied for second at 6-2½.

EDDIE ROBINSON
Pinch Hit Wins Game

Rally After Blowing 8-0 Lead

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Eddie Robinson, a $20,000-a-year benchwarmer, delivered the key single in a five-run eighth-inning rally that enabled the New York Yankees to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 14-10, Saturday after they had blown an eight-run lead.

Seven home runs were hit in the marathon three-hour and 44-minute game, with Mickey Mantle slamming his fourth of the season in the second inning, Hank Bauer connecting in the same frame, and Yogi Berra clouting an eighth-inning homer which tied the score at 10-all.

Faye Thorneberry, Mickey Vernon, Jim Piersall and second-string catcher Pete Daley each homered in Boston's 13-hit attack on five Yankee pitchers.

* * * *

SOUTHPAW Tommy Bryne, called in from the bullpen in the eighth inning after the Red Sox had forged ahead 10-9, stopped Boston on two hits, thereafter to receive credit for the victory, while righthander Tommy Hurd, the fourth of five Red Sox pitchers, was charged with the defeat.

After Berra's homer off Hurd knotted the score in the eighth, Bill Skowron followed with a single and stole second. Rookie Jerry Lumpe walked and Robinson came through with his line single to center that scored Skowron. A single by Bauer and a two-base error by rightfielder Jackie Jensen on Billy Martin's fly helped the Yankees complete their five-run uprising against Leo Kiely.

* * * *

RIGHTHANDER Bob Turley started for New York and was staked to an 8-0 lead after three innings, thanks to homers by Bauer and Mantle. But he was nicked for three runs in the fifth when Throneberry and Vernon homered, and then chased in the seventh when Boston put together three hits and four walks for four runs.

A crowd of 26,644 watched Red Sox Manager Mike Higgins employ 20 players while Yankee Manager Casey Stengel used 17.

Doris Hart Here Today

Doris Hart, longtime amateur tennis star and national champion the past two years, meets Beverly Fleitz of Long Beach today at 9 a.m. to feature a free tennis clinic and exhibition given by Miss Hart on the Recreation Park courts.

The former Wimbledon champion who won 23 different national tourneys, will demonstrate grips, strokes and tactics during the clinic. Commemorating the 75th anniversary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association the event will be open to the public at no charge.

Miss Hart turned professional this year and will not be able to defend her national championship at Forest Hills. Mrs. Fleitz is the third ranked amateur. Her second place at Wimbledon last year boosts her into a challenging berth for Miss Hart's vacated crown.

Their meeting thus could be a match between the retired champion and the up-and-coming.

Stevens Hits Two as Stars Win, 8-6

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.) — R. C. Stevens slammed two homers and drove in four runs Saturday to lead the Hollywood Stars to an 8-6 Pacific Coast League win over Portland before 2,636 fans at Gilmore Field.

Stevens' teammate, Bill Mazeroski, also homered and drove in three runs as the Stars took a 2-0 lead in the series. Roger Sawyer (1-0) emerged the winner, while Bill Werle (1-2) suffered the loss.

The Stars scored their first run in the fourth frame when Roman Mejias tripled and then came across on a relay throw into the stands by second baseman Dick Young.

Stevens blasted his first homer of the game in the fifth with Mazeroski and Mejias aboard.

PORTLAND GOT its first run in the sixth when Jack Littrell singled in Ed Mickelson, but the Stars bounced back for four tallies in the bottom of the same inning when Mazeroski socked his homer, good for three runs, and Stevens connected for his second four-master of the game.

Tom Saffell was forced in with the bases loaded in the seventh to give the Beavers one run. Portland tallied four more in the eighth on a two-run homer by Ron Bottler and a single by Bob Borkowski that drove in two more tallies.

Easy Win for Seixas

HOUSTON, Texas (U.P.) — Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the nation's ranking tennis player, defeated former Wimbledon champ Dick Savitt of Dallas, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4 Saturday to advance to the finals of the River Oaks tennis tournament.

Seixas' opponent in the finals will be either Ham Richardson, the Oxford Rhodes scholar from Baton Rouge, La., or Herb Flam of Los Angeles. Their three-hour, four-set semifinals match was called because of darkness.

Richardson was leading 6-4, 0-6, 8-6, when the fourth set was called in a 7-7 tie. The match will continue this morning with the winner meeting Seixas in the afternoon finals.

Seixas, who lost to Tony Trabert in the River Oaks finals last year, kept Savitt off balance with his tremendous volleys and slices.

In the men's doubles Tom Brown of San Francisco and Savitt, who advanced by default over Flam and Ulf Schmidt of Sweden Saturday, will meet the winner of this morning's Seixas-Richardson and Bernard Bartzen-Grant golden match in the afternoon finals.

Stanley in 1:48.7 880

SAN JOSE (U.P.)—Lang Stanley of San Jose State College ran the 880 in a blistering 1:48.7 Saturday to beat world record holder Lon Spurrier and lead his squad to a 81-48 win over the San Francisco Olympic Club track team.

Stanley's time was the best half-mile of 1956.

Spurrier, who holds the record of 1:47.5, broke first and led to within 180 yards of the finish. Stanley overtook him at that point and pulled steadily away.

Spurrier crossed in 1:49.6.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

For several years now, a group of Chicago fans regularly has filed into Wrigley Field during the baseball season, sat down in a special section behind first base . . . and then ceremoniously unfurled a banner notifying one and all that it is the "Smead Jolley Fan Club."

Nobody quite seems to know why these fans show up at the Cub games . . . since Jolley was never with the club.

It could be that they are still grateful for that fact.

For while Smead was one of the leading hitters of his time . . . he also probably was the worst fielder ever to hit the majors—even worse than old Zeke Bonura.

Jolley, who saw service with both the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox in the late 1930s, is one of my all-time favorite sports characters.

We remember when he started making baseball news with his slugging for the San Francisco Seals. Many is the time we saw him break up a ball game with his mighty bat. In those days he wore a red sweat shirt with long sleeves and you could pick him out the minute he stepped onto the field.

After a fling in the big time he came back to the Pacific Coast League and played for a while with the old Hollywood Stars . . . now the San Diego Padres.

It was only natural that Al Schacht, the "clown prince of baseball," named him to his "all star screwball team."

It has been many years since he played, but his name is still frequently mentioned . . . especially in discussions about whether or not his batting made up for his atrocious fielding.

* * * *

JOLLEY PROBABLY is the only player—at least an outfielder—in modern history who was charged with three errors in one play.

He was playing right field for the Chicago White Sox at the time. The incident happened when the Hose were playing the St. Louis Browns at Sportsman's Park.

He was playing rather deep in right field when a batter lined a single in his direction. Smead dashed in for the ball, but it slipped through his hands and rolled out to the fence for the first error.

Smead went after the ball, picked it up, dropped it, tried again and once more fumbled. The runner, who had gone to second on the first error, went to third on the second misplay.

Really mad by this time, Jolley picked up the ball and heaved it toward third base. He had a strong arm and he made an exceptionally strong throw, so strong that the ball sailed into the stands . . . the runner scoring from third on the error.

By this time the St. Louis players, the fans and even some of the members of the White Sox were roaring with laughter, but Donie Bush, skipper of the Hose at the time, didn't see anything funny about it because the run Jolley kicked around the bases won the game for the Browns.

That evening a scribe remarked to Bush that Jolley was quite a fielder.

"Yes," said Bush, "the greatest stationary outfielder in history."

* * * *

SCHACHT HIMSELF tells of experiences in Boston.

Smead was put in left field when there was a hill in Fenway Park . . . a sort of incline up to the left feld wall. They called it Duffy's Hill in memory of Duffy Lewis.

"Well, every time Jolley started up after a fly he'd trip and fall on his face," Schacht relates. "Finally they got him out mornings and had him practice running up the hill after fungoes.

"Washington was the next club to come to town and just before the first game somebody asked 'Smeadie, how are you going to manage Duffy's Hill today?'

"Smeadie said 'Don't worry about me, guinea—he called everybody guinea—I got it mastered now.' Well, the first ball hit out there looks like it might be caught if Jolley can make the hill.

"Jolley turned and dashed up the hill and wheeled with his back pressed against the fence. Then he saw he had overrun the ball, so he started down. One step and, oops, he went flat on his kisser . . . the ball hit him on the head . . . the batter slid into third base . . . and Smeadie was yanked from the ball game.

"I can still see him sitting there on the bench rubbing the knot on his head and cussing. 'A lot of smart guineas on this nine,' he mumbled. 'Ten days you spend teaching me how to go up the hill and there ain't a guinea in the crowd with the brains to teach me how to come down.'"

* * * *

"The next day they decided to make a catcher out of him. Joe Judge is the first batter and he turned to Jolley and 'said, 'Smeadie, how do you like this catching racket?' Smead had yet to catch his first pitch in a major league game.

"'Well, Joe,' Smeadie said, 'I'll tell you. Out there in the outfield you're all alone by yourself, but here you got conversation.' With that, there's a pitch and Judge hits a high foul straight up in the air.

"Now Smeadie was getting a little bald and his wife was always telling him to wear a tight cap. 'Smeadie,' she would tell him, 'you look like an old man.' Thus, he used to wear a cap so tight he'd have to practically unscrew it off.

"When Judge fouled, Smeadie yanked off his mask, and, of course, the cap came off, too. Smeadie immediately thought of his bald spot. He clamped his mitt over the top of his head, turned to the stands and yelled 'I got it, Mary.'

"Then at the very last minute he turned to the third baseman and hollered, 'Okay, guinea, it's all yours!'

"The next day he was headed back to the Pacific Coast League."

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP)—Olympic decathlon great Bob Mathias, competing unattached, "won" four events as Camp Pendleton lost to the University of Arizona track team, 68½-62½ Saturday.

None of the four Mathias victories counted in the point standings.

Mathias, an assistant coach for the Pendleton Marines, put the shot 51 feet, 6¼ inches; skimmed over the high hurdles in 14.4 seconds; threw the discus 159 feet, 1 inch, and won the low hurdles in 24.2 seconds.

Cardinals Win Homer Battle

ST. LOUIS (UP)—First Baseman Wally Moon's single in the last of the seventh inning Saturday gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-5 victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

The Cardinal victory snapped the Braves' winning streak at three. Five of the 17 hits in the free-swinging game were home runs. The Cardinals got to three Milwaukee pitchers for 10 hits while the Braves got seven off Willard Schmidt and Lindy McDaniel.

The Cardinals went ahead in the seventh when Don Blasingame walked, moved to second on Red Schoendienst's sacrifice and Stan Musial singled, with Blasingame being tagged out at the plate. Musial went to second on the play. Hank Sauer batted for Joe Frazier and walked. Moon singled, scoring Musial, but Sauer, attempting to reach third, was thrown out.

Rivers in 1st Round TKO Win

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Neal Rivers scored a technical knockout over Charlie Sawyer in the first round of their scheduled 12-rounder at Legion Stadium Saturday night to win the California middleweight title.

Rivers, 155¼, Los Angeles, dropped Sawyer, 151, Los Angeles, twice before Referee Charlie Randolph stopped it at 1:53 of the round.

The first knockdown came from a quick right cross to the chin and Sawyer went down again moments later from the same punch followed by a left hook.

Sawyer took one count both times. Randolph said he stopped the fight because "he was unable to defend himself." It was Sawyer's first defeat in nearly two years.

* * * *

THE SCHEDULED four-round exhibition match between former middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson and Sonny Gill was called off at the last minute when the State Athletic Commission ruled there had to be a decision rendered.

Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager, refused to hold the match under those circumstances, saying he feared a butt or other injury to his fighter if they went ahead with what had been planned only as an exhibition match with Olson's sparring partner.

Commission secretary Clayton Frye said it was a law that a decision had to be rendered and the law couldn't be changed.

The stadium announced to about 4,000 fans that they could get their money returned prior to the upcoming main event, but few took up the offer.

Cubs Shade Redlegs in 11th, 3-2

CHICAGO (UP) — Jimmy King singled with the bases loaded in the 11th to give the Chicago Cubs their second successive victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs, 3-2, Saturday.

It looked as if ex-Dodger Russ Meyer would peg his first triumph since returning to the Cubs, but his 2-1 lead vanished in the ninth. With two out, Wally Post slammed Meyer's first pitch for a homer to send the game into extra innings.

Nothing to Bragg Over

NEW YORK (AP) — Villanova, Manhattan and Yale each hauled off two of the big events Saturday in the Queens-Iona Relays, but the big eyebrow-raiser of the meet was the fellow who failed to win.

He was Don Bragg of Villanova, who has been advertised as a surefire bet to win the Olympic pole vault crown for the United States this year. Bragg has topped 15 feet a couple of times and Bob Richards, the last Olympic winner, is on record with the prediction that Bragg will be the first 16-footer in history.

But this wasn't his day, and he was shut out. To add to his embarrassment, the winning vault was only 12 feet, 6 inches. Jim Beckman of Yale and George Paulides of New York University each got up that high.

"That's life," scowled Bragg after the event. He missed three times with the bar at 13 feet. Under the rules, he is permitted to start at any height he desires.

Ron Delany helped Villanova to both its relay victories, the four-mile in 17:32 and the mile in 3:19. The Dublin-born sophomore reeled off a 4:09.5 mile on his anchor leg of the four-mile and was caught in 49.1 for his third quarter of the mile baton event.

WHERE'S THE BALL?

Everyone in this third base action seems to be looking for the ball that got away from Detroit third baseman Ray Boone in fifth inning against Tigers Saturday. Indians' Gene Woodling grounded to pitcher Bob Miller (28), who fumbled it, and tossed to Boone, who dropped it. Hoot Evers was safe at third on the play. Umpire is John Flaherty.—(AP Wirephoto)

Bilko's 5th Homer Leads Angel Win

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Big Steve Bilko hit his fifth homer run of the season Saturday afternoon to pace the Los Angeles Angels to a 7-4 victory over the San Francisco Seals and even their series at a game each.

A crowd of 3,054 saw Bilko, a right-handed batter, bang a 380-foot blast into the rightfield seats, an unusual feat in spacious Seals Stadium. It was the second homer in two days for the big first baseman, who drove in three runs with a single and a double in addition to his homer. A ball had been there only four times in the last 10 years.

Gene Fodge, Angel rookie, went the route for the victory after the Angels built up an early 7-0 lead. Two late Seal rallies fell short.

Los Angeles got runs in the first on a single by Gene Mauch, Bilko's double and Bob Speake's single. In the second they added two more on four walks and an error.

Bilko homered in the fifth and later in the frame Joe Tanner doubled in another run. Bilko closed out the scoring with his RBI single in the sixth.

Friend 3-Hits Brooks; Thomas, Long Homer

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Righthander Bob Friend scattered three hits and Frank Thomas and Dale Long smashed homers Saturday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Friend, who posted the lowest earned run average in the National League last summer, was denied a shutout when rookie second baseman Charlie Neal poled his first major league homer in the third inning.

The Pirates went ahead in their half of the third when Thomas belted his third homer of the year off loser Ken Lehman. Thomas scored behind Dale Long who got on base when his grounder went through Neal's legs.

Long, who had three hits, registered his third homer of the year when he blasted an offering by reliefer Ed Roebuck into the right field stands with two out in the seventh.

Whitfield Takes 1:53.8 880 Race

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mal Whitfield, two-time Olympics middle distance champion, broke one track record and helped lower another Saturday as he paced Los Angeles State to a 74-57 victory over San Diego State in a dual track meet.

Whitfield was clocked in 1:53.8 for the 880, bettering the former Aztec oval mark of 1:54 set by Jerome Walters of Pepperdine in 1954.

The Los Angeles State runner hit the finish 15 yards in front of Aztec freshman Darrell Sanger. Sanger was clocked in 1:56.9, good enough to lower the old meet record of 1:57.9 set last year by Aztec Jim Hunt.

Whitfield ran the anchor lap in the mile relay and brought his team a 15-yard victory in 3:23, one of four new meet records.

Troy Crew Beats Cal for First Time

VENICE, Calif. (AP)—Southern California's crew defeated the University of California by two feet Saturday in the Olympic distance of 2,000 meters at Balona Creek.

It was the Trojans' first triumph in history over their Northern rivals. UCLA was last in the three-way race.

The winning time was 6:16.2. California's time was 6:16.4.

SC Nine Hammers Fresno State, 9-1

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California hammered Fresno State 9-1 Saturday in a baseball game featured by clutch pitching of the Trojan starter, Marty Zuanich, who also drove in two runs.

Fresno State had the bases loaded with none out in both the sixth and seventh innings but managed to get only the lone run.

Sports smorgasbord. . .

HOORAY DEPT. There is hope on this beautiful April Sabbath for the Amateur Athletic Union, the self-appointed and self-perpetuated guardian of our simon-pures.

There should be loud cheers from the peanut section in the balcony, because for quite a spell it has appeared the AAU had doomed itself to a life of confusion intermingled with unpopularity.

Outcries from all walks of life were heard when the AAU highhandedly banned Wes Santee for life. The AAU followed this "rank" by tossing a curve ball at a group of college-AAU basketball players who, in all their blissful ignorance, announced that they had intentions of turning professional.

This stroke almost pulled the AAU under. Men of the nation who were planning to pick up the tab of a donation to the U. S. Olympic Fund suddenly turned against the AAU — withdrew their support. Others felt the AAU had gone far too far this time. In the nation's press, the AAU was chastized from Page 1 all the way back to the want ads, and not without logic, either.

Ah, Eureka! Today there is hope this august body will survive and return to the good graces of the people of our land. Arrogant and haughty though it may be and given to high-handed methods, the AAU has within its ranks one who admits by his actions that perhaps it COULD be wrong.

President Carl Hansen, a San Franciscan, has announced that he will suggest to the Executive Committee at its June meeting in Bakersfield, where the AAU will hold its national track and field championships a week prior to the final Olympic Trials at the Los Angeles Coliseum, that it reconsider its rules on expense money and on "the intentions of amateur athletes to turn professional."

This is epochal. One of its own has indirectly admitted that perhaps something is wrong within the fold. To have an admission from the austere AAU that it is wrong alone indicates there is reason for hope. When this admission comes, indirect as it does, from the president, there is even greater chance that amateur athletics may enjoy common sense in the future in the matters of control.

To demand athletes under its jurisdiction must refrain from all comment on intent to turn pro under threat of disqualification is to take the unrealistic approach. Suppose the high school athletic federation of the land pursued this course of reasoning. Every prep baseball player, footballer, basketeer and tenniseer would be declared ineligible.

Tell me what young athlete doesn't dream of the days when he might convert his athletic talents into coin of the land? Why should he have to remain silent about his ambitions and his intentions?

Maybe you're not as enthused about this as I am. You should be. Your boy may come under the jurisdiction of the AAU some day. If he does, you will want him to abide by all the rules — providing they're sensible ones. So, you see, there is hope. The AAU proxy has suggested another look-see at its own rules. Something COULD be wrong, or out of date!

OPINION DEPT. Emil Zatopek, Czechoslovakia's most famous athlete, expects the record-breaking carnage in track and field to continue uninterrupted within the next few years. At 34, the famous Olympic Games distance champion is preparing for his last Olympic fling in Melbourne late this year.

"Track records will be improved because of the following reasons," he commented recently. "First, there is greater interest in the world in athletics. Second, more national and serious training is being exercised. Third, the athletes themselves are making greater competitive efforts. And fourth, a greater number of youths are participating."

GOOD READIN' DEPT. Two sports stories worth your time: "Deep Wading Pays Off," by Claude M. Kreider, of 2001 Dawson Ave., Long Beach, in the May issue of "The Fisherman," and "Sports Writers Are Always Wrong," by Eliot B. Spalding, in the May issue of American Mercury.

Mercury pulled a neat stunt. It sent out tear sheets of the story to the nation's sports writers, to which were attached an aspirin tablet.

Kreider, one of our town's finest anglers and authors, makes his points, emphatically. This is a must, if you want to improve your angling technique.

RACING ROUNDUP

Head Man Wins on Foul

(Compiled from AP and UP)

C. V. Whitney's Head Man, a leading candidate for the Kentucky Derby, won the $61,000 Wood Memorial on a foul after finishing two and one-half lengths behind Golf Ace before a crowd of 39,673 at Jamaica Saturday. Golf Ace was placed second, and Oh Johnny was third.

With Eddie Arcaro riding, Head man made his bid from third place at the head of the stretch, but Golf Ace continually drifted out and forced Head Man to the inside. Tony Despirito rode Golf Ace.

Winning time for the mile and one-eighth was 1:50 1/5. Head Man paid $3.90, $2.90 and $2.50.

* * * *

A PAIR OF Kentucky Derby nominees, No Regrets and Lucky G.L., ran one-two in a thrilling finish of the $38,950 California Derby at Tanforan—and probably both won a trip to Churchill Downs.

No Regrets, with Johnny Longden up, staged a wild finish to nip Lucky G.L. at the wire. A 70-1 longshot named Cleofosta had led for more than a mile of the mile and one-eighth race and finished third, several lengths back. Favored Social Climber was fourth.

No Regrets was clocked in 1:50.3 and paid $8.40, $5.20 and $4.00.

* * * *

TIMELY TIP, a lightly-held 5-year-old stakes winner, upset favored Sea O Erin by a nose to capture the $10,000-added Ben Ali handicap at Keeneland. Third was Breakers, a neck ahead of Happy Go Lucky.

Timely Tip paid $60, $15.20 and $9.40 and covered the seven furlongs in 1:27 4/5.

* * * *

FROSTY MR., disregarded by the crowd of 20,849 in favor of a couple of Kentucky Derby hopefuls, completely upset the form in the $24,150 Chesapeake Stakes at Laurel by galloping to a $200.80 victory. He paid $58.80 to place and $21.60 to show.

Frosty Mr., ridden by Sidney Small, rallied in the stretch to win by a length and a half over Kingmaker, who like Frosty Mr. is being pointed for the Preakness Stakes. Time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:44 2/5.

Besomer and Born Mighty, the derby candidates, finished fifth and third, respectively, in the field of 10 three-year-olds.

RAY ROBINSON
Sets Up L. A. Camp

Sugar Ray, Party of 17 to Hit L.A.

World middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, the former song and dance man, taps into Los Angeles Tuesday to set up camp for his May 18 title defense against Bobo Olson at Wrigley Field.

A "chorus line" of 17, including five managers, four trainers, two sparring partners and a body guard, will accompany the Sugar Man. Also in the party are his wife, Edna; son, Ray Jr.; Dr. Vincent Nardiello; his aunt and cook, Mrs. Blanche Holly; and publicist Harry Mendel.

Robinson will be quartered for a few days at the Watkins Hotel before moving to San Jacinto, near Palm Springs, for the final phase of his training.

Sugar Ray's five current managers are George Gainford, Harold Johnson, Vic Marsella, Joe Glaser and Ernie Bracca.

Olson has been training in Santa Monica for the last two weeks. He has been sparring daily at the Ocean Park Arena and Saturday night went through a four-round exhibition with a spar mate at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

"I don't intend to lose," Robinson stated as he prepared to break camp in New York. "My legs are 'right' now and that has been my main worry."

The sleek, splendidly-conditioned Robinson retired in December of 1952 and then, after winning five of six comeback tuneup efforts, kayoed Bobo Olson in the second round last December. It was almost three years to the day from his retirement.

EYES SECOND STRAIGHT CROWN

Manager Joe Rodgers of Long Beach Nitehawks, confident that his club will win its second straight national softball crown, directs practice for May 19 opener at Park Ave. Field. Rodgers has nearly recovered from a brush with a 2,400-volt live wire in January, and looks forward to unbeaten season.

Tab Middlecoff in Vegas Golf

Golf's elite field of 22 tournament winners moves onto the outdoor greens of Las Vegas this week for the fourth annual $37,500 Tournament of Champions. Play begins Thursday and continues through Sunday at Wilbur Clark's 7,102-yard Desert Inn course.

The tourney, limited to winners of major PGA events during the past year, had 24 qualifiers, but Masters champion Jackie Burke and Sam Snead withdrew because of previous commitments.

The field will include 10 first-time starters. Newcomers are National Open champion Jack Fleck, Dow Finsterwald, Henry Ransom, Arnold Palmer, Max Evans, Frank Stranahan, Mike Fetchick, Al Balding, Don Fairfield and Gardner Dickinson.

* * * *

FIRST PRIZE money is $10,000, but all qualifiers are guaranteed a minimum payoff of $1,000 plus expenses.

The tournament will be preceded on Wednesday by the annual Calcutta auction. Last year's Calcutta pool topped the $200,000 mark. Another sidelight will be a putting contest featured by Bob Hope and Bing Crosby.

Cary Middlecoff, usually near the top in pre-tourney odds, is the 5-1 favorite on the official Las Vegas line. Defending champion Gene Littler is the 6-1 second choice.

* * * *

ALSO STRONGLY backed are Lloyd Mangrum and Mike Souchak at 8-1, and Tommy Bolt, Ted Kroll, Julius Boros and Doug Ford at 10-1. The rest of the field is made up of Shelley Mayfield, Dick Mayer, Bo Wininger and Chandler Harper.

Experts figure the field will be bunched much tighter than last year when Littler came breezing home a 13-stroke winner. Littler was the only player to match par figures with a 72-hole total of 288. Jerry Barber, Bob Toski and Pete Cooper tied for second. None of the runner-up trio qualified for this year's money.

Middlecoff won four tournaments the past year to lead the field. He and Mangrum are the only eligibles who have competed in all three prior Las Vegas events.

Berg, Hagge Tied at 221

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., and Marlene Bauer Hagge of Asheville, N. C., fought a cold rain to forge into shares of the lead at the 54-hole mark of the $7,500 Dallas Women's Open golf tournament Saturday with eight-over par 221s.

QUEEN OF VEGAS CADDIES

Shapely Marion Caroon has been elected "queen of the caddies" at Desert Inn Country Club where 22 of nation's finest golfers will compete in the fourth annual Tournament of Champions this week.

HARRIMAN SIGNS

New Stadium for Dodgers

BROOKLYN (UP)—Gov. Averell Harriman, in a special ceremony, signed the bill Saturday for the Brooklyn sports and civic center that will include a new stadium for the Dodgers.

Although Harriman's action brought the project one step closer to reality, it was emphasized that it did not guarantee that it would go through. The City of New York now must approve a bond issue through a referendum. The overall cost of the bonds for condemnation of land and rebuilding various structures in the sub-marginal land area designated for the stadium would be $30,000,000.

JUST CALL HIM 'SPARKY'

Rodgers Hopes to Take Full Charge of Nitehawks Soon

By DOUG MILES

When Joe Rodgers, mastermind of the Long Beach Nitehawks, stepped on a 2,400-volt live wire last January it just about grounded — literally grounded — his plans for successfully defending the national softball title this September.

But Rodgers, who pins his survival on clean living, is up and around and has already carded a beefy slate of practice opponents.

Doctors said because he didn't smoke or drink there was enough oxygen in Joe's blood to take the full charge. When they stopped using him as an X-ray machine Joe began lining up opponents for Friday or Saturday night games. Losing only two of 28 contests last season was nice but the "John McGraw of softball" is shooting for a perfect record this year.

* * * *

"WE OPEN against Monterey Park on May 19. Beat them twice last year. Twelve innings both times, 1-0 and 2-1. They're real tough," Joe says.

After the Monterey opener on the Park Ave. diamond the Nitehawks host the Gardena Merchants, Iowa Ghosts and play a pair of home-and-home engagements with Hanford on successive week ends.

Nitehawk practice began last Monday and will be held each Friday night until the season opener. Rodgers has handed the managerial reins to Clint Herron until his legs lose that "feathery feeling."

"We should go all the way," said Rodgers. "We've lost pitcher Ted Carlsgaard for the coming season. Naturally we'll miss him. He's moved to San Bernardino but we still have All-Americans Leroy Zimmerman and Jack Randall so our pitching won't hurt.

* * * *

"OUR INFIELD of All-American Larry Silvas at first, All-American Cleo Goyette at second, All-American Herron at third and scrappy Jimmy Jones at shortstop is back intact. Lou Novikoff, who's been with me for 22 years, home run hitter Bill Hull and sophomore Lucky Hunniston will take the outfield. Red Mcairs is back as an invaluable utility man and coach.

"Stan White, one of our five 1955 All-Americans, is the finest catcher in softball and he's returning. To improve our left-handed hitting we've signed Larry Stevens, 21-year-old outfielder from Whittier who has starred in Long Beach City League play."

That is the lineup that may carry the Nitehawks to their second straight national championship.

* * * *

THE NITEHAWKS hit the national scene in 1951 when they went to the finals in the first annual International Softball League tourney at Greeley, Colo. The same thing happened in 1952, only at Plainview, Tex. The third time was the charm when in 1953 at Selma, Calif., the Nitehawks pitched shutout ball to nab their first title.

In '54 White was injured and the Nitehawks' best was a semi-final berth, again at Selma. But they came back to sweep last year's crown at New Bedford in shutout fashion.

"Those folks in New Bedford are real nice people—all 80 of 'em," quipped Rodgers. "When we first got there I wondered why they were given the tournament. Then when 8,000 persons showed up to watch us play I was given the answer."

* * * *

RODGERS IS A sincere believer that the Long Beach Nitehawks have created both good will and publicity for the city. "When I was bedded down I got letters from all over the country," he revealed.

One letter from New Bedford was signed by 150 names—nearly twice the city's population.

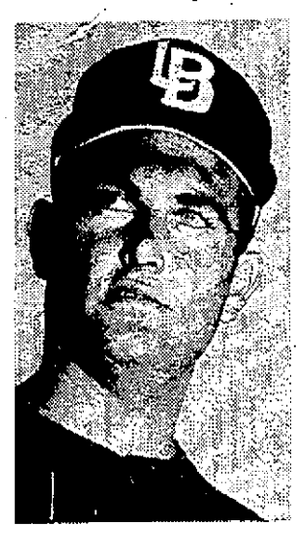

Joe has some 22 years of managing behind him. His record stands at 725-250—a nifty .743 percentage. His family is hoping he gets on his feet real quick to take his old place on the Nitehawks' coaching lines.

Until then Joe will keep handling his supervisory work for an oil company and serving as an official of the Virginia Country Club.

It was near the course that he stepped on that high voltage wire.

When asked about it he simply replies: "Yes, that was quite a shock."

But he's just itching to get back and manage those Nitehawks to the title. They'll probably give him a new nickname—"Sparky."

Bob Kelley Says---

Apparently Ted Williams isn't the only one who has it in for draft boards. Yankee fireball Billy Martin came out this week to scream about his delayed induction:

"I'm sore at the draft board. If they threw me out of the Army the first time for having five dependents, why did they put me back again with the same five — my mother, my father, my sister, my ex-wife and my little girl?"

Billy the Kid answered his own question: "Because I got my name in the paper and they didn't have guts enough to stand having people ask why I wasn't in the service. I'm glad to serve my country—but why didn't they just leave me in the first time?"

Of course, Martin isn't the only one to gripe about Uncle Sam's call. And actually, there seems to be considerable justification behind his beef. Others have had it worse, though. A good friend of mine named Bob Feller spent four years in the Navy at the very peak of his career.

There's no telling what kind of a mark he might have left in baseball had Feller not lost those four peak years of his life.

HAS THE KENTUCKY DERBY a new contender—a horse by the name of Golf Ace? Golf Ace was disqualified and placed second in Saturday's Wood Memorial for interfering with the highly-regarded Head Man. But you can't get around the fact he beat Head Man and Arcaro to the wire.

Over a very dull Jamaica track, the time of 1:50 and ⅕ was excellent.

Incidentally, Saturday's Wood must be a very touchy subject with CBS TV officials. They had the race scheduled for 1:30, but when the Yankee-Red Sox game ran way beyond that time, the horse race never did hit Southern California TV screens.

Despite the fact that the Red Sox were overcoming an 8-0 Yankee lead to go out in front about the time the Wood was due for airing, more than 600 irate Southlanders flooded the CBS switchboard with angry calls.

As an old umpire once said: Whatever you do, you're a bum.

CHECK ME ON THIS: Friday night's fight between Gene Fullmer and Tiger Jones must have been still another example that you can't always judge a bout accurately on TV. Though Fullmer won a unanimous decision, I actually thought Jones' forcing tactics earned him a slight edge.

Anybody agree with me?

EARLIER IN THE WEEK, I USED THIS item in The Independent, so some of you may not have seen it. But it's a fact that Elroy Hirsch offered to tutor the Trojan ends during the current spring practice, and was turned down with a curt: "Sorry, our staff is filled."

I'm told Elroy would have worked for practically no fee. And can you imagine the tricks he could teach those college ends about running pass patterns!

TALKING ABOUT PRO VERSUS COLLEGE, Hamp Pool—who tutors the All-Stars' offense in the Chicago Tribune game, and is recognized as one of the great offensive minds of football history—can't understand why college coaches don't instruct their quarterbacks to pick out one receiver and throw to him:

"Most collegiate coaches," Pool says, "tell their passer to wait till the last minute and throw to whomever is open. That is absolutely impossible. There isn't a thrower in the world who can watch four receivers."

In fact, Pool has tried it: "In practice, we used to put our four pass-catchers in different colored jersies—green, red, yellow and white. At the last second, I'd yell a color to our quarterback—meaning he should throw to that man. He couldn't do it.

"So if fellows like Waterfield and Van Brocklin and Wade can't pass successfully without picking out just one intended receiver, how do college coaches expect their kids to do it?"

SAM JONES' BRILLIANT PITCHING JOB for the Cubs the other day sort of tickled me. For a fellow with great speed and great stuff, Jones has never won as many games as he should. He's always been wild.

"Jones has more stuff than any pitcher in baseball," Angel hurler Dave Hillman tells me. "I think he tries too hard, that's why he'll hit the wild streaks. Jones wants to put all he has on every pitch, and if you've ever watched a fellow like Robin Roberts, you know it just isn't done."

According to Hillman, Jones takes as many as 160 to 165 pitches in a game, whereas the average is about 40 less.

ON OUR DEBUT AS TELECASTER OF THE Hollywood Legion fights (Channel 9) Saturday night, we learned that boxing is run for TV—rather than vice versa. Within my reach is a buzzer that sounds in the dressing room, and calls the fighters into the ring . . . when television is ready for them.

Further, should the cameras be back at the studio for a commercial, there is no chance another bout will start. Because the man at the bell doesn't summon the announcer to the center of the ring for introduction of the fighters till he gets a wave from the telecaster.

Most sports now realize they must play ball with TV.

MEETS PARK IN SALTON SEA SWIM

Former Olympic swimming champion Greta Andersen (above) will make her distance debut next Sunday when she faces Tom Park in a 10-mile race across the Salton Sea. Miss Andersen, formerly of Denmark, has been a Long Beach resident the past two years.

Danish Swim Star in Distance Debut

Greta Andersen, the Danish miss who won the 1948 Olympic 100-meter freestyle swimming championship and who at one time held three world records, will make her debut as a long distance swimmer next Sunday when she meets Tom Park in a 10-mile race across the Salton Sea.

Although Miss Andersen has never swam more than 400 meters in competition, she believes in challenging the best available in her first distance attempt.

Park is one of the great marathon swimmers active today. He resides in Lakewood.

* * * *

MISS ANDERSEN, formerly of Copenhagen, Denmark, has been living in Long Beach for the past two years and working at the YWCA.

The 28-year-old Danish miss didn't learn to swim until she was 17, but three years later was an Olympic champion.

In addition to her Olympic crown, Greta holds eight European championships and 24 Danish titles.

She set world sprint records in the 100-yard freestyle and the 100-meter and 400-meter freestyle events. Her latter three marks, established in 1948 and '49, stood through 1954.

* * * *

MISS ANDERSEN has been working out daily at Alamitos Bay for the past three months in preparation for her first long-distance swim.

After conquering the Salton Sea, Greta hopes to swim the Catalina Channel and then compete in the 26-mile Absecond Island Swim at Atlantic City and the Lake Ontario, Canada, Swim.

Her rival in next Sunday's race, Park, holds the record for crossing the Salton Sea, having negotiated the desert sea in four hours and 32 minutes.

The women's record of 6 hours and 14 minutes was set by Long Beach's Amy Hiland.

Tournament golf returns to Long Beach next Sunday with the 15th renewal of the Recreation Park Pro-Lady-Amateur.

Although not quite up to rivaling its glamorous $37,500 Las Vegas competition, the $2,000 Park event is one of the most popular in Southern California and has drawn its usual outstanding field. There'll be no floor shows, roulette tables or gallery fees—just golf.

Scoring is based on the best ball of the fivesome. The pro, in most cases, brings one amateur and one lady while the Recreation Park Men's Club completes the team with two of its own members.

Last year, four Park golfers—Ruby Perry, Chet Krutsik, Ray Oda and Norm Fuller—combined with pro Don McCracken, the Parker Glove salesman, to win top honors with a phenomenal 54. They had three eagles, 12 birdies and three pars.

Individual pro pace-setters in 1955 were Cecil Harris of Montebello and Paul O'Leary, unattached, with six under par 66s. Long Beach area leader was Recreation's Harry McCarthy who tied for third place with a 69.

Practically all of the Southland's finest will compete this year with only Jerry Barber and Jim Ferrier among the notables still to be heard from. Eric Monti, always a terror at the Park, is a definite starter as are Elly Vines, Paul Runyan, Fay Coleman, Olin Dutra, Zell Eaton and Bob Duden.

Host pro George Lake and Joe Robinson of Virginia will make it a family affair with Brian Lake and Joe Robinson, Jr., as team partners. ZaMona Schoepflin of the Park pro shop will be Lake's female cohort.

Other strong area combinations find Meadowlark's Frank Cormaci teaming up with Dave and Lu Grand; Jimmy Ireland making his Lakewood playing debut with Curt and Betsie Straub; Wayne Otis of Recreation with Connie Freeze and Bill Connor; McCarthy with Jane Lange and Gene Combs (are they tough!); Irv Cooper with Harriet Glanville and Ralph DeChevreaux; Jack Henry of Meadowlark with Boots Cormaci and Rollie Sims; Monty Blodgett of Meadowlark with Norma Deeble and Ray Henderson; Johnny Anselmo of Lakewood with Ruth Miller and Bob Burns, and Joe Calwell with daughter, Connie, and Ronnie Fox.

One team will have two ladies when proette Shirley Spork tees off with Long Beach's Sophie and Red Bernstein.

In all, there'll be at least 64 fivesomes in action which leads one to opine that if there'll be anything lacking in quality, it's sure to be made up in quantity.

TURNING TO the Tournament of Champions in Las Vegas, we wonder if we should shoot for three in a row? In 1954, we picked Porky Oliver to win and he finished last. Last year, we tabbed red-hot Mike Souchak and he finished last. Whom should the kiss of death fall upon this time!

Gene Littler's too nice a guy so we'll pass him up. If we go for Lloyd Mangrum, his hepatitis is sure to cripple him. Tommy Bolt locks out since we'd rather not have clubs broken on our head.

We'll just be plain conservative and choose golf's greatest (when he's right) player today, Dr. Cary Middlecoff who has the big game needed to command the Desert Inn's 7,100 yards.

If he finishes last, he can pull all our teeth out one by one!

THE 36-HOLE Publinx Seniors Championship at Lakewood will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 12 and 13. Dates reported here last week were incorrect... Championship flight entries for the Long Beach City Championship (qualifying May 20) are now being accepted . . . Montebello hosting Publinx championship flight finals today.

HOLE - IN - ONE honors to Mickey Bemis and Ron Brewer.

Bemis of 6551 Rose Ave. hit a two-wood into the 294-yard, par-four first hole at Recreation Park, which was playing from a short tee. It was only the second time the hole had been need and helped Bemis, a Park Men's Club member, to a 70 for the round. He was accompanied by Ray Biggs, Roy Bray and Roy Slone.

Brewer of 3733 Colorado St. hit a 3-iron against the wind which found a home in the 170-yard ninth hole at the South Course. Golfing for only three months, he toured the nine holes in 38 playing with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Buehner and their daughter, Janice.

AL DAVIS, 75-10, and L. V. Cassaday, 74-9, tied for first place in the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes with net 65s.

Sol Deeble's 73-7—66 took second, a stroke ahead of George Johnson, 84-17, and D. S. Perkins, 86-19. At 68 were O. M. Slosson, 80-12; D. S. Bradbury, 81-13; L. H. Conley, 84-16; Glenn Scott, 83-15, and Dr. Cliff Easley, 77-9. At 69 came Bob Sellery, 75-6; Bob Leebrick, 90-21; Bill Harrower, 89-20; Charles Whitchurch, 84-16; Harry Bouchier, 77-8; Dr. Lyle Murphy, 87-18, and Dr. Harry Jacob, 86-17.

Blind bogey (78) victors were Frej Hagelberg, Max Becker, Tim Bonney, Hugh Davies and W. H. Eckert.

GARDNER GOES TO BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md. (U.P.)—The Baltimore Orioles Saturday purchased utility infielder Billy Gardner from the New York Giants, paying well over the $10,000 waiver price for the 28-year-old righthanded batter.

Gardener, who was used in pinch-hitting roles and in fill-in jobs with the Giants at shortstop, second and third base, had seen no action this season and was used only rarely during spring training.

Man Reducing Waist

NEW—not a diet weight-loss system

This is the new, pleasant way to reduce the size of your waist.

This is the famous, tested and proved Relax-A-cizor. You use it while you REST. Use it while you sit watching television or while you read in bed.

You exert no effort. Yet, your abdominal muscles exercise vigorously. This active NO-EFFORT exercise tightens bulging abdominal muscles—fast!

Now, you can get rid of that bulging abdomen—and with no effort and no feeling of fatigue.

This is the normal, healthy way to pull in inches. It is completely safe. No diet is required. This is NOT a vibrator—it is real exercise.

BING CROSBY says: "I found it to be very beneficial, very relaxing."

BARRY SULLIVAN says: "The perfect way to keep or get in shape . . . takes so little time, and absolutely no effort."

EDWARD W. COWDREY, insurance man, says: "I reduced the size of my abdomen 4½ inches."

The Relax-A-cizor is NOT a diet, weight-loss method. It is a pleasant method of NO-EFFORT exercise. If you find dieting difficult, this is the method for you—it will exercise and tighten your abdominal muscles—even if you don't lose a pound of weight!

If you are overweight and prefer to diet, you may. We furnish, at no extra charge, a Caloric Intake Guide to help you lose weight.

Remember this important fact: You will reduce the size of your waist and abdomen MORE when you use Relax-A-cizor with your diet, than when you use diet alone. Diet does not exercise and tighten muscles—Relax-A-cizor does. When you combine Relax-A-cizor with your weight-loss program you enjoy truly dramatic FAST results.

Remember, too, please: Diet is not required. The Relax-A-cizor ALONE (without diet) reduces inches through the exercise and tightening of the muscles that support and "hold in" your abdomen.

Do not confuse Relax-A-cizor (pictured above) with bicycles, vibrating tables, heat or massage. It is completely different. It is the only way we know of to actually EXERCISE the muscles of your abdomen while you REST at home. No effort is required. You use it while you read, rest, watch television . . . even while you sleep! And it reduces inches . . . and does the job in a hurry.

The new Relax-A-cizor is simple to use. You clip the belt (shown above) around your waist in 10 seconds. Turn a dial. Relax for 30 minutes. That's all. Often dramatic results are seen the first week!

As Bing Crosby says, it is a PLEASANT experience; you will enjoy . . . and look forward to . . . this half hour of relaxation . . . 30 minutes of rest that can give you a younger-looking, more efficient appearance.

Appearance is important. You envy and admire the trim, athletic looking man. Socially, too, greater preference is given to the healthier looking man. Now, you can enjoy the financial and social benefits of looking your best . . . of wearing a belt inches smaller.

If you are a busy man, you probably have no time for gym classes after work . . . and, after a hard day, have little desire to take "exercises."

So, instead, do this: TRY Relax-A-cizor AT NO COST. Enjoy a FREE no-effort workout. There is no obligation of any kind. No charge of course. TRY IT. For FULL information and illustrated literature, mail coupon now!

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

REDDING—California is going to see one of the largest armies of bug-eyed fishermen on its streams and lakes next Saturday in all history. It's the date for trout season opening throughout most of the state. In Southern California it marks the beginning of an endless trout season, provided the Fish and Game Commission doesn't change its mind in a couple of years.

Trout season begins in all of California Saturday with these exceptions:

May 19—Counties of Plumas, Sierra, Nevada, Placer, Yuba, El Dorado, Alpine, Amador, Calaveras and part of Butte.

May 30—Counties of Del Norte, Humboldt (except lagoons), Mad River and Eel River below Lake Pillsbury.

Your limit this year is 15 fish, or 10 pounds and one fish, or three fish, irrespective of weight. The season will run through Oct. 31, except in Southern California, where it continues on a year-around basis.

* * * *

WE FIND THAT the fishermen in this area don't worry about the Southland's year-around season. The resort owners don't either because they feel that Southern Californians will have to come this way eventually.

If you remember, back in January and February, there was a hectic fight between north and south over the prospect of cutting the trout limit to 10 fish. The north bitterly opposed the plan and won. The northerners' argument—to themselves, at least—was sound. Sportsmen in this area said that southerners didn't want to travel two days to the Shasta-Cascade country and be limited to 10 fish. Besides that, they pointed out that the north doesn't have to rely on planted 7½-inch trout for its sport.

In fact, up here they just want the opportunity of proving to you that there are some mighty rainbow and brown fighters back in the waters of the Trinity Alps country. Whether the fish are native or planted doesn't matter—they have grown up now!

* * * *

REVIEWING TROUT season in general, it looks as though April 28 will find the anglers climbing over one another in their battle to reach favorite streams in Southern California. They will be doing that in the knowledge that the Department of Fish and Game has planted one million catchable trout (7½ inches or longer) in southern waters.

The pressure still will be on Mono-Inyo, however, with Crowley Lake the favorite spot. If you ever took part in a previous Crowley opening and thought the going was rough, try it this year for a new thrill—or chill. Conservative estimates indicate that 7,000 to 9,000 fishermen will be trying to jam into boats at Crowley next weekend.

June, Silver, Grant, Gull, Convict, the lower lakes of the Mammoth group and various streams will be taking care of some of the overflow that can't make Crowley. Unless storms hit this week, the opening day should be good. Lower lakes are free of ice.

* * * *

DON'T FORGET to pick up an abstract of 1956 fishing laws when you get your license this week. The DF&G reported last week that thousands of the pamphlets are on their way to sporting goods stores and license dealers. The abstract will list all closures and the laws which you may or may not know.

As to plantings in Southern California, The Independent and The Press-Telegram (April 5 issues) carried a full list of streams and lakes that would be planted prior to opening day, provided water conditions were favorable.

Good rains a couple of weeks ago improved stream conditions tremendously and practically all of those creeks listed are on the planting schedule. Tank trucks of the DF&G have been rolling for the last 10 days and will continue to work from dawn to dark this week. More than 300,000 fish are being planted in the final week before the season opens.

Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties were helped by rain amounting to 5 inches in some localities; Gibraltar Reservoir is overflowing; Cachuma has twice as much water as at this time last year; Piru Creek is filling up Santa Felicia Reservoir. Ventura County's newest trout lake.

If you go to Inyo or Mono Counties and if you are lucky enough to catch two limits, one on Saturday and another on Monday, you may take home both limits under a tag system which goes into effect for that area.

* * * *

OUR PURPOSE for being up here this weekend is to honor Dr. Paul R. Needham, professor of fisheries, University of California at Berkeley. He is the second recipient of the annual Sportsman's Award, an outstanding event of the Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Assn.

About two dozen outdoor writers in the state, who participated in the selection of Dr. Needham, are here as guests of Shasta-Cascade.

My immediate concern at the conclusion of the official banquet and meeting honoring Dr. Needham is not trout, but bass in Shasta Lake. And from what I'm told, Dr. Needham will be at the same place trying his rod and reel and getting a few days of rest.

Dr. Needham, beyond any doubt, is one of the outstanding fisheries experts in the western United States. It's no wonder that the Shasta-Cascade group wants to honor him. He spent eight years figuring out plans for the protection of salmon in the Sacramento River after Shasta Dam was completed. His survey resulted in fish ladders at Keswick Dam and the construction of the Coleman Fish Hatchery on Battle Creek, near Redding. We'll have more to tell you about Dr. Needham in a later column.

* * * *

IRVINE LAKE will get a shot in the arm Friday evening, April 27. C. H. Stevenson, operator at Irvine, will plant a ton of rainbow trout on that date in anticipation of the opening of Southern California's trout season the following morning.

The trout will range from 1 to 3 pounds. Thereafter, Stevenson will plant another ton of trout each Monday noon while Irvine is open. Howard E. Vlarick, Downey, topped Irvine anglers last week with a bass weighing 7½ pounds. He caught it on a Hawaiian wiggler.

GREAT STRIDES IN COMING MONTHS

Big Marine Schedule on Tap

By BOB RUSKAUFF

Bigger entry lists, keener competition — by anyone's seven-league boots—marine sport will have taken its greatest strides in history in the southwest during the coming months of 1956. Viewed from the storm window:

Already motorboat racing is "secure," with Long Beach Marine Stadium carrying the burden of three holiday inboard classics (Memorial, Independence, Labor days); the outboard nationals in September and the boat show-regatta July 14-15, plus others.

Alamitos Bay YC plays host to the 1956 National Snipe class championships Aug. 8-12, with other top features included during the summer.

Some 30 sleek power yachts, a record, may compete May 27-30 in the Long Beach YC predicted log race for the $5,000 Craig trophy—to Coronado and return.

Conservative heads viz entry chairman George Michand, predict 185 deep-water yachts may be signed for the 9th Newport-Ensenada yacht race before entries close for the May 3 classic. No greater single fleet has started anywhere in the world.

The world's longest yacht race, 3,570 miles from San Pedro to Papeete, Tahiti, has eight boats signed, others possible, for staggered starts in June, designed to get them there for July 14 celebration of Bastille Day.

* * * *

TODAY THERE are many events over a series of fronts:

Finish of two 'round-Catalina deep-water yacht races; collegiate sailing windup at Balboa YC; return from Avalon, racing, of both sail and power yachts in the West Coast YC spring cruise; also return from Avalon of the stock outboard fleet which cruise-raced cross-channel Saturday.

* * * *

GUST AND PROP-WASH: Miss Supertest, Canada's unlimited hydroplane challenger for the Harmsworth trophy, is hailed as greatest foreign threat in 20 efforts since 1903. Gotta have a queen and Belmont Shore Lions still lack one for their May 30 inboard regatta, says Chairman Don Thompson. Still behind the West L. B. Lions, who have one picked for July 4, though President L. B. Stambaugh won't name her yet. Queens don't make boats go faster, but.

Rockets Face Glendale

Pete Cassidy and Keith Peacock will divide the pitching for the Long Beach Rockets today when Bill Feistner's semipro club meets the Glendale Dons at Recreation Park. Game time is 2:15 p.m.

Peacock, former Marine from Costa Mesa, made his Rocket debut last week as the locals bowed to Chandler Rock and Gravel, 4-3. He pitched the first five innings, giving up three runs, striking out three and walking two. Cassidy hurled the last four innings.

Other Rocket starters today (in batting order) will be Chuck Winslow, second base; Frank Estes, shortstop; Bob Carter, right field; Jack Graham, first base; Ev Pearson, left field; Don Taylor, third base; Tom Lloyd, catcher and Bill Squilte, center field.

Next Sunday the Rockets play Nat's Diamonds, followed by the L.A. All-Stars on May 6.

Ruttman, Amick Enter Final Race of Spring

Troy Ruttman, Lynwood, the youngest driver ever to win the "500", and Indianapolis rookie George Amick, Los Angeles, added their names Saturday to the entry list for the spring season's final 100-lap USAC late model stock car race next Saturday night at Gardena Stadium.

Ruttman at the age of 21 drove managing director J. C. Agajanian's No. 98 down victory lane in 1952. His winning average of 128.922 mph has only been topped by Billy Vukovich's 130.840 mph in 1954 when Troy finished fourth.

STOCK CARS RACE TODAY

It will be a battle of the Fords against the Hudsons, Chevrolets and Dodges today at Gardena Stadium, 139th St. and Western Ave., in a modified stock car racing card.

Ten events are slated, featured by a 100-lapper. Super-powered sedans will start in the time trials at 1 p.m. followed by the main events at 2:30 p.m., which will be televised until 5:30 p.m.

46 of Royal Palms Units Already Sold

Thoughtful planning for modern adult living is a feature of the Royal Palms apartment tower that has attracted special attention among a large number of visitors to the model unit during the past week. The results of this planning are seen in the feeling of spaciousness maintained throughout each apartment, the provision of ample closets, cupboards and lighting facilities, and the convenient, step-saving layout of the rooms to reduce daily housekeeping to a minimum, salesmen report.

All apartments in the Royal Palms, to be built at 1st and Atlantic, a block from the ocean, are outside apartments with large window areas that take full advantage of the view. There is special soundproofing between apartments to maintain quiet and privacy, and the steel and concrete construction is designed to make the building fireproof and quakeproof as well.

* * * *

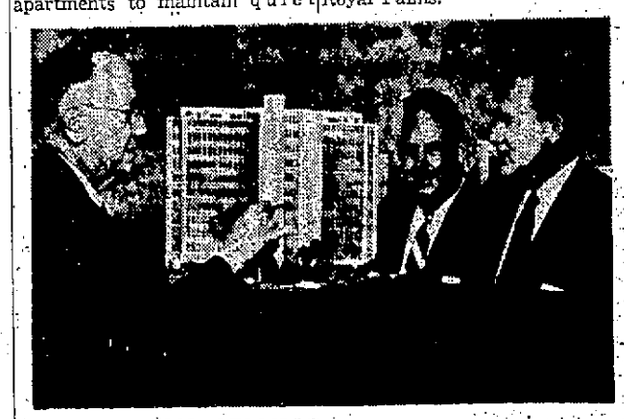

THE ROYAL PALMS is organized on a mutual ownership plan, and the 12-story building will belong to the purchasers of its 164 de luxe 1 and 2-bedroom apartments. It is the first multi-story Class "A" apartment development on the West Coast to receive an FHA commitment, and the units can be purchased on FHA terms or on an all-cash basis.

"Increasingly large crowds have been visiting the completely furnished model 2-bedroom apartment the past week," according to E. T. Moore of Moore Realty, sales agents for the Royal Palms.

"THIRTY-TWO of the 2-bedroom and 14 of the 1-bedroom apartments have been sold," says Moore, "and the rate of sales indicates that we should soon be ready to announce a date for ground-breaking and start of construction. It is most important that reservations be made promptly to insure choice of exposure and location."

Included with every apartment will be an all-electric kitchen with built-in oven and range, garbage disposal, refrigerator and ventilating exhaust fan. Maintenance and replacement of these appliances is provided for in the regular monthly payment that covers all costs, including taxes, insurance, water, heat, operating expenses, interest and principal. A heated, swimming pool and a large social lounge will be located on the street floor.

Sponsors of the Royal Palms are Dr. R. L. Buffum and family, P. I. Wilsey Jr. and R. T. Hebard. Architects are Francis O. Merchant and J. Richard Shelley.

UNITS NOW SELLING

Dr. R. L. Buffum, sponsor of the Royal Palms Apartments, is shown viewing a model of the towering structure. With him is E. T. Moore, sales head, and P. I. Wilsey Jr., contractor.

Excelsior Village Offers New Terms

New financing that means non-veterans can move-in for a $395 down payment and veterans can purchase for no-down is proving popular at Excelsior Village, sales agent, Don Coleman reported this week.

The big 4-bedroom 2-bath homes are located adjacent to one of Garden Grove's grammar schools and bring the buyer scores of luxury features for as little as $12,620.

Among the advantages listed by the sales firm are built-in range and oven, washer-dryer, forced air heat, natural cabinets, fire alarm system, exterior planters and screen fencing, and spacious lots.

An added plus to the $395 down to non-vets and the no-down payment offer to qualified veterans, is the quick-move in plan that can be arranged for at the site, the sales agent said.

To visit the four furnished models from the Long Beach area go straight out Westminster Blvd. to Wright St. (Brookhurst) and the site. The location is one of the best of the near-Long Beach locations, Coleman pointed out.

C. C. Curtis Now Structural Engineer

Charley C. Curtis, consulting civilian engineer, 3667 Atlantic Ave., has been notified by the state that he may use the title "structural engineer." This authorization is only given to those registered civil engineers who have completed the required examination.

This broadens the engineering service to include prime contracts on bridges, schools and other public work projects.

Prior to opening private engineering offices Curtis held positions with Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Naval Construction Brigade, Long Beach Building and Water Departments, and C. F. Braun & Co.

Fairview Ranchos Showing Good Sales on Easy Terms

The feature-packed new 2-bedroom, 2-bath, 2-car garage residences in Unit 3 of Fairview Ranchos, Bristol at Fairview in Santa Ana, continue to be in heavy demand by non-veterans and quality construction usually found only in much higher-priced homes, Chandler points out.

Easy FHA monthly terms are also available, he said.

Although the new homes are VA-appraised at $12,855 or $12,995, they contain luxury features and quality construction usually according to Frank Chandler of Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Three basic center-hall floor plans with front or rear living rooms are available to buyers. Twenty-three distinctive exterior designs ensure complete individuality of design.

HOMES ARE OF SOLID construction, with genuine lath and plaster walls and ceilings. Wiring system exceeds new adequate wiring standards of National Builder's Association. A 220-volt rough-in is available for range, clothes dryer, power tools, or air-conditioning unit.

Real oak hardwood floors are laid over raised sub-flooring. Concrete patio, 120 square feet with redwood dividers, has decorative redwood planter box garden light, and seat.

Kitchens feature a convertable dining nook, breakfast bar, buffet and desk, natural-finish wood cabinets, and range hood with exhaust fan and wall switch.

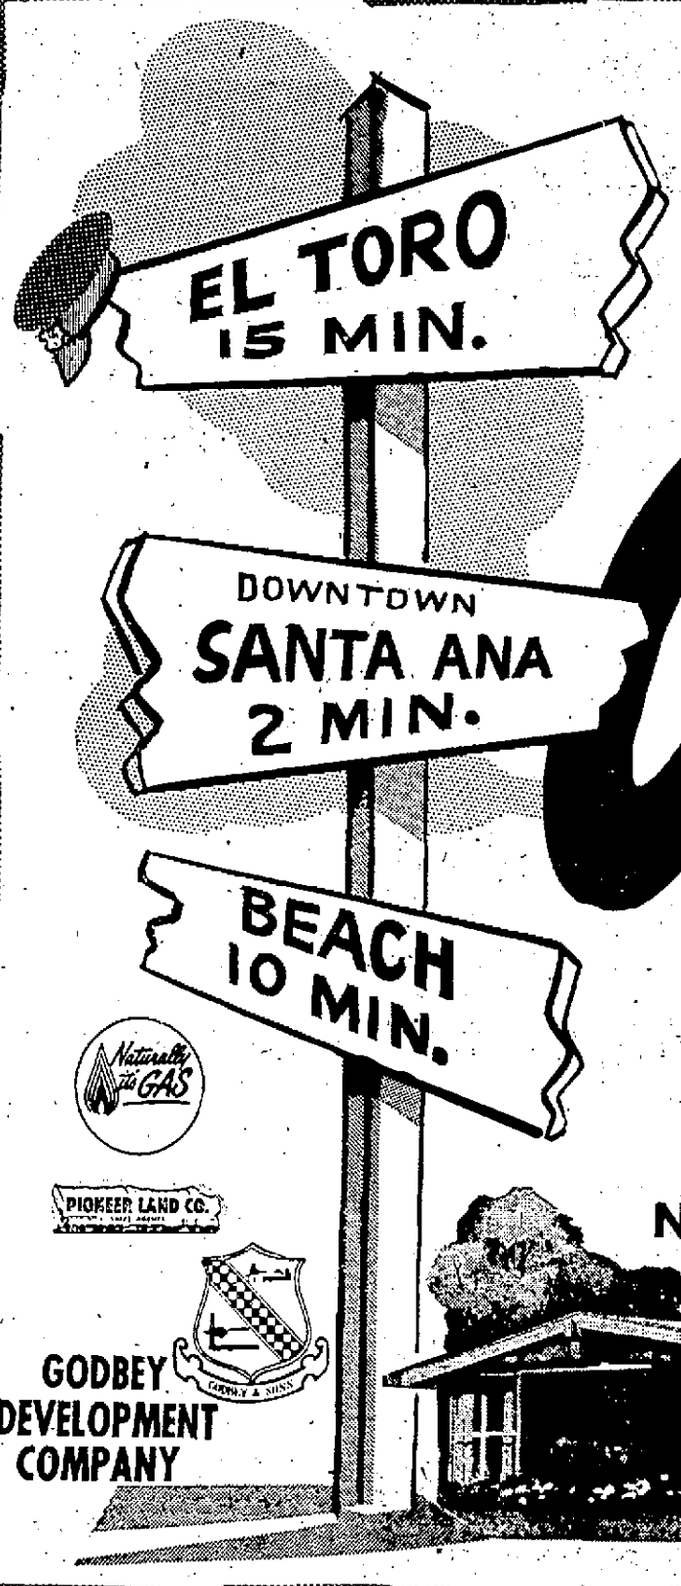

All lots are completely landscaped, with sprinklers installed both front and rear yards, and backyard area of each home completely enclosed by redwood fencing.

To reach Fairview Ranchos from Long Beach, take 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol; turn right on Bristol to new models.

Soft Drink Firm Shows Big Gain

James T. Powell, president, Pepsi-Cola-Bireley Co., of Los Angeles, has released a first quarter report indicating a 47 per cent sales increase of the Bireley soft drink line over the same period of 1955.

Powell ascribed the impressive gain to an aggressive advertising campaign, addition of a separate fleet of 30 Bireley trucks, and conversion to a 10-ounce bottle.

IN FREMATIC HOME

The kitchen is one of the favorite spots in the new Frematic Homes which are selling rapidly. This shows some of the built-in conveniences of the kitchens.

Frematic Homes Selling Rapidly

"The exceptional value of Frematic Homes and the many award-winning features combine to bring prospective homeowners out of the furnished models and into the sales office," was the statement Saturday by Ross W. Cortese, who reported heavy sales in the Anaheim subdivision of 3- and 4-bedroom or family room, 2-bath homes.

Notable among the features of the dwellings is the Betty Furness Beautility Kitchen, a room keyed to efficiency with beauty as the high light in color-matched fully automatic built-in Westinghouse appliances. These include a large refrigerator-freezer, extra wide built-in oven, built-in top burners, automatic dishwasher and disposal unit. A breakfast bar is in addition to the dining room area, separated from the outdoors by sliding glass walls.

Living areas have sound-absorbing acoustical ceilings in popular open-beam design, introduced in developments by Cortese and his associates. Ample room is noticeable throughout the house, with bedrooms designed to accommodate king-size furniture. The master bedroom forms a suite with a private bath equipped with stall shower, fully tiled and glass doored, and an enclosed lavatory. Pullman-type bath also has a private dressing and storage area.

Gabled glass windows add to the spaciousness of the home, which features sliding wardrobes in all bedrooms and family room, conveniently convertible to a fourth bedroom by use of a folding wall; 100,000 BTU forced air heating, oversize front door, two-car garage, colored Crane plumbing fixtures and raised hooded fireplaces with adjacent seating space are more sale-promoting features.

Priced from $15,750 to $17,500, approximately and available on both FHA and veterans financing, Frematic Homes are at the corner of Lincoln and Gilbert in Anaheim. Visitors drive out Carson St. (Lincoln Ave.) to Gilbert to visit furnished models.

Long Beach Park's Low Price Attracts

Opening of 2 furnished model homes at Long Beach Park brought sales of $150,000 during the past week in the new quality-built homes which are offered by Butler-Harbour Construction Co. on low budget terms to non-vets.

Offered at less than $10,000, the homes already have passed the 50 per cent sellout point, though the furnished models were completed and opened only a week ago, officials emphasized, in underscoring the immediate public acceptance of the new community.

LARGE CROWDS were reported visiting the furnished model homes on Garden Grove Blvd., between Alamitos and Huntington Park Blvds., in Garden Grove. They are open every day from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Full price of the homes is from $9,095, it was noted, and total down payment, including all impounds, is $495, while monthly payments are set at $77.50, including taxes and insurance as well as principal and interest.

IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY is available on some of the homes, according to Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, who said reservations are already being taken in a second unit of 61 3-bedroom dwellings. Many of the homes have built-in Pioneer gas ranges and oven, available for an additional $2.25 per month.

"Public reaction to the opening of Long Beach Park indicates that here at last is the quality home, at a price the average family can pay. Buyers have a choice of floor plans offering two bedrooms with den, or three bedrooms. Lots are a full 60 feet by 120 feet and all utilities are in and paid for," a spokesman said.

Long Beach Park may be reached from Long Beach by taking 7th St. east and continuing on Garden Grove Blvd. to the models on the south side of the street.

ON BUDGET TERMS

Non-vets are offered special terms on 141 new three-bedroom quality-built homes, typified above, in Long Beach Park, new Butler-Harbour Construction Co. development on Garden Grove Blvd., between Alamitos and Huntington Park Blvds. in Garden Grove.

Vets Offered Buena Berry Park Home Without Cash

The current "no cash down" policy at Buena Berry Park, offering free occupancy to buyers, will be in effect to April 30, Don Coleman, sales agent for the Moss Building Corp., stressed.

Veterans need no down payment, and non-vets will be asked for an initial outlay of as little as $1,195, with monthly terms as low as $53.63, principal and interest.

The monthly rates for veterans amount to as little as $58.92, principal and interest.

The 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are ready for immediate occupancy. The community is situated just one block directly east of famous Knott's Berry Farm, and is near the site of a proposed 80-acre Sears Roebuck shopping center. Schools, churches and additional shopping centers are nearby.

Buena Berry Farm is just a 20-minute drive from Long Beach, and the development is only 25 minutes from metropolitan Los Angeles.

Some Buena Berry Park models boast raised-hearth and floor-to-ceiling fireplaces, thermostatically controlled forced-air heat, built-in oven and range, sliding walls of glass and orange trees on the lot.

Buena Berry Park 4-bedroom stylings offer an expansive living area arrangement. The fourth bedroom is joined to the living room through folding wooden doors, converting easily to a conversation corner, television lounge, or in general, to a "special purpose" room.

Buena Berry Park is reached from Long Beach by driving on Carson to Highway 39, turning left to Crescent, then right one block to the model homes.

BUENA PLAZA OFFERS

Exemplified above are the new Aldon 1956 "Triumph Series" three and four-bedroom homes, with two complete baths, floor-to-ceiling fireplaces and many built-in features, located on La Palma Ave. east of Miller St., in close-in Buena Park.

Aldon's Buena Plaza Reports Soaring Sales in Final Unit

Sales since the first of April at Buena Plaza have pushed past the $500,000 mark for the 3-week period, reflecting an equal demand for both the 3-bedroom and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes of the 1956 "Triumph Series" in the planned community's last unit, it was reported yesterday.

"Immediate occupancy is another factor that has boosted sales during April," it was noted by a topflight official of the Aldon Construction Co., developers of the $50,000,000, 2100-home property now nearly complete in Buena Park, just off the Santa Ana Freeway, on La Palma Ave., east of Miller St.

"Literally thousands of visitors are inspecting our big public display of 9 model homes, all with 2 bathrooms, 5 with three bedrooms and 4 with 4 bedrooms," the spokesman added. "Seven of these display dwellings are furnished by Aaron Schultz and the entire area of the display has been attractively landscaped for the showing."

• • • •

IT WAS NOTED that 2 of the 9 model homes are new to the display. They are both 4-bedroom, 2-bath traditional stylings, prepared especially in response to demand for more of the traditional designs, according to Aldon officials.

Vets' terms of nothing down but costs and impounds and monthly payments of $66.67 for principal and interest were characterized by Aldon's general sales agent, E. "Billy" Hamburg, "as representing the "lowest terms in this category in Orange County."

Non-vets are offered terms featuring down payments as low as $990, plus costs and impounds, Hamburg added.

"Luxurized" features associated with Aldon homebuilding techniques also include thermostat-controlled forced air heating, sliding walls of glass linking living rooms to outdoor living, custom-designed fireplaces of brick or slumpstone with raised hearths, Higgins oak block floors, big two-car garages and model all-gas kitchens.

Within the kitchens are natural ash cabinets finished in exclusive Aldon-Glaze, covered worktops, double sinks with Waste-King garbage pulverators, Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers, grease-proof Ma-Ti-Co asphalt tile floors, eating space and service areas.

Orangewood Sells to Vet on $25 Down

For the few remaining homes in Orangewood Manor, veterans may purchase with only $25 cash required, including impounds, it was reported by Thomas Helt, spokesman for the McCarthy Co., sales agents for this beautiful Garden Grove development. "Because of increased construction costs," Hart state, "this may be the last chance veterans may have to buy such a quality home for only $12,750."

Kitchens in Orangewood Manor have proven very popular with their beautiful Roper gas ranges in pastel colors that match the Columbia steel cabinets. The living room boast real fireplaces and ski-vue walls of glass that offer popular indoor-outdoor living. Spacious patios have built-in barbecues.

Other custom features include: Thermador electric bath heaters, stall showers and Standard colored plumbing fixtures; forced air heating, Pioneer 50-gallon water heaters, resilient cork tile flooring, walls of genuine lath and plaster, rockwool insulation, weatherstripping on exterior doors, heavy rock roofs in five decorator colors, and exteriors of California redwood siding.

From Long Beach, visitors are directed to drive out Seventh Street (Garden Grove Boulevard) and turn north on Magnolia. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway, turn south on Magnolia and continue for four miles to Orangewood Manor.

NEWS FOR VETS

Award Homes are offered to vets on no-cash-down payment terms at Golden West St. and Garden Grove Blvd. Vets make no cash down payment, pay no cash closing costs or impounds. Monthly payment of $61.93 buys a three-bedroom and family room de luxe series home with two baths and two-car garage.

Vets Need No Cash for Award Homes

"No cash to move in for veterans" are the new terms for Award Homes, de luxe series, Golden West St. and Garden Grove Blvd., state the developers, a Volk-McLain Co.

"At last we have worked out a plan which offers veterans a chance to buy an Award Home with no cash down payment, no cash closing costs, and no cash impounds," it was announced by a spokesman for the company. "However, this no-cash offer expires May 15."

Veterans may buy Award Homes on monthly payments of $61.93. Full price of $12,025 is set for the new 4-bedroom or 3-bedroom and family room Award Homes. All have 2 baths with colored fixtures, and 2-car garages.

THE NEW CONVERTIBLE family room lends unusual flexibility to these newest de luxe series Award Homes between Long Beach and Garden Grove.

This room, located next to the king-size ranch kitchen, may double as a daytime dining area and a night-time bar for entertaining. It may be a daylight children's play room, and a television room after dark. It may be a day sewing room, and an evening game room.

Since only a convenient food bar separates kitchen and family room, a spacious, modern, open motif results.

Seven furnished model homes are open daily till 9 p. m. Patios, exteriors, and back yards of model homes are flood-lighted for after-dark viewing.

VETERANS FROM Los Angeles and the Lakewood area take Lakewood Blvd. to the traffic circle, Highway 101 to 7th St. in Long Beach, then east to Golden West St. Seventh St. becomes Garden Grove Blvd.

The Award Homes are easily reached from Long Beach by taking 7th St. to Golden West St., then south to the site.

Award Homes are located near fine beaches, parks, schools and churches, and are convenient to super-markets and shopping centers in adjoining Garden Grove.

Fast busses go to downtown Los Angeles and nearby Lakewood Village. The tract is on the route of the proposed Santa Ana-Long Beach freeway.

Homes by Tietz Are in Demand

The continued high sales volume being recorded at Skylark Terrace, Town and Country Unit No. 2, indicates a strong preference for Provincial type architecture among today's homebuyers, revealed Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers of the Garden Grove homes.

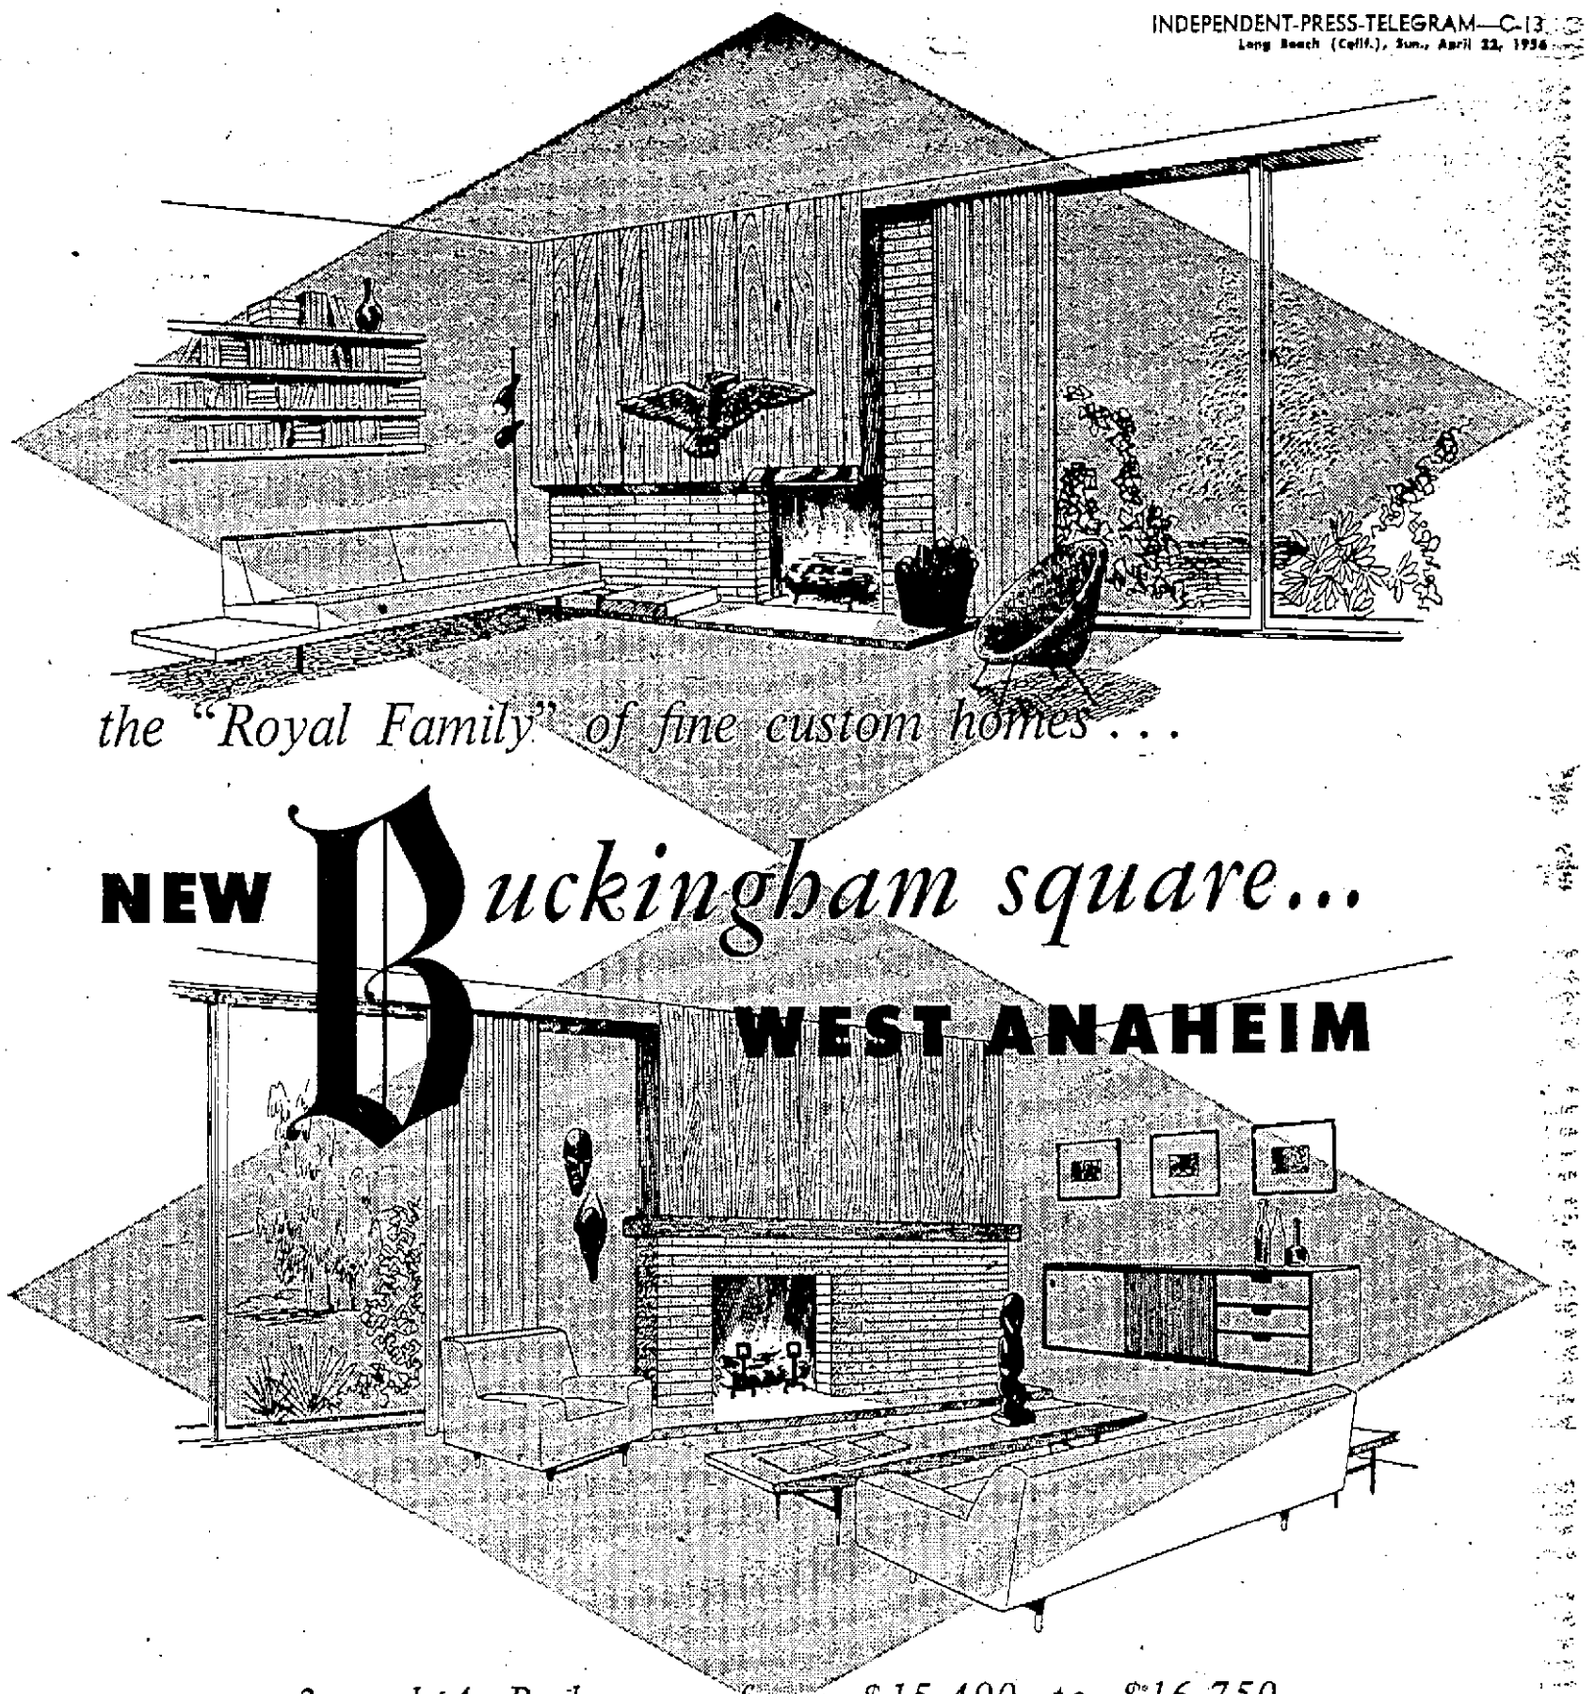

The select location, close to new shopping districts, transportation, beach cities and other recreational facilities is another factor cited as an important consideration in the purchase of Skylark Terrace homes.

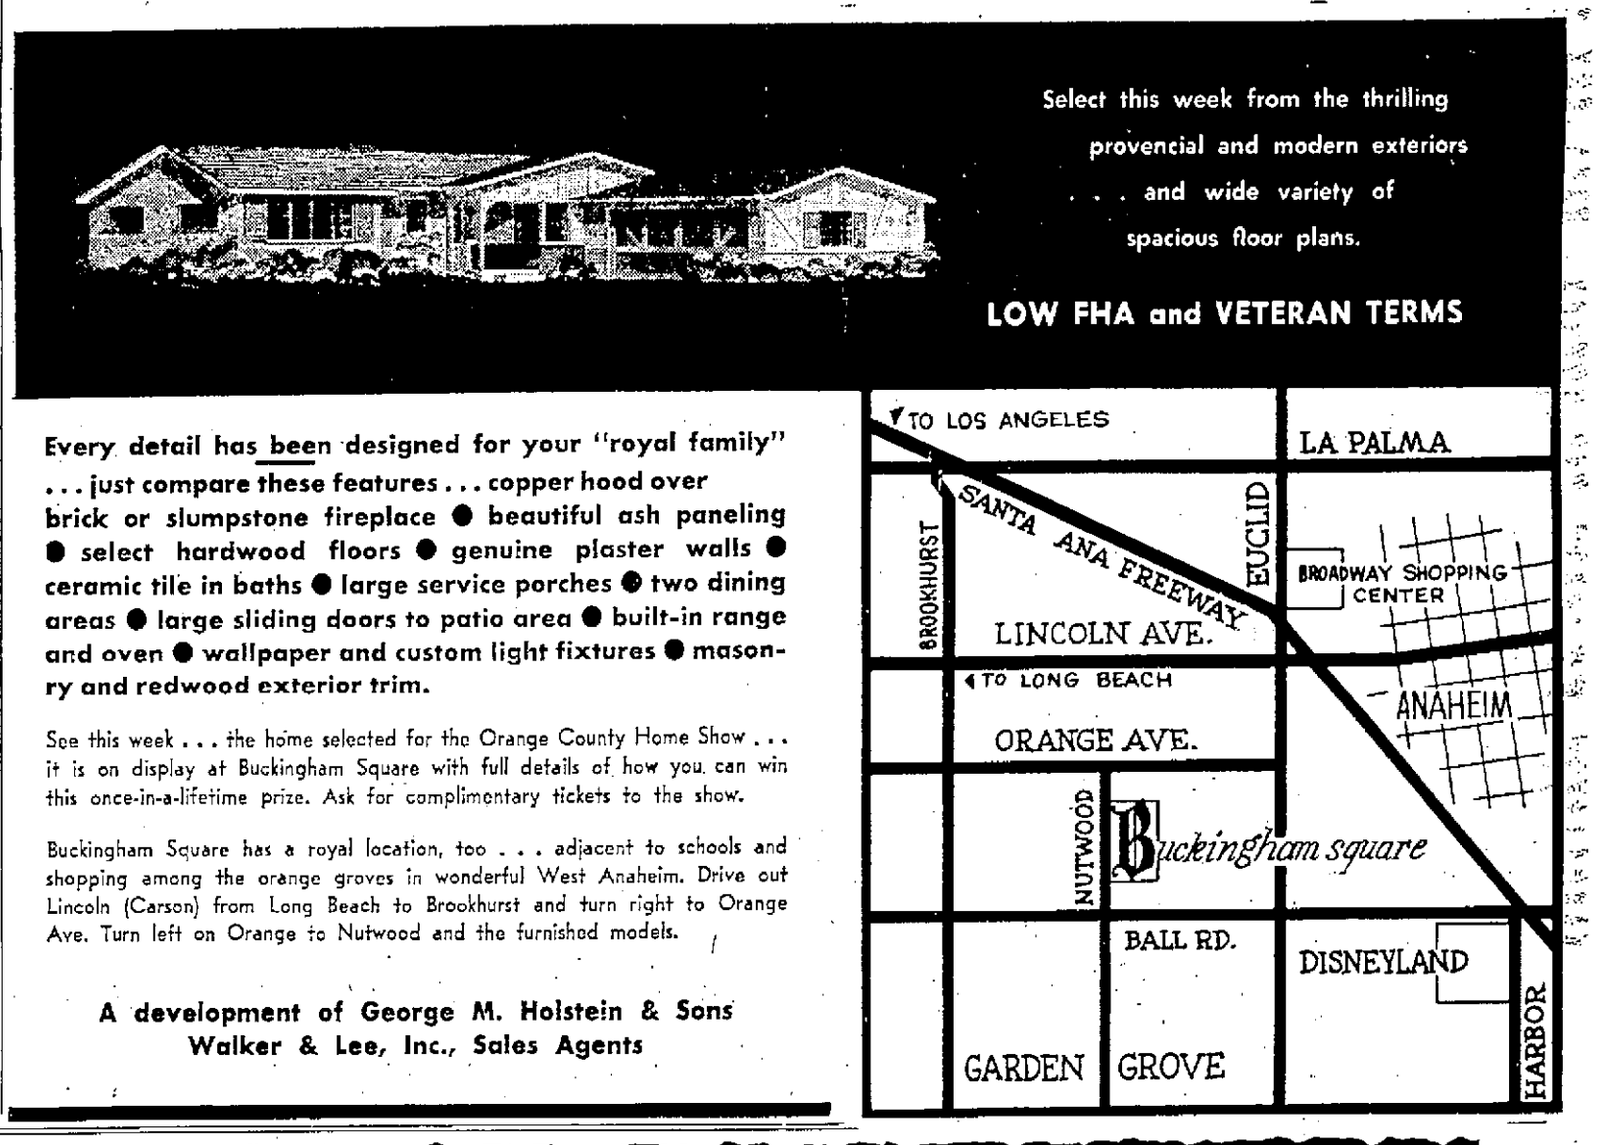

Among the features most widely acclaimed are the extra spaciousness within as well as outside the homes. On lots of up to 85-foot frontages, the dwellings offer many recreational possibilities, such as swimming pools and badminton courts in the back yards. Inside, roominess is notable in living areas as well as bedrooms, closets and cabinets.

KITCHENS, featuring all-electric built-in appliances, are equipped with Hotpoint ranges, dishwashers, ovens and have garbage disposals and electric exhaust fans. Etched glass doors enclose the tiled stall showers, there is genuine lath and plaster throughout, intercom and background music-system, outdoor barbecue complete with grill, golden hardwood floors, sliding glass "lanai" walls, brick trim exteriors with heavy shake, shingle and dolomite rock roofs, three to six-foot overhangs, 80,000 BTU forced air furnaces and landscaped front yards.

Available on both veterans and FHA financing, models of the dwellings are open at Brookhurst and Chapman in Garden Grove. From Santa Ana, visitors drive west on Garden Grove Blvd. to Brookhurst and north on Brookhurst to the models. From Long Beach, homeseekers drive out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.), to Brookhurst, turn north to Chapman. From Los Angeles, drive Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma, turn south on La Palma, (which becomes Brookhurst) to models.

Vandruff Bros. Are Building Many More Cinderella Homes

When Vandruff Homes, Inc., built its first subdivision of 168 Cinderella Homes last year, they sold out in the record time of 3½ weeks, before the models were furnished and landscaped.

Shannon and Jene Vandruff, the brother designer-builders announced the groundbreaking for 701 more new Cinderella Homes to help fill the demand. These homes will be located at Ball and Western, in Anaheim.

Prior to their entry into the subdivision field last year the Vandruff brothers won wide acclaim as designer-builders of custom homes, and when they transferred to subdivision building they determined to incorporate in popular-priced housing many of the expensive features that had characterized their finer custom-built homes.

The new subdivision will contain all the same basic plans and features of the first.

WHILE THERE ARE four modern exterior designs, "California Ranch" is the dominating exterior style, with 14 separate designs in that popular mode. The 4 basic floor plans all feature central hall plans, and offer a choice of 3 bedrooms, 4 bedrooms, or 3 bedrooms and family room; all have two baths. Other features include heavy shake or heavy rock roofs, long low roof overhangs, brick planters and veneer across the fronts, massive floor to ceiling fireplaces, hardwood paneling, TV viewing directly from kitchens, built-in music systems with speakers, and a host of other comfort-convenience features.

The Cinderella Homes office and furnished model homes are presently at the first subdivision at Ball and Hwy. 39 in Anaheim and are reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Hwy. 39 in Buena Park and then due south past Knott's Berry Farm another 1½ miles (or ¼ mile south of Orange Ave.). Long Beach residents drive east on Carson St. and turn south on Hwy. 39 to the subdivision ¼ mile south of Orange Ave.

Offer Eight Homes at 'Bargain' Prices

Money-saving opportunity is offered home seekers in the Anaheim area this week-end when Wonderland Homes will sell 8 3-and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes at prices from $1200 to $1500 below the level of prices in the soon-to-open second unit.

This was the announcement yesterday by the builders who explained that the 8 specially-priced homes being offered this week-end are in the first unit and represent top stylings and locations selected by buyers who failed to establish adequate credit.

Priced from $12,485 to $13,825, the homes are offered to vets for nothing down, except costs and impounds, with low monthly payments.

"Not only will the 173 homes in Wonderland Homes second unit cost more, but monthly payments will be necessarily higher also due to sharply increased costs of both labor and materials," a spokesman explained. "This means fast acting vets can get a real bargain in both price and terms while these eight homes last."

* * * *

LOCATED AT the southwest corner of Ball Rd. and Walnut St. in Anaheim, all Wonderland Homes were designed by architect William M. Bray, A.I.A.

Among the many special features are lots which contain from six to eight full-bearing mature orange trees, and living rooms with a complete wall of glass and sliding doors. Fixed floor-to-ceiling windows overlook paved concrete terraces.

Other features included forced air heating, hood and electric fan over kitchen range area, garbage disposers, ceramic tile in bath rooms, formica in kitchens, colored rock roofs, lavish use of brick and Palos Verde stone planters, and covered breezeways in some models.

Visitors from Long Beach are advised to follow Carson Ave. (Lincoln) to Euclid. Turn right on Euclid to Ball Rd. Then left on Ball Rd. to Walnut and Model Homes.

ANAHEIM HOMES

Typified are the eight three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes which remain in Wonderland Homes' first unit in Anaheim, at corner of Ball Rd. and Walnut St., off the Santa Ana Freeway. Available because early buyers failed to qualify, the homes are offered to vets at important savings.

Attractive fireplaces, paneling, natural cabinets, luxurious pullman type baths, family rooms, large service porches, master bedroom suites with private baths, and attractive color-matched kitchens with built-in range and ovens are all listed by the sales agents, Walker & Lee, as outstanding features of the Buckingham Square homes.

Eastchester Park's Sales Are Soaring

Last week was the best yet for sales in Eastchester Park, reports Mel Mack, sales agent for the Fullerton development. In addition, we are offering the unique rent-with-option-to-buy plan which has proven very attractive to non-veterans who may purchase for as little as $395 down.

"Eastchester Park offers quality construction and the style of indoor-outdoor living desired by Southern California home buyers," Mack stated, "and the homes are ideally situated for both relaxation and proximity to Los Angeles via the Santa Ana Freeway."

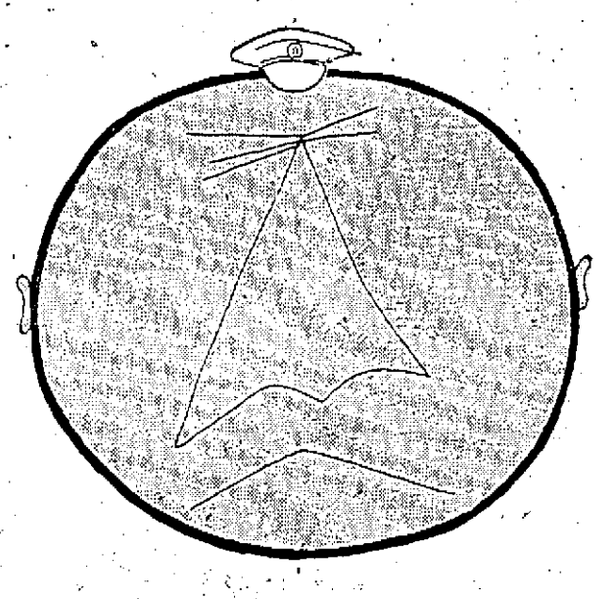

Some of the quality features included are: beautiful redwood siding on the exteriors, weather-stripping on exterior doors, heavy rock roofs in five decorator colors, rockwool insulation, sound-absorbent and resilient cork tile flooring, forced air heating, Woodall sliding closet doors, TV jacks and outlets, large two-car garages with ample storage and work areas, 50-gallon Pioneer water heaters and walls of genuine lath and plaster.

That $2,000 meant "No furniture!" His monthly payments are so high that his budget is straining at the seams. No fun for his family!

THIS VETERAN IS HAPPY!

He could have qualified for a $14,025 home, but he chose an Award Home for only $12,025 Now he finds that the size, construction, and luxury are at least equal to costlier houses. IN ORANGEWOOD ESTATES

Typified as the wide range of stylings by Architect Max Maltzman now offered in the Fireside series of three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes at Orangewood Estates on Orangethorpe Ave. at Eadington Ave., Fullerton.

Vets Given Special Orangewood Terms

For one week, beginning with today's preview showing of the new second unit of homes with built-in barbecues in kitchens or paved patios at the W. E. Robertson Co.'s Fireside Series in Orangewood Estates, Fullerton, veterans will be able to buy on special terms featuring $95 to move in, officials announced.

It was noted also that non-vets may buy on terms of only $995 down, and there are likewise FHA terms available.

Designed by Architect Max Maltzman in a wide range of stylings, the homes all have built-in gas ranges and ovens, deep double-deck sinks with dish sprays and coved one-piece textolite counter tops, and some models offer "split living," with separate baths and bedrooms at opposite ends of the house.

* * * *

AMONG THE MANY features shown in a display of 8 model homes at the new community are: the combination breakfast buffet-bars between dining-living areas and kitchens in many of the models. On two levels, they are useful for formal dining service or breakfast and snack purposes.

The model home display is on Orangethorpe Ave. at Eadington Ave. All homes are open daily and Sunday from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Prices are from $15,675 to $16,870.

The homes have lath and plaster construction, select oak hardwood flooring over raised sub-flooring; 40 and 50-gallon water heaters; pullman baths with ceramic tile; oversize stall shower with sliding glass shower door; ash kitchen cabinets; built-in TV outlets and roof jacks; fenced play yards in many models, and ornamental fences.

Non-Vet Terms Now for Magnolia Manor

Terms especially designed for the non-veteran of the veteran who has used his GI privileges but who needs a larger home, are stimulating sales at Magnolia Manor in Garden Grove where a $295 move-in price is featured.

At Magnolia Manor an ideal location is combined with a large lot and quality construction with prices that start at only $11,050, sales head Frank McFarland, explained.

Already 75 per cent sold, floor plans and exteriors are still available in every plan. All homes have conventional styling, plaster walls, natural kitchen cabinets, and two baths.

To visit the Magnolia Manor location, drive out Garden Grove Blvd. straight through Garden Grove to Harbor Blvd. Cross Harbor one-half mile to the home site. The Magnolia Manor location is near new Garden Grove schools and shopping centers.

ON NEW TERMS

Big bedrooms, conventional styling, genuine lath and plaster, natural kitchen cabinets are all of the features included at Magnolia Manor in the Garden Grove area. Located just off Harbor Blvd. on Garden Grove Blvd., non-vets can move in for only $295.

Homestead Offers Easy Terms

Immediate occupancy and ease of qualification are factors responsible for rising sales at Homestead Gardens, new Garden Grove community of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes, it was reported by the builders.

"Vets earning as little as $85 a week are now being qualified and all they need is $35 in cash," a spokesman explained, adding that 70 per cent of the big second unit on Verano St., just north of Westminster Ave. is already sold.

A spokesman for Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, said a large number of homes has also been sold to non-vets on down payments from $950, plus costs and impounds. FHA terms, he pointed out, are being offered.

* * * *

OF INTEREST to many visitors, he noted is a display of furnished model homes, with decor by Aaron Schultz, which exemplify the many features of the new dwellings.

Included are such items as mahogany kitchen cabinets, large 7,200-square-foot lots, thermostat - controlled heating, wardrobe closets, steel casement windows, fiber glass insulation, acoustic ceilings, lath and plaster walls, stall showers with large glass doors and large garages with storage space.

Also featured are Waste-King garbage pulverators, wide driveways, weatherstripped doors, 40 and 50-gallon water heaters, modern exteriors with redwood accents, rock roofs in many colors, gutters and downspouts, wide overhangs.

The property is within easy walking distance of schools, and churches, while an excellent shopping center is only four blocks away.

Community improvements include sidewalks and sewers and all utilities are in and paid for.

IN GARDEN GROVE

Pictured is one of many Homestead Gardens three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes now offered for immediate occupancy in Garden Grove on Verano St. just north of Westminster Ave.

Shamrock's New Terms Boost Sales

New financing arrangements recently introduced at Shamrock Park have boosted sales tremendously, announces Frank Hart, general sales manager for Walker and Lee, sales agents for the popular Garden Grove development. "Under these new terms, veterans may purchase for only $25 cash, impounds included," Hart pointed out.

Furthermore, purchasers have available such needed appliances as Westinghouse refrigerator, laundromat, and Gaffers & Satler's range without the necessity of making an additional down payment.

Very popular with Shamrock Park buyers are the large living rooms with walls of glass and fireplaces, Hart pointed out. Adjoining the living rooms are spacious rear patios with barbecues which afford families real opportunity to enjoy Southern California's indoor-outdoor living.

Additional features found at Shamrick Park are: step-saving kitchens with gleaming ceramic tile and quietly efficient garbage disposals, family-size bathrooms with colored plumbing fixtures, large bedrooms with Woodall sliding wardrobe doors, forced air heating, walls of genuine lath and plaster, and large two-car garages.

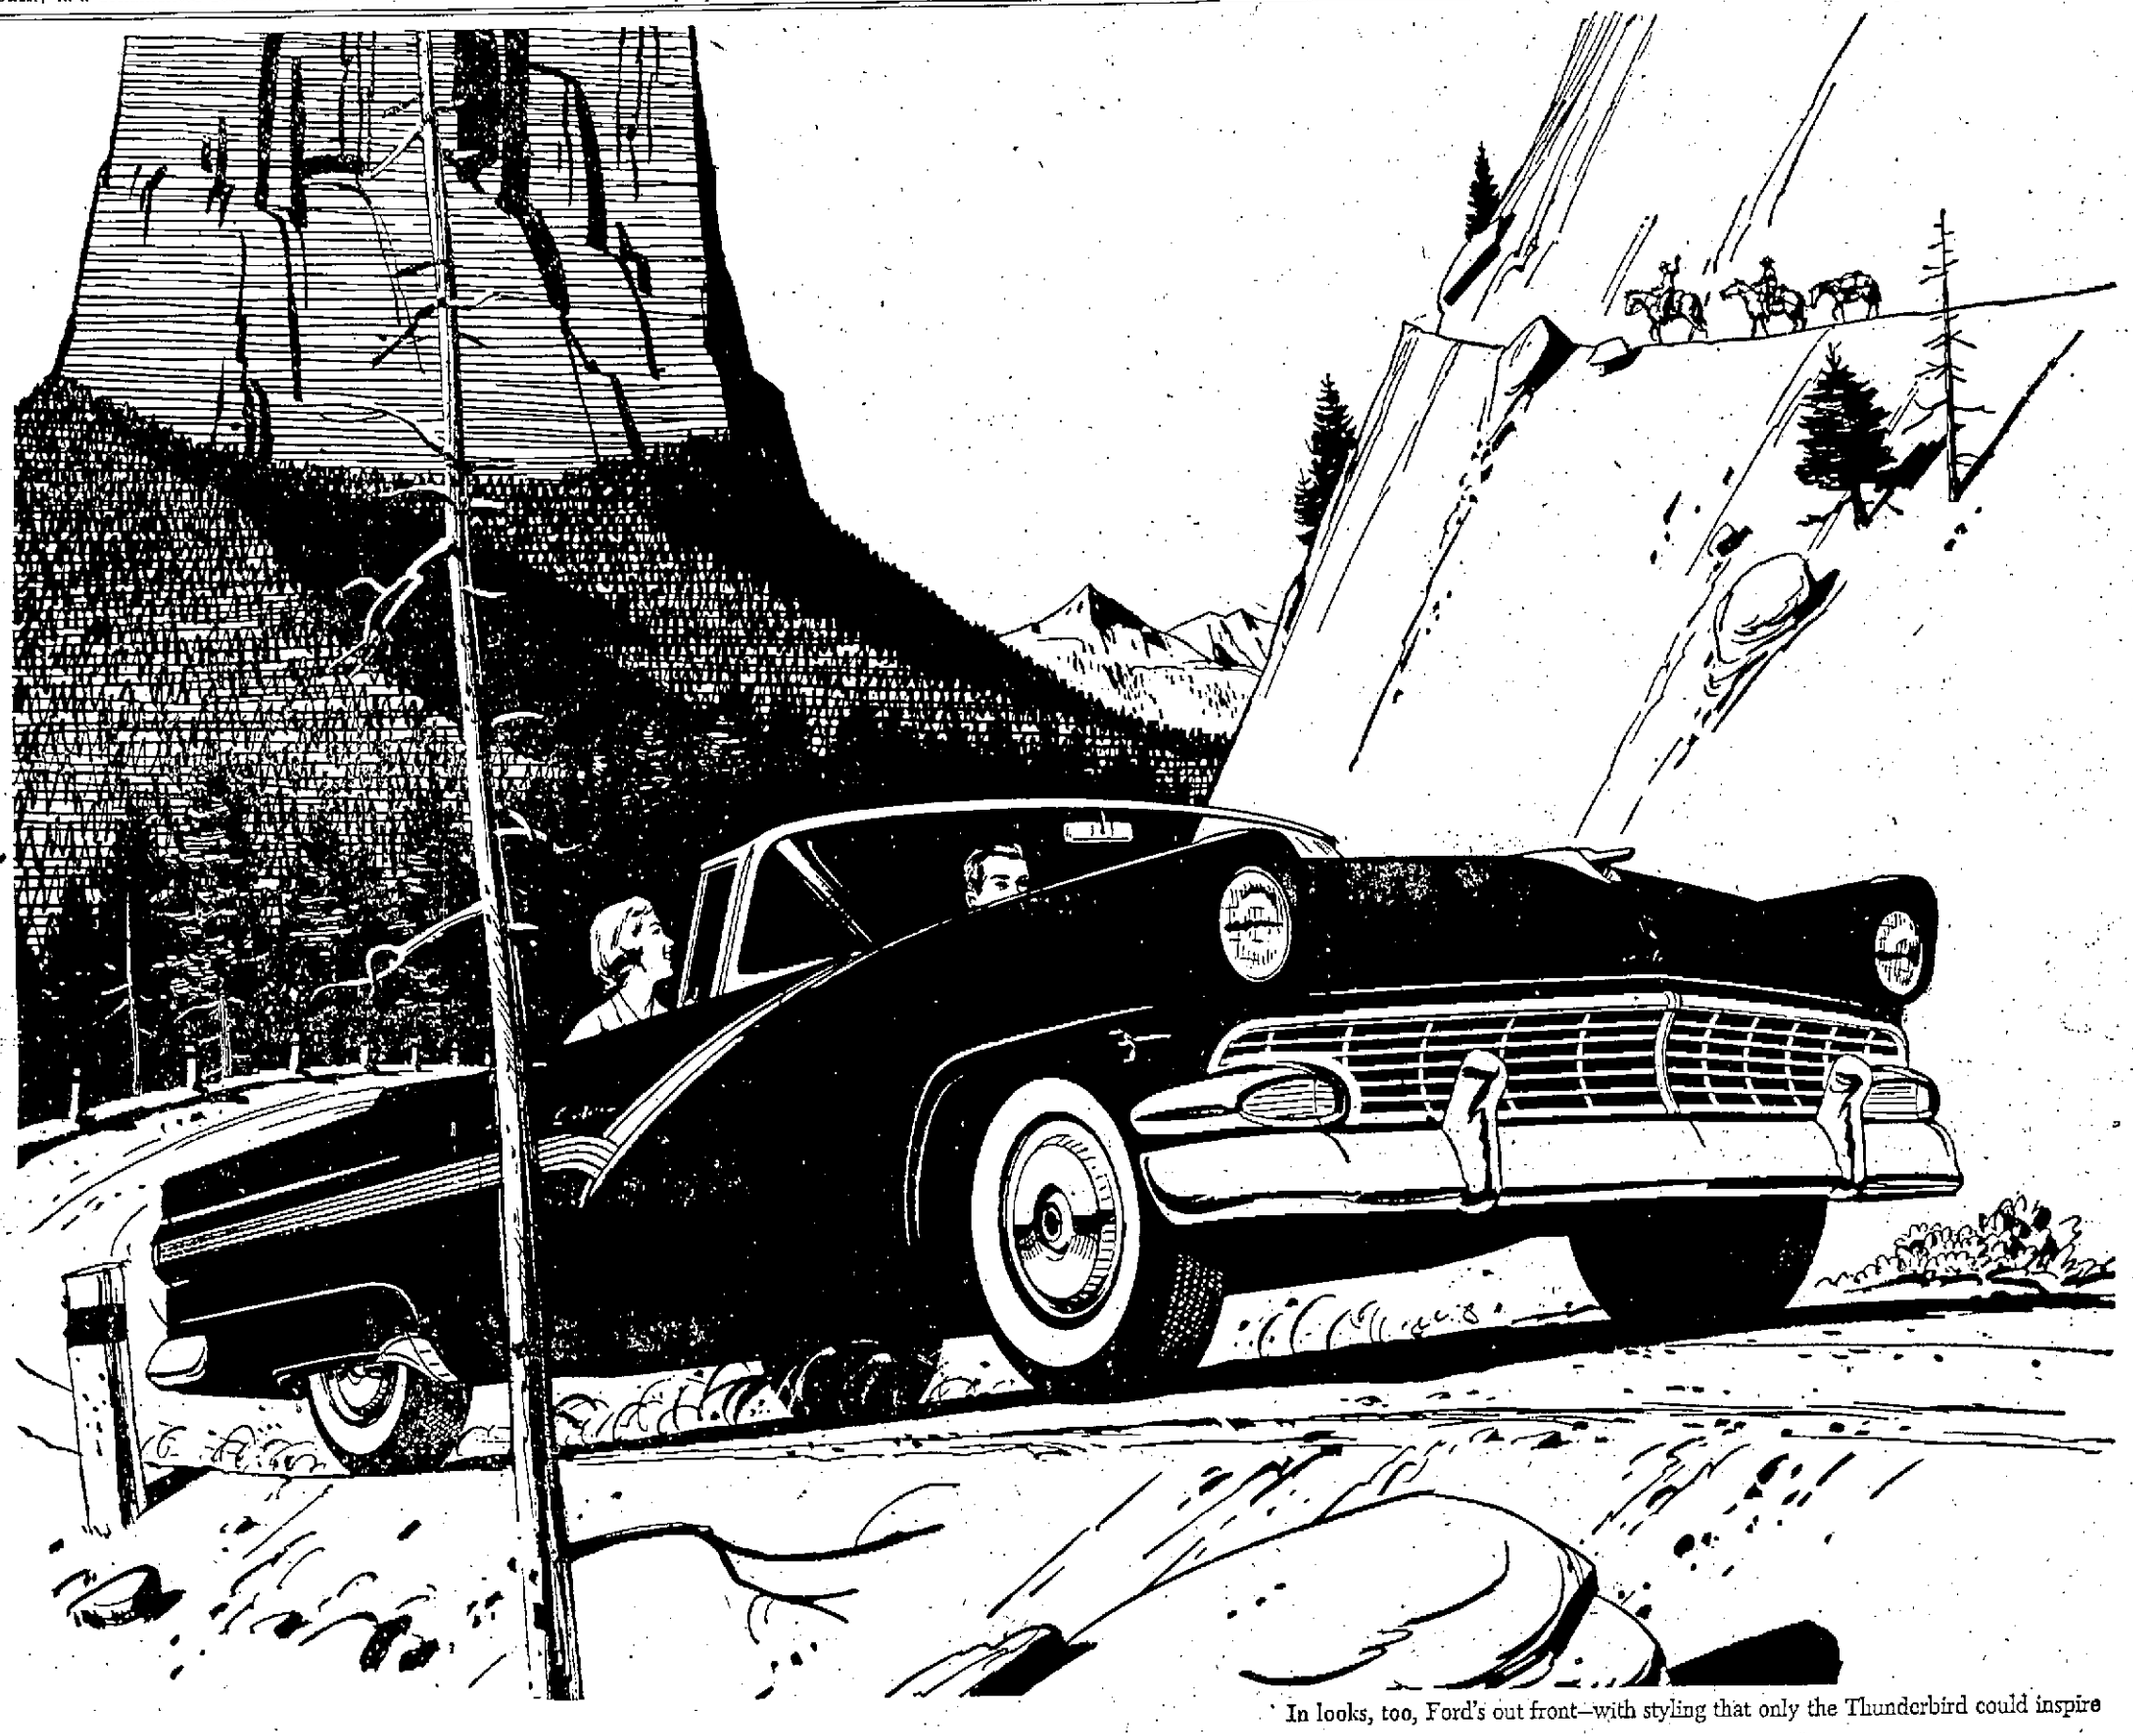

Shamrock Park is reached from Los Angeles and northern points by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor and turning south. From Long Beach, take Seventh Street (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn south at Harbor to Shamrock Park model homes.

Walnut Manor Asks Vets Only $60 Before Moving In

The rains came, but Walnut Manor in Anaheim remained high and dry, due to the excellent drainage. This important factor, plus the new low terms of only $60 to move in, has spurred sales to Vets, stated Louis Herson, builder. Low FHA terms are still available to non-vets. Low-priced from $13,000 and monthly payments of only $66.60 including principal and interest, these 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath luxury homes have "everything" including wall-to-wall carpeting in many models.

To reach Walnut Manor drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to Walnut St. in Anaheim, then south 1 block to furnished models. Ideally located near schools, churches and the new Broadway Department Store shopping center, Walnut Manor is only one block off the Santa Ana Freeway and just 4 blocks from the proposed Disneyland golf course.

These homes feature "dream" kitchens with a view, 2 large dining areas, birch or mahogany cabinets, ceramic tiled counter tops and work tables and Waste King garbage disposers. The spacious living rooms are expensively panelled in mahogany and there are sliding walls of glass opening on to patio for carefree indoor-outdoor living.

In looks, too, Ford's out front—with styling that only the Thunderbird could inspire

Ford goes First!

In Performance

At NASCAR's Speed and Safety Events at Daytona Beach, Ford won the Manufacturer's Trophy for best all-around performance. And Ford's 225-h.p. Thunderbird Special V-8, in one day, smashed 30 world speed records at Kingman, Arizona. No wonder the Ford V-8 is the world's largest-selling eight.

In Safety

When the editors of "Motor Trend" unanimously voted Ford's safety program "the top car advance" of 1956, they had in mind Ford's Lifeguard Design . . . a whole family of safety features, including a deep-center steering wheel and double-grip door latches, to help protect you from injury in case of accident.

In Economy

In this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, a Ford Customline V-8 with Fordomatic Drive won over all cars in its class. The sturdier, heavier Ford carried more weight with greater gasoline economy per pound than any competitive car . . . "sixes" as well as "eights"! In this tough test, Ford proved itself a regular gas miser.

The way a Ford performs, the way it saves, the way it protects you, go hand-in-hand with the way it looks and lasts. Ford's look was inspired by America's most exciting car, the Thunderbird. Its rugged K-bar frame and carefully-built body give it the endurance and reliability traditional with Ford. These are the facts behind Ford's reputation as the car that's worth more when you buy it . . . worth more when you sell it, too! Come in and let us show you!

What's Going On in Government? Ask the League!

KEENLY AWARE of the responsibility of each citizen to exercise his right to vote, members of the Long Beach League of Women Voters use a giant-size sample ballot to spread their own awareness to the public. Mrs. C. E. Crittenden, left, and Mrs. George Hall, chairman of the League's voters service, join with other members of the League in interpreting to the public the pros and cons of ballot amendments. The group also uses questionnaires and candidate meetings to give people an opportunity to become acquainted with the men and women seeking public office.

OBSERVERS GROUP is an important facet of activity within the structure of the League of Women Voters as members strive to keep informed on local civic activities. Representatives from the observers attend each session of the City Council, Board of Education, Harbor Commission and Citizens Committee hearings, and in turn report back to the general membership. Here Mrs. Don Smith, chairman of the league observers, takes notes on a conference between, from left, John Davis, chairman of the Board of Harbor Commissioners; Mrs. Gail Hudson, president of the Board of Education, and Mayor George Vermillion.

Group Keeps Informed on Civic Issues

By JOYCE KENT

Susan B. Anthony and Carrie Chapman Catt could well be proud of their crusade for woman's right to vote if they were to visit for a day in Long Beach and watch the League of Women Voters in action.

As many faceted as a fine cut diamond is the structure of the League, with its light carrying far into the corners of government—local, state and national.

With a total Long Beach membership of 198 women, the League maintains headquarters at 3932½ E. 4th St., on Tuesday and Wednesday from 10 a. m. until noon. Members encourage the general public to visit headquarters for information on any civic question, or on becoming a member of the League. It also invites community groups to take advantage of the Speakers Bureau.

Units of the League meet regularly in geographic areas, with the total membership called together at least three times a year. Included among the many activities is a Voters Service, particularly active at election time, with members registering new voters and placing "reminder to vote" posters throughout the city.

Members of the legislative program write to local, state and national officials either in support of current legislation, or voicing its reasons for opposition.

Recent activities which give statistical evidence of the group's impact on the community include 2,000 new voters registered; 61,000 reminders to vote issued prior to the recent bond elections; and 5,000 leaflets distributed on pros and cons of ballot measures.

Of prime importance on the current agenda are plans for the state convention to take place May 15 through 17 in Long Beach. Mrs. Alexis Jacoubowsky of Long Beach has been appointed general chairman. Working with her as members of the convention committee are Mmes. W. D. Morris, Edythe M. Carman, Stewart S. Small, Terrance E. Roseen, C. E. Crittenden, George C. Underhill, David P. Mealiffe, Charlotte E. McGee, Rebecca Loy, Robert H. Minor and Miss Emma P. Greenman.

A two-year study of the "Administration of Juvenile Hall" now is being conducted in unit meetings. Last year members visited Juvenile Hall in Los Angeles and the Juvenile Bureau here, and at their annual meeting in April voted as a continuing responsibility, "support of adequate financing, efficient administration and sufficient trained personnel for Los Angeles County Juvenile Hall."

Second half of the study, shown on the 1956-57 agenda, will be needs of local government agencies concerned with the prevention and treatment of juvenile delinquency.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS members from throughout California will gather in Long Beach May 15 through 17, setting up headquarters at the Lafayette Hotel for their 35th annual state convention. To Long Beach goes the distinction of being not only convention "home," but also of having one of its leading citizens, Mrs. Alexis Jacoubowsky, standing right, as general chairman of the conclave. Among those assisting Mrs. Jacoubowsky on the convention committee are, from left, Mrs. W. D. Morris, Mrs. Harvey A. Barr, League president, and Mrs. Edythe Carman.

State Convention Slated Here

Thirty-fifth annual convention of the League of Woman Voters of California will take place in Long Beach with headquarters at the Lafayette Hotel, May 15 through 17. Mrs. Alexis Jacoubowsky of Long Beach has been appointed conclave chairman, and Mrs. Paul Holmer of Kentfield, state president, will preside.

Delegates from 44 Leagues throughout the state will meet here to formulate plans for the coming year. Possible action as a result of the current study on education in California will be determined, and the League's legislative program and action on ballot measures also will be discussed.

On the California level, a study of "The Administrative and Financial Structure of Public Education in California" is taking place in Leagues throughout the state during 1955-57. Mrs. Rebecca Loy is Long Beach chairman for the study topic.

Divided into two sections, the first year's study was on finance, and this spring marks the beginning of a year's study on the administrative structure of California Public Schools.

A special feature of the gathering will be reports from the national conclave scheduled April 30 to May 4 in Chicago, Ill. Representing the Long Beach League in Chicago will be Mrs. Harvey A. Barr, president, and Miss Mary Bell.

The League of Women Voters is a nonpartisan organization established in 1920 to study and act on governmental issues. An organization of "doers," League members dig in primarily at the local level, and it is there the League probably has its greatest impact.

The League has a membership of 127,000 with nearly 1,000 local groups in the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii and the District of Columbia. It has an unusual organizational setup, with local Leagues remarkably independent of each other on local issues, and providing a grass root basis for national policy.

The League does not support or oppose political parties or candidates. After intensive study it may take a position on an issue provided there is a consensus among the membership. It then supports or opposes specific legislation in accordance with that position.

Members are encouraged to work in the political party of their choice, but leaders closely identified in the public mind with the work of the League may not be active workers in their parties while holding League office.

MTA Speaker

"The American Symphony" is the topic of guest speaker Marian Higgins who will present her program before members of the Music Teachers' Association. The meeting is to be in Municipal Art Center Wednesday at 10:00 a. m.

—All photos on page by Staff Photographer H. S. Melvin.

MOTIVATED BY A DESIRE to keep informed on governmental issues—local, state and national—and in turn to inform the community, the unit meeting of the Long Beach League of Women Voters proves to be the "heart" of the organization. Units are divided into geographic areas for study, and all units are brought together periodically for general meetings and an exchange of knowledge. Meeting in a typical unit session in the picture at left are Mrs. Victor Willits, Mrs. David Mealiffe (standing), Mrs. Arthur Loy, Miss Emma Greenman and Miss Charlotte McGee. Still another phase of the League's work is shown in the picture at right which features a panel from the group's speakers' bureau. Speakers are available to any community group, with talks prepared on ballot issues, both pro and con, as well as current League study topic, "The Administration of Juvenile Hall." Panel members are, from left, Mrs. Stewart S. Small, Mrs. David W. Rose, Mrs. Robert H. Minor and Mrs. Ruth Foster Herman.

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

Essence of Bernice and "Curly" Stansbury's gay and pretty party yesterday was "please come by for cocktails so that we may introduce you to our new home." Consequently, invitations like that being among the most popular, a bevy of their friends said "we're so pleased to know you" to 1114 Tehachapi Dr.

Among those who toasted the new manse with amber liquids were Marguerita and Don Hall, Hazel and George Robinson, Nance and Bill Winston, Alma and Elmer Decker, and Donna Decker, Mildred and Bob Cook and Velma and Monk Cook.

Others who happily nibbled on tempting hors d'oeuvres were the Boyd McKinleys, Mable and Ned Brown, Oma and "Slim" Fowler, Muriel and Lloyd Hill, Frankie and Win Payne and Mildred and John Koster.

Most sought after couple present were Rosemary Applegate and Einar Peterson because, we've been told, they plan to marry in the near future! Then, let's see, other guests included Helene and Paul Dutton, Mollie and Bob Reid, Alice and Jack Stansbury, Nell and Irving Recknagel, Lucille and Harry Owens, Ann and Onas Lindsay, Gloria and Park Shorthose, Freda Owens and daughter, Diane Owens, and Paulette and Carl Herwick.

Couldn't be anything more pleasant than greeting old friends and meeting new people predestined to become close acquaintances! That's the way it will be when Donna Ridings entertains at a coffee hour for sister-in-law, Rosemary Jackson, this coming Wednesday. Rosemary and Howard are back in the civilian fold again after about 10 years Army duty. The Jacksons have bought a home near the Ridings on Myrtle and so Donna has asked soon-to-be neighbors over to meet Rosemary as well as friends from years gone by.

That popular and pretty new bride about town, Rosie Nicholson, was feted at a bridge luncheon Friday for 12 close friends by Peggy Akers in her home, 900 Cartagena. Lots of friendly laughter, talk, good food—and of course some bridge!

A coonskin cap darn near stole the show—laughwise, at least—at the GOP Jr.'s smart headdress ball last Saturday night at Lakewood Country Club. What's more it was worn very a la Estes Kefauver by Dr. Earl Gates in a sly rib-poker at all the staunch Republicans present. Which for no particular reason except as a rejoinder to Dr. Gates reminds us of the Washingtonian who said she felt out of date wearing her 1952 "I Like Ike" campaign button. Newest being sported in the capital read, "I Used to Like Ike—Now I Adore Him!"

Back to the GOP party. It was really loads of fun and there was never a lack of something to look at or talk about with all the clever head decorations devised by guests. Lorraine (Mrs. Mel) Hamer won sweepstakes prize for an exotic "Bridey Murphy Dream" creation. In the amateur division (headdresses made by the wearer herself) Kay (Mrs. William) Nesbitt took first honors for a luscious "Dream of a Kashmir Garden"; Edith (Mrs. Lewis) Hindley was second winner for her gay and stalwart "GOP Victory" head gear, and Dorothy (Mrs. Norris) Nelson was third place winner for a modernistic "Rocket-to-the-Moon" creation.

In the professional division (headdresses created for the wearer) Frances (Mrs. Lorris) O'Bryan took first honors and Pat (Mrs. James F.) Collins was second. Large kudos from everyone to Pat Horrocks and husband, Harold, for chairmanship of the affair and to Audrey Romeyn, president, and her staunch "right hand husband," Arnold.

Been conscious of the general exodus from Long Beach to Palm Springs this weekend? We have the reason: another of Frances and Henry Clock's elegant parties in their rambling desert home. Lots and lots of local people were bidden for cocktails and buffet yesterday.

Flashing eyed, laughing exuberance filled Doris Richards' 3905 Myrtle Ave. home last Sunday as Doris entertained for daughter, Janice, and her whole complement of just-turned-active Theta sisters from USC. In all 23 pledges and their dates celebrated the end of THAT week over buffet and fun-filled hours. Among the cute young gals present were Marjory Thomas (daughter of a certain Danny T.) and Sandy Crabbe (whose father is known as Buster).

Tiny Bertha Jaques took her courage in her own two fists and decided she'd fly off to New Orleans just for the sightseeing. Its a city she's never seen and always wanted to. She flew away last Saturday and on her return will stop in Houston, Texas, to visit daughter and son-in-law, Donna and Gordon Bartholomew and Bertha's little grandchildren, Stevie and Doug. She expects to be home by May Day.

This has been a year spelled out in capitals for Olive (Mrs. Sumi) Swanson and it isn't slowing up one bit. The YEAR has included rebuilding their home, traveling in Europe, greeting a new grandson, redecorating the rebuilt house and now comes a big reception today, a sort of open house for their refurbished home. Assisting will be the Swanson's daughter, Gloria Grandle, and their daughter-in-law, Deedee Swanson; Olive's sister, Della Goodmundson, as well as Gertrude Winston, Ella Burgess, Olivia Dodge and May Cook. About 130 Los Angeles and Long Beach friends have been bidden.

Tuesday Olive will entertain for Icelandic war brides of the area—about 35 in all—at a party in honor of Sumi's niece from Iceland who arrived last Saturday to make her home here with the Swansons. The honoree is tall, blond and Nordic Hrefna Asgeirson—a name to baffle and intrigue American ears, owned by a girl whose charm, nonetheless, will capture American hearts!

Ivah Blumenstein flew out of town last weekend, straight as a plane-line for Chicago, where she'll visit daughter, Carol, and her son-in-law. "Bush" plans to drive back about May 1 to visit, too, and chauffeur Ivah home.

Moving day has come and gone for Janice Humphreys who has almost outgrown the which-drawer-did-I-put-it-in phase by now in her new Belmont Park home.

If cute Sandy Hubbell ever travels to Monaco she'll have half the natives thinking she's "Her Grace, Grace." Her resemblance to la Kelly was noted repeatedly when she modeled at a Panhellenic fashion show last Saturday in a big Angelville store, a charming representative of her Delta Gamma chapter at USC.

Jack Teele, he with the collegiate good looks, Independent's sport's scribe and author of the zippy "Sports About Town" column gave this society scribe's world series opinions (baseball stuff, dear ladies) space last Tuesday. His remarks were much more clever than our pennant selections. But we'd still like to see the Braves and the Indians take to the warpath come series time! But, alas, the vanishing American!

'Mr. Willie' Is Quite a Man!

By ILKA CHASE

I went to call upon my old friend Mr. Willie. Many call him Willie; I call him Mister because he is elderly and famous. A good many thousands, possibly millions, after so long a time call him W. Somerset Maugham.

Mr. W. Somerset Maugham lives at Cap Perat, about half an hour—if you know the way — from Monte Carlo, and I drove over to have tea with him while I was doing my stint on the Kelly-Rainier wedding.

In treating me to the owner's tour through his beautiful house he showed me a batch of communications from the palace, inviting him to the wedding and assorted functions. He grumbled a bit about having to put on a stiff shirt and white tie in the morning, but I took it with a grain of salt. After all, what with those Coronations and openings of Parliament, many Englishmen pass their days looking like contestants on Masquerade Party, and I think he was secretly pleased to have been included in the festivities.

Not that he feels very much out of things, I shouldn't think. Hostesses clamor for him, and such obscure characters as Sir Winston Churchill count their day made when they lunch with him, although I understand the great statesman was heard to mutter that the stairs were a so-and-so nuisance and Willie should jolly-well install a lift.

As one who can claim neither the age nor the fame of Sir Winston, I am inclined to agree. It is tactless of Mr. Willie to be so spry at eighty-two. Not only are the staircases of his house long and high, but the house is set in a nine-acre property lavishly terraced, and he sprints like a gazelle up and down the outside stairs as well.

His happens to be a face for which I have great affection, but you could scarcely call it benign, and there is a detached waspish satisfaction in his gaze as he watches you huffing and puffing at his heels.

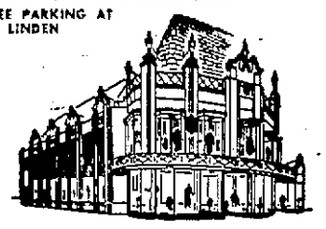

After a lifetime of acclaim there is little point in underestimating oneself. Maugham said quite frankly that his present to the Grimaldis had been three handsomely-bound volumes of his own short stories. "Less expensive for me than a jewel and more valuable to them." I gave to him, by way of a reunion present, a copy of my novel, "The Island Players," with qualms!

Maugham, in the quiet room at the top of his house looking out over the Mediterranean, now writes only about an hour a day. "But an hour every day, that mounts up," he said. In the past he has written religiously four hours a day and always in longhand. "I wish I could use a typewriter—I get bad writer's cramp." But a lifetime habit doesn't die. Besides, a handwritten manuscript is extra-ordinarily potent.

In March, when I went to San Francisco for a Book and Author Luncheon, I went to call on Mr. Bertram Alanson, an old friend of Maughams, who showed me the original manuscript of "Rain" that he has owned for many years. The handwriting evoked the man and his period and his thought as a typewritten sheet never can, and the tears stood in my eyes. It is a wonderful story.

It is wonderful, too, to wander through his high, square house, looking at his fine collection of the French impressionists, Pissarro and Sisley, Renoir and Matisse, an early Picasso and an early Utrillo; delightful to stroll along the terraced hillsides and gape at the swimming pool—to which any Hollywood pool would ripple a salute—and to say to oneself, glancing at the host at one's side, "an engaging combination of the sharp and mellow and very wise. Neither an assembly line nor a stock market nor an oil well did it, simply what came from that one small skull and that one right hand — with an assist from the lad in Gutenberg who happened to turn up with a printing press."

Pilot Club Installs; Quota to Host Gay Carnival

Popular Margaret Darby, office manager and assistant secretary for the Long Beach Recreation Commission since its inception, was installed president of Pilot Club of Long Beach at impressive ceremonies Wednesday night in the Starlight Roof of the Lafayette Hotel.

Mrs. Darby, who has a more than average "sidewalk superintendent" interest in architecture and construction acquired vicariously through her son, a designing civil engineer in San Francisco, will be joined in "piloting" Pilots by her officers Martha McRae, first vice president; Frances Catchpole, second vice president; Beulah Gee, treasurer; Lorene Yett, corresponding secretary; Virginia Rogers, recording secretary; and by directors Margaret Fenwick, Edith Klien, Virginia Linabury, Vern Preston, Ruth E. Tay (immediate past president) and Glada Thrall.

Joseph M. Kennick, chief of the Juvenile Bureau, was guest speaker and chose for his subject, "Service and Understanding, a Bridge to Peace" — which is also the theme of Pilot International for the year. Installation ceremonies were centered around a bridge motif with officers and directors each adding a span to complete the symbolic golden bridge as she took office.

Miss Jeanette Tracy, who was the featured lead in Wilson High School's production of "Oklahoma!" favored Pilots with well selected solos accompanied by Gloria Good.

The entire membership is assisting the "assistants." Open to the public, Quota Club particularly invites members of other women's service clubs of the area to attend.

Executives' Secretaries

"April in Paris" was the lighthearted theme for Executives' Secretaries meeting Monday at the Chandelier Restaurant and the theme was vastly enhanced by the songs of talented member Anne Barrows who entertained with several French compositions and by showing of glamorous colored pictures by Agnes Herbst taken on her recent trip to Europe.

President Georgia Gagna conducted the meeting with Grace Cooney, program chairman, presenting the program.

Dental Assistants

A new type of fashion show —but certainly a practical one for Harbor District Dental Assistants was presented at their dinner meeting Monday in the Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel. The dental assistants were shown a complete array of latest uniforms from Nelsons as well as after office hours styles from Micheles. Modeling were club members Jean Hatch, Helen Tenkoff, Eva Miner, Rosemary Leedom, Chesna Duis, Pat Inge, Theresa Hansen and Bettye Watkins.

Preceding dinner and fashion show members gathered at 6:30 for the customary social hour. Harriet Beadle was chairman in charge of the evening's activities. Mothers of members were especially honored on this evening. Decorations were carried out in a spring motif by Mary Ellen Doll. Business-wise, two major events took place — the election of new officers and presentation of the Clinic Trophy Award for the winning clinician. Winning clinician was Eva Miner for her presentation of "Credit and Collections" at the March meeting.

Elected to serve during the next year were Rosemary Leedom, president; Harriet Beadle, president-elect; Jean Hatch, vice president; Eva Hastings, recording secretary; Bettye Watkins, corresponding secretary; and Chesna Duis, treasurer. President Viola Engel conducted the meeting.

Mrs. H. L. Collins Named Fleet Wives President

Beautiful music, beautiful clothes and echoes of "isn't that stunning" filled the Officers Club at Allen Center when board members of the Fleet Officers' Wives Club staged a lovely fashion show as their final function of the club year.

Nor was the style affair the only exciting business of the day. Election of officers preceded the program and named to lead the active Navy wives through the coming year was Mrs. H.L. Collins, wife of Adm. Collins who is Commander of Cruiser Division One, here. Mrs. Collins is well used to club offices having lately been vice president of the Treasure Island Officers Wives Club where her husband served as Commander, Military Sea Transport Service.

Elected to serve with Mrs. Collins were Mmes. N. P. Watkins, first vice president; Earl E. Buckwalter, second vice president; H. A. May, secretary; and L. E. Darby, treasurer.

During the showing of new styles from a Beverly Hills shop everyone from admirals' wives to ensigns' wives were busy taking notes on fashion ideas for their own wardrobes. Mrs. Joseph Rayburn was chairman of the show and models were all officers' wives including Mmes. W. F. Hardman, R. D. Faubian, J. E. Labarre, M. L. Hermsmeyer, E. B. Flory, Donald Pommer and Robert W. McElrath.

Commentator was Keith Gibson, who has been a commentator for Don Loper, California designer. Responsible for the lovely floral table decorations were Mmes. R. Ross, K. T. Shortall and O. B. Parker.

CAUGHT INFORMALLY by the camera lens as she chatted over her coffee cup is Mrs. H. L. Collins, just after her election as new president of Fleet Officers' Wives Club. Wife of Adm. Collins, commander of Cruiser Division I, the new president was elected at the last meeting of the club.

POET GUEST

Mrs. Ethel Jacobsen of Fullerton, well known humorous poet and authoress, will appear before Long Beach Writers' Club at their meeting Thursday at the Art Center. Club contest winners will be announced and there will be election of officers. Mrs. Mary Alden Campbell, president, has announced guests will be welcome.

DBE Luncheon

All natives of the British Commonwealth will be welcome to attend a luncheon to be given Tuesday by DBE Kitchener Chapter in the home of Mrs. Doris Newton, 560 E. 21st St. at 12:30 p. m.

Special Teaching Methods Explained to Soroptimists

June Giddings, supervisor of special education in the Long Beach Schools, was recent guest speaker for Soroptimist Club at its noon luncheon meeting at the Lafayette Hotel. Her provocative talk, "What's Special in Special Education," was supplemented with color slides exemplifying the special techniques and equipment used in this field of teaching.

For certain physically handicapped children, Miss Giddings explained, home-school telephones are installed so the child at home actually "attends" regular classes; can answer questions, talk to his classmates and feel part of the every day school life. For the blind and partially blind there are Braille writers and books with large print or in Braille. Special tables and equipment for teaching coordination and color are used by children with cerebral palsy. These youngsters are provided with taxi transportation if parents are unable to bring them to school.

For the deaf and those with seriously impaired hearing there are lip-reading classes as well as hearing equipment for teaching through vibration. For the mentally retarded many methods are used to educate them to the farthest degree of their ability. In every case, the child—as a person—comes first.

Miss Giddings was introduced by Javus Fortman, who presided in the absence of President Gladdes Neff while Mrs. Neff was in attendance at a Soroptimist conference in Las Vegas.

Pythian Sisters

Long Beach Temple No. 63, Pythian Sisters, will meet Monday at 8 p. m. in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave.

Betrothal Told

Engagement and approaching wedding May 12 of Patricia A. Briggs and Douglas C. Haines is being announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Briggs of Huntington Beach. Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. H. Haines of 928 Temple Ave. The bride-elect attended Huntington Beach High School; and her fiance received his education at Poly High School where he was a member of Delphi. They will say their vows in Lakewood Community Church. Several pre-nuptial bridal showers will compliment Miss Briggs.

Messicks Complete Southwest Lectures

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

Ben and Velma Messick, 133 St. Joseph Ave., are back from a New Mexico and Arizona tour on which Messick, a fellow of the Royal Society of Arts in England and winner of many awards, gave 10 lectures and demonstrations.

He appeared at La Posada Hall, Santa Fe; Blue Door Gallery, Taos, N. M.; Botts Memorial Hall, Albuquerque; University of Arizona, Tucson; Tucson Art Center; Phoenix Art Center and Arizona State College, Tempe.

On much of the tour they were accompanied by Michael M. Engel of New York, director of art research for M. Grumbacher of New York, and wife, Mary Black Diller, portrait painter. The Engels, who have been at Grand Canyon for several days, are expected in Long Beach this weekend.

The visiting artists were entertained by the New Mexico Art League at Albuquerque; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bates of Albuquerque (Mrs. Bates is president of the New Mexico Art League); Emil Bisstram, head of the Taos School of Art, and Mrs. Bisstram (Mrs. Messick studied under Bisstram when he was in Los Angeles some years ago); Powell Scott, head of the art department of the University of Arizona; Frances O'Brien, Tucson portrait painter who does many magazine covers, and Dr. Harry Wood, head of the art department of Arizona State College.

A painting done by Messick in the demonstration in the Phoenix Art Center has been framed and hangs in the permanent collection there.

Messick did some traditional painting and several abstract designs. Into the abstract design he then painted a traditional subject, showing the importance of good drawing, as well as design and color for painting.

The Messicks sketched in Taos and in Oak Creek Canyon, Ariz. It was snowing in Oak Creek, and they drove away with four inches of snow on their car.

A loss to art circles in the greater Long Beach area was felt this week with the resignation by Miss Judith Cieslak as educational curator of Municipal Art Center. She has been granted a Fulbright scholarship for nine months graduate study at the University of Paris.

Her termination with the Art Center is April 30. Until she sails for France in September she will visit with her parents in Chicago.

Interested in esoteric problems related to 19th Century art, Miss Cieslak plans to write a monograph on Gustave Moreau, an obscure 19th Century French painter.

She will attempt to show him as a symptomatic figure of maladies of his century. Her project has been approved by the commission granting the scholarships.

To qualify, a candidate must have superior scholastic aptitude and background and ability to meet situations. Since funds for the scholarships are contributed by foreign countries and distributed through the state department, those granted the scholarships are known as good will ambassadors from the U. S.

Miss Cieslak studied art history at the University of Minnesota, received her master's degree there and was a university teaching and research assistant there before coming to Long Beach.

Drawings and paintings created for exchange among the youth of many nations through Junior Red Cross may be seen this week in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Hours will be 1-6 p. m. today; 9-5 p. m. Tuesday through Friday. Background music from many countries will be supplied by recordings.

Twenty-three paintings by California artists, including Francis de Erdely, Leonard Edmondson, Richard Haines, S. MacDonald-Wright, Richards Ruben, Sueo Serisawa, Millard Sheets and Howard Warshaw will be shown through May 13 in Municipal Art Center, 2030 E. Ocean Blvd.

Also displayed through May 13 at the Art Center are Creative Photography, exhibit of photographs including work by Roger Coar and Victor Haveman of Long Beach and Henry Niska of San Pedro; ceramics by Ward Yourey, State College instructor, and three prize-winning paintings by Fran Soldini and seven paintings by her students.

This is the last day to see Haitian primitive paintings in Pomona College's Rembrandt Hall, Claremont. From Pomona College, the exhibit will go to the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco. The paintings come partly from the collection of Jason Seley of New York and mostly from the Centre d'Arte, Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

Demo Women Meeting Plans

Mrs. Jewell Boynton will be featured speaker at the meeting of the North Long Beach Women's Study Club Wednesday at Houghton Park Clubhouse with Mrs. Nelson Torpey presiding.

Mrs. Boynton will speak at 12:30 p. m. and has selected as her topic, "Women and Their Importance in Politics in the World Today." All Democratic women in the area and their friends will be welcomed.

Mrs. Virgil Koon Elected to Head N. L. B. Women

Meeting in Jordan Hi-Teen Canteen Wednesday, members of North Long Beach Women's Club elected Mrs. Virgil Koon president. The new executive brings to her office a rich background of club experience. Within her own organization she has served on many committees, including publicity, program, Americanism, federation secretary and corresponding secretary, and was a member of the Choralettes.

This year she has served as literature chairman of the County Federation, CFWC; was on the Council of Parents and Teachers; is a past president of Jordan High School, where she was awarded a life membership. She is a member of North Long Beach Methodist Church choir, sings with the Long Beach Civic Chorus and is a member of Fiorella Guild, Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Koon are five vice presidents: Mmes. Ruel Hird, William Adams, Claton Watson, Rawlin Abrahamson and Martin Bonnewitz; recording secretary, Mrs. F. E. Williams; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. A. Robinson; financial secretary, Mrs. R. A. Terrell; treasurer, Mrs. R. C. Auth; general chairman of standing committees, Mrs. Earl Heise; and curator of departments, Mrs. William O'Harra.

The program, arranged by the Garden Department under direction of Mrs. Jasper Sanders, featured as speaker Mrs. J. W. Jenson from the African Violet and Begonia Societies.

Group Seven, with Mrs. William Adams as chairman, served as hostesses at the sandwich and salad bar. Stage decorations of colorful spring blossoms were arranged by Mrs. Lester Peebles. Greeting guests and members at the door were Mmes. Carl Puckett, Abrahamson and Paul Lawrence.

Under direction of Mrs. J. L. Montague, group advisor, names were drawn for new groups; chairmen will be chosen at a later date. Mrs. Lee Carter, president, conducted the business session at which time the award for the Institutions and Veterans Affairs, won at the district convention, was displayed.

Events on the future calendar announced were: Book and Travel Department to meet April 23 with Mrs. Earl Heise, 6516 California Ave., for election of new officers; Philanthropy Department, to meet with Mrs. Pearl Lumley, 3955 Locust Ave. April 25 for covered dish luncheon and election; and a card party to be sponsored by the latter department and the Project Committee April 30 at North Long Beach YMCA. Proceeds will be used to complete the furnishing of the YMCA kitchen.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

by PLACER MINER

Advice for the future can be obtained by attending the annual Business Career Day Conference at Long Beach State College, next Friday, April 27.

Sponsored by the State College business fraternity, Psi Kappa Alpha, the program offers to high school and junior college students the facts, figures, and futures in six major business fields.

The program will get under way with a luncheon for fraternity members at the Hawaiian.

Campus activities will start at 1 p. m. in the Little Theatre, with speakers in the fields of accounting, business education, finance, management, marketing and personnel. A special agent for the FBI will also be on hand.

All business students from State College, surrounding high schools and junior colleges have been invited to take advantage of the conference, get acquainted with Long Beach State College, and be guests of Psi Kappa Alpha.

It's politickin time out at Long Beach State College. The 49er campus not to be outdone by all this national excitement, has come to the time, as it does each year, to choose new students officers.

However, this is not a matter to be rushed into. All candidates must take a test on the school constitution, restrict their posters around the campus to 50 square feet, and not spend more than $10 for publicity and advertising.

Publicity posters were not allowed up before 7 a. m. last Thursday and must be taken down by 9 p. m. next Tuesday. Perhaps it is needless to add that careful restrictions were laid down to keep the posters from defacing the campus and its buildings.

The holders of 23 offices will be decided next Tuesday, and if a run off is necessary, it will be held Friday.

Those two Mexican trips reported here last week have turned out to be only one.

Instead of two trips, there is a choice of two courses. Option No. 1 is: The student may take the full course which includes the two-week instructional course before the trip, or, No. 2, the trip itself.

College credit will be given for the trips which are under the direction of LBSC instructor Oliver P. Johnstone. The trip will cover territory from Guadalajara to Oaxaca, to Puebla to Acapulco. Cost of the tour is $550, which includes transportation, lodgings, and meals.

Perhaps you might have noticed it! Summer is approaching, and summer means employment to a lot of students.

The Long Beach State College Placement Office keeps students informed of potential jobs, arranges for students to apply for jobs, and invites representatives from employers and firms to visit the college and talk to graduating students.

Next week, for example, three representatives from different firms will be on hand to look for promising additions to their companies.

Part time work is also taken care of by the placement office. It's quite a service the school offers and quite a few students take advantage of it. A job is sometimes the difference between school or no school.

Beards, well I guess! The campus looks as though it was either a spring camp for a House of David convention, or a return to the days of the forty-niners.

Rules covering the facial growth have decided that two prizes will be given. One for the longest beard, and one for the beard requiring the most effort. Just what the effort is no one but the judges know. Perhaps it's growing it; some of those guys are really putting their heart into the project.

State Conclave

Long Beach Gold Star Mothers Inc. will be represented at the state convention of their organization at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, April 23-25, by Elsie Scruggs, Margaret Winter and nine delegates and eight alternates.

DRUGGISTS' WIVES AID SCHOLARS
These members of the Long Beach Pharmaceutical Auxiliary are arranging awards to be given at the annual bridge luncheon Tuesday at Pacific Coast Club. May Day Luncheon at Allen Center to Be Gay Event for Officers' Wives

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

With May Day as their theme, with its gay accent on beautiful flowers and lovely spring colors, the busy Officers' Wives Club of Long Beach will meet on May 1 at 12:30 p. m. at the Officers Club, Allen Center, for an important luncheon meeting. This will be the time of election of officers for the coming year and all members are urged to attend to cast their vote.

Now another important note to remember is that reservations must be called in to either Mrs. R. M. Whelpley or Mrs. J. L. McAnn by noon of Saturday, April 28.

As do so many high-ranking retired Navy folks, so do the former residents of this city, Capt. Dirk M. te Groen, USN, (ret) and Mrs. te Groen who have returned to call this their permanent home.

Just back from Corpus Christi, Texas, where Capt. te Groen was commanding officer of the Naval Hospital there, the well known couple have taken residence at 5291 E. 27th St. and Capt. te Groen has just taken the position of associate director of the Harbor Branch of the Los Angeles General Hospital located in Torrance.

Prior to the te Groens' duty and residence in Texas, they enjoyed three wonderful years seeing parts of Europe while the medical officer was stationed in Italy where he was senior medical officer for NATO.

While in Italy, Mrs. te Groen said, they attended many brilliant social events that included nations of all the world and were superb in their Old World charm and graciousness.

Among the loveliest spring luncheon parties of the entire season was the recent event given at the Assistance League Clubhouse by Mmes. Arthur Moen, G. W. McMillin, D. C. Laizure and F. D. Truesdell for their many civilian and service friends in this area.

A surprise potluck luncheon plus a lovely farewell gift was given last Tuesday for popular Mrs. Gene Fair by members of the Tuesday Bridge Club. Among those attending were: Mmes. Dale Everly, William House, Nap Rainbolt, Gus Kraft, Frank Lowry, Paul Greeny, Leon Forman and Willis Brooks at whose home the affair took place.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig are enjoying a vacation in Palm Springs and are spending some time at Lake Arrowhead.

House guests of Lt. and Mrs. A. E. Hohn are the Navy officer's nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Steen from Luverne, Minn.

In San Francisco seeing the cosmopolitan sights of the hilly city are Col. and Mrs. Frank Lowry of this city.

Newly-elected president of the Long Beach Air Force Officers' Wives Club, Mrs. Nick DiGiglio, announced the appointment of her committees: Mmes. J. W. Underwood, hospitality; Betty Kline, ways and means; Connie Turpin, entertainment; N. Rainbolt, military dependents league; Irene Palmer, liaison; Xyla Steverson, bridge; and Kathrine Alverson, welfare.

Wednesday, April 18, the Mine Forces Officers' Wives Club met at Welch's for a spring luncheon party; hostesses were Mrs. Thomas B. Wilson and Mrs. William Schaefer.

Back from the Far East is former 2nd Lt. John Peterson, who is now a civilian. He and Mrs. Peterson and family were in Berkeley recently visiting Mrs. Peterson's folks, and will remain here until fall, when they will move to the Bay area, where the former Air Force officer plans to attend law school in San Francisco.

Cmdr. B. P. O'Hare enjoyed fishing with friends at San Felipe, Mexico, recently.

Enjoying dinner and visiting with T/Sgt. and Mrs. Robert Bragg in Riverside were M/Sgt. and Mrs. Albert T. Sandborn.

Mrs. Kalgern and children, Karen and Cheryl, are remaining here while Staff Sgt. Blaine A Kalgern is on temporary additional duty at Parks Air Force Base near San Francisco.

While A-1c Ralph W. Murphy goes on to duty in Goose Bay, Labrador, his wife, Mrs. Murphy, and children, Francis and Christopher, will go to Mrs. Murphy's former home in London, England, to visit friends and relatives, while awaiting her husband's return. Because of the extreme hardship and cold, families are not allowed to go to Goose Bay.

At a recent meeting of the NCO Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Base where Mrs. Murphy was honored with a farewell shower, she expressed gratitude for the kindness and friendly feeling she found here in Long Beach for service families.

It was really different and loads of fun, the exciting do-it-yourself barbecue party held recently at BOQ, NAS, Los Alamitos, by the officers of that station and their ladies as a farewell event honoring the former executive officer, Cmdr. and Mrs. B. A. Miles, who are leaving shortly for Lincoln, Neb. There the newly-promoted captain will assume command of the Naval Air Station.

At the party, Capt. Joseph B. Paschal presented Capt. Miles with a lovely farewell gift from officers of the station.

Lt. Cmdr. A. McDonald and family left Friday for a vacation in Tucson, Ariz., to visit with relatives and then will go on to Sacramento to see friends and relatives before returning home.

Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. R. R. Lovelady and family are leaving for a vacation in Lubbock and Coleman, Tex., to see relatives and friends.

Unaffiliates Meet

Unaffiliated PEOs interested in organizing an evening chapter are invited to attend a meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Mary Ellen Chase, 2038 Stevely Ave.

Look Who's Dancing . . . .

An entrancing springtime motif will greet dancers assembling at Fine Arts Center this week as throughout the ballroom colorful birds swinging in rattan cages hang from blossoming branches, their imaginary songs seeming to fill the air with happy melodies.

Churches Need Service From Their Lay People

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case R-336; Bert B., aged 31, is married and has two children.

"Dr. Crane, I need some vocational advice," he began, unhappily. "I am a die maker with Alcoa and have a steady job. But my mother always wanted me to be a clergyman.

"I couldn't see things her way while I was younger but now I realize the valuable leadership that preachers offer their communities.

"So I am wondering if maybe I shouldn't go back to school and study to be a minister. I have a wonderful wife and she says she will sacrifice to help me go to college. So what do you suggest I do?"

Nowadays the churches are emphasizing that ministers obtain four years of college and then an additional three years in theological seminary.

That means seven years of schooling would lie ahead of Bert. The financial strain would likewise be great, since he is married and has two children to support.

So I reminded him that a layman can exert a tremendous amount of good if he will serve as a sparkplug in the church. Indeed, the founder of the Christian religion was a layman. For Jesus was not of the priestly tribe of Levi, nor had he attended a theological seminary.

Jesus was a carpenter from the non-clerical tribe of Judah. If on earth today, he would possibly speak to us as an AFL member of the Carpenter's Union.

Furthermore, Jesus chose 12 Apostles to serve as the mainstays of the new Christian religion. Oddly enough, not even ONE of those Apostles was a clergyman.

No, they were ordinary workers, such as fishermen, Christ was surrounded by many trained clergymen but he didn't select even one of them for an Apostle.

The greatest sparkplug in building new churches during that first century A. D., was also a man who worked all day as a tentmaker. His name was Paul. He probably devoted 10 hours per day (maybe 12) to his job of sewing canvas to make tents.

Only when, figuratively, the quitting whistle had blown, did he shift his energy to the absorbing hobby or avocation which has made him famous—namely, the job of preaching on street corners and the founding of little mission churches.

Clergymen are the most influential men in modern society and we need to recruit topnotch youth for these vital posts.

But laymen should never feel discouraged. They can emulate St. Paul and leave a lasting imprint of their constructive personality on civilization, just by their lay work in moral societies.

Think of the splendid services rendered in the Red Cross and Community Chest Drives.

So in Bert's case I suggested that he could probably do more good for the cause of the church as a livewire layman and Boy Scout leader than go back to college for a 7-year schooling.

This feature also appears Tuesday and Thursday in the Independent.

Your Baby & Mine

Are You a 'Spanker'?

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Whenever we mention the subject of spanking we get all kinds of responses to it. Largely because all mothers do not think the same about spanking. The same motives do not influence them and so no two of them can see the subject in the same way.

There are about four general categories into which we might place mothers and note their probable differences and thus why their reactions are so varying.

First there is the mother who never, never will spank. She doesn't believe in it. She doesn't think it effective. She considers persons who use it to be "low" and ignorant.

Also, she has a sense of revulsion at belaboring a helpless child. She may use many other methods of punishment (and some of these might be equally ineffective) but her intelligence will not allow her to use spanking.

There is a large group of intelligent and thoughtful mothers who use spanking occasionally. They do this when the child's behavior is such that they consider this to be the ultimate remedy. They want to show their disapproval strongly and words and milder punishment do not seem to fill the bill. They spank infrequently but firmly and painfully, when necessary. They intend to show the child that he has gone beyond the limits of their endurance.

There are many parents who use no other form of discipline. They spank as easily as they yell. It is a spontaneous kind of behavior and the child expects it, doesn't think too much of it, yells in return, gets out of the way and isn't either helped or harmed too much by it. He knows when his mother disapproves and if he feels her disapproval is justified he may react to it. If he thinks it unjust, he screams and cries loudly enough to satisfy her that he is being punished and then he goes on and does as he pleases again.

There is another type of parent who is sadistic in her approach to a child's misbehavior. She doesn't like children. She is mad at life and all its frustrations. She wants to hurt something and children are an easily available target. In this way she gets back at something for having loaded her with responsibilities and burdens she has no way of sloughing off.

How could one expect that these four general types of mothers would think of spanking in the same way? They are intellectually, emotionally and temperamentally separated from each other.

The parent who takes out on her children the blows fate has dealt her, is cruel and mean. She damages her child because she destroys his belief and confidence in himself. She wants to hurt and she does, not only physically but emotionally.

It's apparent that just to say you're for or against spanking doesn't mean much unless you know what type of mother is using it—and how.

Nine-Day Diet Follows on the Heels of Spring

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

When 9-Day Diet appears in Why Grow Old? you can be sure that it's spring! Each year along with the robins and flowers and new leaves comes this short diet series to help you get ready for swim suits and light summer clothing.

We are likely to pick up a few extra pounds during the winter months, in fact many of us are apt to pick up a few most any old time when we become careless about our calorie intake.

However, many women begin the fall slim and sleek or just a little overweight and then comes Thanksgiving. We just get over that when Christmas arrives, with New Year's celebrations following immediately afterward. Then, too, we are less active physically in winter weather and cold winds whet our appetites.

The result of all this may be a gain of from five to 10 pounds, just the number you can lose in nine days' time. It is so much easier to stick to a diet if you know just what you can accomplish in a given length of time, especially when the time is short.

So 9-Day Diet can solve your problem quickly is you have just a few pounds to lose. If you are many more than 10 pounds overweight it will give you an encouraging start on a longer reducing trek.

Tomorrow I will give you your diet for Tuesday so that you will be able to do your marketing on Monday. Therefore, 9-Day Diet will begin on Monday in the Press-Telegram and last for nine days. Each day the menus for the following day will appear in this column.

If you would like to have my complete 9-Day Reducing Diet in a pocketbook-size booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

"When in doubt, lead trumps," West murmured to himself at the beginning of today's hand. This may have been good advice in the days of whist, but the rule has no place in contract bridge. It is particularly foolish to lead trumps against a slam contract.

The trump lead was welcomed by Alvin Landy, executive manager of the American Contract Bridge League, during the recent tournament for the Harold S. Vanderbilt Trophy. Landy, an expert as well as a tournament manager, proceeded to run off the rest of the trumps to see what he could find out.

It would have been safe for East to discard all of his hearts and one diamond. He might have been able to come to this conclusion if West had opened the deuce of hearts. With no information at all to guide him, East floundered and sank. At a fairly early stage he discarded the nine and then the jack of clubs.

Landy saw East's distress and correctly interpreted the club discards. He led the king of clubs from his hand, forcing out the ace and picking up the queen at the same time. The ten of clubs was then good for his twelfth trick.

Alvin F. Slaight

Chef of the Week

'Turned Out to Pasture,' Retired Chief Still Racing

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor.

He's retired! After 21 years with the Long Beach Police Department, five of which he served as its chief, Chef of the Week Alvin F. (Al) Slaight is now "down on the farm." The city limits of Long Beach surround it, however.

Though born in Ava, Mo., the county seat, Slaight moved with his family to central Kansas in time for his grand entry into kindergarten. He was a full-fledged Kansas lad (19 years) when he deserted the prairie for the sea. With the U. S. Navy, he toured the world on the USS Pennsylvania.

It was in 1926 that he came to Long Beach and joined the police department. Starting as a patrolman he went up the ranks, becoming its chief in 1944. He held that position until retirement in 1949. Some big name gamblers came under his surveillance as head of the vice squad during the robust gambling ship era. It was Slaight who had the graveyard watch at the time of the still mysterious anti-aircraft "raid" early in World War II.

A fullback with a reputation, Slaight captained the Long Beach Police team for a period of two years.

His hobbies are horses, and he has ridden since he was big enough to sit atop one—even including circuit races. He presently rides with the Long Beach Mounted Police and has served them as a past president. Slaight officiated as general chairman when that group journeyed to Washington, D. C. to ride in President Eisenhower's inaugural parade. He "transported" some 126 people and 48 head of horses.

Though officially he has retired, being a man of action, he subsequently runs a used car business and owns a farm back in Kansas way.

Our "chef" is a man known for preferring his steaks "straight" and rare, yet he's gone fancy today, coming up with a recipe for Swiss Steak in sour cream.

SWISS STEAK IN SOUR CREAM

3 pounds round steak (2 inches thick)
Flour, salt, pepper, fat
2 onions, sliced
½ cup water
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons grated cheese
¾ teaspoon paprika

Dredge steak with flour and season with salt and pepper. Brown on both sides in hot fat. Add remaining ingredients, cover pan closely and simmer until meat is tender, about 2½ hours. Serves 6 to 8.

Jewell Tent

The Sewing Club of Emily R. Jewell Tent No. 15, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, will meet April 26 in Veterans Memorial Bldg. for a covered-dish luncheon at 11 a. m. and an afternoon of sewing and cards.

Election Slated

New officers will be elected and outgoing officers honored at a noon meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Harbor Chapter, Painting and Decorating Association on Thursday, April 26, at Sam's Sea Food Spa, Surfside. Mrs. C. L. Tewell and Mrs. Dan Alde will be hostesses.

Molly Mayfield

Hubby Has a 'Honeybunch'

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been happily married for four years. Happily married, that is, until three months ago. Then I discovered that my devoted (?) hubby and my best (?) friend were slipping little love notes to each other.

I always thought this best (?) friend of mine was just a bookworm. Every time she came to our house, she had her nose in the books. Then three months ago, I discovered her literary attraction. As I was dusting, I dropped a uniquely-bound red book. A note from her to my husband fell out of it. It was a gem! Here's how it began:

"Dearest Jim,

"It's a cold winter night, and I have a fire crackling in the fireplace. I'm sitting on the couch, and I'm wearing my gold robe, and what do you think I'm doing? Thinking of you, honeybunch, thinking of you . . ."

There was more drivel, but that will give you an idea. I kept watch and discovered that my husband would put similar sweet nothing in the red book, to be picked up later by her.

My husband always makes a fuss over me, and claims to love me. I think he does, in his way, but he wants a little fun on the side. I haven't said a word yet, but I'm about to. I think the thing that makes me maddest is that she always calls him "Honeybunch." Actually, I don't think this has progressed out of the note-writing stage. She's married, too.

Now, Molly, before I really blow my stack, advise me what to do. —BURNED-UP

DEAR BURNED-UP:

I can see you've kept your sense of humor through this, and that's a valuable ally. Maybe together we can break some spokes in that old gal's wheels.

You sit right down now and write a note to "Dear Honeybunch." Tell her you know the whole story, and that you'll gladly relinquish your husband to her, but only on condition that she marry him.

As for Hubby, start calling him "Honeybunch" at every opportunity. Now and then, you might even call him up at work and tell him, "I'm sitting on the couch thinking of you, Honeybunch, thinking of you." I'll bet he gets so sick of it he won't look at another "Honeybunch." Not for a while, anyway. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a girl just turned 16, and I think I have a hard problem. My mother won't let me do any of the things other girls in my classes do. I'm not allowed to wear lipstick or have dates. I can't even stay up past 8:30.

I can't date because Mother says no boys can be trusted. We have talked about dating at school, and the teacher says I should be allowed to have dates at my age. I'm not allowed to go to school doings, either.

I love my mother, but I think she is wrong about this. She says I'm boy-crazy and says other girls my age don't like boys. —DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

I never like to take sides against a mother, but in this case, I feel your mother is being unjust. She means the best for you, we both know, but she's away behind the times. Why, even in my day—and that was quite a while ago—girls of 16 were allowed to wear lipstick.

The 8:30 bedtime seems a mite severe, too. At 16, I don't think it would hurt your health to stay up regularly to oh, say 10 p.m., with a midnight curfew on Fridays.

And, of course, you should be allowed to attend some of the school functions with boys. That's part of the fun of going to high school, and no girl should miss it. Those school-day memories will be dear in after years.

I'll make two suggestions. One, show this letter to your mother. It might help. Two, ask your teacher to call on your mother, and perhaps invite her to look in on one of the school dances. Let's hope it works! M.M.

Next Saturday evening they will stage their annual spring dance in the Supper and Ballerina Rooms at Lafayette Hotel. Funds obtained from this final social event of the season will go to the club's philanthropic projects, Exceptional Children's Foundation and aid for Navajo Indian Children.

The dance is open to the public and tickets will be sold at the door. Music will be provided by George Laughlin and his Melody Crew.

In charge of arrangements is Mrs. Robert Greenberg, dance chairman. Mrs. Bernard Quinn and her committee are supervising decorations.

BPW Club Installs

Choosing, "Understanding" as her theme for the year, Mrs. Doris Dearden assumed the presidency of Margaret Ives Business and Professional Women-en's Club at a gala, beautifully appointed dinner meeting at the Lafayette Hotel Monday evening.

A floral setting emphasizing the federation colors of green and gold added color and beauty to the scene and provided a background for the impressive installation ceremony conducted by Myrl Cypher, past district president and a member of the Margaret Ives Club.

Seated with Mrs. Dearden as her official slate of 1956-57 officers were Maxine Hill, vice president; Clara Christe, recording secretary; Virginia Lightle, corresponding secretary, and Lilly Lee, treasurer.

The evening was highlighted with an excellent program. Light opera selections were sung by Henri Scanlon, founder and director of Singers' Workshop and Jackie McFadden, also a Workshop favorite. Mrs. Paul Louder served as accompanist.

The 10 members added to the club roster during the term just closed were honored as "personalities" of 1955-56 in an original skit arranged by Laura Jane Walter and Helen Schlesinger.

Hazel Hamilton, retiring president, was presented with the traditional past president's pin as well as with a handsome silver tray in appreciation from her board of directors. Mrs. Cypher received a silver compote from the club in recognition of her outstanding service to BPW and for her official duties as installing officer.

Ann Rogers served as chairman of the evening and was assisted in various capacities by Alberta McKay and Vivian Showalter.

Church Reception Given for Golden Year Couple

More than 100 relatives and friends congregated at Westside Christian Church last Sunday for a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William Terry, 530 Chestnut Ave., on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary. The couple was married in Grundy County, Mo., on April 18, 1906, coming to Long Beach 18 years ago from Newkirk, Okla., to make their home.

Four daughters and a son were all present at the reception. Their children are William D. Terry, Mrs. Louis G. Hart, Mrs. Reno Gaudino, all of Long Beach, Mrs. Lester Hodkin of Arkansas City, Kan., and Mrs. Ray Orr of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

During the reception hours four of the couple's ten grandchildren, Terry Hart, Gay, Lyn and Don Guadino, presented a musical program. Mr. and Mrs. Terry stood in a large symbolic golden wedding ring as they received their friends. The couple's good friend, Mrs. Edna Buck, was in charge of decorations for the reception hall which was bedecked with blossoms all of a golden shade and she also decorated the big anniversary cake. Mr. and Mrs. Terry are both active members of First Christian Church where Mr. Terry is also a member of the Men's Bible Class.

60 Dancers to Perform on Program

Sixty dance artists from the Artesia Tap-Toe Academy, under the direction of Viola Gahr, will present a program of tap, ballet, baton and song and dance numbers on the Community Program, sponsored by the Recreation Department in the Exhibit Hall of the Municipal Auditorium Monday at 8 p.m.

Featured acts will include Louis Grass, fast tap; Laura Lee Gahr, baton tap; Elaine Brooks and Penn Shipley, Old Fashioned Duo; Marilyn Plemon, rhumba tap; Johnny Faragher, rhythm tap; Gayle Brumley and Betty Gabrych, Pop Goes the Weasel; Sandra Haygood, solo tap; Patty Dixon, soft shoe; Diane Florance, solo with two lighted batons; eight four-year-olds in a song and dance routine, "Me and My Teddy Bear"; a Military Tap by seven beautifully costumed girls: and numbers by Diane's Debonettes, a baton twirling corps of 14 girls. Instructors of the young artists are Peggy Walker and Diane Florence.

Community singing will open the program at 7:30 p.m., led by George Griffith, local tenor, with Mrs. Madeline Frazer at the piano.

Old-time and square dancing to the music of the Tyo Orchestra will follow the stage program.

This civic program is free to the public. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

Color Slides to Entertain

Dr. Ryland R. Madison will show color pictures of Guatemala to members and guests of Alamitos Bay Garden Club next Thursday at the home of Mrs. Eugene C. Jones, 5900 Bay Shore Walk. Dr. Madison, a professor in the division of social science, Long Beach State College, made these photographs during his air tour last summer in Latin and Central America when his party of students visited Cuba, Panama, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador and Guatamala. Dr. Madison and another study group will depart via air on July 28th for a return visit.

The speaker will be introduced by Mrs. James Carroll, the club's vice president and program chairman.

After the 11:30 business session, presided over by Mrs. Emmert Sink, refreshments will be served by the hospitality committee. Mrs. Charles S. Oliver, chairman, will be assisted by Mmes. Clarence F. Miller, Marjorie Wise Sawyer, Palmer Wentworth, E. H. Chase, Clifford C. Hook, Clifford Reiman, H. S. Melvin, Mildred Brayton and Harold Hackett.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheff Marshall

Couple Wed Fifty Years

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today are Mr. and Mrs. Sheff Marshall, 2200 E. 6th St. Although the actual date of their wedding 50 years ago in Fillmore, Utah, was April 24, the observance today allows friends and relatives to attend. Several relatives plan to come from Salt Lake City.

The Marshalls came to Long Beach in 1918 and recall the days when rent was $12 a month. At one time they lived where the city hall now stands. The couple also remembers when early Long Beach residents drove horses and buggies on the beach.

Both are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Mrs. Marshall is active in church functions and is a former member of the Degree of Honor. Mr. Marshall, a mechanical engineer, served in World War I.

They have a son, Sears C. Marshall, whose family lives in Tacoma, Wash.

Youngsters Are Observant, Don't Discourage Them

By ANGELO PATRI

"If you want an errand done, don't send Billy. Oh, he will do it all right. But don't be in a hurry. He has to look at everything along the way. He has a speaking acquaintance with every dog in the neighborhood. He knows when the first daffodil blooms in the neighbor's garden and just what color it is.

"When, at last, he reaches the shop, he states his errand and the groceries are forthcoming promptly. But he has to pet the cat and she, to return his courtesy, must show him the kittens. By and by he gets back with the sugar and the butter and a long tale to unfold. Nothing escapes him. Nothing. From the hole in front of Thomas's house, right on the lawn, to the fact that one light is out on the sign over the drug store. It's as much as your day's work to get one errand done."

This may be a cross to his mother, but it is all the world of good to Billy. He's in the "Barefoot Boy" class. He is storing up all kinds of impressions, all sorts of facts, and he is cultivating a great interest in the people and things about him. His senses are alert and they are storing information that in time to come will be priceless. Into the bargain, and it's a good one, he is cultivating the habit of seeing, hearing and recording what his senses bring to his mind.

Ever have a little girl in the house who saw everything that happened and recorded it with unerring accuracy? She said nothing at the time, but she noted that Grandmother had taken off her spectacles and laid them on top of the bookcase, so when the next day their owner was hunting desperately for them, Little Girl piped up, "Granny, you put them on the bookcase yesterday."

And how she heard things nobody thought she heard! She was busy with her dolls at the time Aunt May told about the plan to give the young bride a shower, what Mother was to prepare and where and when the party would be given. She had seemed to be completely absorbed in her own business.

"Dear me," said Mother, "was that to be pink or blue? I should have written that down. What day was that? Goodness, I wonder if I will have to knit it now?"

"You have time, Mother. It's not till the end of the month and it's blue. The baby is a boy. His mother wanted a girl, but his father said 'No,' so it's a boy. And Aunt May said to have it done before the end of that week 'cause she had to go around and pick things up and remind people."

Don't call them "Nosey" and talk about the cat and his curiosity. Tone down their enthusiasm for the news if you must, but don't discourage this seeing and hearing and knowing. It is a wonderful gift of intelligent interest in life.

This feature appears daily in the Independent.

EXCLUSIVE: PLANE-MAKER DONALD DOUGLAS TELLS WHAT THE JET AGE MEANS TO YOU PAGE 8

I'LL ALWAYS REMEMBER . . .

The day God said 'Yes!'

HEAVILY GREASED, the author waves before trying a cold Channel.

by FLORENCE CHADWICK

WORLD RECORD-HOLDER FOR ENGLISH CHANNEL SWIMS

Last summer, my hopes high, I swam out from Dover, on the chalky southern coast of England, and headed for France. I was trying to recapture the title I had won in 1953, when I swam the English Channel in 14 hours and 42 minutes, setting a new world record for men and women.

But conditions just weren't right and I had to turn back. After two more unsuccessful attempts, I truly thought Providence was taking a hand in stopping me, and I was getting embarrassed about it. It was just a matter of waiting for the right time, I kept telling myself. But each day looked more discouraging. I would get up and find the wind blowing hard and the sea still choppy. Day after day passed; before I realized it, October was at hand. Everyone warned me to go home and try again next summer.

Then I met a nun in the town. "I don't know what's happening this year," I told her. "I'm praying, my family is praying; it seems that everyone in Dover is praying for me. But I'm afraid God isn't answering our prayers."

The nun looked startled and said, "Oh, no, never say that; it isn't true. God is answering your prayers. The answer is 'No.' God is evidently saying, 'No, Florence.' "

But the morning of October 11 broke crisp and bright. I looked out my window and the water was quite calm, the wind dropping. Now, if ever, was the time. Hopefully I set out . . .

About half way across, I began to weaken. But then my friends in the pilot boat wrote a great big "Yes" on a blackboard and held it high for me to see.

I couldn't help but smile — right there in the middle of the English Channel — because I knew what they meant: and God said "Yes!" At last our prayers were being answered.

When my feet touched the sand on the French shore, someone told me I had set a new world record for men and women — 13 hours and 55 minutes, 11 minutes under the men's record and 47 minutes under my own women's record.

But the only thing I could think about was that one wonderful word up there on the blackboard. ■

Head of the firm that bears his name, Donald Douglas is so busy that no one has been able to interview him on his current No. 1 project, the DC-8 jet transport. No one, that is, except PARADE West Coast correspondent Lloyd Shearer (r., with Douglas). Thanks to time, effort and well-thought-out questions, Shearer finally managed to pin the plane-maker down. PALMIRA, COLOMBIA.

There's something new on the big South American bullfight circuit this year. Where practically all other matadors fight bulls to the death, a man billed as "El indio" takes them on strictly for laughs. Crowds here and in other Colombian cities have been turning out to gasp, applaud and frequently tear the bull ring down over his antics, some of which are pictured herewith.

El indio dresses as an Apache but hails from the other India — to be exact, Goa, Portuguese East India. His real name is Antonio Augusto; his age, 32. Dark, handsome and wiry, he developed his novel technique some 15 years ago. His specialty is standing still as the bull charges, turning his body only a matter of inches to let the razor-sharp horns slip harmlessly past. When the bull has thus tired itself out, El indio calmly grasps its nose and flattens it.

Every so often a bull nicks El indio; recently he was hospitalized for a week. But his act pays off — with, among other things, a movie short soon to be released to U.S. theaters. ■

FINISH: After bringing the spent bull to earth by twisting its nose, El indio celebrates his victory by twisting its tail.

AN EXCLUSIVE PARADE INTERVIEW

Donald Douglas TELLS WHAT

FOUR YEARS ago BOAC (British Overseas Airways Corporation) introduced the world's first jet transport, the Comet I. It was an immediate success. Manufactured in Great Britain by De Havilland Ltd., the Comet not only flew smoothly and quietly at tremendous heights but broke numerous speed records and gave British aircraft makers a seeming world lead in commercial jets. Soon U.S. airlines got interested. Pan American World Airways placed a tentative order for three Comet IIIs, and Eastern Air Lines weighed a similar order.

Then the Comets began to crash.

In 18 months four of them blew up, killing 110 people. Finally all Comets were grounded, and De Havilland began a slow, painstaking investigation that ultimately pinpointed the trouble: metal fatigue at great heights. Meanwhile, American aircraft manufacturers began to make up for lost time. Both research and production on jet transports were accelerated by the two big firms in the field, Boeing and Douglas.

- Boeing, maker of giant jet bombers — the B-47 and the B-52 — invested $16,000,000 in a prototype jet airliner, the 707, which flew successfully in July, 1954. Soon the Air Force ordered a number of 707s as jet tankers to refuel the B-52s.
- Simultaneously, Douglas (producer of the famed "DC" series of commercial planes) announced that it had been working since 1951 on a jet transport of its own, the DC-8.
- Last October a 707 prototype was flown from Boeing's Seattle plant to Washington, D.C. — 2,340 miles — in three hours and 58 minutes, an average of 592 mph.

Six months ago, after studying the relative merits of the 707 and the DC-8, Pan American ordered some of both. Since then every major U.S. airline has ordered Douglas and/or Boeing jet transports for delivery in 1958, 1959 and 1960.

Says W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, first domestic carrier to order Douglas DC-8s: "These jet transports will shrink the world by at least 40 per cent. They will provide the fastest, most comfortable, most dependable air service ever conceived."

Such claims as these are now par for the jet course. But progress always has its problems, and no doubt the jet age will have its particular share. Already the public wants to know what jet transports will mean in terms of time, money and pleasure. So numerous are the questions, in fact, that PARADE West Coast correspondent Lloyd Shearer has put the main ones to one of the world's real authorities in the field — Donald Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co. in Santa Monica, Calif.

Normally, Douglas is chary of interviews. Here, however, he talks revealingly on what PARADE considers one of the most important developments currently facing the U.S. public.

Q. Mr. Douglas, when do you expect the first commercial jet transports to fly across the U.S. in regularly scheduled flights?

A. I would say sometime in 1959. (Editor's note: American Airlines has announced that transcontinental service with turbojet aircraft will be in daily operation commencing June 15, 1959. Tentative time for the first schedule of the 707 Flagship between Los Angeles and New York: 4 hrs., 15 min.)

Q. What is the target date for delivery of the first DC-8 and which airline gets it?

A. First flight of the DC-8 is scheduled for the spring of 1958. We expect to turn over some of these DC-8s to United Air Lines, Eastern Air Lines and National Airlines for familiarization and training during the month of May, 1959. Douglas by then will have completed one year of development testing before any airline receives a DC-8. Data and experience will be accumulated on perhaps a dozen DC-8s flying simultaneously for several additional months before they are placed in passenger service.

Q. There have been so many rumors about the DC-8 that PARADE readers would welcome a few authoritative facts. Can you give them any?

A. The first thing the public will notice about the DC-8 is its size. The new jet transports are larger than current airliners. The DC-8, for example, will take off at 220,000 to 265,000 pounds, which is about 100,000 pounds heavier than our present DC-7s.

The DC-8 will have seats for more than 100 passengers. First-class versions of the DC-8 will accommodate up to 122 passengers. Those that go into tourist service can carry as many as 145 without crowding because of the greater diameter and length of the cabin.

Normally the jet will operate at altitudes between 35,000 and 40,000 feet, flying above the weather. At 35,000 feet, cabins will be pressurized to the equivalent of 5,000 feet; at 40,000 feet the cabin will register 6,700 feet. The average cruising speed of the DC-8 will be 550 miles per hour, a jump of about 200 mph over the fastest piston-powered airliners.

Q. Do jets cost more to fly than prop-driven aircraft? Once the airlines take delivery of the DC-8s, will they raise or lower coast-to-coast fares?

A. You're really putting me on the spot. This really is a rough one. Let me say that while it may cost more to fly a jet transport for one hour than it does to fly a comparable piston-powered plane, the jet will fly farther and carry more people in the same time. So the cost per seat-mile — which is how the airlines figure their operating expenses — will be appreciably lower than the most efficient conventional aircraft.

When you ask about airline fares from coast to coast, that's not in my domain. That's worked out by Government regulation in conjunction with the airlines. From the standpoint of operating cost alone, without considering the initial purchase price, I would say there would be no reason to expect transcontinental fares to increase. Airlines, however, may be justified in charging more for a faster and more comfortable jet ride just as they charge more right now for first-class fares than they do for coach flights.

All in all, I don't look for any immediate change in rate structure as a result of jet operation.

Q. Won't the DC-8 be noisier than prop-driven planes?

A. The alarm being raised about the noise of jet transports, I think, is based largely on the experience of hearing jet military aircraft. These are noisy because the jet sound is augmented by the roar of an afterburner. The truth is that very few people in this country have heard the sound of any commercial jet transport and no one, except those directly concerned with the development, has heard jet engines with sound-suppression devices.

Our engineers have made considerable progress in altering and reducing the sound of jet engines. The public can be certain that a jet transport on take-off will not sound like present military jets. I have every

WHO IS DONALD DOUGLAS?

On April 6, Donald Wills Douglas was 64 years old. All but 17 of those years have been devoted to American aviation. The first Martin bomber . . . the first U.S. airplane to get off the ground with a useful load equal to its own weight . . . the first airplane to fly around the world . . . the DC-3, best-known and most widely used twin-engine airliner on earth . . . the B-19, DC-4, DC-6, DC-7 and now the DC-8 — all this is but a portion of Douglas' aeronautical achievement.

He was born in Brooklyn, educated in New York City, the U.S. Naval Academy and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, taught aeronautics before signing as chief engineer with the Glenn L. Martin Co. At 28 he founded his own company with a capital of $600. Since then it has grown so that in World War II it was responsible for some 29,500 planes (one-sixth of all those built in the U.S.), today has built 52 per cent of all the commercial planes in the world and employs more than 77,000 people.

Modest, soft-spoken, casual, Donald Douglas seems more like a dreamer than a dynamo. The truth is that he is that rare combination: both

How fast will jet transports be? How safe?
How noisy? An authority gives the answers

THE JET AGE MEANS TO YOU

reason to believe that the sound created by the DC-8 will be acceptable to the public.

Q. Supposedly jet aircraft burn up fuel so rapidly that they cannot be "stacked up" over an airport waiting to land. Is this true?

A. Although the rate of fuel consumption on jet transports is higher than on conventional aircraft, we've taken this into account by making the capacity greater. Strict safety standards are required by both our customers and Government regulation, and the DC-8 is being designed and built with these in mind. The DC-8 will have enough fuel on any flight to stack or, if required, to fly to an alternate airport.

Q. Is it true that there are only seven U.S. airports with runways that can handle jet airliners?

A. Any airplane, jet or piston-powered, requires longer runways for extended, nonstop flights. The fuel you need on a long-range trip increases your take-off weight, and the plane must have more runway to get off the ground. This is no serious problem for domestic flights, since airplanes don't carry their total fuel capacity on intercity runs.

Even for transcontinental nonstop service, such major airports as Boston, New York, Los Angeles, Miami, San Diego and Fort Worth appear adequate for the DC-8. In fact, all the airports now being used for transcontinental service will be able to handle the DC-8 very nicely.

Q. What is your reaction to the recent Russian announcements concerning their jet-transport development?

A. From what I've read about the Russian twin-jet transport, it is a military aircraft first flown two years ago with 40 seats recently installed for modernization. If this is true, then it can't compare with our four-jet DC-8. America has been flying jet-powered military aircraft for 10 years. Our civilian aircraft have dominated the world's airways for 20 years. From the limited information I have, I would say that Russia's commercial jets offer no immediate challenge to us.

Q. Do you foresee any jet-age traffic jams? Aren't present airports already overburdened?

A. As a matter of fact, it's highly probable that jet transports will relieve airport congestion where it exists. Since each DC-8 or 707 will carry about twice the load of the most widely used propeller planes, the number of aircraft landing or taking off should tend to decrease.

Q. William "Pat" Patterson of United Air Lines reputedly said when he ordered 30 DC-8s from you, "This is the most important decision in our history. If we make a mistake, we're busted." The order totaled

Jet flight will be a boon to both passengers and the crews that fly them

$175 million, nearly equal to the assets of $201,975,000 listed in United's 1954 annual report. Other airlines expecting jets are in much the same financial position. Is it possible that the airlines are moving into the jet age too quickly?

A. I don't think so. "Pat" Patterson is one of the shrewdest, most brilliant men I know. So, too, are the other men running the country's airlines. They realize that, although the cost of individual jet airplanes is high, their productivity is in turn higher than the propeller-driven types. This means that jet transports will pay returns on the initial investment in larger increments.

I think it's rather interesting that a large part of jet-airliner purchases are being financed by the insurance companies. Traditionally, the insurance companies are the most conservative investors of capital in America. So they must think jets are a pretty safe investment.

Q. How will pilots currently flying commercial airliners adjust to jet aircraft?

A. Our DC-8 has been designed to fit the present environment, both human and physical. We know that the pilots who fly the present nonstop flights will be assigned to the jet airliners. So we've engineered the DC-8 to make the transition with a minimum of training. In many respects the DC-8 will be easier to fly than current piston-powered transports. Because of higher speed and lack of noise and vibration, flight crews will know less fatigue. They'll have fewer instruments to watch in the cockpit and better navigational aids to help them.

Q. In what ways will the DC-8 be an improvement over the DC-7Cs, the last of your prop-driven models?

A. I could talk about this one all day long. But let's take it from the standpoint of the passenger. His trip will be faster and more comfortable. The comfort will stem from the lack of vibration in jet-powered aircraft. The noise caused by propellers will be gone. There will be little or no turbulence at altitudes previously unattainable by commercial transports. In addition our human engineering section has worked out larger cabins, more comfortable seats, improved lighting and air conditioning. The total effect will be a new sensation of relaxation for air travelers.

Q. To date, there are three manufacturers of pure jet transport aircraft in the world — Douglas, Boeing and De Havilland. Do you expect any further foreign or domestic competition?

A. Only the DC-8 and the 707 have sufficient range for nonstop operation, such as over the heavily traveled North Atlantic. Because of the jet's productivity, its ability to carry large numbers of people a long distance in a short time, the number which can be used by airlines is somewhat limited. Since more than 200 jets are already on order, it doesn't seem probable that any other manufacturer would find it profitable to enter the market at the present time.

TWO TOP AIRMEN — "Pat" Patterson of United Air Lines (l.) and Donald Douglas — beam over signing of United's contract for DC-8 jets.

Q. What is the difference between pure jets and turbo-prop airplanes (currently manufactured by Lockheed)?
A. The turboprop is a gas-turbine unit geared to a conventional propeller. Most of the power developed by the turbine is applied to the propeller, but some thrust is added by the jet exhaust.

Although turboprop airliners are now in service and others are in production, we've felt that the power plants presently available to us have not been developed to the extent of pure jets. The jet, as a type, has reached a high state of development in military service. When similar flight time has been accumulated on turboprops, they will be useful for short-haul and cargo aircraft. A turboprop has an advantage over the jet in its ability to lift heavier weights with a shorter take-off run, but it has a disadvantage in speed.

Q. In your lifetime, how fast do you think commercial jet transports will fly from, say, Los Angeles to New York or Oakland to Newark?
A. That's like asking a man how long he expects to live. In my lifetime man has managed to lift himself off the ground with power. He's increased the speed of airplanes to 1,600 miles an hour. Commercial-transport speeds have gone up from 180 mph for the DC-1 to 365 mph for the DC-7 in a span of 20 years.

With the DC-8 we'll normally operate at 550 miles an hour. Since subsonic speed beyond this point is not efficient, the next step we take must be in the supersonic range — beyond the speed of sound. I expect to see commercial transports cross the continent in two hours or less at 1,200 mph and up.

But, as in the case of all aviation advancements, the realization of supersonic commercial transports must first await the improvement in propulsive systems. This may come as an orderly development of the turbojet or we may have a breakthrough with nuclear power.

Q. Aren't we living fast enough right now? Will the jet age make life more frantic or more comfortable for us?
A. A doctor would undoubtedly be better qualified than I am to answer the first part of your question. As for the second — flights on a jet airliner, as I've told you, will be faster and more comfortable. The jet transport will make an important contribution to a better way of life. It will speed up the means of personal communication around the globe. You can't progress by standing still. ■

SERVICES at Covington, Ga., Confederate monument typify the Deep South's version of national holiday.

Our other Memorial Day

Next Thursday, ceremonies like that shown above will be repeated in hundreds of American towns. To the people of Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida, April 26 is Confederate Memorial Day.

It is dedicated to the more than 133,000 dead out of an army that totaled only 600,000 from 1861 to 1865 in the War Between the States. By extension, like the better-known national Memorial Day, it honors all Americans who have died in war since.

Confederate observance is much like that of the national Day. It differs in that the songs — in addition to the National Anthem — include Dixie, The Conquered Banner and Gen. Robert E. Lee's favorite hymn, How Firm a Foundation. And above the graves, in addition to the Stars and Stripes, flies the Confederate Battle Flag.

No one knows precisely how it started. Even while the war was on, Southern ladies in battle-ravaged towns, uncertain whether a newly dug grave contained friend or foe, placed flowers on all. Oldsters say that as a formal memorial day it started in Columbus, Ga., in 1866 — 90 years ago. April 26 was chosen because it was the first anniversary of the last-ditch surrender of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston at Durham Station, S. C., 17 days after Appomattox.

Northerners didn't get the idea of Memorial Day until later. The national Day was first observed by the G.A.R., in 1869.

Even in the South, not all agree on the date. In North and South Carolina, it is May 10; in Virginia, May 30; in Louisiana and Tennessee, June 3 — birthday of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy.

Whatever the date, Confederate Memorial Day lives on. ■

When the "ball of fire" starts cooling off...

Maybe you're this fellow . . .

Maybe you can remember a time when you came to work every morning ready to lick your weight in wildcats.

The job was your oyster, brother. And the boss kept throwing the tough ones your way because he figured you for a comer. As the expression goes, you were a "ball of fire."

But somehow . . . somewhere along the years, you began to get the uneasy feeling you were losing your stuff, like a pitcher gets when he feels the zip going out of his fast ball.

You couldn't quite put your finger on it. You weren't old . . . and you weren't sick.

But, oftener and oftener you'd have to drag yourself out of bed. Your job began to look like a mountain, and it was all you could do to shovel your way through it.

Making excuses?

At first you could make excuses to yourself. "A man can't be up to snuff all the time. Even a .300 hitter has his bad days at the plate." And so on. And so on . . .

But maybe the excuses are beginning to wear thin . . . even to yourself. You're face to face with the fact that—almost every day—you're nervous, edgy, dragged out. It's an effort to get up enough steam to do your job, let alone have fun with the wife and kids.

You're beginning to wonder about other people. Do they notice the change in you? Do any of them feel the way you do?

Well, if it's any comfort to you, the truth is that you're not alone. Many, many men have had the same problem. And many have found the root of their trouble in a habit that is so commonplace it seems above suspicion.

It's the caffein habit—the habit you acquire as you drink coffee or tea, cup after cup, day after day. And—if you're one of the millions affected by caffein—it's a case of a little stimulant multiplied by the number of cups of coffee you drink each day . . . multiplied by the years you've been drinking it.

Your doctor would tell you

Your doctor would be the first to tell you that, for some men, one of the worst offenders against the human nervous system is caffein. When you use this strong stimulant constantly, its effects tend to "build up". . . and may result in nervousness, sleeplessness.

If this has happened to you . . . if caffein is acting as a "drag" on you . . . isn't it time you did something about it?

And there is something you can do—to get in tune again and feel as you used to.

You replace a bad habit with a good one

You switch from caffein-heavy drinks to a new, wonderful, caffein-free hot beverage . . . Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum—now available for the first time.

What a rich aroma this new beverage has! And it tastes so full-bodied, so satisfying!

Your grocer has both new Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum and famous regular Instant Postum with a distinctive flavor that millions have enjoyed for many years.

You make Postum instantly, right in the cup. Just add boiling water and stir. You can enjoy it straight, or with cream and sugar, all day long, without fear.

There isn't a taut nerve, a sleepless hour or a headache in Postum. It can't make you irritable. It can't keep you awake because it doesn't have a single speck of caffein in it.

You owe it to yourself and to your family to try this wonderful, caffein-free beverage not just once, but for 30 consecutive days. After all, you can't expect to free yourself from the accumulated effect of a habit of years in two or three days, or even a week.

Costs half as much as most coffees

Whether you choose new Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum (red label) or regular Instant Postum (blue label), you'll get up to 100 cups from the 8-oz. jar and up to 50 cups from the 4-oz. jar—for less than a cent a cup! Postum is so inexpensive, compared with most coffees—cup for cup, it costs only half as much.

So, try Instant Postum for at least 30 days—take this one step that may make a real difference in your everyday life—every waking hour, every sleeping hour.

Don't let another day go by without giving this caffein-free beverage a fair trial. Start the 30-day test today. See if you don't feel better! Act better! Look better!

IT PROBABLY happens in your family, too: the children's idea of a vacation involves plenty of running around, but you'd prefer an easier pace, with fresh air, good meals and maybe a chance to swim occasionally, or fish. And of course you're pleased if you can save money as well.

When the four Moores — Bill; his wife, Vera; Anne, 10, and Lynn, 8 — ran into this problem, Bill had a solution ready. His suggestion: a week at Silver Sycamore Farm, a few miles south of here. There were 800 acres of farmland for the kids to romp in, haylofts for them to explore, animals to feed, an ole swimmin' hole. For him and Vera, there was a chance to relax on the front lawn under tall sycamores, to fill up on country cooking, to fish for shad and channel catfish in the nearby Altamaha River.

And add to this the price: $30 a week for adults, $20 for children under 12. At a flat $100 for the whole family (plus transportation from their home near Augusta, about 75 miles away), it should be one of the most economical — and relaxing — vacations the Moores had ever spent.

On both counts, Bill Moore was right. His "secret," however, wasn't very secret; more and more Americans are finding a week or two down on the farm the ideal family vacation. And more and more farms are taking in visitors. One enterprising travel agent has figured out that his agency's farms alone total more than 50,000 acres. A vacation among the pigs and chickens seems just the thing to families who want a not-too-strenuous holiday in the outdoors.

Helping With Farm Chores

The Moores' vacation was more strenuous than Bill had expected, however. He'd had a rough year, and this week, he said, he was "just going to unwind." In a day or two, though, he was tramping around the farm, inspecting the cane and tobacco crops, watching the work crews gather resin for turpentine in the pine forests, listening as the farmer explained why he had planted 100 acres in Bermuda grass. He even took a turn at driving the tractor.

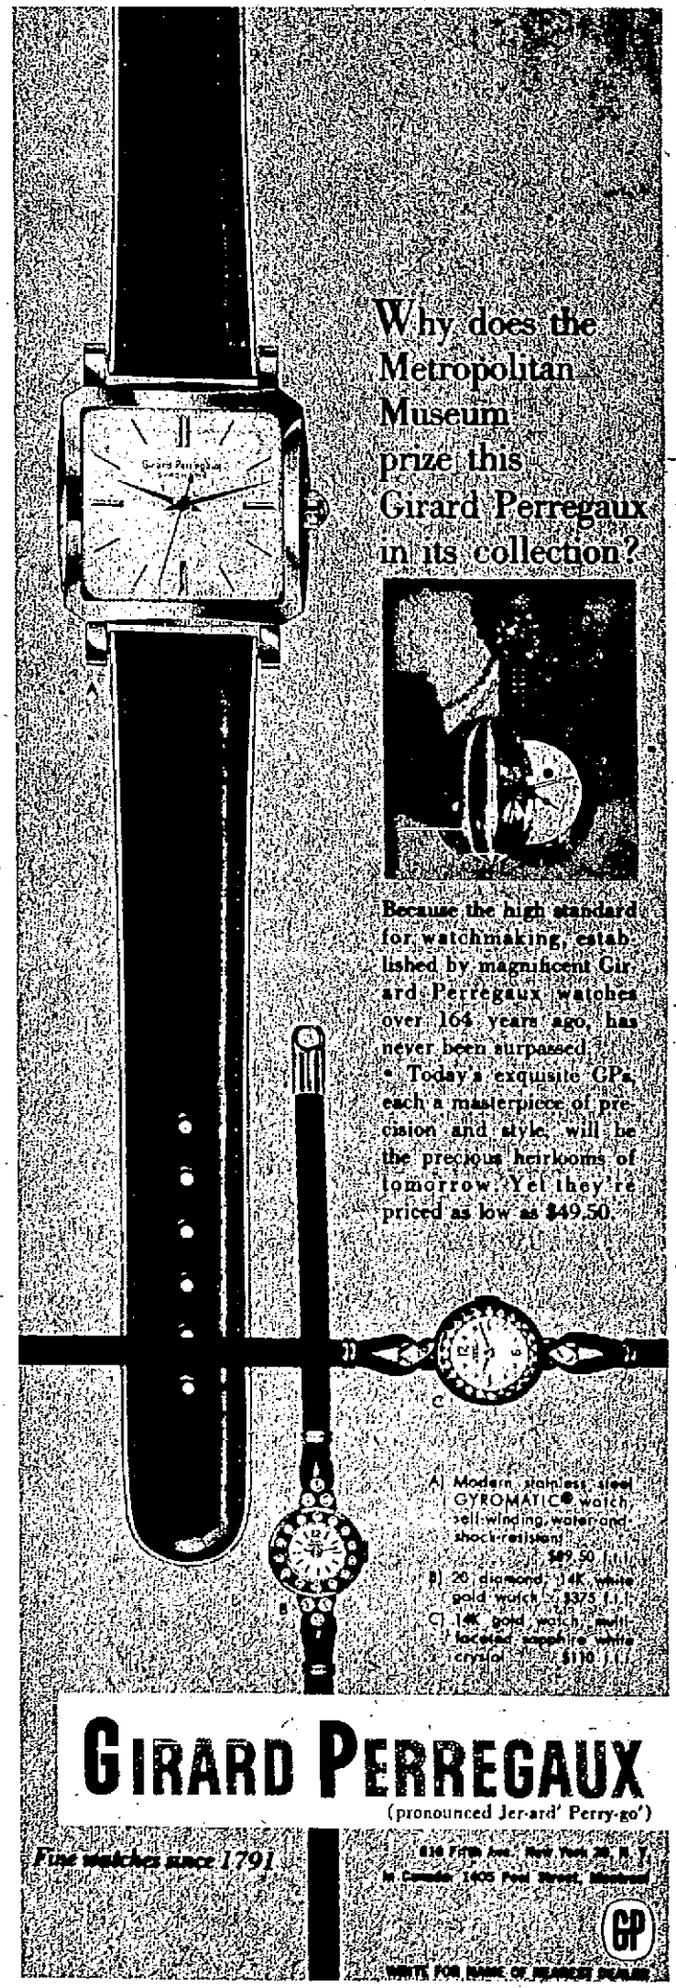

If Bill's vacation was more active than he had expected, the children's was not. Up by 6 a.m. (their parents slept late. Breakfast, including fresh eggs right from the henhouse, was ready when they wanted it), they were on the move all day long.

There were eggs to be gathered and pigs to be fed. Anne, who loves animals (she has two dogs, a cat and a deodorized skunk at home), was given daily lessons in how to milk a cow. The docile mule, "Laura," was available for riding

A city family in the country:

when the girls wanted her. And there were a hundred mysterious corners of the barn, the henhouse and the smokehouse to be investigated.

Afternoons, the whole family usually walked down to the swimmin' hole, fed by cool springs and just right on a hot day. Their father rigged up cane fishing poles for the girls, and they fished for lake trout in the pond.

Bill and Vera tried their luck on the river, in a rented boat, and came back with a full load of bass and catfish. (Bill decided a channel catfish, cooked fresh out of the water, was as tasty a fish as he'd ever eaten; the girls' appetites, however, were spoiled by the fish's looks.)

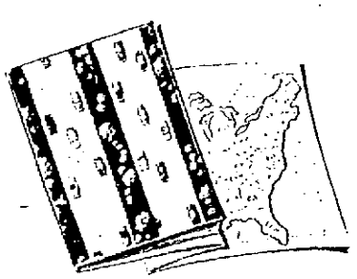

PICNIC SUPPER with plenty of homegrown food was nightly ritual at farm.

Evening suppers usually were eaten on the lawn, against a backdrop of palms. The outdoor table hung heavy with food produced on the farm: home-made bread, butter, fresh milk, vegetables just picked in the garden, home-cured ham. The Moores ate heartily, made it a point not to check their weights when they arrived back home.

All four went to bed early. Nearby was a summer theater, the local Grange held a barn dance once a week, the farm was equipped with TV — but the Moores found that country air made them sleepy at an hour they would have thought ridiculous in the city. Several nights, Bill and Vera slept on the screened porch.

Once, after supper, they walked through the dusk down the farm lane to the pine forests, watching the stars wink on, listening to the bullfrogs' serenade, flopping down on the dew-dampened grass. In one place, the farm lane forded a small stream; the girls thought it great fun to take off their shoes and socks and splash through. In many ways, the Moores found that walk through the gathering country night the high point of the week. It was an "adventure" they

Economy with modern conveniences

eral farms in New York State, truck farms in New Jersey, "plantations" in the South. Although the East and Midwest are most heavily represented, a farm can be found for you in almost any part of the nation. In fact, many vacationers like to pick a farm hundreds of miles away, make their farm stay part of a long auto trip.

All these are working farms, have been inspected to be sure they're up to date (including such citified conveniences as indoor plumbing and electricity). All of them cater to children; many farms listed in the catalog also list the number of children, and their ages, in the farm family. Generally, you'll have the whole farm to yourself; like Silver Sycamores, which has space for only six guests, they prefer not to take more than one family at a time.

Also like Silver Sycamores, they offer a relaxing vacation at a bargain price. Prices range from $25 to $40 a week for adults, with a cut rate ($15 to $25) for children under 12. But these farms offer more than just relaxation and economy. Like the four Moores, maybe you'd enjoy a place where you can get out into the outdoors and make your own recreation. America's farmlands are an ideal place for you and your family to do it. ■

Other sports in the open spaces

Interested in trying a farm vacation? The agency mentioned above, Farm Vacations & Holidays, can recommend a farm for you almost anywhere in the country — including poultry farms, fruit farms, farms on hills, farms in valleys, farms with or without television.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH: For something off-beat, Pennsylvania Farm Vacations (Mailing address: Mount Joy, Pa.) specializes in farms in the Pennsylvania Dutch country. These afford a close-up look at the famous black-bonneted "Plain People" of Pennsylvania, offer hearty Pennsylvania Dutch cooking, comprise some of U.S.' most fertile farmland. Rates: $30 to $45 a week for adults, half price for children under 12.

DUDE RANCHES: Vacation-wise, these are the Western equivalent of farms. Most popular pastime is riding. Usually each vacationer, including children, is furnished a horse. Other recreation includes square dancing, fishing, hiking, pack trips, sometimes tennis and swimming. Rates from $50 to $125 a week a person, including horse. Information: Dude Ranchers Assn., Billings, Mont.

FRAGILE BOY Hope is carted off by Joan during his telecast. A moment later she lost her hold, had to let him drop.

MUSCLE GIRL Joan Rhodes bends an iron bar — with her teeth.

The girl who dropped me on my head

by BOB HOPE  as told to LLOYD SHEARER

LONDON.

When I was here several weeks ago making a film with Katharine Hepburn, I spent a bit of time interviewing entertainers for my television program. One applicant was a tall, well-turned blonde of 29 named Joan Rhodes. "What do you do?" I asked her.

"Pick up men," she said.

"Your private life aside," I said, "what do you do professionally?"

"Pick up men," Joan repeated. And with that she grabbed me by the shoulder and thigh, picked me up and held me high above her head. "I see what you mean," I called out. "Put me down." When she put me down, I signed her up.

We worked out a sketch. While I was singing Embraceable You, Joan was supposed to walk onstage, throw me over her shoulder and cart me off. Came the night of the program and Joan attacked her assignment with vigor. She tossed me too far over her right shoulder, slipped, lost her balance and bounced me on my head. The accident made headlines everywhere. But for Joan, I think, it was the most embarrassing moment in her colorful career.

For the past six years this London-born lovely (5' 6", 135 pounds, 36-22-36) has been touring the world demonstrating her unique combination of appealing femininity and tremendous strength. She has appeared on TV, in films, night clubs and theaters in 17 countries. Do the customers like it? She's had only five days free in five years!

In her typical act, Joan slithers across the stage in a Paris gown. While the audience expects a torch song from this sexy creature, she breaks 8-inch nails, rips thick telephone directories in half, twists steel bars into pretzel-like figures, inveigles the heaviest men out of the audience and carries them around like babies.

Occasionally there are scoffers. In Paris three years ago a Frenchman offered to prove that Joan was a fraud. He followed her to the machine shop where, after each performance, she straightened out her steel bars on a vise. Continuing his barrage of insults, he so annoyed Joan that she bent one bar around his neck like a collar and pinned him against the wall. I like that picture.

She Tops the Champs

In Vienna last year two champion weight-lifters stood and announced that they were prepared to match all or any of the muscle-girl's feats. She called both men to the stage, handed each an 8-inch nail — the kind she regularly bends until they snap. Neither man could break one.

In Lisbon, Joan outraged the vanity of the local wrestling champion. Five nights in a row the Portuguese tried fruitlessly to break an 8-inch nail. On the sixth night he grew so exasperated that, when Joan sympathetically patted him on the back, he swung on her. She neatly sidestepped, caught his arm and threw him over her shoulder.

What is the secret of Joan's startling strength?

She says, "There is no secret. My parents were just average people. I didn't inherit any particular strength. I guess I just developed it. With perseverance I think any woman can do the same. When I first started to tear telephone directories I kept at it until my hands were raw and bleeding. After a while I developed the knack. You have to concentrate on one great effort. Without the knack all the strength in the world is no good."

Mickey Wood, a British physical-culture expert, calls Joan "one of those natural athletes like Babe Didrikson used to be in your country. The girl has enormous power in her shoulders and forearms."

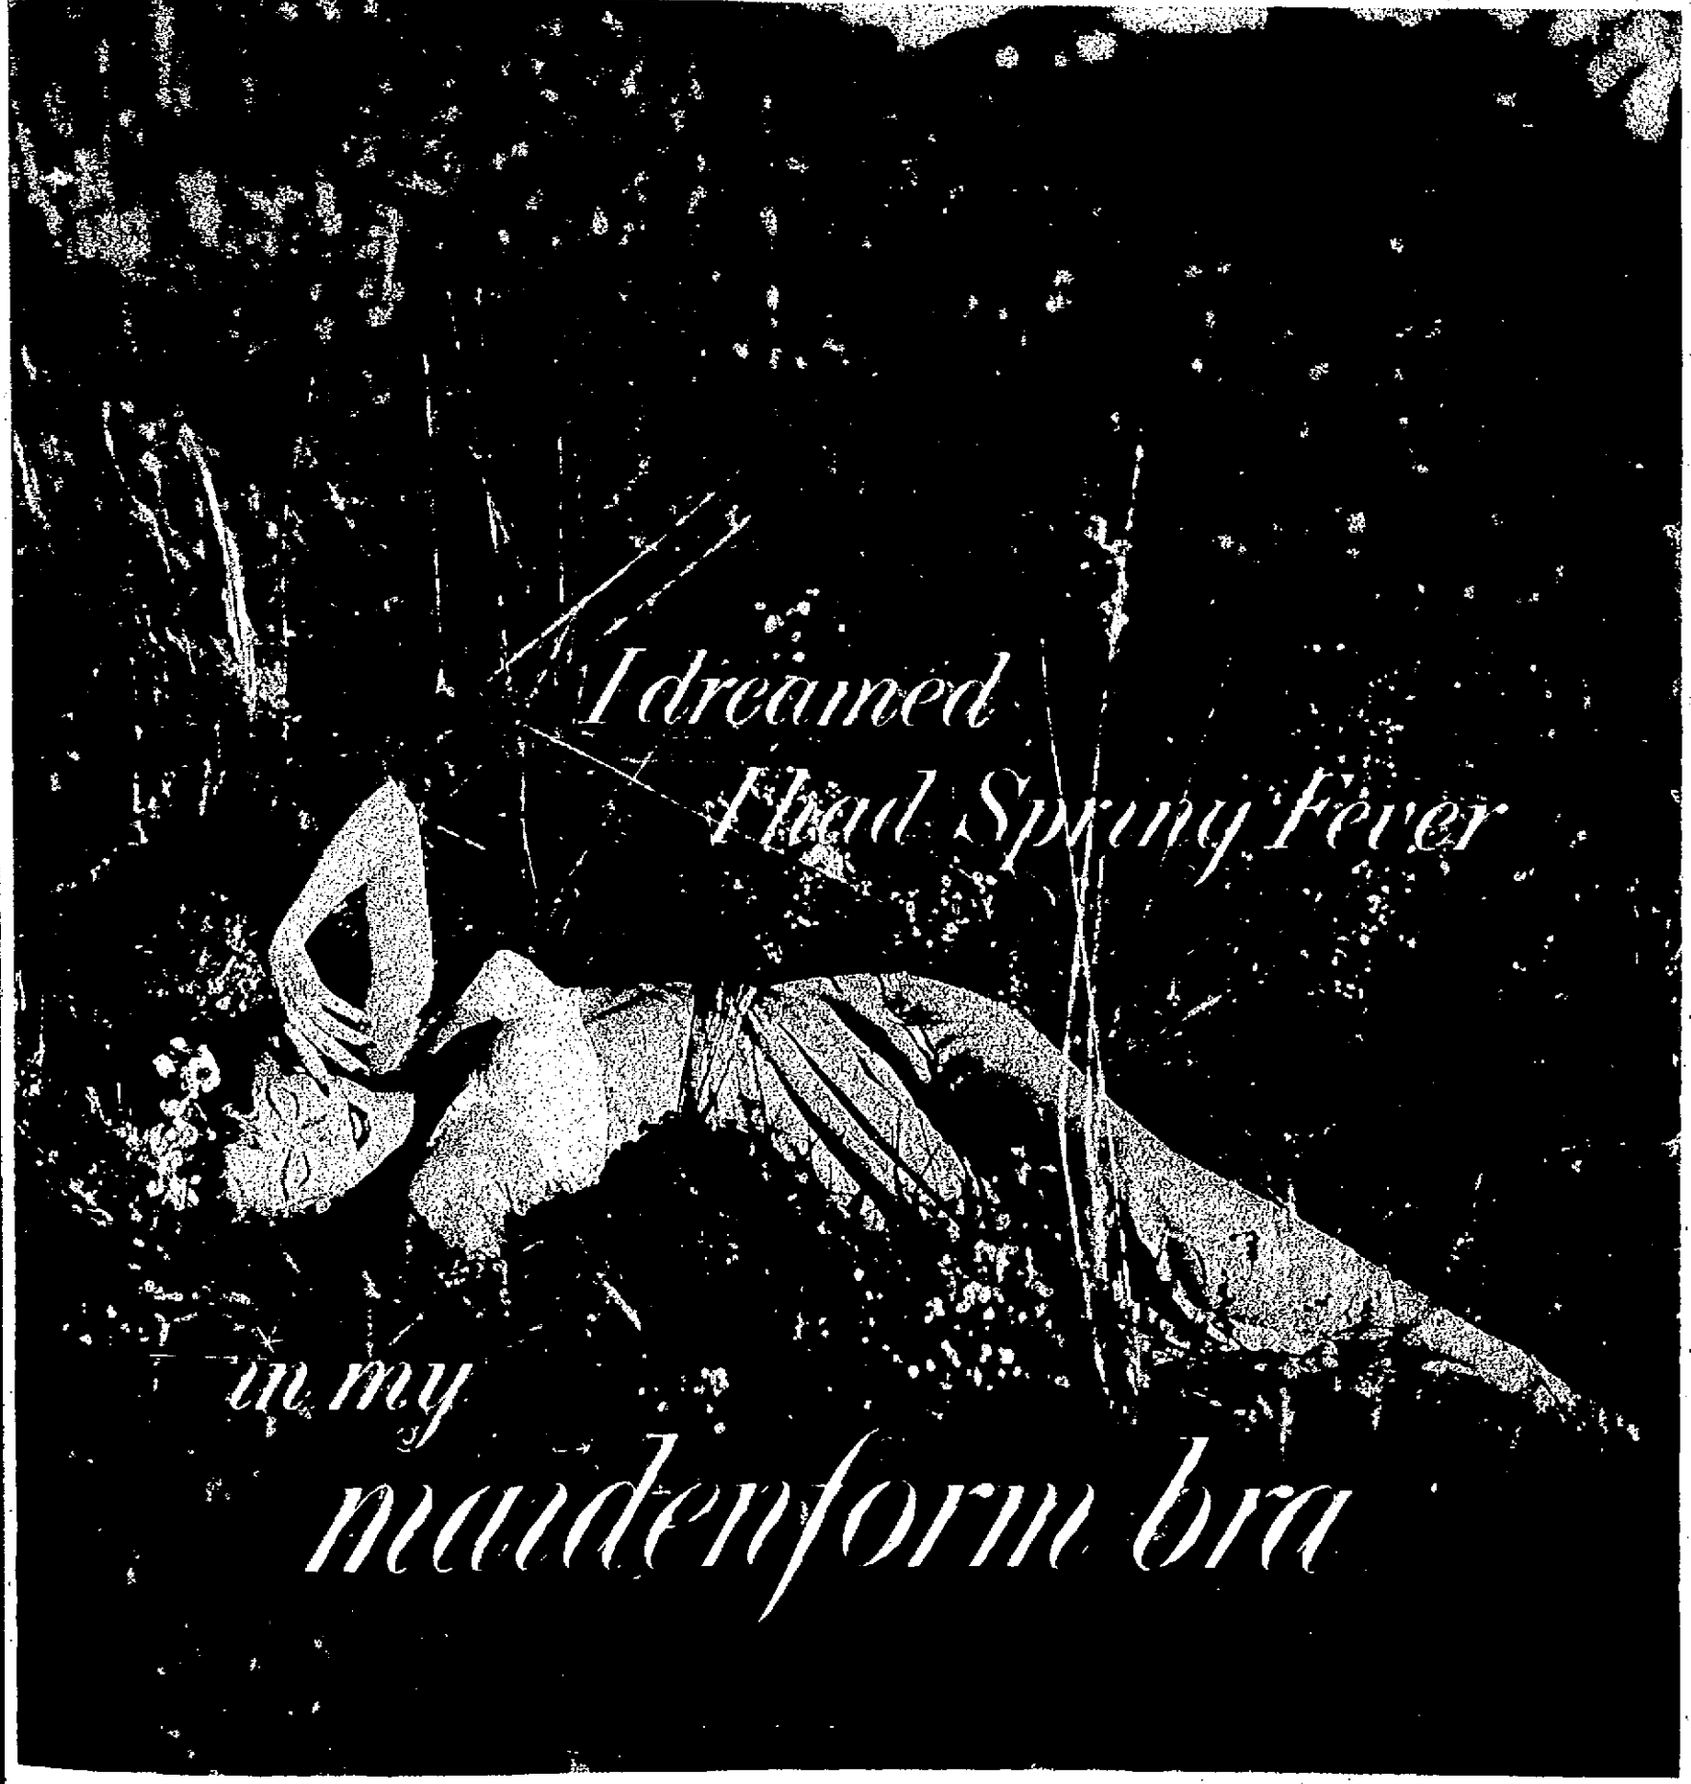

Mrs. Elizabeth Stone, her sister, remembers that Joan was exceptionally strong as a child. "In the south London school we attended," she recalls, "Joan was always in trouble. She had this habit of throwing boys around the place, or lifting the student monitors over her head and whirling them around until they were dizzy." Some habit.

Joan ran away from school at 13 and joined a traveling circus. After a brief spell as an apprentice trapeze artist, she was made assistant to the circus strong man. One day he took ill and Joan proceeded to put on his entire act. She's been on the muscle kick ever since.

Because of her beauty, earning power and intelligence — she reads omnivorously, speaks French, German and Spanish — Joan receives, on the average, three marriage proposals per month. Most of these are from publicity-seekers, odd-balls and phonies. Joan is not disillusioned about men, but she does make it a point when meeting "some nice new man" to keep her occupation a secret.

"Somehow," she says wistfully, "when he finds out what I do, the average eligible man just seems to fade away."

After what she did to me, I can understand why. ■

Teen-age Topics

Many of the questions and answers that you have read in this column appear in my new book, Amy Vanderbilt's Everyday Etiquette (Hanover House, $2.50). It is now in many schools and libraries and answers many of the common questions on daily manners. Here are some recent questions:

Q. I am 17 years old and in love with a soldier. Recently he was discharged and he said that he would write me. He hasn't, and he wouldn't give me his address for some reason. I honestly love him. Please tell me what to do. — H.P., Fort Worth, Tex.

A. A man who does not give his address to a girl he courts has something to conceal. Forget him.

Q. I am 14 years old and overweight. The kids at school tease me about my diet. What should I do? — S.J., Gaith, Md.

A. Ignore them — and don't talk about your diet. Your friends are interested only in the results.

Q. I am 12 but my parents think I am too young to go to dances — even though they are well chaperoned. What do you think is the proper age to attend chaperoned dances? Do you feel it is all right for boys and girls my age to go to shows, parties and skating together as long as they are picked up and dropped off by their parents? — L.G., Akron, Ohio.

A. If the other girls in your class go to these particular dances, I should think that your parents could safely permit you to go.

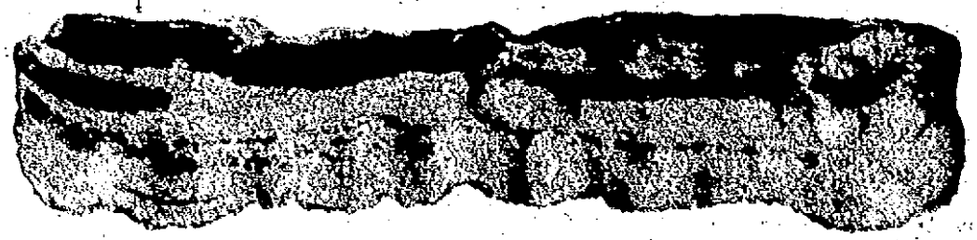

You seem too young for shows — except in the afternoon, and even then you should be in a group or chaperoned. I see no objection to afternoon skating parties or the usual parties given by your age group so long as you are fully protected.

Q. I am 12 years old and I receive many gifts from boys, such as jewelry. My parents think I am too young to accept such gifts. What do you think? Boys come over to my house and make a lot of noise, and when I tell them to quiet down or else go home, they get mad and feel as if they are not wanted around. How should I handle this problem? — P.L., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A. I have often said that it is in bad taste for a girl to accept certain gifts from a boy unless she is engaged to him. For example, she does not accept real jewelry except from her fiancé. Occasionally, a girl much older than yourself might accept an inexpensive piece of costume jewelry as a gift, but nothing of real value. Gifts on special occasions, such as birthdays, Christmas, Valentine's Day and Easter, are all right — but they should be relatively impersonal.

You must help your parents maintain the dignity of your home. If the boys do not behave well there, they must be asked to leave — either by you or by your mother.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS will be answered as space permits. (Miss Vanderbilt cannot answer letters personally.) Address: Miss Amy Vanderbilt, PARADE, 285 Madison Ave., New York 17, N.Y.

LOW-SALT DIET?

If your doctor has said, "Cut down on salt," you know how flat and insipid unsalted foods can be. Millions of Americans are discovering that a few drops of fresh lemon juice (itself virtually salt free) transform tasteless, unsalted foods into delicious, appetizing ones. The taste of salt is replaced by the wonderful sharp tang and aromatic flavor of fresh lemons.

Overweight? Many reducing diets recommend cutting down on salt. Seasoning saltless foods with fresh lemon instead of salt adds zest and flavor. Ask your doctor.

"Your husband's trouble is dyscrasia of the pocketbook"

Mrs. Brown: I'm not sure I understand just what you mean, doctor.

Doctor: Heart's sound. Digestion's perfect. No pain anywhere. Says he's making more money than ever before. Yet he can't sleep. Why?

Mrs. Brown: That's what I need to know, doctor.

Doctor: Simple. Frittering away his money. Got nothing to show for it. When money leaves the pocketbook, air rushes in. Upsets balance. Dyscrasia. Man can't sleep.

Mrs. Brown: What should he do for it?

Doctor: I'd say stop frittering. But don't ask me. I'm a doctor. Ask a stockbroker.

Mrs. Brown: Why a stockbroker?

Doctor: Broker I go to says if a man's got his bills paid and a reserve put by for emergencies, maybe he's ready to invest extra money to get income from securities – like bonds and good common stocks.

Mrs. Brown: But you have to be rich to buy stocks.

Doctor: Nonsense. My broker said 75 percent of people who own stocks have incomes under ten thousand. Many under five. Tell Henry not to try to get rich quick or fall for tips or any of that rubbish. Idea is to get income from dividends and grow with the company.

Mrs. Brown: But do companies always pay dividends?

Doctor: Certainly not. Depends on the company. But I understand last year 90 per cent of the stocks on the New York Stock Exchange paid dividends. And about 300 have paid 'em every year for 25 up to 100 years. Thing to do is pick stocks carefully by getting all the facts you can get. Broker I go to is stuffed with 'em.

Mrs. Brown: You know something, doctor? I don't even know what common stock is.

Doctor: Didn't know myself until recently. You buy stock and that makes you part owner of the company. I practice medicine but I'm part owner of these companies I own stock in. They pay me dividends out of their profits. Not bad, eh? This is for your husband.

Mrs. Brown: But doctor, that's not a prescription—it's just somebody's name!

Doctor: Name of broker I go to. Tell your husband to ask him for that wonderful new booklet called "Dividends Over the Years." Goodbye, Mrs. Brown.

"DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS—a Basic Guide for Common Stock Investment" is packed with information. It gives dividend records and earnings of more than 300 stocks that have paid dividends every year for 25 years or more. These stocks are also grouped to show:

Stocks which have paid progressively higher dividends over the past 10 years
Stocks with yields of 5% to 6% at recent prices
Companies not reporting a deficit for 45 years

plus other useful information including–stocks most favored by financial institutions, facts about the convenient Monthly Investment Plan. For a free copy of this booklet send in the coupon.

This is an iron lung. Will the IPPB machine replace it? →

New weapon against diseases that choke

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN and SID ROSS

CHICAGO.

For people with polio and other "choking" diseases, there's new hope: a safe, comparatively simple way to get them out of the "prison" of iron lungs.

No longer will some patients have to lie on their backs for seemingly endless periods. No longer will they have to look at the world upside-down through mirrors. No longer will normal everyday activities — moving about, bathing, eating — be a problem.

The discovery which holds out such hope to patients with ailments paralyzing their respiratory tracts is called "intermittent positive pressure breathing" (IPPB for short). It even permits patients to carry out mild forms of work.

Doctors in Sweden and Denmark hit on IPPB just a few years ago. In Denmark it already has virtually replaced the iron lung. In the U.S., IPPB research is increasing.

Some West Coast hospitals have tested it in combination with other forms of artificial respiration. In certain other areas, doctors are leery of it. But last month a team of Chicago scientists reported on their first series of 22 patients (many with polio) "breathed" exclusively with the new instrument. The team: Dr. Ernest T. Mörch, of the University of Chicago, and Dr. George A. Saxton, Jr., and Gareth Gish, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

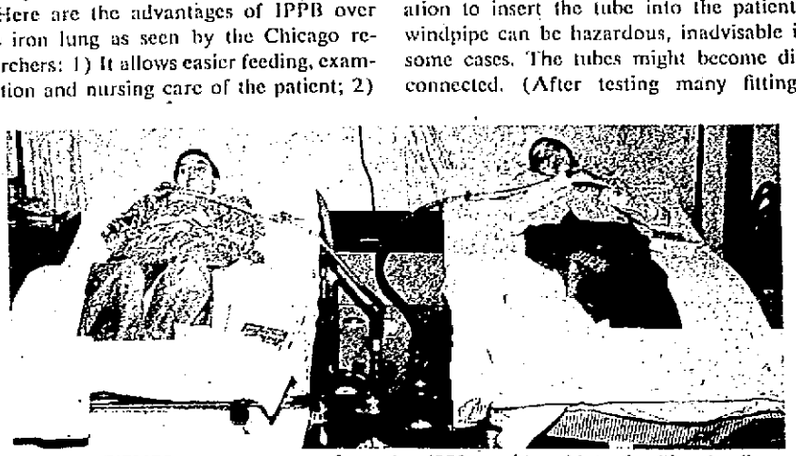

IPPB employs a small motor-driven piston which pumps air 16 to 20 times per minute to the patient. En route, the air is humidified in a bottle partly filled with water. From there, it travels through a tube fitted at the end with a little metal "elbow." This, in turn, is inserted into the patient's neck and down his windpipe. (The insertion requires surgery, but the patient, under anethesia, feels nothing.)

In contrast, the iron lung employs "negative" pressure. A vacuum is created in the iron lung itself. This causes the patient's chest to expand; thus air is sucked in through his mouth and nose.

Here are the advantages of IPPB over the iron lung as seen by the Chicago researchers: 1) It allows easier feeding, examination and nursing care of the patient; 2) Because the patient can move easily, he does not get bed sores; 3) Fewer chest and lung complications occur; 4) Physical therapy (muscle re-education) and occupational therapy can be started earlier; 5) Equipment is smaller, cheaper (about one-half the $1,800 cost of an iron lung) and easier to handle; 6) IPPB boosts patient morale.

Says one polio victim: "The lung gives you a feeling that you have a head but no body. This set-up makes you feel like a human being again."

IPPB has some disadvantages. The operation to insert the tube into the patient's windpipe can be hazardous, inadvisable in some cases. The tubes might become disconnected. (After testing many fittings, gadgets and even baby-bottle caps, the Chicago scientists feel they have licked such mechanical problems.)

TWO PATIENTS can get oxygen from one IPPB machine. Note the "fog jars" on the floor. In these, air is humidified to get just enough moisture for ideal breathing.

HELPED by a nurse, a teen-age patient at the University of Illinois Respiratory Center makes a phone call. Note that the IPPB machine (rear) is mobile, thus can follow patient.

Then the motor may break down. IPPB machines used by the Chicago doctors have been fitted with alarms, which sound off if too little air is being pumped.

Finally, the patient, too, has to make some adjustments. Well people talk when exhaling. But IPPB patients cannot. They must speak when inhaling — a reversal of normal order. Thus they speak somewhat haltingly. In addition, IPPB patients can swallow food only before and after inhaling.

However, patients soon adjust to such minor worries.

Says Dr. Saxton, who is director of the Respiratory Center at the University of Illinois medical school: IPPB has potential value far beyond polio. Experimentally, it has been used successfully among patients suffering diseases of the central nerve system and barbiturate poisoning. In addition, it can help some accident and stroke victims.

Will IPPB replace the iron lung? It is too early to answer that question.

But this much the Chicago scientists will say: Until the patient's normal breathing is restored, IPPB can substitute for iron lungs where no lungs are available — thus saving lives.

So it's a safe bet that you'll be hearing a lot more about IPPB in the future. ■

USING a mouth pick, patient types out a hospital newsletter by hitting keys on an electric typewriter.

EASE of treatment with IPPB is shown as a physical therapist starts to work with a patient's arm.

"MY LIFE IN A CONVENT ...How I Escaped!"

Perhaps you never have seen a booklet with a title like that. And most likely you would cast it aside in disgust if it did come into your hands.

But freshly-printed copies of such "literature" continue to circulate through the mails, and through book stores dealing in lurid printed matter and vulgar "art." It survives with the same malign durability which, for more than 40 years, has kept alive the infamous bogus oath of the Knights of Columbus despite court convictions of those who circulate it.

"My Life In A Convent" is not designed to appeal to intelligent and fair-minded people. Its purpose is to poison the minds of the gullible and uninformed. It will not influence those who have seen Catholic sisters at work among the poor and afflicted ... in their services in hospitals and orphan homes ... in their numerous missions of charity and mercy. It does create suspicion and prejudice, however, among those who do not take the trouble to learn the truth.

It is for this reason that we say to people of good will everywhere: "Why not investigate?" Investigate not merely in the interests of truth ... not merely to render justice to the hundreds of thousands of consecrated women serving Christ in the Catholic sisterhoods of the world. Investigate, we respectfully suggest, for your own sake.

Find out for yourself not only how these humble servants of Christ live in their homes, but why they choose such a life. Ask yourself what it is about the Catholic Faith that could cause so many women to turn their backs on the pleasures of the world for a life of poverty, chastity and obedience. For in the answer to this question you may find not only a new respect and admiration for the Catholic nuns, but perhaps a new and better understanding of Christ's plan for your life.

A woman does not choose to become a nun only or solely that she may teach school, work in a hospital, or engage in works of mercy among the aged and afflicted. She doesn't join a sisterhood to escape the responsibilities of family life. The activities in which she engages ... and which are so often regarded as her chief merits ... are, in fact, mere by-products of a loftier purpose.

That purpose is to strive incessantly with all her heart and soul for one thing — holiness. She seeks what Christ promised when He said: "And everyone who has left house, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold and shall possess life everlasting."

If you want to know what really goes on in a convent ... if you want to feel in your own heart the deep Christian inspiration which motivates the nuns — write today for our Free Pamphlet No. PR-25. It will be mailed in a plain wrapper ... nobody will call on you.

Easy-to-make window boxes

CONTRASTING trim on this box provides a splash of color to complement flowers.

CURVE-END box suits conventional home where stark lines call for ornamentation.

Blooms sprouting under windows are pleasing to view from either side of the glass, and window boxes are so easy to make. Inexpensive, too — so there's no need to patch up and repaint old ones.

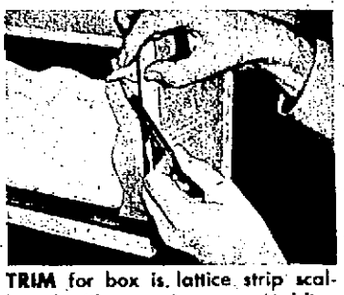

The plant-box designs pictured here have been worked out so that basic construction requires a minimum of time, effort and experience.

In buying lumber for any of the planters, look for the cheapest grade that will serve the purpose. Knots are permissible since painting and other decorative trim conceal them.

The only tools needed are saw, hammer, square, screwdriver and coping saw. Just send the coupon (right) for patterns showing how to cut each part to exact size.

SCREWS join front, back and ends of the window box pictured at left. The pine lumber is 1"-x-8" size.

TRIM for box is lattice strip scalloped with a coping saw. Molding covers the juncture of front and base.

TRIUMPH OVER TOOTH DECAY

Crest Toothpaste with Fluoristan strengthens tooth enamel to lock out decay from within

Fluoristan is Procter & Gamble's exclusive stannous fluoride formula—proven the greatest decay-preventive in any toothpaste

Miracle of the Towns Without Toothaches. For years, children growing up in certain Western towns were virtually without cavities. Then science learned why: nature's decay-preventive, fluoride, was present in their drinking water!

Science Long Tried to Capture Fluoride—only medically approved preventive of decay—in a toothpaste. At last, after years of research, university scientists discovered Fluoristan—the greatest decay-preventive in any toothpaste.

Fluoristan Makes Possible Crest. Without Fluoristan, you cannot get maximum protection against tooth decay with a toothpaste. Crest protects all permanent teeth, both of adults and of children, six years of age and over.

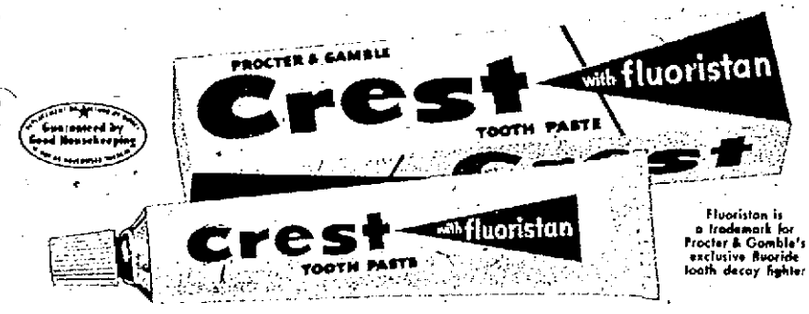

Dentists Tested Crest for three years on 5,678 people. No toothpaste stops all decay—but Crest set decay-prevention records never approached by any other toothpaste. Thus Crest marks a new era . . . triumph over tooth decay everywhere.

IMPORTANT

Crest with Fluoristan is the only toothpaste ever developed that makes possible a major reduction in tooth decay for everyone, everywhere, by strengthening tooth enamel. Thereby, Crest marks a turning point in man's age-old struggle against this almost universal disease.

Instead of waiting helplessly for cavities to strike, Crest now makes it possible for you to build strong defenses against decay within teeth themselves . . . to actually fortify teeth so that they turn back the destructive attacks of decay (as opposed to the old-fashioned method of brushing a temporary coating of protection on the surface of the teeth). With Crest, your family approaches the long dreamed-of day of healthy, decay-free teeth.

NO OTHER TOOTHPASTE PREVENTS DECAY LIKE CREST!

Los Angeles' Super Hoosegow

By Ted Krec

WHEN Long Beach builds its new $4,660,000 Public Safety Building, you can just bet that it won't look like the ones you used to see in the small towns back home—a red brick building with a clock tower and a wooden fireman on the balcony.

They build them differently these days—and Long Beach has a shining example to follow. The city's big brother, Los Angeles, has completed a Police Administration Building at 1st and Los Angeles Sts. that is, without doubt, the showplace of the city.

Constructed on a site of 358,758 square feet, the structure is a modern miracle from the electronic elevators in the lobby to the glassed-in jail at the rear.

THE NEW HOME of Los Angeles Police Department has eight floors above ground and one below, with a total floor space area of 312,078 square feet exclusive of the parking areas.

But let's start at the beginning—with those electronic elevators in the lobby. If you push the button with a pencil, no elevator. You must push it with a finger, for it is activated by heat. The speedy cars are hooked into the intercommunication setup, too, so that you can talk out of the elevator and persons can talk in to you. This facilitates shifting of loads in event of overloading on one of the cars.

The entire building — except the jail — is air conditioned. The jail was neglected in this regard because prisoners are held here for a maximum of only four days, for processing. However, there are compensations for the hapless prisoners, for in the trusty quarters FM music is piped in on the intercom! The only bars are on the doors, the rest of the walls are three-quarter-inch-thick glass. Even the visiting rooms are glass, and prisoners and their visitors talk via telephone.

STATISTICS ON the building? The land cost $2,600,000 and the building and all the ultramodern equipment came to $7,015,779. There are 25,000 square feet of glass; 22,000 cubic yards of concrete were poured; 5,000 gallons of paint were used in the decorating. And just a couple more: 3,700,000 pounds of reinforcing steel and 78 miles of electric wire!

Size defies description. There are seemingly miles of corridors, hundreds of rooms, and all is done in simple, modern, unostentatious style. The building is functional inside and out.

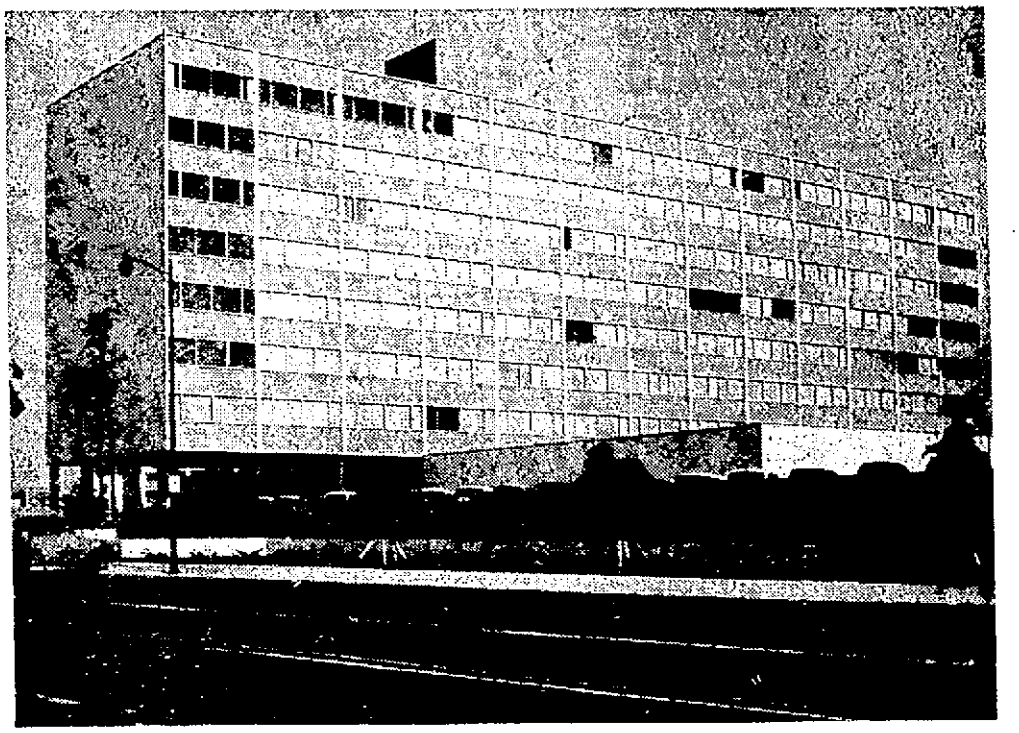

Communication throughout the building, exclusive of the intercom setup, is by telephone (there are 500 phones) and by pneumatic tube. This tube system is the latest thing, too. The person sending the object through the tube dials a number on a device similar to a phone dial. Then the cartridge containing the papers is put into the tube—and away it goes to the proper department. Oh, yes, there are big cartridges called "boxcars" which can be used for sending bulky file folders or even guns.

ON MANY OF THE massive windows are vertical aluminum blinds which can be regulated over their entire length merely by adjusting one slat.

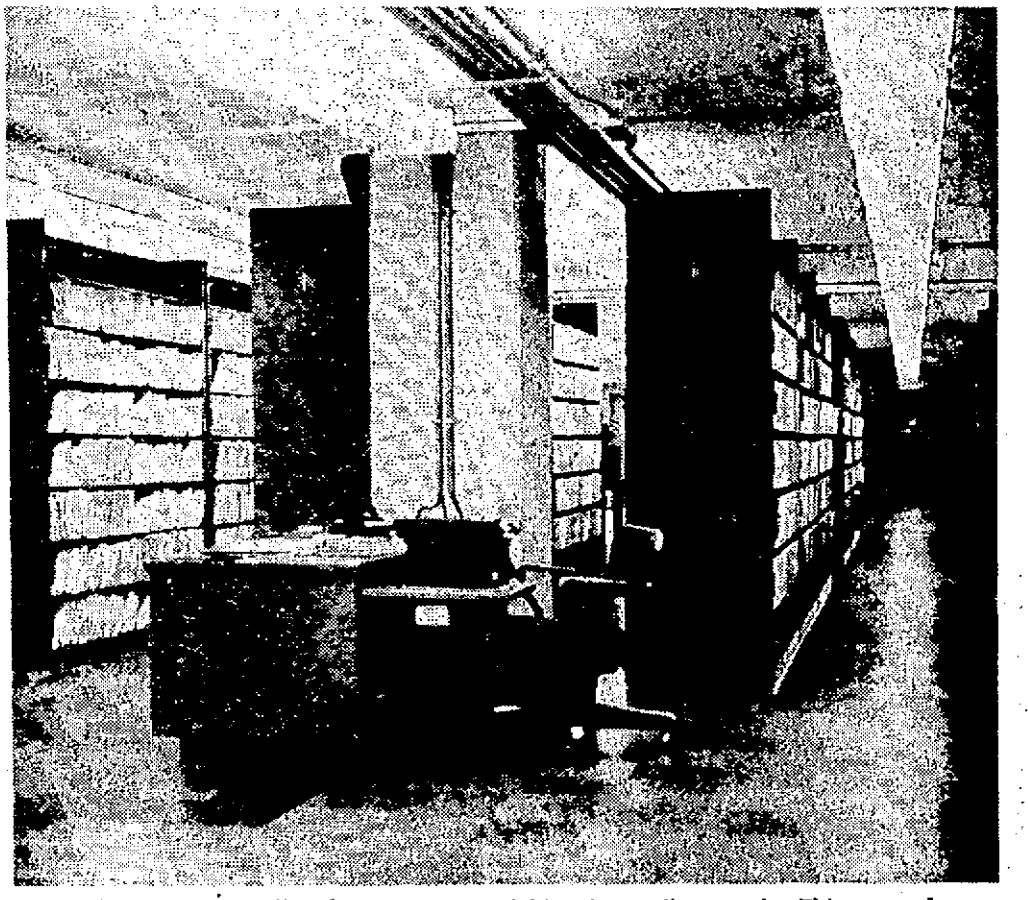

The building has its own television or movie studio, where pictures can be filmed, and the auditorium, which seats 452 persons, is full of surprises. Here the familiar lineups are held, but in an ultramodern way. In the first place, the auditorium is equipped to televise lineups for coast-to-coast use. Secondly, due to clever arrangement of lights, a suspect can be shown under any conditions in which he was seen — moonlight, neon, daylight or other lighting.

However, this array of switches can be a bit baffling, too. Take the incident that occurred when the attractive policewoman was showing some youngsters through the building. She herded them into the auditorium and was flashing the switches for them when she hit a special one. This one means a prisoner is escaping. She knew almost instantly what had happened, for help came pouring in over the stage as jail officers responded to the alarm. But that wasn't all! The back doors of the auditorium were hurled open and

In this lineup room—a modern auditorium—suspects may be seen in any light. Lineups can be televised.

IT SPREADS THROUGH ENTIRE FAMILIES

Epidemic Called Rockpox

By Albert Eagle

AN EPIDEMIC is spreading slowly through Southern California. The disease is seldom fatal, but it can ruin marital relations unless both spouses catch it. The afflicted become completely demented, and even form clubs with fellow sufferers. The clubs travel to beaches, mountains and deserts, which only aggravates the condition.

Rockpox, or more commonly rockhounding, is a contagious but enjoyable hobby, sometimes caught by entire families.

The reasons are hard for people to understand unless they have been exposed to it.

"Why collect rocks?" they ask, "my back yard is full of them."

THE ROCKHOUND will explain patiently that even rockhounds don't particularly want clay boulders and hunks of granite; but show them a good gem stone and the symptoms of rockpox become evident.

Traveling in search of prize specimens is as much fun as displaying them. Camping in inaccessible spots and tramping over beaches in search of prizes is a sport in itself, claim the rockhounds.

The Southland area is rich in mineral specimens of beautiful and interesting structure and also in gem stones.

THE DESERT AREAS such as Barstow and Death Valley yield many gems: agate and the richer-colored jasper, opals with their hidden fire, all tints of smoky, rose and amethyst quartz and garnets, to name a few.

Areas of roughly crystalized rock, particularly around San Diego, Pala and Riverside produce aquamarine, sphene, rainbow tourmaline, topaz and sapphire.

Along the beaches, especially on rocky coasts, the ocean will occasionally toss up pieces of mottled jasper, agate, breccia or puddingstone and, farther north, near Willow Creek, beautiful Monterey jade.

IN THE WILEY WELL district of the Mojave, in the Houser Beds, are the mysterious round rocks with holes and scenes in them. These are geodes, formed when agate in a water solution filled in an ancient hole in the rock. When completely filled, without the central hole, they are termed thunder eggs. When cut with a diamond grit saw, some display pictures of indescribable beauty, due to a marbled or banded interior.

Another nearby area is Mint Canyon, above Los Angeles. Scattered along the ground among other stones, there is Howlite, and various tints of blue agate. Howlite is white with black markings and makes striking bookends or spheres.

There are two methods of working the stones. The most popular is the lapidary machine that cuts oval, round or square smooth stones called cabachons. Some machines can facet stones, or cut the little faces which give the diamond or emerald its brilliance.

A GOOD MACHINE for polishing in quantities is the tumbler. The stones when polished are called baroques, and are often of irregular shape, which lends itself to modern free-form jewelry.

Minerals, or naturally occurring crystallized chemicals, are often as prized and rare as gem stones, and sometimes even more beautiful. Most crystals are of regular geometric form. Even common salt takes on beauty as a mineral, forming perfect clear squares often tinted by impurities.

The mineralogist in Southern California can collect literally on his front door step. The beginner taking a drive along the coast highway between Palos Verdes and Corona Del Mar will find many interesting specimens.

ALONG 101 HIGHWAY, just west of the Arcades at Newport, the inland bank for about a mile is laced with fairly good sheets of gypsum called selenite. The fiberous or thready satin-spar is found along with it, and an occasional fossil.

Above Point Vicente in Palos Verde, about a mile up Crest Road, the northern bank is made up of glassy plate-like crystals about an inch in size. This is barite, or heavy spar. They are found in clusters or roses, and glow bright yellow under an ultra-violet or black light.

The entire Point Vicente area is also laced with barite. In the Livingston quarry, just inland from Portugese Bend, there are pyrites, dolomite marble, terminated quartz crystals and many other specimens.

ALONG THE BEACHES, below Corona Del Mar, one can find fairly good jasper. It is mottled yellow and black. There is some petrified wood in the gullys along the beaches, with very good wood markings. There is also breccia, stones which nature has shattered and recemented.

These three collection areas are all within a 45-minute drive of Long Beach, and can still afford a beginner the fun of collecting without traveling too far.

You don't have to be a mountaineer to take up rockhounding. There are many elderly people who can't go on field trips who, through shrewd trading—and buying, have a wonderful collection. There are also entire families who collect gem stones and make jewelry.

IF YOU WISH to become a rockhound there is a club in Long Beach which meets the second Wednesday of every month at Belmont Recreation Center.

Rockhounding will add pleasure and purpose to a trip. It can be turned into a profitable and absorbing hobby. It is a family hobby which appeals to young and old.

Try it yourself and see; but remember, rockpox is contagious.

Barite crystals make showy display pieces. Crystals are employed commercially to make paint, pigment.

Rockpox can be a family affair. Here a family spends a weekend prospecting and panning for gold in a California stream. They found few small nuggets.

Ramona, poignant outdoor play given near Hemet, is presented annually to huge crowds. This is part of the capacity audience at one of 1955 performances. The play is based on Helen Hunt Jackson's famous novel.

Ramona, played by Dorothy Bailey for her 6th season, is in love with Alessandro, played by Maurice Jara, but their romance is troubled as Senorita Moreno, household head, wants Ramona to wed her son, Felipe.

Ramona Loves Again

THE TRAGIC BUT BEAUTIFUL STORY of the undying love of an Indian maiden for a handsome brave who returns her devotion with his life is being re-enacted this weekend as the people of Hemet and San Jacinto reopened the Ramona Outdoor Play for the 29th season.

Presented in an acoustically perfect outdoor amphitheater at the outskirts of Hemet, the play opened yesterday and continues at 2:30 p. m. today, April 28 and 29, and May 5 and 6. Since its inception in 1922, it has been seen by more than 600,000 visitors from all parts of the world.

The cast of 350 is made up of residents of the Hemet-San Jacinto Valley, many of them descendants of families involved in the episodes that inspired the famous novel, "Ramona," from which the play is taken.

Dorothy Bailey of San Jacinto will play Ramona for the sixth year and Maurice Jara of Claremont has the part of Alessandro, the Indian hero, for the fifth year.

Senora Moreno (Fanchon Jennings) tells Ramona she will be sent to convent unless she gives up Alessandro as her lover.

Alessandro urges Ramona to run away, be married to him and live in peace among own people. She consents. They depart.

Pablo (Charles Seares), worker on rancho, and flirtatious Dolores (Linda Hagan) offer lighter moments of play with romance.

Alessandro appeals to the Sheriff (played by O. E. De Vinna) for aid after being told that his and Ramona's lives are in danger.

Ramona's baby dies and Alessandro is murdered. Felipe begs Ramona to wed him, forget cruelties suffered, and seek happier life.

WHO KILLED EVALINER CROCKETT?

The Case of the Black Necktie

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of articles on unsolved mysteries in the Long Beach area to appear in Southland Magazine.)

By Vera Williams

WHO GARROTED pretty Evaliner Crockett, 27, of Los Angeles and tossed her lifeless body out of a speeding car in Wilmington two days after Christmas 1953?

And why?

Police do not know the answer to either question although they have questioned hundreds of possible suspects and run down dozens of clues.

THE BODY of a shapely woman was found lying on a dusty stretch of Lomita Blvd. east of Eubank Ave. in Wilmington about 8:30 p.m. Dec. 27, 1953.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Thompson, 1414 E. Sandison St., Wilmington, driving home from a church meeting, found the body.

The woman was clad in a gray suit which had a black felt-trimmed bolero cape, pink blouse and one black pump. The other shoe, an earring and empty purse lay nearby.

A MAN'S BLACK necktie was knotted tightly around the victim's neck, and an autopsy disclosed that she died of strangulation. She was not pregnant.

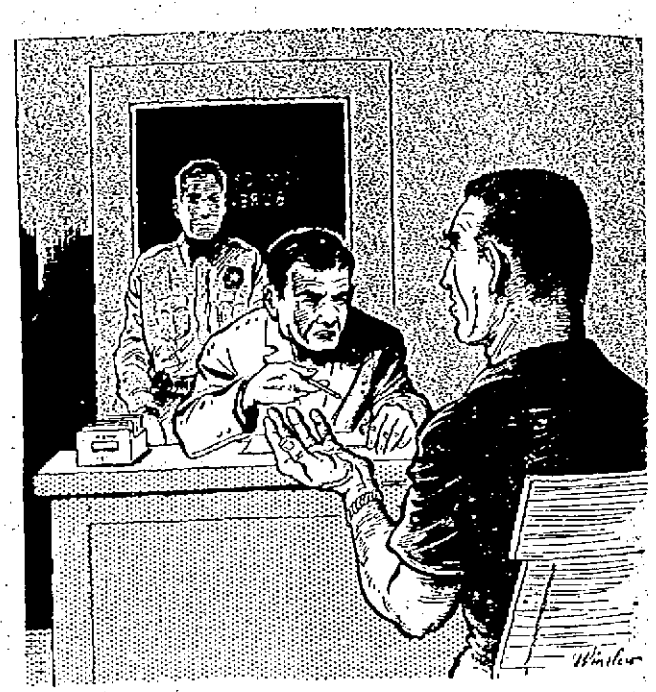

After several days of investigation, the body was identified as that of Mrs. Evaliner Crockett, 27, of Los Angeles. The mother of two small children had been reported missing since the afternoon of Dec. 27 by her husband, Charles Crockett, of Los Angeles.

Her body was lying face downward beside fresh auto tire marks. Police believe she was strangled in the automobile by someone she knew and was pushed from the moving car.

HUBERT J. DUNWOODY, 236 Covina Ave., Long Beach, reported seeing a man and a woman in a car parked along the lonely stretch earlier in the evening. Dunwoody was a guard at a nearby oil company tank farm.

In the next few months, police questioned several hundred persons and arrested five men as suspects. All were released after they presented alibis that held up under investigation.

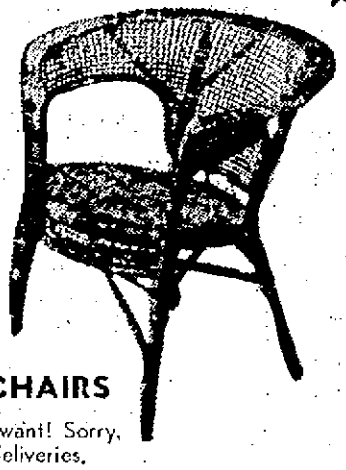

Police still are looking for the murderer.

Paddle tennis gives a good workout and test of skill. Game is fun for the "thirtyish" player who finds regular tennis has become bit too energetic.

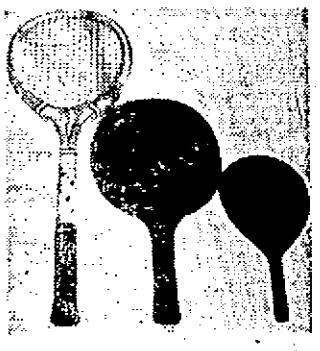

By Blaine Nels Simons

THE AVERAGE tennis player, upon becoming "thirtyish," finds that he reaches the far corners of the court a step or two later than the ball gets there, and that in running to the net for a play at a drop shot, the ball has bounced dead before he reaches it. An afternoon's tennis is then no longer fun, but only one of weariness and complete frustration. Forgetting that few long-distance runners and no sprinters at all are "in business" after 30, the thirtyish tennis player either gives it all up or plays on against weaker and weaker competition.

Today, however, many tennis players in this category, as well as many who have never played before, are finding the game of paddle tennis the answer to their problems. Actually begun as a sport in 1898 by Frank Peer Beal, now a New York minister, paddle tennis has only in recent years really caught the fancy of sports-loving Americans.

The benefits of paddle tennis are obvious to those who are old enough to realize they are not young any more. First of all, a paddle tennis court in length is 44 feet, according to American Paddle Tennis Association standards, as compared to 78 feet for a tennis court. In a run from baseline to net, therefore, the paddle tennis player has only 22 feet to go, while the other has 39 feet. Secondly, a regulation tennis court measures 36 feet wide; a paddle tennis court 20 feet wide. From mid-court the latter player must then cover only 10 feet on either side of him, while the tennis player must watch 18 feet to either side. Tennis nets are three feet high; the others two-and-one-half feet; hard low drives hitting the net in tennis are often scoring volleys in its smaller counterpart.

THE BALL USED is generally the regulation tennis ball on the West Coast; a sponge rubber ball on the East. In the West a bounce underhand serve is customary; in the East the overhead smash serve is in style, as in regular tennis. The paddle is a cross between a regular tennis racket and a ping-pong paddle in size, but more closely resembling the ping-pong device in appearance. The economy of the game is reflected in the fact that the paddle face itself is made of hard, perforated wood which, of course, never wears out or needs restringing as in tennis. (See photograph.) The court markings and rules of paddle tennis are exactly like those of regular tennis. Gone, however, are the long runs; back is the fun of tennis. Gone is the frustration of seeing a healthy teenage boy or girl across the net from you; back is the feeling of equality no matter the age.

The American Paddle Tennis Association estimates that over 6 million Americans play paddle tennis at some time or another. Balmy Southern California, with weather conducive to all-year sports, is fast becoming alive with private and public courts. Long Beach itself has three public courts located on Ocean Blvd. and 54th Pl.; on winter weekends these courts are crowded with paddle devotees and in summer draw many players daily.

SEVERAL LOCAL paddle tennis clubs are in existence, the oldest being the Alamitos Bay Paddle Tennis Club composed of 21 members and headed by B. P. Weill as president. Weill can recall when, years ago, he and other members of the club would block off side streets from Ocean Blvd. on the peninsula, put up a net and play paddle tennis all day. Subsequently, the game "caught on" all over town, and the existence of many courts for the sport then relieved the Bay group from the hazards of chasing stray balls out onto Ocean Blvd.

range in age from 20 to 50, though most are over 30. It will take but a few minutes' observation of the game to realize that these players are going as fast and furiously as those playing regular tennis.

SKILL OR KNOWLEDGE of tennis arts is helpful to the paddle tennis newcomer, though the changeover is not immediate. Weekly, tennis players out for a little diversion will find themselves completely outclassed and outscored by the average paddle tennis player. Many come back for more and soon find themselves preferring the smaller court game to the large. Newcomers and oldtimers alike seem to find more enjoyment and exercise in sprinting around a paddle tennis court than they did in running crosscountry races around tennis courts. To me, tennis courts seem to get larger each year.

Today, I can, in stride, whomp someone 10 years my junior and be miserably defeated by someone 10 years my senior. Therein lies the enjoyment of paddle tennis. You're never too old.

more officers cascaded onto the scene from first-floor offices, weapons at the ready.

MUCH OF THE CREDIT for the extreme utility of the building should go to the men of the LAPD Planning and Research Division. These visionaries, given a bare room, can be relied upon to get the full measure of usefulness out of it. To do this they put a piece of ruled graph paper over a metal plate. Then, with scale model pieces of furniture, each one magnetized, they can envision exactly how the room will look. The magnetism holds the models against the graph paper and the planners can get an idea of where to place everything—a 3-D planning board!

Many of the officers themselves, veterans in their jobs, have contributed developments and inventions to enhance the new building. Almost every department boasts two or three of these department-developed pieces of equipment.

As soon as the building was opened, it began to catch the public's fancy, mostly because of the modern design. And that interest didn't center just in the Southland area, either.

The boys at LAPD still chuckle about the letter they received from a crossroads hamlet in the midwest. It said:

"Gentlemen: Would you please send us a copy of the plans for your new police building . . ."

San Blas, Mexico's Sleeping Beauty

By George C. Booth

SAN BLAS nods peacefully on Mexico's west coast, 962 miles south of Nogales, Ariz., and well into the tropical zone. The village probably has everything that has been sung or fabled about a tropical retreat. A tropical moon, a lazy lagoon, coconut palms drunk with the sun, brown-skinned fishermen who sing as they head their boats into the setting sun, and beautiful dark-eyed maidens who dance with baskets of flowers on their heads — all of these are part of the daily life.

However, the true romance of San Blas is hidden deeper; it is embedded in the cobbled streets or guarded by the toothless old fort on the hill; it is buried in the silted-up harbor and cherished by the bronze-belled church in the plaza. Longfellow captured some of this feeling with one of his last poems:

What say the Bells of San Blas
To the ships that southward pass
From Mazatlan?

Four hundred years ago San Blas was a terminus for the Manila galleons; the town's cobbled streets were once the end of a paved road that crossed Mexico to Vera Cruz carrying fortunes in Oriental goods. In 1579, Sir Francis Drake freebooted the Santa Ana as she neared San Blas with a cargo valued at $20,000,000 — a feat that puts the Brink's holdup far down the line.

IN THE MIDDLE 1600s French and English pirates harried the port so steadily that a stone fort was built on a high bluff dominating the harbor. A few years later Padre Junipero Serra built his monastery headquarters behind the fort and set out from there to establish missions in California. Since then the harbor has filled in and bananas grow where ships once anchored.

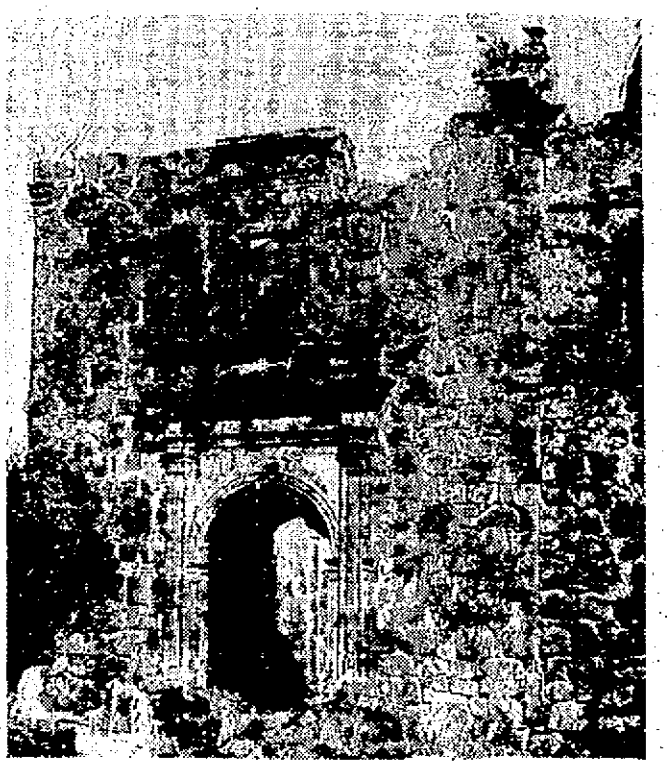

Today's tourist who comes to San Blas on a 22-mile, paved turnoff from the west coast highway and stops at the palatial Playa Hermosa Hotel on the beach suspects little of the town's history. Tall coconut palms shade thatched homes whose doors are always open; the standard greeting of the townspeople is "That which you wish."

Visitors who wander through the town are greeted with friendly "good mornings" or "good afternoons," but no one tries to sell them anything. Those who want novelty go to the beach, where they can hire fishing boats or take a trip in a dugout with an outboard up one of the many rivers. On these jungle trips the sightseer is certain to spot iguanas and alligators sunning themselves or to see flocks of parakeets flying through the trees.

SWIMMERS HAVE a choice of two of the Pacific's finest beaches. Playa Hermosa fronts the town and extends two miles of wide, shell-strewn strand. Malanchin Beach is three miles south of town and offers a half moon shoreline flanked by banana plantations.

Tourists will find three modern hotels in San Blas, and a cafe in the center of town that is equally surprising for its excellent cuisine and low prices. Many Americans park their trailers on one of the two beaches and settle down for a lengthy stay.

It matters little whether the visitor stays a few hours or a few days, as soon as he steps out of his car the somnolent spell has him.

Author's Photos

Father Junipero Serra planned and equipped his mission-building expedition in this San Blas building.

Tropical charm abounds in San Blas. This is a quiet side street in that easy-going Mexican coastal city.

San Blas has three hotels; one of them, the Belmar, is managed by Jose Espincosa and sister, Magdalena.

Around the World With DELAPLANE

"I am a college student, male, 21, with very little money but a big yen to see Europe. What about it?"

THE NETHERLANDS government operates 9,000-ton student ships in the summer with dormitory accommodations for $152.50, New York or Montreal to Southampton. Three round-trip sailings in June, two in July, one in August and two in September. Book through Holland-America. If you want a little more luxury, including a full bar instead of beer only, you can put up $27.50 more and go via Holland-America's virtually one-class ships Maasdam and Ryndam. All take eight days for the crossing.

Hitchhike when you get to Europe. This is a much more acceptable mode of travel over there than it is here. And you'll get to know the people better. But travel light or you won't fit into some of those small European cars.

Here is an unscientific analysis culled from college students who have done it. France, very good. You can get a ride free, or possibly for 500 or 1000 francs, from Paris to the Riviera by going at 2 or 3 a. m. to Les Halles, the big wholesale food market in the middle of Paris, and shopping around for a truck heading south. Camion (truck) drivers are your best bet in France. England and Holland, very good but short hauls. Belgium, not so good. Spain, not enough cars. Italy, fair. Germany, not bad if you avoid the autobahns. Scandinavia, not many cars on the highway.

Some of these kids say they got three and four-day rides and free meals thrown into the bargain.

If you don't want to hitchhike, travel third class.

Be sure you have "Student" stamped in your passport so you can take advantage of student deals I've mentioned before, special museum rates, etc.

"You are always mentioning cheap places to live in Mexico and Europe. Isn't there any such in the United States?"

I UNDERSTAND, especially through reports from Texas, that Arkansas is now the land of milk and honey.

I don't know how far the land rush has gone there, but you can buy land covered with trees, wild berries, springs and streams and overlooking a river for not too much. Taxes are low. The natives are friendly, sometimes even quaint and original.

They say that food is less expensive than most places and that anything will grow there. The place is covered with ginseng, the plant that kept the Chinese living so long. Lots of beauty and lots of building material—rocks, clay and logs available from the Forest Service.

"I have to go to Rome this summer, and I am tired of looking at ruins."

GET A TAXI DRIVER to take you to Piazza Santa Maria in the Trastevere section. There are a dozen restaurants around there with offbeat entertainment. And up in the park you'll find a pleasant outdoor dancing spot. I forget the name, but it may be Casa Rosa.

She's the New Vargas Girl

When Vargas, prime exponent of girlie drawings and delight of magazine gawkers, visited Paramount, he was vastly impressed with the physical attributes of Carol Ohmart, studio's newest star, who makes her film debut in "The Scarlet Hour." He called her the "New Vargas Girl" and asked to paint her.

The posing gets under way and Vargas sketches out his picture. Carol, he says, has that "rare peachy skin." Look at Vargas, fellows, not the model.

Now the final result—Carol Ohmart, by Vargas. Paramount rates Carol high among its new stable of stars. "Scarlet Hour" was filmed in VistaVision.

Solvang's Wind Harp

By Bertha Blanchard

Author's Photo

Largest wind harp in the U. S. is this one located at Solvang, Danish town north of Santa Barbara.

IF YOU HAVE ever listened to the wind play sweet music on the strings of a wind harp, you are indeed fortunate, for there are only a few wind harps in the world today.

Largest and most unique wind harp in America is located on the grounds of Atterdag College, in the Danish town of Solvang, north of Santa Barbara. Originally, this wind harp adorned the top of the Greek exhibit building at the 1915 World's Fair in San Francisco. That same year, Rev. Benedict Nordenloft, who built the college, brought the harp to Solvang and perched it high on a hillside among the whispering pine boughs, over-looking the Atterdag Bowl.

The harp tower stands on four steel pillars, about 15 feet high. Inside the lower globe, pipes are hung on chains. Close to each pipe is a solid lead ball, smaller than a golf ball, hanging on a chain. When the wind blows, both ball and pipe move and as they strike, make a musical sound.

THE PIPES ARE of different lengths and therefore give off different tones. The long ones give off deep tones, the shorter ones a higher note. When the wind is strong, these musical notes can be heard two blocks away.

This wind harp descended from the ancient Aeolian Harp, a stringed musical instrument, played automatically by the wind. Wires stretched across an open framework or a box of thin wood were tuned in unison. The play of the wind across the strings caused them to vibrate and produce harmonic effects.

The principle of natural vibration of strings by the pressure of the wind is familiar to all who have heard telephone wires "sing" in the breeze, the sound being intensified by the posts which practically act as soundboards.

THE HARP was named for Aeolus, the Greek and Roman Mythological deity, who controlled the winds.

Perhaps the earliest record of this quaint instrument is the ancient account of King David and his kinnor, or small harp, which he had suspended over his bed. When the wind swept over the strings in the silence of the night, musical sounds emitted seemed to be as if the chords were struck by some supernatural agency. It is also related that St. Dunstan of Canterbury hung a harp over his couch, but he was charged with sorcery. In an old Irish poem, we read of the delightful music produced by the wind on the strings of a cruit or crott.

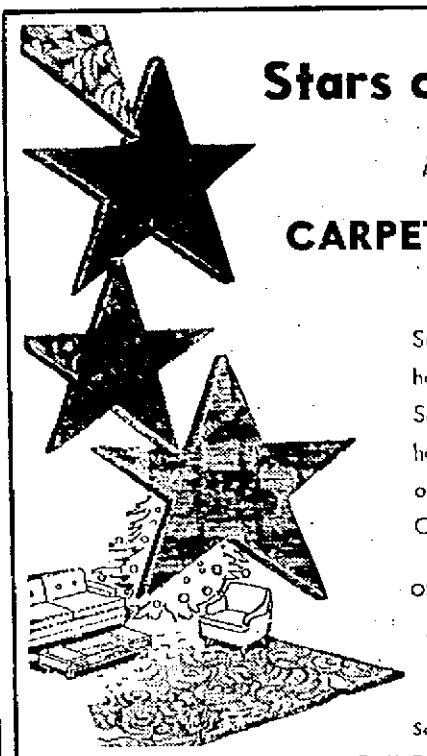

San Francisco, April 18, 1906

One of the great fires of history followed a 5:12 a. m. earthquake at San Francisco fifty years ago.

Hammond Lumber Company had offices on the 4th floor of the Merchants Exchange building on California Street.

Everything inside our offices was destroyed, excepting, by good luck, the contents of our office vault. The papers therein were browned from the heat. Some banks could hardly decipher the charred records they later removed from their vaults, such as a $100,000 note, very black indeed, which our company paid off, framed and hung in our office.

Platter Boss of the Juke Box Jury

By Terry Vernon

Press-Telegram TV-Radio Columnist

SOME smart pundit once said, "You can take the boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy," and in the case of William Moore it's a good thing.

When I walked into Don the Beachcomber's in Hollywood the other night to have dinner with Moore and his charming wife, professionally known as Beryl Davis, Bill jumped up and practically yelled across the room, "Over here, Terry."

No other star would be caught dead raising his voice in the sacrosanct precincts of Don's place except to sing his own praises. Not so, this part-Cherokee boy who came from Henrietta, Okla., and hasn't yet let Hollywood force him to upstage anyone. He is just the same as he was when he broke through the golden gates of fame and fortune years back—it's a charm that no school can teach, a personality that fits him like a glove and wins him friends who stay friends—even in a town that loves knives in the back better than pheasant under glass.

ACTUALLY BILL came to Hollywood as a writer and he had a script with him to prove it . . . a script that one producer took a look at and immediately declared, "the only thing good about this is the name of the leading man" and tossed it back at the budding author, who was then employed at Barker Brothers at $15 a week.

That did it . . . and William Moore of Henrietta became Peter Potter of radio, movies and TV fame and during the past years has amassed a comfortable bank account, a beautiful and talented wife and some small fry to haunt his swimming pool.

Changing his name seemed the magic formula to success and Peter Potter started out in radio, wound up doing some stage plays, then parts in some movies but primarily became a radio disc jockey—sort of a Louella Parsons or Hedda Hopper of the discories. If Peter took a record and played it on his shows, then sales were pretty sure to hit a new high.

SUCCESS DIDN'T come easy to Peter—he worked at it and still does. He is on the air a lot of hours each week and has a terrific following among those who like the newest recordings of the older tunes. Peter brings a freshness to the microphone because he personally knows nearly all of the performers who are appearing on his record shows.

Let Peter Potter spin a record on "Juke Box Jury" and the sale of that particular "platter" starts climbing.

"Juke Box Jury" was the actual turning point in his career, however, and this panel show has become one of the most popular in the Southland. He has also had it on the network as summer replacement for top-rated shows.

Recently Peter couldn't negotiate with KNXT satisfactorily so KRCA jumped in and made a counter-offer that Pete could not refuse. So he shifted the show to a new time and station but remained right up in the top rungs of the rating reports.

WE ASKED HIM about the numerous stars who appear on his "Juke Box Jury," and Peter said he was amazed at the number of persons who want to get on the show.

"It's not a high budget show, you know," he said, "and what we pay must look like peanuts to the stars who command five-and six-figure weekly pay-checks. But I'm real pleased at the waiting list we have. When we need someone to fill in it is a cinch to get a top star and I just don't know why."

Peter and Beryl used to live on a "ranch" in the San Fernando Valley but traffic became too heavy on the freeways so they got a place near Hollywood, high in the hills overlooking the smog-filled valley. It is only ten minutes to his studio by Jaguar. They have two children Bill Jr., 7, and Mary Bell, 3, and the youngsters don't know Peter Potter at all. They know he works on the radio but are innocent as to his profession. Fact is, Bill Jr. has only seen his dad on TV once and didn't care much for the show since there were no cowboys and Indians riding that-a-way.

COOKING

Here's Help with Junior's Meals

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

Prepared junior foods take much of drudgery out of raising a family, as Mrs. Lawrence Maguire finds in feeding her daughter, Mary, and son, Michael John.

SPEAKING of "holler" days, there's a National Baby Week in the 1956 calendar from April 25 right through May 2. Actually, in the good old U.S.A., it's Baby Week the whole year round.

There's one sure way to be a howling success with the bawling department — that's by keeping in mind that its members are entirely individual with personalities to match. Each one's different, yet each is best.

Right from the cradle up, we like our children to be happy and satisfied. We train them for adventure, and for full expression of the gifts they have been given. Even in the matter of diet, wonderful strides are being made every day.

WHAT A BLESSING for mothers that they no longer have to measure, mix and stir, for the infant of today has its own food from pre-cooked cereal (corn, wheat, oats and rice) to every vegetable the garden can muster or the fruit trees can produce. They owe much to the large food companies which have specialized in the production of baby foods.

Such a lucky mother is Mrs. Lawrence Maguire, 6003 E. Arabella St., whose daughter, Mary, is just one year, to a day, older than her brother, Michael John. Their birthdays fall on January 21.

Diets for Mary and Mike run the gamut now of the vegetable kingdom from strained carrots, sweet potatoes to green beans, frozen orange juice and dry cereal.

TIME WAS, TOO, that baby shifted highchair gears from strained foods direct into high living at the family table. But now, thanks again to prepared food companies, the toddler can be given that smug feeling of sharing family meals yet having his own chopped foods from the junior cans and jars. Junior can favorably compare his own chopped carrots and green beans that may wear a garland of riced, hard-cooked egg yolks.

In most cases a pediatrician prescribes for each individual child, so we won't attempt today to add to or detract from his advice. However, the few random suggestion given below may help a bit.

HOW TO INTRODUCE SOLIDS: A small, narrow-bowled spoon, preferably with a long handle, should be used for feeding your baby solid foods.

The first solid, which probably will be cereal, should be thinned to a semi-liquid state with water, milk or formula. As your baby becomes accustomed to the different consistency, add less liquid.

It might be advisable to thin his first strained meats, fruits and vegetables in the same way.

It is a good idea to introduce your child to new flavors one at a time in order to avoid confusion and permit you to examine his reaction to each. Continue one food for a week or so until the baby is accustomed to it, then introduce a second.

When you first feed your baby solid food, he might appear to reject it. Remember, however, that heretofore he has been used to obtaining his food from a nipple by a sucking reflex. Now he has to adjust his tongue and swallowing mechanism to the heavier texture. It is best to place the food midway on his tongue; thereby prompting an almost unconscious swallowing action.

Never force your child to eat unwanted foods. If he rejects a new flavor, try another; come back to the first a week or so later.

Some babies eat new foods best when they are hungriest—at the beginning of a meal. Others are too fussy and not in a mood for experimenting until they have had a bit to eat. See which is the case with your baby, then proceed accordingly.

But remember: Relax! take it easy! Make mealtime fun for both you and baby.

SELF-FEEDING: Somewhere along the way, perhaps as early as six months, your baby will begin grabbing the spoon with which you are feeding him. This is the first step toward mastery of his own knife, fork and spoon.

The best thing to do when your child starts holding tightly to the spoon is to give him a second one — a straight-handled spoon which will be easy for him to handle. Let him practice picking it up, putting it down, directing it to his mouth.

Once your youngster is sitting in his high chair, you might allow him to experiment by guiding his hand with the spoon from his plate of food to his mouth.

Once you see that junior is able to manage the spoon — even a bit shakily — don't sit and watch him. Nonchalantly look out the window for a minute or two, talk with others at the table; return for a few words of encouragement; now and then help him a bit when he gets tired.

The foods you feed him as well as the utensils you give him can mean a lot in helping your baby along the road to self-feeding.

WHEN YOUR BABY is eight months old, or earlier (just as your doctor recommends), it's about time to shift to junior foods. Prepared under the same high standards as strained foods, these diced vegetables and finely minced meats are the way to a well balanced diet for the toddler.

Texture is the chief difference between strained and junior varieties. Many of the old favorites are present. They are still mildly seasoned so as not to impair the child's palate for natural food flavors nor prove irritating to the digestive tract.

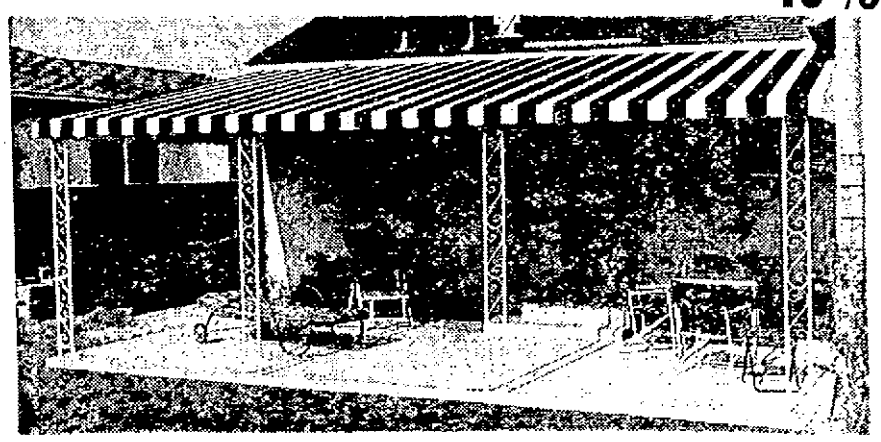

Not all junior foods are of the same consistency. Listed below are those which might be considered "transition" foods because of their finer texture. Perhaps you and your baby would like to try these first:

Beef Lamb Beef heart
Pork Veal
Chicken farina vegetable porridge
Applesauce Peaches Pears
Apricots and applesauce
Pears and pineapple
Custard pudding Butterscotch
Pudding Chocolate pudding

Quaint Hideaway in a 'Sleepy Hollow'

Antiques, including spinning wheel, cobbler's bench, pie safe now holding TV, are of interest in living room of Lloyd de Blois family's home.

By Eileen Ball

JUST A FEW blocks off the busy thoroughfare of Long Beach Blvd. is a "sleepy hollow" sort of community where a handful of houses nestle under old shade trees along quiet, block-long streets.

In the midst of this area is a quaint bungalow and barn sheltered by lofty eucalyptus and wept over by lacy willows. It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd de Blois, 4650 Ruth Ave., and their daughter, Mimi.

The house, barn and guest cottage are located on an irregularly shaped and spacious lot that is informally planted with trees and shrubs. The rustic architecture of the buildings set in the wooded site look like a bit of New England dropped in the midst of this city.

WHILE THE COTTAGE abounds in romantic charm, it is somewhat lacking in the sort of new innovations that earmark the more "modern" dwelling. Such features as forced air, electric dishwashers and inter-communication systems are as alien to this house as to a country farmhouse of a generation or two ago. And this is just the way the de Blois family likes it!

So remote and withdrawn is this home from the high-powered, high-pressured city hassle that a visit is like a vacation at a countryside inn. A pathway leads to a long, covered veranda grown over with English ivy and pink cabbage roses. The porch is faced with old brick salvaged from an old house wrecked years ago. On the veranda stands a long, spindle-back church pew.

THE HIGH-PITCHED ceiling of the living room has exposed pine rafters. The walls are paneled in vertical, waxed knotty pine. And the furnishings are authentic early American antiques.

Near a fireplace of old brick stands an apple green rocker and an old spinning wheel, both about 100 years old. Other antique appointments include a cobbler's bench, a rare cabbage slicer (which looks a lot like a cobbler's bench), a pair of spinners' chairs and a pie safe. The latter is an amusing wood cabinet with perforated tin panels set into its double doors. The design punched in the tin was once calculated to please the eye while discouraging flies and little fingers from sampling the pastries closeted therein. (Now enclosed in the pie safe is a television set.)

A WINDOW SEAT on the north wall has French windows that swing wide to the garden. Hanging over this alcove is an antique lantern, its six panels of amber glass overlaid with ornamental tin.

On the wall opposite is a balcony which runs the width of the room and off which opens the loft bedroom occupied by Mimi. A steeply-ascending wood staircase leads to this quaint, sloped-ceiling room with its old-fashioned trundle bed and antique rocking horse.

Under the scallop-trimmed balcony is the area designated as High light at front of the de Blois house is a long, covered veranda. At side is informal patio. Quaint guest house (right) has storybook flavor.

Girdle Hurdle

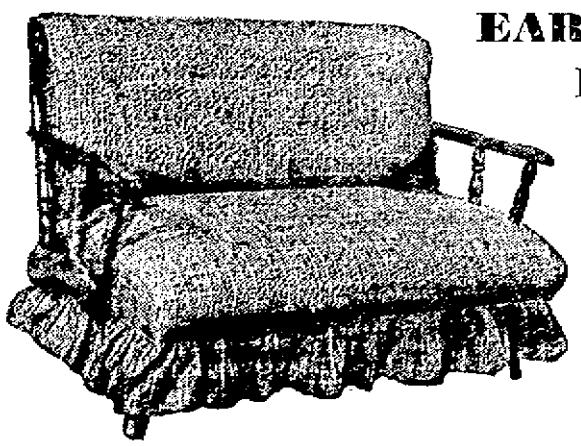

Travel which requires sitting for many hours in a plane, train or car, is very taxing on the flow of blood and other fluids through the body. Keeping a good circulation requires body motion according to a recent article in the official publication of the American Society of Travel Agents. The society advocates an hourly walk for all and, in a special note to the ladies, advises them to "leave their girdles at home."

the entry. Hanging on the paneled wall nearby is an old hayrake, cranberry rake and small pine shelves.

Amusing brass and glass hurricane fixtures hang on the walls for the sake of illumination. Daylight is dealt with equally cleverly with the placement of a small colored glass window high at the crest of the ceiling.

FOR COMFORT'S SAKE, this 17x22-foot room has been carpeted in cocoa-colored, deep-tufted cotton which harmonized nicely with the upholstered settle that may be drawn close to the fire.

The master bedroom, located directly under Mimi's upstairs room, opens off the living room and, in turn, has French doors that swing open to a secluded side garden. Fan-shaped steps of used brick are partially overgrown with ivy and framed with myriad little English garden flowers.

Novelty is achieved in the bedroom by installing cedar shingles for finish of the wall opposite the doorway. Since the area opens directly off the living room, attention is attracted to the unusual treatment whenever the bedroom door is opened.

The bed (a plain boxspring, mattress and legs arrangement) is pushed against the other wall, against which stand 10 antique louvered shutters. The mellowed old pine shutters create a charming headboard for the bed which is lighted by a hanging Paul Revere lantern over 75 years old. By the bed is an old oil lamp, converted to electricity. It stands on a dough box that serves nicely as a bedside table.

Opening off the living room to the east is the kitchen with its round table, old rush-seat, ladderback chairs and its very old butter churn.

THE PATIO, which hugs the house close in the ell established for it by the placement of living room and kitchen, is paved in a semi-circle with used brick. Old hickory and wicker furniture blend harmonipusly with the plants growing informally all around. Filtering the sunlight into fragile patterns over the patio is a huge old weeping willow and a pepper tree. The pleasing presence of brick masonry is introduced by the back of the living room fireplace. One portion of the structure opens to the patio to form an outdoor barbecue. Utensils and dishes used for outdoor cookery are handily—and surprisingly—housed in an amusing old bread wagon that stands nearby on the lawn. Once a horse-drawn conveyor of fresh bakery products, this boxey little wagon seems perfectly suited to its new role.

Back of the house is an old barn in fine repair that, until recently, was used as a ceramic studio. The de Bloises, who have owned the property only since September, have plans to convert the kiln to a fireplace and the barn to a residence.

Already highly livable, on a smaller scale, is a pert, brown-and-yellow guest cottage with Dutch door, cupola and shed-roofed veranda.

Kipling's Children Get Together

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

FIRST of the British writers to receive the Nobel Prize for Literature, Rudyard Kipling gave to the world some of its most wonderful classics in prose and verse. Certainly everyone who has ever read what he has written has found a gem or two to be remembered always. To read his stories or ballads usually calls for more of the same, with the wish that his entire writings might be brought together in a single collection.

Now, in answer to the continuing popularity of this acknowledged master who died 20 years ago, much of Kipling's best has been published in a two-volume set by John Beecroft. It is titled "Rudyard Kipling: A Selection of His Stories and Poems" (Doubleday, $7.50), and is the May selection of the Literary Guild.

Packed in ostentatious jackets which Kipling himself would have loved—because they smack of India where he was born and where he spent many happy years—the contents at once become a prize for those who know or do not know this writer. First off, in Volume I, is his most famous novel, "Kim," the tale of a street-Arab apprenticed to the Indian Secret Service, a beautifully vivid panorama of Indian life with a detective twist. There follows the "Jungle Book" in which Kipling personalizes the tiger and other denizens of the Indian jungle for the child Mowgli, whose teachers they become; his incomparable "Just So Stories" for children including "How the Whale Got His Throat" and "How the Leopard Got His Spots," and, finally, selections from "Puck of Pook's Hill."

Volume II contains 27 of Kipling's miscellaneous short tales, his own story about himself, and more than half a hundred of his most famous poems, including "Danny Deever," "Mandalay" and "The Ballad of East and West," each marked by a verve and robustness so characteristic of Kipling's writings.

In his introduction, Mr. Beecroft quotes Somerset Maugham as saying that Kipling is ". . . our greatest story writer. I can't believe he will ever be equalled. I am sure he can never be excelled."

Maugham, like Kipling, speaks great truths masterfully.

LONG A STUDENT of philosophy and comparative history, actor Lew Ayres recently made a globe-circling trip to seek understanding of the many doctrines in his continuing search for spiritual truths. The result is "Altars of the East" (Doubleday, $4.50), in which he explores colorful religions of which little is known in the United States.

Mr. Ayres has written a sequence on Hinduism, another on the Jains, the Parsis and the Sikhs; the two branches of Buddhism, and Confucianism, Mohammedanism, and Judaism, all of which represent the spiritual ideals of 1½ billion persons.

While Mr. Ayres was once a conscientious objector, he lets it be known in this work that he believes peace may be good and that it can also be evil, that the peace with which he is concerned "is surcease of international armed conflict for a sufficient period to allow time, energy and money to tackle and overcome the subhuman environment degrading and demoralizing more than half the world's inhabitants."—F.T.K.

PETER GIBBS
. . Knows African Colonies . .

A fascinating new book which reveals strange ways in which colonies were created in Africa — with trail-makers like Cecil Rhodes and Leander Starr Jameson stirring life in its pages—is "A Flag for the Matabele" (Vanguard, $3.50). Author is Peter Gibbs, who has lived in Africa and Rhodesia for the past 20 years.

WITH 1956 political battles beginning to shape up, "This Is Nixon: The Man and His Work" (Putnam's, $2.75) should be must reading for those who admire the Vice President and wish to defend him, for those who dislike this young man who's almost certain to be Eisenhower's running mate, and for those who want a closer look at the man before deciding whether they will or will not support him.

Written by James Keogh, an editor of Time, the book is compact but still is a definitive look at the 36th Vice President — where he came from, what he believes, what he says and where he stands. Here, certainly, is ample proof that he is the most active vice president in the country's history, and there are generous quotations from interviews and speeches.

Actually, Nixon is almost a "home town boy" since he was born in nearby Yorba Linda on Jan. 9, 1913. This is a full, readable account of this rising young American from that day until now, when he is probably the most controversial figure in politics.—F.T.K.

THE BEGINNING struggles of modern Israel are those of a people with a world against them. "Vanquish the Angel" by Diana and Meir Gillon (Day, $3.50) begins with Yoel as a child of the older Jews who grows into his birthright and returns to Israel with an English education and a gentile wife. At that time the British blockade impressed the Israel people into a secret battle against authority. Bombs and bullets comprised the language of resistance, and every Jew had his own place in the struggle for freedom.

All is not well between Yoel and the lovely Olivia. A fight for a state grows into a fight for a marriage, when Olivia turns to a British officer for comfort in a fashion which it seemed could not be given her by Yoel. It is the secret Jewish network which has to disclose to Yoel that his wife is suspect. From then on the novel gains in tension, until at last Israel is a state, the British leave but the Arabs attack. The reader will gain a new understanding of what comprises Jewish independence with the reading of this fine novel. —G. L.

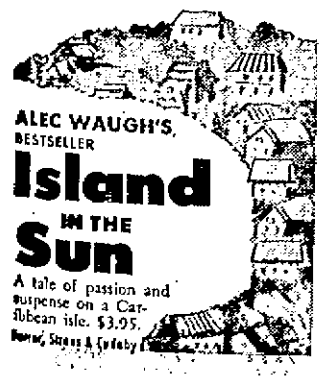

DETAILS OF BEING a Navy wife are many and varied, often frustrating, but the ultimate achievement is a grand life, in the opinion of Florence Ridgely Johnson who, more than 20 years ago, married a young junior lieutenant. Today, her husband is a rear admiral. That other Navy wives may have the benefit of her experience as they "report for duty," Mrs. Johnson has written what she terms "a service manual for the naval officer's wife." It is "Welcome Aboard" (U. S. Naval Institute, $3.50), and in it, carefully titled by chapters and efficiently indexed, are the answers to a myriad of questions confronting the new member of the vast Navy family.

SABRINA KANE, from the novel of the same name by Will Cook (Dodd, Mead, $3.50), was a pioneer immigrant to Illinois. Her husband died en route, and the beautiful lady determined to continue to the new land. She could swing a bullwhip as good as any man, though she was "hardly taller than a rifle and weighed less than a barrel of rum." Had her own ideas about bossing men, too, until she ran into Benjamin Travis, who finally conquered her.

"MURDER IS WHERE You Find It," and you'll find lots of it in the book of that name by Robert P. Hansen (Mill-Morrow, $2.75). You ought to be able to guess the ending, too.

DOGS AND CATS, big and small, pedigreed and alley, have definite personalities, repaying in love and trust those who care for them, says George DeClyver Curtis in "Cats' Tales & Dogs' Days" (American Press, $3). In his California mountain home he has had a variety of these furry pets and he writes of them with charm. The volume is well illustrated.

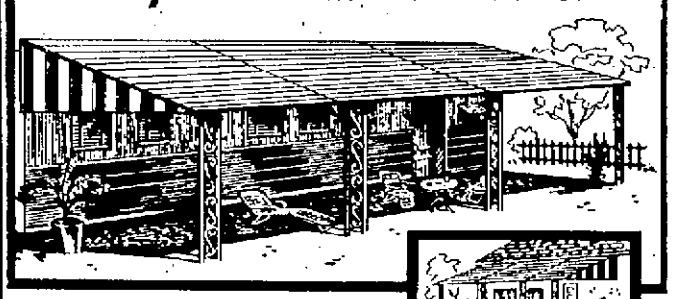

DELL CONTINUES to publish exciting First Editions, or original stories not hitherto printed in book form. Titles this month include "The Devil's Spawn," Robert Carse's story of revenge and primitive passions; "The Great Locomotive Chase," a story by MacLennan Roberts based on the Walt Disney production and on authentic Civil War documents; and "The Angry Man," fast-action western yarn by T. T. Flynn (all 25c).

Crossroads of the Pasteboards

Citizens have their fun at Lincoln Park Card Club.

By
Margaret Vassau

UNPRETENTIOUS in design and crouched in cloistered anonymity beneath pepper trees is the Lincoln Park Card Club, where people from all parts of the world meet to while away the time in pleasant but competitive companionship — a crossroads of the pasteboards. On a staggered basis of first come, first served, three hours' playing time is alloted to each individual.

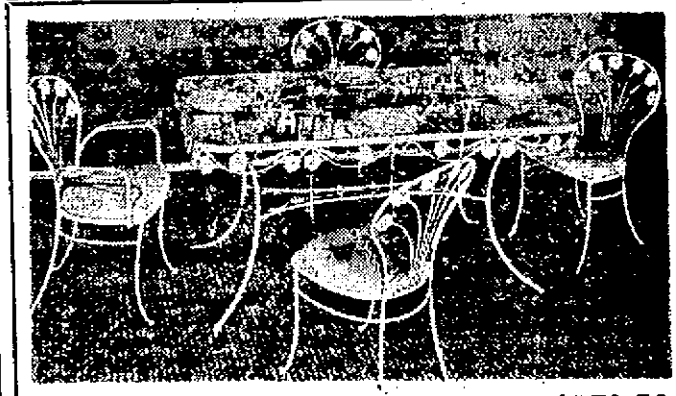

The club is strategically situated in the midst of the urban hotel district and draws much of its patronage from this source. Erected in 1948 at the insistence of 300 local eager beavers who had been courting pneumonia in a crude shed with a canvas roof, it now boasts a cosmopolitan membership of more than 1,500 men and women.

Planned, and originally built under the auspices of the Recreation Commission, the club is now self-supporting and even has a little surplus capital which is pooled and diverted into an entertainment fund. The dues are nominal, 50 cents per month, $2 semiannually, and $2 if paid on a yearly basis.

YEARLY PATRONS only are allowed a voice in the selection of officers, who are responsible for the maintenance of the club and the conduct of its members. The affable and urbane president, Ed Millett, waives a salary and donates his time and energy to the cause, and the competent and agreeable secretary, Mrs. Barbara McFiggen, welcomes newcomers, keeps the accounts straight, and collects ruthlessly from the veterans, many of whom regard the club as a home away from home.

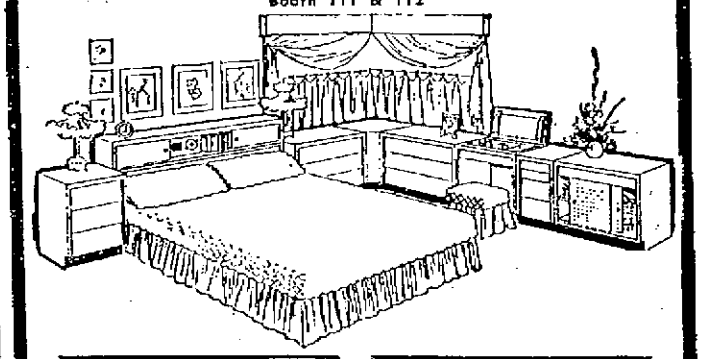

The chairs were formerly designed for utility, not comfort, and perhaps with the thought in mind that an aching back will make a player less reluctant to leave an interesting game when his alloted time has expired. In November, 1954, however, the powers that be seem to have had a change of heart (or personal experience playing cards the hard way) for comfortable chairs with seats padded with two inches of foam rubber in an eye-arresting and durable green plastic, and sturdy tables with shining masonite tops were installed at a cost of $2,483. Of this, $1,700 was contributed by the city, the remainder paid from the club fund.

THE DOORS are opened at 8 a. m. by Millett and are closed at 10 p. m. Canasta, hearts, pinochle and the old standby, bridge, are the popular games. Gambling, of course, is taboo, but most of the players are expert at any game they espouse.

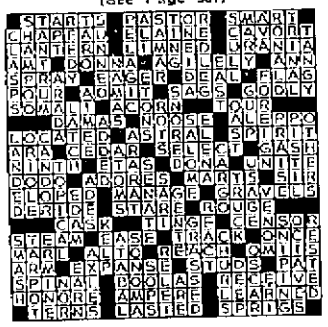

Membership in the club is an excellent investment and gives the purchaser the privilege of sauntering in when the spirit moves him and displaying a technique acquired, for example, in Dubuque to three diehards from Alaska, Canada and Muskogee, Okla.

Players occasionally find that a stubborn foursome has taken up squatters' rights at a table which they have been watching with a covetous eye, but a stern word from Mrs. McFiggen will dislodge the offenders pronto and the table is theirs. They look at their watches. Three hours, they remember, and no favorites are played.

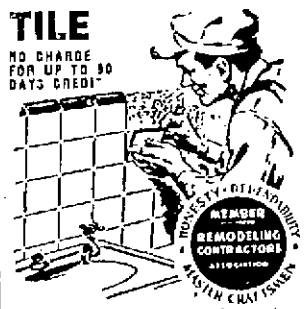

Bachelors, Note

Eligible bachelors in the United States, fearing the Leap Year's tender trap, would be wise to go to Japan, suggests Pan American World Airways. It seems that 1956 is the Year of the Saru, or Monkey, and Japanese girls are putting off marriage thoughts until 1957. Why? "Saru" also means "going away" and feminine logic reasons that any mates acquired this year might take the double meaning seriously and take off for parts unknown.

Shhh! Your skin is showing – your age!

You need Jacqueline Cochran's FLOWING VELVET

This modern flowing formula has already helped countless women—just like you—who had despaired of a dry, prematurely aging skin.

Jacqueline Cochran has found a new answer to the dry-skin problem and its cause, dehydration of the sub-surface tissues. She discovered Hydrolin, a new ingredient that transfers beneficial moisture into the deep tissues of the skin. Thanks to exclusive Hydrolin...and other rich components, only Flowing Velvet works these three ways:

1. It furnishes moisture that actually sinks into your skin.
2. It provides necessary oils for essential lubrication.
3. It maintains the normal balance of oils and moisture.

One touch mirrors the beautiful change! Tiny lines smooth out, years seem to melt away! To speed results, use Flowing Velvet day and night. It's hormone-free, greaseless, won't smear your make-up or smudge your pillow.

See for yourself. Make Flowing Velvet your 24-hour beauty care...and see how much younger and lovelier you can look. Why not start today!

PET PARADE

Pets Are Good Medicine

By Eleanor Avery Price

FAITH IN GOD is the best known support for those who suffer pain or who undergo tragic experiences. But "Faith without Works is dead," and service to all harmless living creatures, human or dumb, is work of the highest order.

The list is endless of those who have found relief from sorrow and trouble by loving and caring for pets—animal, fish, or fowl. The stories of two are told in this article.

MRS. PEARL DREWRY of Lakewood has been an unfortunate victim of that dread disease, muscular dystrophy, since she was three years old. A fine husband, a lovely daughter named Diane and talents for painting and sewing have been precious gifts from faith to her, but Mrs. Drewry also has found that the pleasures of having small pets, who need her loving care give her immeasurable comfort.

Mrs. Drewry has George a parakeet, a tiny squirrel monkey called Lucy, and a kitten, Queenie. Although she enjoys the antics of all her animal friends, Mrs. Drewry feels there is no pet better for one in her condition than an affectionate, soft, purring kitten.

In many instances, especially for afflicted boys and men, a dog of the right breed brings great pleasure and solace, and to this John G. (Johnny) Hunt, now official photographer at the Wilton Hotel, happily attests.

TWO YEARS AGO, following extreme illness, discouragement hung like a heavy, black mantle over Johnny's head until his cousin, Terry Hines, director of public relations at the same hotel, brought him a Japanese spaniel puppy so small she could be held in the cup of one hand.

Terry deliberately left Johnny alone with the puppy so that the young man, a bed invalid, would have to manage alone. And he did. Whereas he was refusing to help even himself, he could not let a tiny puppy shift for itself. Johnny got up out of bed and tended to his pet, and in return the puppy gave him affection and understanding beyond measure.

Before long Johnny had a "new lease on life."

Named Princess Ya Keena of Nik-Cin, but more endearingly called "Doggy," this little spaniel is the sweetheart of the Wilton Hotel and is right on hand to meet all guests, including celebrities who come there.

SPONSORED BY the Leland Schencks of Long Beach, Japanese spaniels will be featured just inside the entrance to the Hobby Show at the Municipal Auditorium, starting April 28 and continuing through May 1. The Schencks will be pleased to tell about their work with the Japanese spaniel and their efforts to place the right one in the right home.

Thousands of people "discovered" this breed of dog at the Hobby Show last year, and many ill or discouraged persons came especially to see this small dog with the big dog's personality, a dog who knows when to be quiet and when to romp.

According to Lois De Lano, show manager, the entire Hobby Show is non-commercial and admission is free. Hours are from noon to 10 p.m. daily during the show period.

LAKEWOOD DOG Obedience Club Drill Team practice and obedience refresher course are both being held Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. in the southwest corner of Veterans Memorial Stadium grounds. Spectators are invited. The Club has accepted the invitation of the Harbor Cities Kennel Club to take charge of the obedience trials at the kennel club's show June 23 and 24 at the Veterans Memorial Stadium.

A FREE BASIC training class for dogs owned by kids ages 8 to 14 inclusive will start on Saturday, May 12, from 11 to noon at 5400 Cherry Ave. At least one parent must attend his child when the dog is entered. The class will be conducted by Joe DeBeck. For other information, phone GA 23564.

HOLLYWOOD DOG Obedience Club will hold its trials in North Hollywood Park May 6. On the same date, there will be a boxer puppy match in the Glendale Auditorium.

George, a parakeet; Lucy, squirrel monkey, and Queen, black kitten, are special pals of Mrs. Pearl Drewry.

Affectionate natures are Japanese spaniel feature.

HOW TO Build a Handsome Modern Couch; Bookcase With Individual Look

1. HANDSOME MODERN couch has a plywood slab on black-painted dowel legs. Facing of mahogany finishes the base around all sides, and two iron supports hold the slanted back rest. Seat is made of 4-inch foam rubber, encased in unbleached muslin and slipcovered in upholstery material. Snaps are tacked to the plywood slab to secure the seat to the base of the couch.

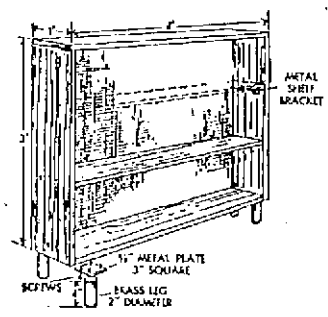

3. LEGS OF 2½-INCH doweling are screwed to corners of the plywood slab. The facing is attached to the slab with corner braces, spaced at regular intervals along the inside, and glued together at the corners. The insets show braces used for back rest and for bracing the corners.

2. FOOT-WIDE BACK rest is screwed to two iron supports, each placed 9 inches from either end of couch. Facing along back of couch is indented to allow space for brackets—see drawing for details.

4. BOOKCASE WITH an individual look is simply a 3x4-foot open-ended mahogany box with ¼-inch brass screening nailed onto the inside of the back. Two shelves are placed a foot apart.

5. DRAWING SHOWS dimensions of bookcase, as well as leg-mounting detail. Legs are 4-inch lengths of 2-inch brass tube, brazed to 3-inch squares of metal, which have screw holes for fastening them to the base.

Cameraman on Skis

By the Shutterbug

HOW TO MAKE a business out of a hobby has been demonstrated by John Stephens, 391 Wisconsin Ave., free lance photographer, at Sun Valley.

Stephens came to the famous Idaho resort at Christmas time on a skiing vacation and stayed as a member of the staff of the Sun Valley News Bureau. His specialty is ski-action photography.

In addition, he shot movies for Pictorial Research Inc., when Pictorial made a wide screen production for Todd-AO.

TWO BUG-EYE CAMERAS—one weighing 200 pounds and one 20 pounds—were used to make the picture which will be shown as a short with "Oklahoma."

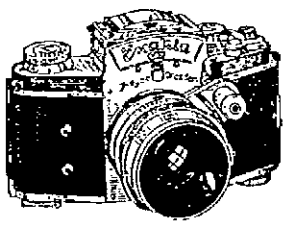

In the film made at Sun Valley, the 200-pound camera, on a sled, followed skiers downhill so that the audience will have the sensation of skiing down Baldy Mountain. Stephens skied with some of the scenes, and helped choose locations for other scenes. The camera was originally designed to be worn strapped on with a harness. Stephens felt safer carrying it where he could get away from it in case of a spill. However, the spill never came.

A member of the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club and Skrid and Finne Ski Club, the Long Beach photographer is known for his ski action pictures taken at Snow Summit and Big Bear Lake, as well as water skiing pictures.

LONG BEACH Camera Guild will have another travel program Wednesday evening in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Kyle Holmes will show a short movie on the Great White Throne. A. H. Martin will show color slides taken on a recent trip to Europe.

WINNING FILMS will be shown and trophies awarded at the annual banquet of the Southern California Assn. of Amateur Movie Clubs at 6:30 p. m. April 28 at the Petroleum Club, 4365 Atlantic Ave. Films have been judged by the Northern Council. This is the big event of the year, an inter-club contest of the best movies.

Zinnias thrive throughout entire summer to brighten the outdoor garden and to color indoor arrangements.

GARDENS

These Are Sun Lovers

By Bob Gilmore

WARM WEATHER is on the way, and you can expect the temperature to keep on rising for the next few months. Not all plants are capable of flowering when the mercury moves into the higher brackets. Yet your garden need not be without color just because the sun is at its peak. Proper plant selection will keep your landscape glowing all through the summer season.

The zinnia should be high on your list. These annuals love warm, even hot weather. They are natives of Mexico and are very much at home throughout this area. Some are as small as a button, others are large as a dinner plate. Their color range is quite complete and dozens of distinct types are available. Zinnias are sun lovers and will prove highly colorful both in the outdoor garden and indoors as cut flowers.

Marigold will also perform well during the next few months. Both French and African types are available. This classification is somewhat misleading for both come from Mexico and the region south to the Argentine. Generally speaking, the main distinction is a matter of size of both plant and flower. The African types grow taller and Double hollyhocks are among beautiful perennials to enhance gardens. They reach peak in mid-summer.

Perennials Bloom Early

By Walter Finch

JUNE GARDENS, most beautiful of the year in northern states, almost wholly rely for their delightful displays upon hardy perennial flowers. These same perennials do well in gardens of the Long Beach area where their period of bloom commonly is earlier and longer.

Since early blooming perennials are fully mature when spring arrives, they can develop their flowers much faster than an annual, which must grow to maturity from seed, before it flowers.

A perennial plant lives for years, returning each year to greet you, an old and welcome friend. Yet most can be grown from seed as easily as vegetables, provided they are started in the spring and given the same care as vegetables during their first year.

THE COMPLETE garden should have annual and perennial flowers, for each has its contribution in beauty to make during the garden year.

Not all the perennials flower in June. By choosing early, mid-season and late varieties it is possible to obtain a "succession of bloom" which will insure in your garden a constant display from earliest spring until autumn of these lovely flowers, which are usually the garden headliners during their season.

HERE ARE SUGGESTIONS taken from the long list available of perennials that can be grown from seed:

Blue—Anchusa myosotidmora, 1 ft., April-May; Anchusa Dropmore, 5 ft., June-July; Delphiniums, Pacific Hybrids, 5-6 ft., June; Linum perene, 2 ft., May-August; Platycodon, 2-3 ft., June-September.

Yellow — Anthemis, 2 ft., all summer; Coreopsis, 2 ft., all summer; Gaillardias, 2 ft., June until fall.

White — Arabis, 1 ft., April; Shasta daisies, 2-3 ft., June-August; Boltonia, 4-5 ft., July-October.

Red and Pink—Hibiscus, 3 ft., August-September; Gaillardia Burgundy, 2 ft., June until fall; Pyrethrum, 2 ft., June; Dianthus plumarius (clove pinks), 1½-2 ft., June; Columbines 2 ft., June; Double Hollyhocks, 5-7 ft., July.

SEEDS ARE AVAILABLE of many other perennials, as well as biennials, which live two years, and can be grown from seed by the same simple methods.

Like the hardy vegetables, seeds of hardy perennials can be sown as soon as the ground has been prepared. Sow seeds in rows, as you sow radishes. When they begin to crowd, thin them out, moving excess plants to other rows. Give them the same care in feeding, cultivating, and watering as you give vegetables, and by fall you will have substantial clumps with heavy roots, ready to move to permanent places in your garden.

What we call "gummosis," a gummy substance oozing out through the bark of trees and shrubs . . . especially peach trees . . . can come from different causes. Frequently, however, it is due to irregularity of watering; to letting your tree become too dry and then, to offset your neglect, giving it too much water. It's the same as though you, yourself, fasted for several weeks and then suddenly ate a big meal. The sap channels in the tree become shriveled from lack of moisture and then, when much water is poured through them suddenly, something has to "give" and that something is the bark, which breaks.

If you use what we call the "basin" method to water your fruit trees, be sure to put plenty of bean straw or other humus into the basin before the hot weather arrives. This will hold the moisture you give to your trees and keep it available to the fiber roots during the hot days.

Garden Tips

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Make certain that your dahlias and mums are well supported with adequate stakes. Often the plants grow taller than originally anticipated. Both dahlias and mums have a tendency towards top-heaviness, especially if disbudding is kept at a minimum.

Annual plants now in flower should be picked frequently. The seeding process utilizes a great deal of the plant's strength that otherwise would be diverted into producing more flowers.

Newly seeded lawns should be kept constantly moist until the young grass plants are well established. Apply frequent light applications, not heavy downpours.

Sun Lovers

produce larger blooms, often measuring five inches across.

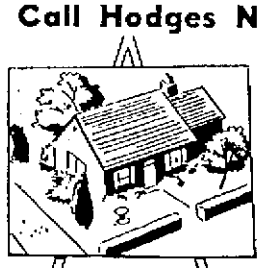

FRENCH MARIGOLDS are more dainty than their so-called African relatives. Many varieties rarely ever grow taller than six or eight inches and as such are well qualified as edging and bedding plants. One of the most interesting members of this group is the Midget Harmony which is ball-shaped and may be raised as a pot plant. Colors run to orange, gold and yellow.

Alyssum is a low-growing annual of fast growth and great ease of culture. The plants tend to re-seed themselves and will prove an almost permanent part of your landscape. Most varieties have a fairly restricted color range, including only shades of white and lavender. One of the most interesting is known as Carpet of Snow. The plants spread across the ground at a height of about two or three inches. The flowers have an intense shade of white, thus providing a beautiful white carpet for an outdoor living room.

FOR A BRILLIANT show of color, try the portulaca, often recognized as the sun plant or Moss Rose. Both single and double-flowered mixtures are available. The plants are low-growing and spreading in habit. The color range is dazzling with tones of white, pink, red, yellow and purple. The stems are often reddish in tone. Within certain limits, the hotter the sun the better your portulaca will grow.

Other varieties that should do well during the balance of the summer season include gaillardias, gazanias, gerberas, statice, salvia, geraniums, linum, nicotiana and mesembryanthemum, also known as iceplant.

County Fair first prize was awarded hooked picture by Darlene Lerwold, whose crafts assist crippled and needy.

One-Woman Welfare Bureau

DARLENE LERWOLD, a nurse who lives at 15724 S. Stevens Ave., Bellflower, comes close to running a one-woman welfare bureau.

In the last eight years in Bellflower, Long Beach, Council Bluffs, and Omaha, she has given 50 braces and nine wheelchairs to patients, largely polio victims, who needed them.

And she has made the money for the braces and wheelchairs by making and selling hooked pictures and rugs, nylon and fiber flowers, and the like. Now she is making Easter rabbits and chickens from styrofoam balls and chenille.

Her "Mr. and Mrs. Currier Go to Church," a snug couple in a sleigh, won first place for hooked pictures at the last Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona. A pansy rug took first place for hooked rugs, and a floral picture took fourth in its field.

"I contribute all the materials and my time," she says. "I dye the wool. I can get 26 tones of one color."

IN ADDITION to wheelchairs and braces, Darlene Lerwold regularly remembers persons in the Iowa School for the Deaf at Council Bluffs, the Christian Home in Council Bluffs, Hattie B. Monroe home for crippled children in Omaha and the Masonic Boys Home in Omaha.

"I also make layettes for unwed mothers and occasionally hospitals call on me for layettes for patients who do not have them," she says.

She has a daughter, Mrs. Don Meredith of Lakewood, and two grandchildren, Myke, 4, and Kathye Jean, 3.

Philatelic Find

A PHILATELIC find, hidden in an old desk since 1903, will mean at least $1,000 to its owner, Mrs. Cameron Craig of New York.

The stamps, an unused block of 25 of the 1848 one-cent Broadway post office locals, were given to Mrs. Craig by an uncle who had discovered them in his grandfather's desk.

Mrs. Craig had no idea the stamps were worth that much when she sent them for appraisal and verification to the Philatelic Foundation in New York.

After the uncle died, Mrs. Craig went through his papers and found a 1912 edition of Scott's Catalogue. This reminded her that she had the block of old stamps and that's when she sent them to Miss Ethel Harper at the Philatelic Foundation.

The Broadway locals have a bright history in themselves. Started by James C. Harriott in 1848, the service carried letters throughout the city and to the post office at one cent for each letter or parcel carried.

EINAR PETERSEN
The Wives Love Him

"Wives who cook and do the dishes,
"Should be granted three good wishes,
"A grateful mate, a well-kissed cheek,
"A Talk o' the Town dinner every week."

THAT LITTLE poem is printed on the menu of Einar Petersen's Talk o' the Town restaurant, 3980 E. Ocean Blvd. The words delight all the wives who read them because there's nothing they'd rather do than dine with Einar Petersen EVERY night, if their husbands would permit it.

Petersen, who took over as Talk o' the Town host owner last December, treats his patrons to wonderful food, prepared with painstaking care and served with polished professional techniques. He features mouth-watering charcoal broiled steaks, all sizes and varieties to fit all appetites; sensational prime rib of choice Eastern beef, au jus, and splendid sea food and poultry selections.

Those entrees are offered on complete dinners guaranteed to please the most finicky diners. Included are a fresh shrimp appetizer, choice of delicious onion soup or soup du jour, a big salad with croutons and choice of beverage; baked or French fried potatoes, toasted cheese rolls, choice of beverage and choice of dessert, including superb Danish apple cake. Dinner prices start as low as $1.85, complete, and range up to $3.25 for the prime rib and $3.95 for a choice 12-ounce filet mignon. Among the nice extra touches are free cigarettes and after-dinner mints, presented with the check.

PETERSEN has been a familiar figure to Long Beach restaurant-goers for years. A veteran of three wars, he formerly operated the Hotel at the Lafayette Hotel and Einar Petersen's Army & Navy Club.

The Talk o' the Town, recommended by the Hillsway restaurant guide, serves dinner daily from 5 to 11 p.m. and from 3 to 10 p.m. Sundays. Talented Bill Clark plays the piano nightly.

With more years of research... more study and experimentation... more major contributions to dental hygiene during the past 79 years than any other company in the world, COLGATE—WORLD LEADER IN TOOTHPASTES—NOW ANNOUNCES

COLGATE BRISK FLUORIDE TOOTHPASTE

Contains the ONLY FLUORIDE proved in 10 years of clinical tests

HARDENS TOOTH ENAMEL, MAKES TEETH STRONGER TO DEFEAT DECAY

starts working instantly

Scientists proved this Fluoride

And Brisk's Fluoride is the only Fluoride proved in 10 year clinical tests...the same fluoride now being used successfully in water supplies...the same dentists use successfully to reduce decay. That's why this same fluoride, so widely approved by medical, dental and governmental authority, is now in Brisk.

Benefits both adults and children

Brisk's Fluoride/85, Colgate's exclusive new formula, helps protect all permanent teeth whether in adults or children over six. Brisk's Fluoride is instantly released . . . works on contact as you brush your teeth . . . strengthens tooth enamel as no other decay-preventive ever could.

Works even while you eat, drink or sleep

because Brisk's Fluoride/85 not only gives you wonder-working Fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel, but provides a second, tested decay-fighter that starts working instantly . . . keeps working all day against the formation of decay-acids. Unless you get Brisk, you cannot get the benefits of Fluoride/85.

Only BRISK has FLUORIDE/85,

gives extra protection Fluoride alone can't give... works best where you need it most

Brisk's Fluoride actually concentrates in weak or "soft" spots where decay usually starts — combines with tooth enamel, becomes part of the tooth itself — thus protects as no other decay-fighter can. And Brisk's new, stay-active, decay-fighter, reaches into tight crevices between teeth — into food-traps where decay acids form — starts working instantly to defeat a major cause of decay.

WONDERFUL FLAVOR!

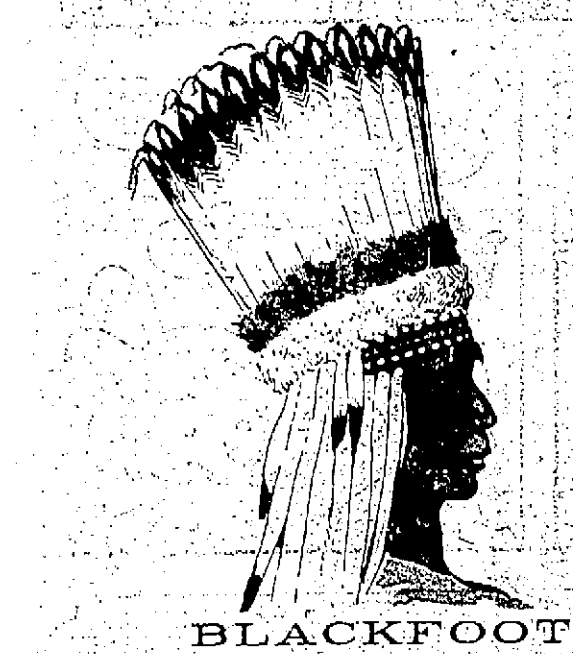

Helps keep breath fresh all day!

And there's no "tinny" aftertaste with new Brisk! Your mouth tastes sparkling cool and sweet! Brings out all the natural whiteness of teeth!

LANCE

BLACKFOOT

Twelve hours have passed since the brush with the Blackfeet. Blaze and the Arapaho guide have failed to rendezvous.

Fearing the worst, Lance retraces their escape route and two miles downriver comes across the lifeless form of his guide.

The body is secluded from varmints and Lance continues the vain search for Blaze.

At noon, thoroughly sick at heart, he gives up. And Lance's plight is desperate . . . .

He is alone in hostile and unfamiliar country, without horses or supplies. Mountain men have nightmares about such predicaments, for the odds are a thousand-to-one against survival. Lance takes a long gamble . . .

In the afternoon he picks up the trail of the Blackfeet who have his horses and tracks them 'til they camp at dusk.

Somehow he must reclaim those animals . . . .

Cold War Gain of U.S. Told by Ike 'Off Cuff'

Report 100 Killed in Pro-Stalin Riot

By ROY ESSOYAN

TIFLIS, Soviet Georgia (AP)—Reliable sources estimated Saturday that up to 100 Georgians may have been killed when troops opened fire on waves of pro-Stalin demonstrators who tried to seize the Tiflis postoffice on March 9.

This estimate was made as this capital of Stalin's native Georgia unveiled a giant 60-foot statue to Lenin. Some 4,000 soldiers and militia rigidly kept most of the late dictator's hot-tempered fellow Georgians from the scene of the ceremonies.

All roads leading to Lenin Plaza, the scene of the unveiling, were blocked off to prevent any repetition of last month's demonstrations.

• • • •

THE UNVEILING itself was a result of a lesson learned by the collective leadership in Moscow from that incident. It appears to have embarked on a policy of ignoring Stalin here, rather than vilifying him, or gradually replacing his Georgian likeness with that of Lenin.

(The estimate of 100 killed in the March 9 disorders is the highest yet reported. Previous unconfirmed reports from western diplomatic sources had said nine were believed to have been killed. A London dispatch on April 16 quoted qualified western diplomatic informants as saying 300 persons were injured during riots in which students virtually took over the city for five days.

(Roy Essoyan, of Associated Press, is one of three western reporters allowed to go to the Georgian capital more than a month after the incident. His first report on April 15 said the city was now calm, but indicated the residents were very reluctant to talk to reporters.

(Victor Kupradze, rector of Tiflis University, was quoted by Essoyan as saying on April 17 that western reports that hundreds were killed were not true.)

• • • •

AFTER A WEEK'S travel and observation around Tiflis and Gori, Stalin's birthplace, this correspondent has pieced together a startling picture of the dramatic events of last month.

Government officials either have refused to discuss those events or have denied that troops were called out or fired on the demonstrators. Other sources have given widely varying accounts.

According to reliable inform-

Soviet U.N. Delegate 'Observed'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has been quietly investigating Arkady A. Sobolev, Russia's chief delegate to the United Nations, to decide whether his conduct warrants expelling him from this country.

Sworn testimony before the Senate internal security subcommittee has indicated that Sobolev may have been the key figure in luring five fugitive Russian sailors back to the Soviet Union two weeks ago.

The State Department brushed aside inquiries about Sobolev with the reply that the case was "under study." An official said he could not say when a decision would be reached.

But it was learned that an investigation conducted by the Justice Department had failed to produce evidence that the five sailors were threatened by Russian officials or intimidated into returning to Russia.

Viktor Solovyev, a 20-year-old Soviet sailor who refused to go home, told the Senate subcommittee that he rejected attempts by Russian agents to get him to visit Sobolev's headquarters. He said they threatened "reprisals" against his family in Russia if he did not return to Russia.

If the Russian agents were acting under orders from Sobolev, the Soviet U.N. chief would be guilty of acting improperly and subject to expulsion from the United States.

Union Dissolved

TORONTO (AP) — The 600,000-member Trades and Labor Congress of Canada (TLC) closed out its affairs Saturday preparatory to merging into the Canadian Labor Congress next week. The main business of the special convention was to authorize turning over TLC's assets of $253,000 to the labor congress.

Raps Foreign Policy Attack by Stevenson

Russia Follows Stalin Principles, President Says

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — President Eisenhower Saturday night vigorously defended his administration's foreign policy against charges by Adlai E. Stevenson that the United States is losing ground in the cold war.

Eisenhower made his defense in an impromptu speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors after his formal address to the same body. The formal address was carried to the nation by radio and television, but the impromptu remarks were off the air.

Although he did not mention Stevenson by name, Eisenhower was clearly replying to the Democratic leader who had told the editors at a luncheon meeting that the United States is "dangerously close" to losing its world leadership because the administration has "clung stubbornly" to a "rigid, unimaginative" foreign policy that is no match for Russia's new tactics.

• • • •

SPEAKING with evident emotion, the President said many people are asking who is "winning and who is losing . . . the cold war."

"Many people here at home say we are losing the cold war," the President said. "Many take the opposite viewpoint. They can point to facts rather than allegations."

Eisenhower then ticked off what he contended were victories, at least in part, for the free world during his administration. He cited Russia's changing policies as the prime and most recent evidence of the success of his policies.

Eisenhower had said in his prepared speech that there is reason for "cautious hope that a new, a fruitful, a peaceful era" lies ahead for mankind. While cautioning that it is "still too early" to be sure that Russia's new leaders sincerely want peace, he said "the world breathes a little more easily today."

• • • •

STEVENSON had charged that the administration had "drifted and stumbled" in foreign policy for the last three years, and had failed to come up with urgently needed new ideas to cope with Russia's switch from open aggression to eco-

Boy, 10, Wins $100,000 on Quiz Program

NEW YORK (U.P.)—A 10-year-old schoolboy expert on the stock market won $100,000 Saturday night on a television quiz program. He was the youngest person ever to win that amount on a quiz show.

Leonard Ross of Tujunga, Calif., answered a difficult five-part question about the New York Stock Exchange to become the fourth person to win the top prize on the NBC program "The Big Surprise."

• • • •

G. KEITH FUNSTON, president of the exchange, appeared on the program to give Leonard $2,500 to invest in any way he sees fit. Funston also gave him a five-year monthly investment plan under which he can invest $40 a month. Funston said Leonard deserved the awards for his interest and knowledge about stock exchange operations.

Previous $100,000 winners were Mrs. Ethel P. Richardson, a 73-year-old grandmother from Los Angeles, Calif.; George L. Wright III, 14, of New York, and Rear Adm. Redfield Mason of New York.

Leonard is the son of William Ross, a Los Angeles accountant. His mother, Pauline, who accompanied him here, is a court stenographer.

Leonard will have about $33,000 left after government taxes cut his $100,000 prize. He said he would give quite a bit of it to charity, including the March of Dimes and CARE. He also said he would give his father high fidelity phonograph equipment, his mother a tape recorder, and would buy a subscription to the Wall Street Journal for himself.

• • • •

THE WALL STREET Journal telephoned Leonard after the show and said he would receive a free subscription.

The dark-haired, serious-looking youngster said he was interested in stocks "as a way of people owning a share of American industry."

His interest in the stock market began about three years ago when his mother and father brought home a stock report.

Margaret Marries Newsman in Simple, Small-Town Rite

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (U.P.)—Margaret Truman and New York newsman Clifton Daniel Jr. were joined together in marriage Saturday in a ceremony breathtaking in its simplicity and reverence.

There were but 60 guests in the church.

It might have been, except for the elegance of Margaret's gown, the wedding of any well-to-do Missouri girl. It might even have been the wedding of a Missouri judge, which is what her father was before Harry S. Truman became President.

The former chief executive was unsmiling as he stood in the nave of tiny Trinity Episcopal Church. But it was strain and nothing more. Once the beautiful ceremony was over, his broad, famous grin returned and his stride was brisk.

• • • •

MR. AND MRS. TRUMAN were married in the same little church almost 37 years ago. He, like his new son-in-law, is a Baptist. Margaret and her mother are Episcopalians.

Margaret and Daniel boarded the Kansas City Chief at Union Station in Kansas City Saturday night en route to Chicago and a honeymoon at Nassau in the Bahamas. They will leave Chicago by air today for Miami on the second leg of the trip, and eventually wind up at the estate of Count Guy de le Fregonniere, French consular representative to the Bahamas.

The honeymooners entered union station through an underground tunnel and did not go through the main lobby.

• • • •

THROUGHOUT the wedding ceremony, read by Father Patric Hutton, there was the air of reverence. It had been Margaret's wish to avoid what Independence calls "hullabaloo." Outside the church there was excitement, well-mannered but plainly evident in the smiling faces of Margaret's friends in this western Missouri city of 30,000.

J. R. Hammontree, the church organist, played selections from Mozart and Bach. For the processional he played "Trumpet Voluntary" by the 17th century composer, Henry Purcell.

Mr. Truman and his lovely daughter, who wore an exquisite gown made of blond heirloom lace, entered the church behind the bride's attendants, Mrs. Coleman Branton and Mrs. John Horton, the latter the former Drucie Snyder.

They halted at the rise

Starved Boys Found After 3 Days in Closet

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two half-starved boys were found Saturday after spending 69 hours locked in a clothes closet in a vacant apartment.

Harry Strobles, a painter, heard sounds in the closet when he went to the apartment at 7:30 a.m. Saturday to paint it. When he opened it, the boys staggered out, sick from hunger and thirst.

Terry Grant, 5, and Willie Greer, 6, told officers they were playing in the apartment Wednesday when a man pushed them into the closet and pulled off the door knob.

They were admitted to a hospital for treatment.

FORT WORTH, Texas (U.P.)—Ruth Chandler Roosevelt, coed granddaughter of the late President Franklin and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, was married Saturday night to Midland, Texas, oilman Henry D. Lindsley III.

Mrs. Roosevelt and the bride's father, Elliott, both were present. Elliott flew in from his home in Mecker, Colo., to prepare for the wedding. Mrs. Roosevelt flew in Saturday from Salt Lake City, Utah.

The wedding in All Saints Episcopal Church was limited to just the family and a few close friends. The Rev. James P. Dewolfe Jr., the church pastor, and Canon Curtis W. J. Junker of Dallas officiated.

A reception followed at River Crest Country Club. The couple, after a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination, will live in Midland.

Los Alamitos Race Official Gets Punched

By JERRY WYNN

A race in honor of Orange County Sheriff Jim Musick wound up in an old-fashioned western brawl at Los Alamitos Race Course Saturday.

The main participants were trainer H. F. Sorter, Presiding Steward Chester C. Jones and State Racing Board inspector M. L. (Buck) Cornell.

Infuriated by the disqualification of his horse, Okie City Bob, which finished second but was placed last in the sixth race, Sorter approached Jones and asked:

"Did you disqualify my horse?"

• • • •

"YES, SIR," Jones replied and Sorter responded with a punch to the right kidney, police said. The 38-year-old Stockton horseman pressed his attack with a headlock before Cornell, fellow state inspector Ray Moug and horse identifier Daniel A. Munns could come to the aid of the 66-year-old chief steward, according to witnesses.

Uniformed officers say they finally quelled Sorter but not before he had flattened Cornell, who suffered an injured rib, broken glasses and miscellaneous bruises. Sorter bled from a cut on the left side of his head. Jones was unmarked.

Asked for comment on his actions, Sorter had only this to say:

"If he (Cornell) wants my li-

Hunt 17 Boats Missing in Catalina Race

Eighteen Coast Guard vessels searched Saturday night for 14 outboard motorboats missing during a race to Catalina Island.

An air-sea search began about dusk when the boats failed to show up in Avalon, the finishing point. More than 200 boats were entered in the race, the Outboard Motorboat Assn. reported.

The aerial search later was called off because of darkness.

• • • •

HEAVY GROUND swells and thickening fog hampered the search operation.

The annual race between the mainland and the island started early in the day. At one time 36 boats were reported lost.

Some of the missing vessels pulled in at Newport, the Coast Guard said. Most of the boats were stock outboards.

• • • •

COAST GUARD headquarters here estimated 40 or more persons aboard the missing boats.

Four boats were towed into Avalon by a fishing boat.

The 21-mile race was from the Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbor to Avalon. It was scheduled to start at 8 a.m. but was two hours late after the Coast Guard warned contestants of fog.

British Launch Cyprus Offensive

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—British troops, aided by helicopters, launched a major offensive Saturday against rebel gunmen believed hiding in the mountainous northern coastal area of Cyprus.

With ships blocking sea escapes, 1,500 troops combed a 50-square-mile area, covering practically every foot in their search for rebels and weapons used by Eoka, the underground arm of the union-with-Greece movement.

WATCHES OFFICERS SEARCH

Slayer of Army Wife Broods at Crime Scene for 23 Days

By BOB BECKMAN

COSTA MESA — For 23 days the confessed sex murderer of Cleta Camille Hatcher Johnson was forced by circumstances to continue living only a few steps from the cabin in which he says he stabbed her to death.

He is 20-year-old John Calvin Tipton, who rented one of the modest cabins, the College Court, 350 Avocado St., in February after being dishonorably discharged from the Army.

• • • •

THE VICTIM, who succumbed to one mighty jab of a knife into her heart the night of March 28, was the 18-year-old common-law wife of Pvt. Harold Johnson, 19, a Costa Mesa soldier.

Tipton is a well-muscled man standing 6 feet, 1 inch tall and weighing 185 pounds.

He was one of the first persons questioned in the initial hours of feverish investigation by law enforcement officers after Pvt. Johnson found her raped and dead when he returned from a tour of duty at the nearby Nike installation.

Hints of the terrific strain Tipton was under during the past three weeks came out during questioning by Costa Mesa and county authorities late Friday and early Saturday.

• • • •

WHEN TIPTON was not washing dishes in a downtown restaurant here, he usually was in his cabin brooding, officers said.

Time after time the admitted slayer watched as officers visited and re-visited the death cabin and searched the grounds for clues.

Tipton knew, it was said, that all occupants of the motel were being watched, as were residents in an adjoining trailer court.

To have packed his bag and fled would have immediately brought suspicion on him, Tipton knew.

Tipton was questioned the day after the young housewife and mother of a prematurely born baby still in Texas was found slain. Then 20 days passed before officers again tapped at his door. That was Wednesday.

• • • •

AS BEFORE, he answered their questions and watched them drive away.

But Friday evening the officers didn't ask questions but simply ordered Tipton to ac-

Guard Kills Intruder at Envoy's Home

BANGKOK, Thailand (U.P.)—An apparently deranged man who tried to force his way at knife-point into the residence of U.S. Ambassador Max Waldo Bishop was shot and killed by Thai policemen Friday night, it was reported Saturday.

The man was not immediately identified. The ambassador's chauffeur said he had shown up at the embassy in the past.

Police said the man had approached two police guards at Bishop's residence saying he wanted to see the ambassador on urgent confidential business.

The guards said the man was "rather insane" and rambled on in both Thai and English.

When the guards refused to permit him to pass, the man whipped out a homemade dagger and slashed at the policemen and the chauffeur.

There was a brief scuffle before the man fled and jumped on a bus. One of the guards was shoved into the street when he tried to pull the man out of the bus. The other officer shot the fugitive.

L.A.C. Says:

No Place to Camp

Fishing season opens on the 28th of this month. Thousands of cars will be heading for mountain streams for a weekend of fishing. But many of those hopefuls will not find a place to camp. Result will be many will camp outside the camp areas. They will increase the fire hazard, pollute streams and mess up the surroundings with beer cans and paper sacks and wrappers they throw around.

Because of inadequate rainfall and snow the mountains are dry and the fire hazard is greater than in previous years. Streams are lower and crowds will be greater. Forest rangers are so few they cannot possibly police the areas over which they preside. Sanitary conditions in most of the camps are far below the standard necessary to health and safety of those using them.

As Congress struggles with billions for farm relief, foreign aid, new freeways and other public construction it ignores our greatest heritage — the mountains. Congress has appropriated only $2,100,000 for operation of the U. S. Forest Service recreation facilities. It is estimated California forests alone need more than this sum.

Following the opening of fishing season, a million California families will be waiting for the closing of school. They look with longing hearts for a trip to the mountains. It will be the summer season when children could have an opportunity to enjoy a week or more in the mountains. If those children belong to an organization which maintains a mountain resort they are fortunate. But if members of the family look forward to a camping trip together they have a great problem.

Congress also appropriated $15 million for new facilities in the mountain parks. That, too, is a meager amount. It would seem reasonable that $100 million be appropriated for bringing the national park camping facilities up to date.

It is estimated California will double its present population within the next 20 years. The rate of increase is going on daily. The desire of families to go to the mountains increases as the cities become more crowded.

The trouble is that there is no organized pressure group of people who seek adequate camping facilities. The Forest Service does not have a strong lobby as do labor unions, farmers or business organizations. Result is they get little consideration. The only way the problem can be corrected is for public opinion to assert itself. Letters to Congressmen and Senators demanding greater consideration would be helpful. All California business organizations should go on record demanding greater consideration for campers. Better facilities in our mountains would benefit all who live and do business in California.—L.A.C.

U.S. Gaining Ground in Cold War—Ike

nomic and political penetration.

Defending the administration's record in his impromptu remarks, Eisenhower listed these accomplishments of the past three years:

KOREA—He said the world "must remember" that the Communists did not conquer "as they said they would do."

INDOCHINA — The Communist were "stopped" in Northern Vietnam. Southern Vietnam today is doing "much better" and is guided by a "splendid" official in Ngo Dinh Diem.

IRAN—The situation looked "so desperate" that many feared former Iranian Premier Mohamed Mossadegh would "lead Iran behind the Iron Curtain." But Iran was saved and its oil is again flowing to world markets.

He also pointed with pride to Egypt's agreements with Britain on their long Suez dispute, the Trieste settlement, and the defeat of Communist attempts to overthrow Guatemala.

EISENHOWER drew heavy applause mingled with some cheers and whistles from the editors when he told them after he went off radio and television that he would like to talk some more.

He urged the editors to help keep the American people informed about foreign affairs.

He said there is "nothing more important" than to "get away from demagoguery, partisanship as far as we can and get the naked truth before the people."

Foreign policies must change to keep "in tune with the world's aims," he said.

In his prepared speech, the President noted that the new Russian regime has "seemingly moderated" the Stalin policy of violence and hostility.

But he added these words of caution:

"It is still too early to assess in any final way whether the Soviet regime wishes to provide a real basis for stable and enduring relations.

* * * *

"DESPITE THE CHANGES so far, much of Stalin's foreign policy remains unchanged. The major international issues which have troubled the postwar world are still unsolved.

"More basic changes in Soviet policy will have to take place before the free nations can afford to relax their vigilance."

Eisenhower said "many of the wrongs of Stalin against other nations" still prevail under the new Soviets' leaders. He said the United States must be "tireless in our efforts to remedy these injustices and to resolve the disputes that divide the world."

cense, I'll gladly give it to him."

Chances are that is what will happen at the next meeting of the State Racing Commission. Sorter was escorted by Orange County Deputy Sheriff Dean McLeod to Santa Ana headquarters where he was held on battery and disturbing the peace charges filed by Cornell.

Racing Secretary Ed Burke summed up the day's excitement on and off the track with "ain't this a real Wild West meeting!"

Report 100 Perished in Soviet Riot

ants, however, events reached a climax on March 9, the third anniversary of Stalin's burial, when the demonstrators tried to storm the postoffice. Some say they wanted to send an appeal to the United Nations. Others said they wanted to seize that hub of communications. The informants gave these details:

Whatever the reason, troops opened fire. For days afterward the city was like an armed camp. Tanks and troops patrolled the streets. A midnight curfew was clamped on the city.

* * * *

APPARENTLY it all started on March 5 with a peaceful demonstration to honor Stalin on the anniversary of his death. People poured into Tiflis from all parts of Georgia. In the face of official hesitation between the demands of the people and the orders from Moscow to permit no homage to Stalin, the crowds grew.

Rioting finally broke out March 9 when crowds stoned buses, seized cars and stopped traffic. Egged on by hotheads or by provocateurs, they were screaming to take over the city before they were through.

Inflamed by mounting arrests, several thousand surged toward Stalin park and milled around a 50-foot statue of the son of Georgia.

* * * *

"THESE WERE YOUNG people," one informant said. "They didn't know what they wanted. By this time provocateurs were inciting them."

It was close to midnight when like a human sea the demonstrators poured out of the park and headed for the central post office on the main street.

Facing them on the steps of the Council of Ministers Building, next to the postoffice, machineguns were mounted. Troops guarded the postoffice itself.

"As the crowd came over a rise the troops fired over their heads," the informant said. "The crowds kept coming and the troops then turned their guns on them."

The speaker pointed to fist-sized chips in the stucco walls of a restaurant across the street.

"That's where some of the bullets hit," he said. "All these plate glass windows are new. They were smashed to bits."

The crowds apparently scattered after this. By dawn Tiflis was quiet again.

But one Georgian said, "We'll never forget March 9."

* * * *

SO THE AUTHORITIES took no chances Saturday at the unveiling of Lenin's statue, 10 feet taller than Stalin's.

Mounted militia, state security forces and regular garrison troops cleared the main streets two hours before the ceremony.

Every entrance to Lenin Plaza —which was called Beria Square after another Georgian who was Russia's police boss until he was executed after Stalin's death— was blocked off by double cordons of troops and militia. Buses and military trucks were parked across each exit to the square.

Admission to Lenin Plaza was granted only to about 5,000 picked representatives of trade unions, collective farms, industrial organizations, and other groups. They were marched into the plaza in orderly columns between uniformed cordons and were flanked on all sides by troops and militia throughout the 50-minute ceremony.

The rest of Tiflis' 800,000 population was out of sight behind the barricades leading to the square or bottled up indoors.

Vassily Mzhavanadze, Communist Party boss for Georgia, opened the ceremonies with a speech praising Lenin and the new collective leadership principle. Other party members, including old Bolsheviks, trade union delegates, a locomotive engineer, a collective farmer and a 14-year-old girl spoke.

No speaker mentioned Stalin. But as the crowd dispersed, a little girl blinked up at the new 60-foot high statue and asked her mother, "Is that Stalin?"

The mother hushed her.

"Stalin is no more," she said. "That is Lenin."

'Did Not Bury Wife's Teeth,' Scott Asserts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—L. Ewing Scott disclosed through his attorney Saturday that he believes his missing wife, Mrs. Evelyn T. Scott, 63, still is alive even though police are studying the possibility of murder.

Scott's wife vanished in May of last year, but Scott did not report her disappearance until March of this year. The missing woman's upper bridge of false teeth and two pair of her reading glasses were found buried on the grounds of her Bel-Air home.

The attorney for 59-year-old Scott, Seth M. Hufstedler, quoted his client as saying:

"I do not know how her teeth and glasses became buried or who buried them. I certainly had nothing to do with it myself."

At the same time, the District Attorney's office is preparing to go before the County Grand Jury with the case Tuesday. Dist. Atty. S. Ernest Roll said Scott may face counts of grand theft and forgery in the handling of his wife's $600,000 estate. Roll emphasized, however, that there would be no counts involving murder.

Meanwhile, police handwriting experts were studying 20 checks made out to the missing woman. The checks were from eastern firms which handled Mrs. Scott's property.

30,000 Homeless in Philippines Fire

MANILA (Sunday) (AP) — A fire swept through seven blocks of Cebu's business district Saturday leaving 2 persons dead, 30,000 homeless and damage officially estimated at between 4 and 5 million dollars.

Mayor Sergio Osmena Jr. reported at least 1,000 houses were destroyed. The big blaze started at police constabulary headquarters.

Aged Woman Victim of Strangler

PASADENA (AP)—A coroner's autopsy Saturday disclosed that Mrs. May Hlavorka, 73, was strangled in her rooming house Thursday.

When her body was first found, it was believed she had died a natural death. A full autopsy was ordered, however, when bruises were found on her neck.

Police said the door to her room apparently had been forced by the assailant. The coroner reported several of the elderly woman's ribs also were broken.

Officers began questioning 20 residents of the rooming house.

before the altar, where Father Hutton, clad in a hand-embroidered cope of gold, read from a prayerbook held by his red-robed acolyte.

The group, with Mr. Truman at his daughter's arm and John Knox Barrow Jr., of Ahoskie, N. C., at the elbow of the bridegroom as best man, remained at the rise until the part of the ceremony when Father Hutton asked:

"Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

If Mr. Truman spoke, he was not heard. The former President placed Margaret's hand in Father Hutton's, who in turn placed it in Daniel's. Then Mr. Truman stepped back to his pew.

The couple took three steps forward and Father Hutton began the form phases of the ceremony. Daniel's voice was clearly heard at first but became softer later. Margaret spoke softly throughout.

* * * *

THE MARRIAGE pledge was almost identical for both Margaret and Daniel:

". . . Till death do us part, according to God's holy ordinance, and thereto I give thee my troth."

Father Hutton neared the end of his solemn ritual by blessing the single ring of the ceremony, a plain band of gold. Mrs. Horton had lifted Margaret's veil as the couple stepped forward. Daniel's kiss was brief.

Father Hutton pronounced the pair man and wife "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," ending the brief ceremony for the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Truman and the only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Daniel, Sr., of Zebulon, N. C.

Margaret was radiant in the gown brought to Independence by its designer, Micol Fontana of Italy. Her veil, until it was lifted in the ceremony, floated only a little below her shoulders.

Ushers were Turner Catledge, managing editor of the New York Times for which Daniel is assistant to the foreign news editor, and George Backer, New York realtor and former president and editor of the New York Post.

After the ceremony when the newlyweds came out of the church, they were beaming as they gave photographers about three minutes. Mr. and Mrs. Truman followed them.

Mr. Truman wore semi-formal attire, as did other male members of the wedding party. Mrs. Truman, who may have shed a mother's tears inside, was smiling as she emerged from the church. She wore a lovely mist grey Swiss silk. Her flowers were white orchids.

When the wedding party was outside, the crowd of an estimated 1,500 persons were permitted to go inside the church. They saw the beautiful floral decorations, which included woodwardia ferns, string smilax, arrangements of giant white mums and glads, carnations and stock.

The wedding party returned to the house which gained world fame as the "Summer White House." There the reception became the center of attraction.

Margaret and Daniel cut a four-layer cake with white frosting and pink carnations at the reception in the dining room of the Truman home, but they didn't have any of the cake themselves.

About 175 persons entered the Truman home where champagne and cocktails were served along with hors d'oeuvres. For drinks, two bartenders set up service on a screened in porch and were serving champagne, scotch, bourbon, martinis and sparkling burgundy.

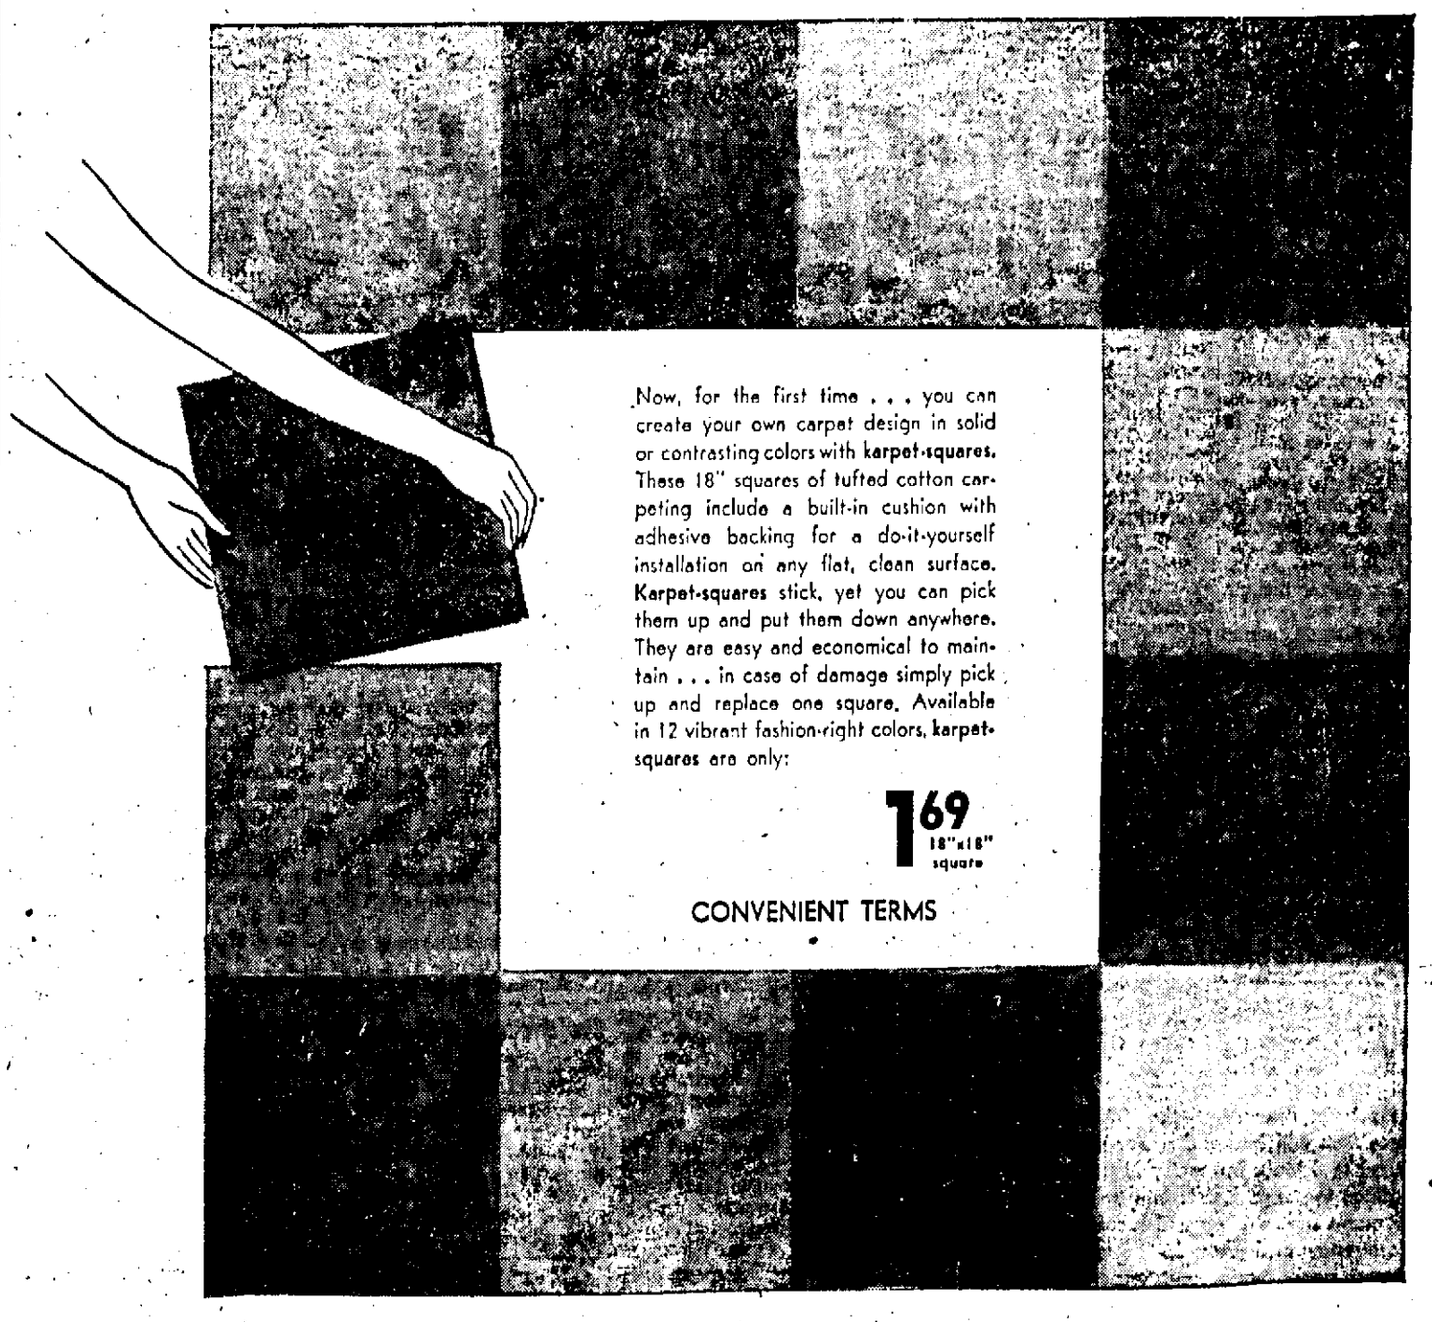

The hors d'oeuvres included small cakes, turkey, wafers and candies.

Mr. Truman headed the receiving line, followed by Daniel's father and mother, the bridegroom and Margaret.

They left Saturday night for Chicago aboard the Santa Fe's Kansas City Chief. From there they will fly at 10:30 a.m. today to Miami and from Florida will go on to Nassau, where they will honeymoon on the estate of Count Guy de le Fregonniere, French consular representative to the Bahamas.

Pioneer of U.N. Declares Atoms-for-Peace Progress Is Proof of Organization's Value

Students Given Essay Awards at Rally Here

The Israel-Egypt peace action moves toward a realistic atoms-for-peace program during the past week have proved the United Nations' practicability and necessity, one of America's leading exponents of the U. N. said Saturday night in Long Beach.

Clark M. Eichelberger, executive director of the American Association for the United Nations, told a banquet meeting of the group's Long Beach chapter that support for the world cooperation organizations was at an all-time high because of the successes.

"The action of the United Nations in averting war between Israel and Egypt has shown how efficiently the organization can operate in bringing about world peace," said Eichelberger.

• • • •

EICHELBERGER, whose headquarters are at the United Nations in New York, was principal speaker at the Long Beach chapter's annual meeting. High school students were honored for winning U. N. examination contests.

"U.N. progress is making President Eisenhower's 'atoms-for-peace' program a reality," he said, "and this will help to build the resources of the under-privileged nations so that their people can live in peace and prosperity."

Eichelberger is a former officer of the League of Nations secretariat and has been a consultant of the U. S. State Department on U. N. affairs. He was a member of the American delegation to the 1945 San Francisco U. N. Conference.

"Local groups such as the Long Beach Chapter of our United Nations Association can help make clear the need and functions of the world organization," he said.

• • • •

MAJOR ISSUES to face the United Nations in the forthcoming years will include disarmament, peaceful use of atomic energy, technical assistance to needy nations, the problems of colonialism and help for new nations and settlement of misunderstandings between nations, Eichelberger said.

Winners of the local chapter's $25 bonds for examinations and essays on the U. N. were: Poly High School—Richard Andrews, first, Don Rogers, second; Wilson — Richard Ashcraft, first, Roger Smith, second; Jordan - Larry Warner, first, Mel Brown, second.

All six of the winners will be eligible for national competitions for trips to Europe and Mexico as well as scholarships. Edward Castagna, local U. N. Association president, presided at the meeting. Doris Watts was contest chairman.

Masked Man Scared Off by Siren Blast

PARAMOUNT — The siren blast of a speeding patrol car scared off a hooded armed bandit during a robbery attempt at 16220 S. Paramount Blvd. Saturday night.

Sheriff's deputies said the gunman entered Louise's Beauty Shop at 6:30 p.m. and flashed a .32 caliber revolver at 63-year-old H. C. Venable and Mrs. Venable, who were cleaning up the shop owned by their daughter, Mrs. Louise Prusso.

When the couple declined to reveal the location of the cash register, the bandit reportedly put one arm around Venable's neck and poked the gun in his ribs.

At that moment the siren on an unidentified patrol car speeding past the location was sounded and the gunman fled through the rear door.

The Venables were able to provide deputies with a description of the bandit and the getaway car driven by an accomplice. The vehicle, a 1935 station wagon, was found abandoned later, deputies said. It had been reported stolen earlier in the day.

The Venables told deputies the gunman wore a stocking cap over his head.

30 CAP Planes Hunt Lost Navy Trainer

SANTA BARBARA (UP)—The California Air Patrol Saturday called out 30 planes and ground teams to search for a TV2 Navy jet trainer missing since Monday on a flight from the Naval Air Station at Alameda to nearby Pt. Mugu Naval Air Missile Test Center.

The missing plane carried one Navy flier, who has not yet been identified.

COOPERATIVE NURSERY SCHOOLS

Created Do-It-Yourself Projects, L.B. Parley Told

The cooperative nursery school is the original do-it-yourself project, convention delegates to the California Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools were told here Saturday.

PATUCK

Financial savings, though, are secondary to the benefits a parent derives from such a program, according to Pat Underhill, a convention committeewoman.

Young parents, especially, are able to strengthen the family structure through the co-op's parent education program, she points out.

More than 100 delegates are attending the three-day convention ending today in Lafayette Hotel.

Co-op nurseries are financed and managed by a group of parents, but teaching duties are handled by a professional instructor. However, mothers and fathers also attend the school regularly to assist.

• • • •

ONE OF THE observers at the convention is Miss Sooni Patuck, a nursery school teacher of Bombay, India, who commented that the co-op movement has not yet reached India.

"The parent-teacher movement appeared in India only recently," Miss Patuck said.

Dr. Vivian Todd, consultant to the Long Beach Council of Cooperative Nursery Schools, said in a luncheon address that she foresees permissive legislation to enable pre-school children to be included in the public school program eventually.

Dr. Todd added that such a program would have to include mothers in the picture for the 3- and 4-year-olds.

'Mustard Gas' Drug Helps Fight Against Lung Cancer

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) -A new drug similar to the deadly mustard gas used in World War I has shown promise in the treatment of Hodgkin's disease and other forms of lymphatic cancer, it was announced Saturday.

The American Cancer Society said two University of California scientists have found that the sulfur mustard drug "also appears to have beneficial effects in certain patients with lung cancer."

It was emphasized that the findings are based only on extensive animal experiments and tests on 27 human patients. Final clinical evaluation must await more extensive use on patients, a cancer society spokesman said.

The new drug, known as SM-1, was devised by Dr. Ethelda Sassenrath and Dr. David M. Greenberg, and has been used experimentally in the University of California hospital here.

"Two or three weeks after SM-1 is given intravenously, tumor masses and lymph nodes shrink and large spleens decrease in size in patients who respond," the spokesman said.

Sulfur mustard appears to be less toxic, longer acting and more easily administered than nitrogen mustard, another poison gas which Germany prepared for World War II but did not use, he said.

Because SM-1 is relatively non-toxic in effective doses, it can be administered in the outpatient clinic. Some patients given nitrogen mustard frequently become so sick they are often kept in the hospital a day after treatment, the spokesman said.

company them to the Orange County jail.

There, the questioning was more exacting and at times the athletically built dishwasher wavered slightly in his answers. About midnight he blurted out his confession—the first of three he was to give by Saturday noon.

"I'm glad of it," Tipton said of the confession. "Now my conscience is clear."

Officers quoted Tipton as saying he took a 6-inch blade butcher knife from his cabin kitchen and "on an urge" went to the door of Cabin No. 11 rented by the Johnsons only two weeks before and forced his way inside.

• • • •

HE ASSERTEDLY included in his confession a tale of how the young woman resisted his advances. Believing she was about to scream for help, he plunged the knife into her chest. Then, officers said, he raped her.

By 1 a.m. Saturday the native of Georgia whose parents reportedly are dead, was softly repeating his confession in more detail into the microphone of a wire recorder.

Shortly before noon Saturday, the confessed killer again went through his confession, and this time the words were taken down by a shorthand stenographer.

TIPTON'S EYES were wet when he was brought face to face with news cameramen early Saturday morning. He became unnerved as flash bulbs popped.

Dist. Atty. Robert Kneeland, who participated in most of the last interrogations, said Tipton "of course shows lots of remorse."

Asked if the young slayer at any time broke into tears, the district attorney said; "No, not exactly, but his eyes were damp."

Kneeland said a murder charge is being prepared and probably will be filed sometime Monday.

3 Boy Players Hurt in L.B. Baseball Games

Saturday was a bad day for young baseball players.

Dennis W. Nelson, 14, of 1600 Magnolia Ave., stopped a player from sliding into third base at Lafayette Elementary School playground—and broke his left ankle.

Russell A. Utterberg Jr., 15, of 4344 Falcon Ave., slid into second base at Cherry Field, 45th St. and Cherry Ave.—and broke his left arm.

Melvin H. Nachsin, 14, of 4433 Rutgers Ave., tried to catch a high fly at Pan American ball park and injured his left hand.

Educator Dies, Kin Lives Here

Dr. Charles Gilbert McDaniel, 84, veteran Baptist missionary educator in China, died Saturday in Culpepper, Va. Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Nancy Haynes of Long Beach, and a son, C. Yates McDaniel, military affairs reporter for the Associated Press in Washington, D. C.

Two other daughters and another son also survive. Dr. McDaniel spent 41 years in China, returning with the late Mrs. McDaniel on the repatriation ship Gripsholm in 1943.

She Slips Swinging at Nu-Pike Dummy

Roberta M. Ballus, 23, of 48 Neptune Pl., took a swing at a dummy in the penny arcade at Cedar Ave. and Pike Saturday afternoon, slipped and fell. She was treated at Seaside Hospital for a left leg injury.

Fire Razes House, 4 Men Flee

Firemen fought flames reaching 50 feet in the air in a vacant house at 1574 Sonoma Ave. Saturday night but were unable to save the frame structure.

Witnesses said four men were in the house when the fire started in the rear section but they fled the scene before the firemen arrived. Three neighbors told firemen they dragged two of the men, clad in shorts and undershirts, from the smoke-filled structure.

The rescuers, Leon Corey, 37, Hobert Layman, 22, and Leon Freeman, 28, all of 31 Mendocino Ave., said two of the men were outside and that they dragged two others out.

Freeman said one of the men was burned about the face. Police were looking for a gray 1939 Buick sedan in which the men were supposed to have driven off. Neighbors on each side of the house fought the flames futilely with garden hoses until firemen arrived.

L.B. Man Wins Pebble Beach Auto Contest

PEBBLE BEACH (UP) — Dr. Milton R. Roth of Long Beach won the seventh annual Concourse d'Elegance here Saturday with a sleek, shiny 1930 Italian Bugati roadster.

Some 150 of the prettiest cars on the West Coast, from a 1902 Autocar to a 1956 Rolls Royce competed in the automotive beauty contest.

Second overall winner was Jack Jarmuth of San Francisco with an XK120-M Jaguar roadster.

The d'Elegance, prelude to today's running of the famous Pebble Beach national championship sports car road races, was conducted by a panel of eight judges.

BANNERS OF U. S. and Ecuador Advance in Flag Display at Lakewood's Pan American Festival

Thousands See Flag Rite and Parade

Lakewood residents wrote a new chapter in the Good Neighbor story Saturday amid the color and music of a two-hour parade and a solemn pageantry of banners as the community celebrated its 10th annual Pan American Festival.

Starting at noon, some 75 parade units marched down Bellflower and Del Amo Blvds. to Pan American park, where Bancroft Junior High School students presented a U.S. Flag to Dr. Oswaldo Gonzalez, consul general of Ecuador. Thousands witnessed the ceremonies.

The festival was marred only by a pre-parade accident in which Sr. Stanley Lindo, consul general of Haiti, and two passengers with him in an official car were injured.

The accident occurred after a reception at Lakewood city hall when the driver slammed on the brakes suddenly, hurling the victims against the front seat. Lindo required five stitches to close a cut in his lip.

• • • •

THE FESTIVAL CULMINATED Saturday night with a dinner-dance at Lakewood Country Club in honor of the Latin American representatives and the coronation of Festival Queen June Shephard.

Twenty-three awards were presented to winners in the various parade categories.

Majorette winners were the Jean Judy Space-N-eers, San Gabriel, first; Gerry Tremble's Precisionists, San Diego, second, and Ted Otis Twirlers, Long Beach, third.

Brown Military Academy, San Diego, won first in the high school bands category, with Notre Dame High School, Sherman Oaks, second, and Excelsior High School third. Junior-sponsored band winners were Ozzie's Band, San Diego, first; Bishop Playground Band, second, and Long Beach Junior Concert Band, third.

• • • •

OTHER WINNERS:

Cameron Highlanders, San Diego, first place, adult-sponsored bands; Lakewood Boy Scouts, first place, junior drum and bugle corps; Bell Roughriders, first, senior drum and bugle corps; Azusa Eagles, first, drum corps.

Nellis School, Whittier, first place, drill teams; San Gabriel Junior Marines, second, and Long Beach Civil Air Patrol Girls, third.

Equestrian unit prizes: Walter & Dorothy Church, Pasadena, special award; Lakewood Corral 53, first, mounted groups; Norma Gootjes, Riverside, first place in individual Spanish mounted, with Rollo D. Grover, Arcadia, second; East Los Angeles Charros, first place, sheriff's posses; Earnest E. Champion, first place, individual silver mounted, with Ben Knight, Long Beach, second.

West Berlin Hits British Release of Red Kidnaper

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police and city officials Saturday angrily protested the release by British authorities of a Soviet major suspected of kidnaping an East German refugee.

West Berlin police headquarters said they arrested Maj. Gurig Felichkin last March 16 on suspicion of kidnaping Wilhelm Klamka last year.

In line with a four-power agreement on the treatment of allied nations in Berlin, police said they transferred Felichkin to British custody. The British turned the major over to Soviet authorities almost immediately, they charged.

• • • •

A BRITISH announcement said Felichkin was held three days before being turned over with a "strong protest" citing his "suspicious actions." A spokesman said Felichkin was not an army officer but a civilian member of the Soviet occupation forces.

He said the British had no other choice in view of the four-power agreements providing that nationals of one occupation power arrested in the sector of another in Berlin must be transferred to their own authorities.

West Berlin police said Felichkin came to West Berlin last year posing as a French intelligence officer and made friends with Klamka, who was working at the time as a West Berlin customs official.

• • • •

LAST JUNE 8, police said, the major knocked Klamka out with a pistol and spirited him into East Berlin in an automobile bearing French occupation license plates.

Klamka, 48, was sentenced to life imprisonment by a Communist court on charges of being a western spy, according to the police.

Red Scientist Tells Nuclear Peace Plans

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's top expert on the hydrogen-bomb disclosed Saturday he plans talks in London with British scientists on harnessing the powerful thermonuclear force for peaceful uses.

I. V. Kurchatov, a Soviet scientist who took the lead in Russia's H-bomb research, now is in Britain with Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev.

He disclosed his plan in a letter to an A.P. correspondent.

"During my visit to England, I hope to discuss with English scientists—my colleagues—work in the field of atomic energy and a number of questions connected with the practical use of atomic energy, particularly nuclear reactors for power stations and controlled thermonuclear reactions," the letter said.

• • • •

THE H-BOMB is frequently called the thermonuclear bomb. Unlike the reaction which produces the A-bomb, the thermonuclear reaction has not yet been controlled here, Kurchatov said last week.

So far as is known here, controlled reaction from the raw materials of the hydrogen bomb has not been achieved by the West either.

Kurchatov's statement that he intends to discuss the problem with the British therefore takes on added importance.

Dramatist, Wife Missing on Flight

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—A $1,000 award was offered Saturday by Mrs. Anna Pollock for information leading to the whereabouts of her Broadway producer son and his wife who have been missing since last Sunday.

Gordon W. Pollock, whose stage hits include "Time Out for Ginger," "Red Roses for Me" and "Wake Up, Darling," took off in his Cessna 180 plane from Detroit bound for Erie. He was accompanied by his wife, Naomi.

The last word received from the 28-year-old producer was Sunday night when he radioed an Erie airport that he was approaching the southern edge of Lake Erie.

New Drugs a Boon to Insomnia-Ridden

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—New drugs—and more advice—are available for the millions who find trouble wooing sleep.

Three new types of sleeping pills have come along in the last few years.

One group is sold over-the-counter in drug stores, with no prescription needed.

All these drugs are actually antihistamines, says George Larrick, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). At least one also contains some scopolomine, an old sleep standby.

The antihistamines were developed to combat hay fever, asthma, skin rashes and other allergies. They also were advanced a few years ago as help in combatting allergic symptoms of the common cold.

As allergy fighters, one drawback was that some antihistamines often made many people drowsy. This was the key to using particular antihistamines as sleep inducers.

When one manufacturer first marketed an antihistamine this way the FDA objected, Larrick said. The manufacturer produced clinical studies to support his claim. The FDA had an independent medical center make studies, giving the drug to some persons and not to others, and back came word that it did often have sleep-inducing effects.

Since then a number of firms have marketed this type of sleep pill.

Used in the low dosages recommended, the antihistamines are safe, and do not cause any harmful effects, Larrick said.

A SECOND CLASS of sleep pills, sold on prescription only, came from research aimed at developing nonbarbiturate, non-habit-forming sleep inducers. They do not poison, and harmful effects even from tremendous overdoses have rarely been reported.

There are at least five drugs in this group, each based on a different chemical formula. They induce sleep within 15 minutes to an hour, with sleep lasting from two to eight hours, clinical tests report. None produces a "hangover" the next day, as barbiturates may do.

These drugs do not affect everyone in the same way—they vary in efficiency of inducing sleep and don't make some people sleepy at all.

Third in the sleep aid line are some of the tranquilizing or calm-down drugs, widely used for nervous tension and emotional conditions. Chlorpromazine, Meprobate, and Reserpine are examples. All must be used under a doctor's supervision.

Car Driven by Girl, 13, Kills Autoist

LOUISVILLE (AP) — A Shelbyville, Ky., man was killed Saturday when his automobile collided with a car driven by a 13-year-old girl who was driving for the first time.

The victim was Frank J. Scobee Jr., 26, who was en route to Shelbyville from his job in Louisville.

State Troopers William Martin and Morgan Elkins said the girl, Julie Ann Walker of Louisville, told them she had been ordered by Roscoe Rouse, 36, to drive "or you'll have to walk."

• • • •

SHE SAID ROUSE "had been drinking" but she protested she didn't know how to drive until ordered to do so. She had driven only 250 feet when the car went out of control.

The officers said Rouse denied forcing the girl to drive but said his mind "was a blank" about events leading to the accident.

Rouse and the girl were riding alone. They were injured, along with three other persons in Scobee's car.

Shelby County Atty. William H. Hays said a manslaughter charge will be placed against Rouse when he is released from a hospital.

'BODY' FOUND VERY ALIVE ON HIGHWAY

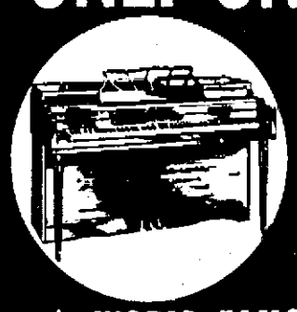

DESERT CENTER (AP) — "There's a dead body lying in the middle of Highway 60-70," an excited motorist reported to the California Highway Patrol.

An ambulance and two patrol cars sped to the scene. Officers said they found Charles Barefoot, 22, who explained:

"I'm not dead. I am hitchhiking from Indianapolis to Los Angeles and got a little tired—so I went to sleep."

Barefoot was booked at Blythe on a vagrancy charge.

Youth Now Denies Slaying Motel Man

SAN PEDRO — Eighteen-year-old Robert Williams rescinded Saturday afternoon his earlier confession of the murder of Matt Manestar, 56, well-to-do Harbor City motel owner, but police said they are holding him as a suspect.

ROBERT WILLIAMS
May Face Detector

Investigators eliminated as a murder suspect a 15-year-old Wilmington boy named by Williams when he recounted details of the slaying.

The youth admitted, though, police said, that he participated in the burglary of the Fries Ave. School, Wilmington, in company with Williams a week or two after the murder. The boy was released to the custody of his parents pending a Juvenile Court hearing.

Williams, an inmate of a California Youth Authority institution, earlier told Det. Capt. Ralph Weyant that he fired two shots into Manestar after robbing and kidnaping the motel owner early last Jan. 23.

Weyand said: "Williams included details of the crime that are known by only a few policemen."

Weyant said the suspect may be given a lie detector test Monday.

Williams was committed to a Youth Authority institution in Tracy early in February for beating up his girl friend.

Miners Toil to Uncover Father of 7

SUNNYSIDE, Utah (UP) — Weary rescue workers who dug three coal miners from the mass of coal and stone that trapped them for 40 hours continued their search Saturday night for a fourth and still missing miner.

Relatives and searchers of the missing man still held hope that Joseph Otterstrom, 53, would be found alive. However, less optimistic mine officials doubted a miracle, like the one that saved the lives of the other three, would be repeated.

Otterstrom, the foreman of the trapped crew and father of seven children, was last seen Wednesday when he talked with the three miners who were rescued. Rescue workers feared that Otterstrom had not found safety under mine machinery as the others had and was covered under the tons of rock and coal.

NEW, YOUNG WIVES: SECRET OF SAGE, 96

FRESNO (AP) — Something new in recipes for longevity: Marry a woman considerably younger than yourself every 20 years.

That's the advice of Arthur Reed, 96, of Caruthers, who pedaled a bicycle 25 miles yesterday to have a look at Fresno County's centennial festivities here.

Reed, who hopes to live 29 years longer, told newsmen:

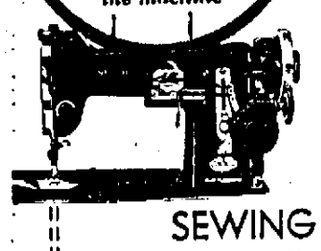

"You know, I found a formula for staying young. Every 20 years I manage to marry some woman much younger than I am."

His present wife is his third.

DEBRA WAS BORN TOO SOON

Blind Child Now Learns New Life

By BRYAN HODGSON

There are a lot of things which 4-year-old Debra Lee Martin will never understand.

She'll never know what sunshine means.

Or why her house has switches on the walls.

Sparkling words of light and color will be mysteries to her, and pictures merely fabric in a frame.

And Debra Lee will never know what eyes are for.

She was born too soon, and the oxygen which saved her life destroyed her sight.

• • • •

DEBRA IS the daughter of Chief Warrant Officer W. A. Martin and his wife, Alpha, of 3108 Volk Ave., Lakewood. She was born prematurely on Nov. 16, 1951, in the Navy hospital at Portsmouth, Va.

"At first we didn't think she'd live," Mrs. Martin recalls. "She weighed only two pounds, five ounces. Then, just after she was pronounced out of danger, the doctors discovered she was blind."

Debra's blindness has an ugly name — retrolental fibroplasia. Researchers have discovered that it's caused by giving too much oxygen to incubator babies. Today, doctors carefully control the oxygen during incubation, and the disease does not occur as frequently.

"Debra was born before anyone knew much about the disease," Mrs. Martin said. "They put her in an isolette with another baby who needed more oxygen. The other baby lived, too.

"But she could see, and Debra was blinded for life.

Yet a world without light doesn't have to mean a life without happiness, either for the victims or their parents, Mrs. Martin believes.

"I still shudder when I hear phrases like 'doomed to a world of darkness'," she says intensely. "After all, if a person is adjusted to a handicap, then he's not really handicapped at all."

• • • •

HELPING DEBRA to adjust to her invisible world has been the Martins' main interest since they overcame their initial shock.

"At first, she was a very happy baby," Mrs. Martin recalls. "She learned to walk at 18 months—early for a blind child—and was outgoing and friendly.

"Then, instinctively, she seemed to realize that something was missing. She began to develop 'blind-isms' like banging her head on the wall for hours on end, or pulling her hair out in handfuls. She never felt secure unless she was in her crib."

The Martins talked to parents of other blind children, wrote letters to medical authorities, and learned all they could about the problems of bringing up a sightless youngster.

Recently, they formed an organization called Parents of Blind and Visually Handicapped Children. This group, which now has 38 members from the Long Beach area, enables parents to help each other with their problems and plan activities for the youngsters.

They have also studied Braille in preparation for the time when Debra begins learning to read.

• • • •

TODAY, AFTER MONTHS of patient guidance, Debra is learning to cope with her lightless world.

"It's a lot like watching child psychology in slow motion," her mother says. "A blind child must be pushed to do almost everything at first—to play with new toys, or be curious about her surroundings.

"Then, slowly, she will try it on her own.

"You'll never know the joy of seeing her do something simple by herself, like opening a door just because it's there, or touching a knickknack in the living room."

Debra has learned to ride her trike, and is fascinated by her large collection of records. She can also feed herself, although she still refuses to take solid foods.

"Her front teeth and jaw were injured seriously by falls when she was 2, and we think this has made her afraid to chew," says Mrs. Martin.

Four days a week, she stays at a Los Angeles nursery school for blind children, where she learns to play, sing and even dance with other children.

Later she will attend special classes for blind children at Stevenson Elementary School in Long Beach.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH SHE IS still nervous, and seldom sleeps at night, Debra is gradually learning that her special world can be a happy place.

Recently a neighborhood child came to play.

"You know, I'm blind too—when I close my eyes," she confided to Mrs. Martin.

"Debra turned to me and said, 'Bonnie's a nice girl. She's a little blind girl.'"

Bill, the Martins' 9-year-old son, is proud of his baby sister now, although he was a little dubious at first.

"He used to ask us why God made such a big mistake," Mrs. Martin said. "But now he understands, and when his friends mention Debra's blindness, he tells them to shut their eyes and see how easy it is."

Perhaps life will never really be easy for Debra.

Slowly and painfully, she'll have to learn the things that other children take for granted. She'll take many frightening tumbles, and bruise herself often as she learns.

But warmth and love do not require the eyes, and beauty lives in sound as well as sight.

And these are things that Debra Lee can understand.

WALKING TOWARD BRIGHTER LIFE

Four-year-old Debra Lee Martin walks with arms outstretched against the obstacles of a sightless world. To help her along the way, Debra's Lakewood parents have joined other Long Beach area parents in an organization concerned with blind and visually handicapped children.—(Staff photo.)

Grace, Prince Shun Hotel, Stay on Yacht

POLLENSA, Majorca (U.P.)—The royal Monacan yacht carrying Prince Rainier and Princess Grace on their honeymoon slipped almost unnoticed into this port in the Spanish Balearic Islands Saturday.

Pollensa was the first real land-fall on the honeymoon cruise. But the prince and his bride chose to spend the night in the privacy of their yacht rather than ashore.

Rainier invited hotel officials aboard the yacht to thank them for preparing a "bridal suite" but said he and Grace would spend the night aboard ship.

The whereabouts of the famous honeymooners had been the subject of daylong speculation. Their yacht was variously reported steaming toward the Isle of Capri, the mainland Spain, east and west and in other directions.

French Rout Strong Rebel Algeria Band

ALGIERS (U.P.) — Veteran French colonial troops wiped out the diehard remnants of a strong rebel band in a wild charge up a heavily-wooded hillside barely 15 miles frm the big city of Constantine Saturday.

French authorities reported 40 rebel bodies were found on the battlefield on the outskirts of the dusty settlement of Grarem. Six French soldiers were killed and at least nine wounded.

In all, French security forces killed 107 Guerrillas in scattered clashes throughout the terrorist-ridden Eastern Algerian department of Constantine in the past 24 hours.

• • • •

FRENCH AUTHORITIES reported that at least 21 pro-French Moslems were assassinated by nationalist extremists during the same period. It was the biggest single day toll taken by terrorists the French said were acting on instructions from the Clandestine National Liberation front.

Only a few rebels survived the clash which began when insurgents killed two French soldiers and wounded nine others in an ambush outside of Grarem.

French officials said their troops overran the remaining hilltop positions of the rabels to complete the destruction of one of the biggest guerrilla bands in Northern Constantine.

New Records AT CITY LIBRARY

World wide travelers are invited to reminisce with the new recordings of foreign flavor. The Public Library announces the following additions to its lending collection in Lincoln Park: "African Music from the French Colonies" (Columbia Folk Series); "Hawaii Calls" (Al Kealoha Perry with chorus and soloists); "The Japanese Koto" (modern Japanese music); "Tantian Rhythms" (Augie Goupil and his Royal Tahitians) and "Your Musical Holiday in the West Indies" (a Calypso Carnival).

3 Mideast Nations Sign Military Pact

CAIRO, Egypt (U.P.)—Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Yemen signed a three-power treaty pact Saturday to strengthen Arab armed forces in the tense Middle East.

The treaty was signed at the Saudi-Arabian diplomatic capital of Jedda after a meeting of the three heads of government. Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser signed for Egypt, King Saud for Saudi-Arabia, and Imam Ahmen for tiny Yemen.

(IN LONDON, the Israeli embassy said Britain is shipping a small consignment of arms to Israel by ship today. The embassy denied London press reports that the order was large and contained big guns.

(The press reports said the weapons were being loaded aboard the Israeli ship "Galilia" which is to sail today.

("It does not contain tanks, airplanes or any heavy equipment whatsoever," the embassy said.)

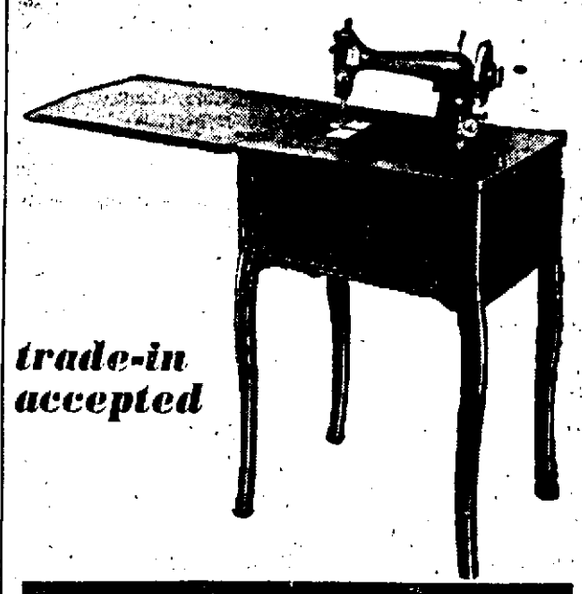

The new Middle East pact signed at Jedda dovetails with a similar mutual defense pact drawn up last year between Egypt and Syria.

Purge of Books On in Nevada

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Such popular novels as "Mr. Roberts" and "From Here to Eternity" are on the list of publications which the Nevada Council of Catholic Men is asking the state's booksellers to purge from their shelves.

In what it calls a "drive for decent literature," the council also asks removal of "The Seven Year Itch," "Blackboard Jungle," "Battle Cry," "Nana," "To Have and Have Not," "God's Little Acre" and "Tobacco Road."

Magazines suggested for deletion from newsstands include "Cavalier," "Confidential" and "Playboy."

• • • •

THE LIST sent the state's book dealers, including druggists and other newsstand operators, includes some 200 books and magazines which have been termed indecent by the Council of Catholic Men.

The state chairman of the campaign, Paul Laxalt of Carson City, said the list was prepared and furnished by the National Organization for Decent Literature. The organization has headquarters in Chicago.

Laxalt declined comment on the inclusion of novels which have been widely read and later seen as stage plays and movies.

"We've got to stand by the list," he said. "If we make one exception the list would be chopped up."

• • • •

IN ADDITION to the list, Laxalt sent booksellers a copy of the state law on obscene publications and a letter saying, "two of our representatives will call on you to see what progress you have made."

State law makes it a gross misdemeanor to sell obscene and indecent publications, but makes no provision for who is to decide which publications fall into that category.

The men's council recently reported that 50 per cent of the dealers in the Reno area are following its recommendations.

Ike to Talk Budget With GOP Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will huddle with Republican congressional leaders Tuesday to discuss recent forecasts of budget surpluses and accompanying pressures for an election-year tax cut.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-NH) disclosed Saturday that the budget situation will get priority at Eisenhower's weekly White House meeting with Republican legislative leaders. Bridges said Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey also will be present.

Bridges said he has conferred already with Treasury Department officials and with the President's aides.

• • • •

IT WAS UNDERSTOOD that the purpose of the White House huddle would be to make plans for playing down any talk of tax cuts—at least for the time being. The administration first wants to take a close look at government spending and receipts in late May.

Bridges said he is skeptical about forecasts of a big surplus and talk that the government may be able to finance a tax cut.

He said the budget also will be the "first thing" for discussion at a meeting of the Senate Republican policy committee after the White House huddle.

• • • •

BRIDGES IS CHAIRMAN of the policy committee. He is also top Republican on the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee, which drafts government spending bills.

Staff economists of the Congressional Economic Committee this week forecast a $2 billion budget surplus for this fiscal year compared to the $200 million forecast by the treasury. The staff report warned of inflationary pressures and said there should be no tax reduction.

Fiat Bares Car to Operate With New 'Liquigas'

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Fiat Saturday unveiled a new six-cylinder, 200-horsepower "liquigas" automobile motor that runs with liquid gas instead of gasoline or diesel oil.

The new 10,675-CC motor had been the best kept secret of the Italian automobile industry, and was the highlight of the big Turin International Auto Show which opened today.

Thirteen nations were represented with 450 exhibits of cars and accessories. First day spectators admired the big, luxury models—mostly of foreign make—but spent most of their time around the low-price cars.

The motor operates on a liquid fuel formed under pressure from a mixture of propane butane propilene, isobutan and butilene gases.

Its advantages were described as more silent operation, less engine wear, and lower cost.

Students Back Hiss Appearance, Contend 'He Won't Convert Us'

(Editor's Note: Alger Hiss, convicted of perjury and branded as a traitor, will speak at Princeton University Thursday. Student reaction to the resulting controversy is reported here by Robert A. Sklar, 19-year-old Princeton sophomore. A former sports correspondent for the Independent, Press-Telegram, Sklar is on the Daily Princetonian staff and is majoring in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.)

ALGER HISS
Poll Favors Speech

By ROBERT A. SKLAR

PRINCETON, N. J. —Princeton University undergraduates, who have earned an unusual reputation for political apathy in recent years, have been shocked, dismayed and somewhat puzzled by the national controversy precipitated when the American Whig Cliosophic Society invited Alger Hiss to speak here Thursday.

In the face of wrathful protests from congressmen, alumni, veteran's groups and the general public, nevertheless, most students have been adamant in their support of the undergraduate debating society's refusal to cancel the speech by the former State Department advisor and convicted perjurer. Hiss is scheduled to speak on "The Meaning of Geneva" in his first public appearance since his release from prison.

SKLAR

Bolstered, perhaps, by President Harold W. Dodd's reply to a stream of critical letters and telegrams that the university would not interfere with the invitation, nearly 90 per cent of the answers to an undergraduate poll early last week approved of the speech. A spot poll a week later, taken following denunciations of the scheduled appearance of Hiss in dozens of newspaper editorials and on the floor of Congress, showed an even stronger degree of support.

• • • •

IT IS CLEAR, however, from opinions voiced in upperclass eating clubs and dormitories all over this usually peaceful campus, that few if any of those students favoring the speech are at all sympathetic to either Hiss or his views. They are even dubious of the motives and intensions of Whig-Clio in extending the invitation, expressed in a statement by society President Bruce D. Bringgold:

"While the society does not approve of Hiss' record, we feel that his views should be of general interest to the faculty and student body."

Most undergraduates, instead, believe that sensationalism and the prospect of drawing a good crowd motivated the "Cliosophs" a good deal more than curiosity. The society's once enormous campus influence has dropped sharply in recent years, and a speech by a mid-western senator under its auspices last year drew an embarrassing 40 listeners.

"He never should have been invited," one undergraduate said in a concise summary of the prevalent opinion. "It's giving an honor to a convicted perjurer and traitor. But now that the invitation has been given, I'll stick by it in the interest of academic freedom."

"Isn't that the American way?" his companion added. And many concurred with the editorial statement of the Daily Princetonian, which said in part:

"Princeton's reputation will suffer more if the bid is rescinded than if Hiss comes here as scheduled. It would imply that Princeton is an institution that can be browbeaten by outside pressure groups."

• • • •

OPPOSITION to the speech was based more on the unfavorable effect it will have on the university than on the speech itself. "It's damned unfortunate," one senior said in a slow southern drawl. "It'll be a mechanism for slamming us. I'm sure many people are convinced that we are slightly un-American."

Despite their own feelings on Hiss' appearance, all undergraduates were united in the opinion that the general public has misunderstood the matter. "I'm surprised," a member of Whig-Clio said. "This is a lot of uproar over nothing. Hiss won't convert anyone. This is a liberal college; we're willing to hear all, but we're intelligent enough to reserve our own opinions."

A possible serious note was added when rumors circulated Friday that American Legion groups, who have been barred from campus for the speech, have invited undergraduates to picket the hall in their place.

Previous to that some undergraduates were predicting that the speech might touch off one of Princeton's anhual spring riots. If pickets appear, they now say, there may be a bad scene, possibly a free-for-all.

One worried university official summed up the feelings of a good many local observers in one short sentence:

"I just hope it rains that night."

MANY USE OLD TRICKS

Swindlers Rake In Million Every Year

By ROGER D. GREENE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Inspector David Stephens of the U. S. Post Office Department read the teletype message and shook his head wearily.

"It's a vicious racket . . . vicious. The wonder is that people are still falling for it."

The message came from Chicago. It told how postal inspectors had arrested a swindler who preyed on scores of bereaved families by sending them cheap Bibles addressed to the deceased —for $5 C.O.D.

But the Chicago incident is just a drop in the nationwide bucket as the fast-buck boys, charity racketeers, mail-order gypsters "boiler room" crews and other fly-by-night operators fleece the American public out of millions of dollars a year.

In the charity field alone, the Better Business Bureau estimates at least 120 million dollars fall into the hands of charlatans and get-rich-quick promoters.

• • • •

IN THE CHICAGO "Bible swindle," the culprit watched obituary notices published in newspapers and mailed out 100 Bibles C.O.D. In the names of the dead persons. Survivors assumed the deceased had ordered the books and paid for them. The reported $5 Bibles cost $1 apiece.

Stephens, whose nationwide force of 1,005 postal inspectors investigates through-the-mail crimes ranging from extortion, fraud and forgery to mail theft, said the charity racket is the most lucrative of all the myriad traps baited for kind-hearted but gullible citizens.

A recent case, he said, involved an outfit which billed itself as the "Department of California Handicapped War Veterans"—implying it was an official state agency—and solicited funds for alleged hospital care of veterans.

In three months, he said, the promoters took in $136,000 and pocketed $97,000 for "expenses."

• • • •

STEPHENS said the Post Office Dept. is now getting many complaints about so-called charity organizations and outright swindlers flooding the mails with unordered merchandise — ballpoint pens, neckties, cheap wallets, goodluck pieces, "guaranteed" family coat-of-arms and other gimcracks. Usually it is offered on "10-day approval" terms.

As long as the trash isn't sent C.O.D. and doesn't violate postal regulations against fraud or deception, there is little the Post Office Department can do about it.

Leland S. McCarthy, managing director of the Washington Better Business Buerau, offers this advice:

"There is absolutely no legal obligation to return anything you didn't order, even if it's accompanied by stamps to cover return postage. You can keep the stamps or give them to some worthwhile charity.

"And you can do what you like with the merchandise, without paying for it, unless the sender calls at your home in person or sends an agent to collect it within 30 days. Even then you can demand storage charges for keeping the parcel.

"My advice is that if you don't want the merchandise, throw it on top of the trash can. Maybe the garbage collector can use it. Otherwise, let your conscience be your guide. If you use it, of course, you should pay for it."

Graham's Attorneys Favor Women Jurors

DENVER (AP) — The state thwarted Saturday a defense move to seat a predominantly feminine jury to try John Gilbert Graham, 24, on a charge of murder.

Court-appointed attorneys for the accused killer of his well-to-do mother, Mrs. Daisie E. King, 55, moved on the sixth day of the trial for acceptance of a tentative jury made up of seven women and six men. The 13th—a woman at this time—hears the case but does not deliberate on the verdict unless a regular is excused during the trial.

Dist. Atty. Bert Keating upset the defense move by exercising his 11th peremptory challenge to excuse Helen Pugel, a school secretary.

• • • •

MRS. KING DIED with 43 others in the crash of an airliner that exploded last Nov. 1 shortly after leaving Denver. The state accuses Graham of putting a dynamite time bomb in her luggage before taking out $37,500 flight insurance on her life.

The prosecution has left only four peremptory challenges which allow it to remove prospective jurors without stating the reason. All but two of its 11 challenges have been used to excuse women.

The nine peremptory challenges used by Graham's lawyers have removed men. The defense has six challenges left.

Among the prospective jurors called to the box Saturday were W. R. Ancell, who said he knew Graham as a schoolboy at Yampa, Colo., and Glorida M. Hansen who worked with Graham briefly in 1951. Both were excused.

• • • •

THROUGH MIDAFTERNOON 194 prospective jurors had been called to the box for examination. They have been chosen from a 600-name panel. Of those called 73 have been excused when they said they would not inflict the death penalty. Fifty-seven were released when they said they had fixed opinions that would not be changed by evidence.

Union Officer Ousted From Red Hearing

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A union official was ejected forcibly Saturday from the hearing room of the House Subcommittee on Un-American Activities.

Hustled from the hearing as the climax to a verbal battle with Rep. Gordon Scherer (R-Ohio), subcommittee member, was Tom Chapman, identified as a shop steward for the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union.

• • • •

THE INCIDENT followed several verbal rows between uncooperative witnesses and members of the subcommittee which wound up its week-long hearings here.

Although most of the week concerned inquiry into possible Communist activities among Hollywood's musicians, Saturday's questioning was mainly into alleged Communist Party membership of ILWU officials.

A union delegation swelled attendance to near the 300 mark as four union officials, Chapman, Sid London, Al Caplan and Lou Sherman, were called to the stand.

The four union men clashed with committeemen, refusing to admit any connection with Communist activities under questioning by Frank Tavenner, committee counsel.

• • • •

Rayburn Raps Ike Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Speaker Sam Rayburn and Sen. Alben W. Barkley said Saturday night that the Eisenhower administration is following a foreign policy of "massive confusion" and "utmost confusion."

Rayburn said, "The way this administration has handled our foreign affairs, the free world stands in the direst danger it has ever faced."

He also said the administration "has turned its back on the farmers in the face of conditions that forecast the loss of prosperity to many."

Barkley, Kentucky Democrat and former vice president, also belabored Republican domestic policies and ridiculed GOP claims of prosperity.

The two veteran Democrats shared the platform at a Woodrow Wilson centennial dinner attended by about 2,500 party members in the national guard armory.

Many Democratic bigwigs were present for the $100-a-plate dinner which climaxed two days of formal and informal huddles on 1956 campaign plans and problems. Among the guests were Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 presidential nominee and 1956 contender, and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, an inactive candidate for the nomination. The other major candidate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, kept a speaking date in Oregon.

Both Rayburn and Barkley were sworn in as members of the House on March 4, 1913, the date of the first Wilson administration. Both lauded the Wilson, Roosevelt and Truman administrations while denouncing the Republican record with particular attention to the Eisenhower administration.

Barkley said he respected President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as men of good will and good intentions. But he said he would be happier if these intentions were translated into "a firm, understandable, dynamic foreign policy."

Kefauver Claims Ike Hinders West

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver told the Young Democrats of Oregon Saturday night that "the Eisenhower administration, by its failures in the field of resource development, has put a ceiling on the progress of the West."

Kefauver came into this power-conscious region in search of write-in support for his presidential candidacy. He assailed Douglas McKay, the resigned secretary of the interior, and praised Sen. Wayne Morse.

McKay resigned to seek the Republican nomination to the Senate seat for which Morse seeks renomination as a Democrat.

Kefauver, climaxing a meeting-filled day that began at 4:30 a.m., had some off-the-cuff remarks ready on the President's farm bill veto. "A hard, cruel blow" to farmers—especially the small farmers—he called it.

Oregon's 16 delegates will be chosen May 18 and will be pledged to the candidate getting the biggest number of write-in votes. Both Kefauver and Stevenson organizations are active in urging their candidates' names be written in.

Adlai Urges U.S. Call Off Pacific H-Bomb Test

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said in a speech Saturday that the administration should consider calling off the H-bomb tests in the Pacific next month.

America is losing friends around the world because of a growing reputation as a "militarist" nation, the Democratic presidential aspirant said.

"I believe," he said at a luncheon meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, "we should give prompt and earnest consideration to stopping further tests of the hydrogen bomb. . . . I question the sense in multiplying and enlarging weapons of a destructive power already almost incomprehensible."

Administration officials told reporters that the H-bomb tests scheduled to be held at Bikini sometime after May 8 will go ahead as planned.

Top Russ Face Jibes at Oxford

LONDON (UP)—Latvian refugees showered the touring Russian leaders with anti-Communist leaflets Saturday and thousands of bolsterous Oxford University students lampooned them by singing "Poor Old Joe."

Firecrackers set off by students momentarily alarmed the Russians and their security guards. But for the most part, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita S. Khrushchev appeared to enjoy the demonstration. They beamed and waved and raised their arms overhead in double-fisted salutes. They willingly gave autographs and smiled at the hundreds of students who snapped their pictures.

• • • •

THE HUBBUB generally was good natured, although there was some booing. It was the noisiest reception the Russians have received since their tour started Wednesday and was in marked contrast to the general silence which has greeted them in London.

The singing students' parody of "Old Black Joe" kidded the Russians about the current anti-Stalin line. They surrounded the Soviet leaders at every stop, and one group of them burst into "Yo Ho Heave Ho," to the tune of the "Volga Boatman."

The Soviet delegation left Oxford after a tour of the colleges and historic sites and drove directly to Chequers, Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden's country estate, for a private weekend of talks.

A few hundred sightseers waved to them as they drove through the gate. Only one policeman was on duty. It was a complete switch on the tumultuous welcome they received in Oxford.

• • • •

THE SOVIET LEADERS laughed and appeared to enjoy it immensely, although the crowd of 5,000 at the Oxford city hall broke through police lines and guards had to link arms to carve a path for the two portly Russians. During the excitement, a police car collided with a limousine carrying Soviet officials, but no one was hurt.

The anti-Communist leaflet bath was the first untoward incident recorded on the 10-day Soviet tour. To forestall possible street demonstrations in London today, Scotland Yard canceled all police leaves and ordered reinforcements to the downtown district where 11,000 Polish and Ukrainian refugees have scheduled marches.

Student Death Laid to Fumes

SANTA MONICA (UP) — The death of Joseph Sheldon Abrams, 25, UCLA graduate student from Northbrook, Ill., was listed Saturday by police as accidental.

The coroner's office said death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning and detectives discovered that Abrams' one-room apartment had three gas appliances, stove, refrigerator and floor heater.

The body was found Friday. Abrams, a sociology student, had been here since the fall of 1954. Police said his apartment was littered with Young Socialist League literature and correspondence indicating he was active in an off-campus branch of the league.

Officers said a check was being made of heaters in the building where Abrams' apartment was located.

Wedding Rites of Former Escort Attended by Meg

HOLKHAM, England (UP) — Princess Margaret went to the wedding Saturday of one of her former boy friends.

The Princess went to the ancient church of St. Withburga here for the marriage of handsome Colin Tennant, 29, and Lady Anne Coke, 23, who, with Margaret was a bridesmaid at the wedding of Queen Elizabeth. The Queen did not attend today's wedding.

Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth attracted hundreds of visitors to this little Norfolk town for the ceremony. Some 300 persons attended the wedding and 1,000 crowded into the reception afterward.

Tennant once was one of Margaret's escorts, and at one time, it was thought he might marry the 25-year-old princess.

Cost of Roads Edges Upward

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Bureau of Public Roads reported Saturday that the cost of building highways edged upward toward record levels during the first quarter of this year.

The bureau's price index, using 1946 as the base, went up 1 per cent in January, February and March to 132.4. It was 131.1 in the final quarter of last year.

The index for the first quarter was 4.2 per cent above the 1955 average of 128.4, but 3.1 per cent below the record 136.6 in 1952.

Riesel Under Guard, Eyes Yet in Danger

NEW YORK (UP) — Labor columnist Victor Riesel still was under constant medical examination and treatment Saturday and his chances of seeing again with his acid-burned eyes were "dangerously uncertain."

A vial of sulphuric acid was thrown in Riesel's face near Times Square early April 5 after he had made a radio broadcast attacking labor racketeers.

He has been in St. Clare's Hospital under constant guard and treatment since.

A bulletin issued from his bedside Saturday said Riesel's condition remained "materially unchanged" and that every measure possible was being taken to head off complications.

"His facial burns are showing definite signs of healing," the bulletin said.

WHAT CONGRESS DID

WASHINGTON (UP) — Status of major legislation in Congress:

FARM — The Democratic-controlled House Agriculture Committee voted to grant President Eisenhower $1.2 billion to set up his crop-cutback soil bank. House action is expected Wednesday.

HIGHWAYS—The House Public Works Committee approved a huge 13-year $51.5 billion federal-state highway construction program, largest in the nation's history.

HOUSING—A Senate Banking Subcommittee approved a catch-all housing bill. It went far beyond Mr. Eisenhower's requests in calling for 810,000 low-cost public housing units in six years and a special program for elderly persons.

APPROPRIATIONS — The House Appropriations Committee voted $598 million to run the State and Justice Departments and the federal courts next year. It scuttled the President's request for $3.8 million for a floating Cinerama "movie palace."

MILITARY — Senate action pending on a House-passed bill to authorize a $2 billion military construction program.

FOREIGN AID—House Foreign Affairs Committee continues consideration of $4,672,475,000 foreign aid request. Economy bloc hopes to cut it by $2 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY — Senate Finance Committee continues work on House-passed bill liberalizing benefits for women and the handicapped.

POSTAL — House Commerce Committee still considering bill to raise most postal rates.

MEDICAL AID — Senate Armed Services Committee considering $75 million House-passed plan to set up hospitalization program for military dependents.

SCHOOLS—House Rules Committee still delaying floor consideration of $1.6 billion federal school aid bill.

SUGAR — Senate-House conferees still considering quota bill giving U. S. producers bigger share of any increased consumption.

NAVY—Senate action pending on House-passed, billion-dollar atomic Navy expansion bill.

DAR Installs Missourian

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. Frederic A. Groves was installed as president general of the Daughers of the American Revolution Saturday before weary delegates to the drawn-out 65th Continental Congress.

The youthful grandmother from Cape Girardeau, Mo., became the 22nd DAR president.

She launched her administration by asking for the help of the two women who, until Friday night, were her rivals for the top job. And she pledged to "keep faith" with the society's past.

Constitution Hall, stripped of the concession booths which had given it a holiday air all week, was less than half full for the installation ceremony. Many delegates brought suitcases with them so they could hasten their departure for home.

Pope Urges World Group to Aid Lepers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius XII has proposed formation of an international committee to help lepers.

President, Benson Confer on Price Support for Corn

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower conferred Saturday with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson on the administration's plan to provide price support for midwestern corn growers who overplant their acreage allotments.

Benson told reporters afterward that he will announce "shortly" the support price that will be provided under this new program.

Benson said he and the President also discussed the other boosts in farm price supports ordered by Mr. Eisenhower when he vetoed the farm bill. The White House conference lasted almost an hour. Benson said it touched "in only a general way" on the administration's soil bank proposal.

Yank Colonies Circle Globe

By CARL CRANMER
Associated Press Staff Writer

By strict definition the United States consists of 48 states and a federal district.

But around 1½ million Americans—nearly one out of every 100 Americans—live beyond the accepted boundaries of the United States and its possessions and many have created for themselves "Little Americas" in nearly every corner of the world.

They are the servicemen and their wives and children, the diplomats and experts in the many assistance programs, the engineers, technicians, businessmen, missionaries, artists, writers, the expatriates and the retired.

The great outpushing — the great military bases, the colonies of Point Four technicians, the new factories and offices springing up from the tremendous growth of American industry and business—has taken with it the supermarket, the refrigerator, the hard top convertible, Hollywood films and the TV station.

All that the Americans have taken with them on this invasion in reverse to remind their foreign hosts of a land that once was cowboy and Indian country are their kids in blue jeans and Davy Crockett hats.

The cosmopolitan influence of these hundreds of thousands when they return to the United States is of course, incalculable. But one thing stands out: the tendency to live in "little suburbias" of their own, rather than mixing with the people while overseas, dilutes the American impact on the foreign scene.

Associated Press correspondents abroad were asked to report on the Americans in their areas. Highlights of their dispatches follow:

• • • •

FRANKFURT, GERMANY—Nearly 400,000 Americans live in West Germany. Most are soldiers and airmen guarding the Iron Curtain frontier, their families, civilian employes of the armed forces, diplomatic personnel and businessmen.

Generally, the Americans are a bit clannish, primarily because they find the language difficult. The U.S. Army and Air Force, for example, have big community centers wherever the men are stationed.

But some Americans appreciate German opera, the scenery, the many tourist attractions, the restaurants with their heaping portions. And American youngsters can be seen in Bavarian lederhosen (leather shorts) jabbering in fluent German, and German kids in cowboy jeans yelling in comic book American-ese.

• • • •

TOKYO—One minute you're driving down a narrow Oriental lane between rows of bamboo and paper houses through swarms of bicycles, motorcycles and pedestrians.

The next minute you are in a different world — pastel-tinted bungalows and duplexes surrounded by trim lawns, rows of late model cars and scrubbed, freckled kids wearing blue jeans. There are several of these transplanted islands of America in Japan with names like Washington Heights, Sagamihara, Shrapnel Village and Area X.

The Japanese government, by agreement with the United States, has built more than 13,000 comfortable, well-heated dwellings which house more than half the 24,400 U.S. service families in Japan.

There are 170,000 Americans in Japan, including 675 members of State Department and other civilian government families and about 8,500 missionaries, businessmen, students and teachers.

Military families can buy 19-cent Ethyl and dollar steaks, and enjoy 25-cent movies and dance orchestras several nights a week. A maid can be hired for $28 a month, at most. Americans in Japanese neighborhoods find living more difficult. The rent on a western style, three-room house is $100 or more a month.

• • • •

LONDON—The 100,000 Americans, ranging from soldiers to movie actors, who live in Britain find it easy to slip into the British way of living. Many form close friendships with their British neighbors.

Some American children are enrolled in U.S. Air Force schools, but most go to British schools.

The boys may wear cowboy boots with their English school uniforms, and gain prestige with their British playmates by posing as descendants of fierce Indian fighters. The girls cultivate English accents which set the rest of the family's teeth on edge.

Supermarkets in a few neighborhoods make the American housewife feel more at home. But the housing problem is likely to dominate her conversation. Rents are around $120 a month for a furnished place. And by American standards it is likely to be almost uninhabitable in winter when pipes burst and the housewife, face blackened from soot, spends hours stoking a fireplace.

• • • •

PARIS—There are about as many Americans living in France as in Little Rock, Ark.—around 100,000.

For about 80,000 of them, men in uniform and their families, life is as if they were on a U.S. island. At the 39 Army and Air Force installations housing, post exchanges, schools and commissaries are provided. They can buy canned goods and clothing at duty-free prices.

"We never meet any French people and we hardly know we're in a foreign country" says the wife of an American lieutenant colonel living near Paris.

• • • •

SEOUL—Korea means hardship in one way or another for most of the 62,000 Americans who live there. All but about 2,000 are in military uniform. All but 700 missionaries and educators and 100 businessmen are on the U.S. payroll.

But mountains of foodstuffs, cosmetics and recreational extras poured in by ship enable those connected with the government to live well, American style at reasonable prices.

Civilians have many problems in this war-ravaged land. Many rats, open sewers and water unfit for drinking present sanitation difficulties.

Of the 100 businessmen, about half live at the Bando Hotel in Seoul at a cost of $12 or more a day.

• • • •

GENERAL—Bloody nationalist rebellions sweeping from Tunisia to Algeria and Morocco have changed for 15,000 Americans living in North Africa the picture postcard portrayal of life amid palm trees, lush oases, veiled women and dazzling beaches.

Of the 8,000 to 10,000 Americans in Spain, about 5,000 are employes of the armed forces.

Approximately 3,100 Americans take revolutions in their stride and eat 20-cent beefsteaks in Argentina.

There are thousands of Americans in other countries—nearly 50,000 in Mexico, 13,000 in Cuba, 7,000 in Central America, 35,000 in the Philippines, nearly 10,000 in Brazil, 5,000 in Turkey, 5,500 in India, 4,200 in the Azores, 4,300 in Israel, 5,300 in Australia.

The wartime phrase: "You never had it so good," lingers in many places, but there are problems, not all of them large. In Cairo, for instance, there is an American who has to take his 3-year-old son with him to go shopping because the boy speaks Egyptian; father does not.

And on the other side of that coin is the American in Britain who found his 10-year-old son was an expert on the War of the Roses but had never heard of Andrew Jackson.

BATH DAY means a wooden tub for this American lad living in Japan. He is one of 1,500,000 Americans who have founded "Little Americas" in nearly every corner of the globe.—(AP photo.)

REGIONAL POLITICS

L.B. Kefauver Camp Protests 'Squeeze-out' by Demo Study Club

A protest of "squeeze-out" and discrimination rose from the Long Beach Kefauver camp.

A Democratic candidate accused the registrar of voters of denying voters their constitutional rights.

With these controversial developments, Democratic activities bounced back to front stage this weekend and it looked as if the 1956 primary election campaign was at long last beginning to warm up. All of this followed a week of Republican prominence in the news, with Rep. Craig Hosmer here from Washington to kick off his reelection campaign and former Gov. Dan Thornton making a Long Beach speech keynoting the GOP ballot drive.

• • • •

CHARGES SQUEEZE-OUT

The discrimination charge was leveled against the Long Beach Democratic Women's Study Club—largest Demo organization here—by Mrs. Lucille Toll, a member of the delegation ticket favoring Sen. Estes Kefauver in the California primary.

Mrs. Toll declared the executive board of the Study Club voted on April 16 not to permit a speaker for Sen. Kefauver at its candidate's day program May 2.

• • • •

THIS, SHE SAID, was palpably unfair because the club has recently heard two leading supporters of Adlai Stevenson—Mrs. Goldie Kennedy, state chairman of "Women for Stevenson," and William Rosenthal, Stevenson's Southern California chairman. Because of these appearances, Mrs. Toll asked the club to permit someone to speak for Kefauver at the May 2 meeting.

She was turned down, she said on the grounds that Mrs. Kennedy is an official of the state Democratic committee and was pinch-hitting for Atty. Gen. Edmund G. Brown, a state official, while Rosenthal is a former member of the State Assembly.

Mrs. Toll asserted that the speech by Mrs. Kennedy in March turned into an out-and-out pitch for Stevenson, and Mrs. Kennedy called the former Illinois governor "the most wonderful man of our times."

Study club by-laws, Mrs. Toll said, prohibit support before the primary of one Democrat against another. "This year," she said wryly, "there seems to be a way of circumventing these rules. The general membership of the club, I'm sure, prefers to hear all views."

"We Democrats supported the 'New Deal' and the 'Fair Deal' but some of us balk at the 'Raw Deal'."

The charge against County Registrar of Voters Ben Hite was made by Democratic Congressional Candidate Raymond Simpson. He made a formal protest to Hite for shutting off voter registration during the period between the primary election registration deadline, April 12, and the primary election, June 5.

Simpson asserted that such action is in violation of the spirit and the letter of the election law. He demanded in his letter that Hite immediately furnish registration supplies to all deputy registrars and authorize them to resume registration.

• • • •

IT HAS BEEN established procedure in Hite's office for years to close down registration in the 53-day period before an election, during which no one can register for that election. Hite told the Press-Telegram this is the practice in all counties of the state.

Hite said, however, that he would not refuse to register a qualified person coming to his office in Los Angeles during the period in question.

• • • •

SIMPSON INSISTED registration opportunity should be kept on full-scale basis, at any time. He quoted the election code, which reads:

"Registration of electors shall be in progress at all times except during the 53 days immediately preceding any election when registration shall cease for that election as to the electors residing in the territory within which that election is to be held."

Simpson said that the words "for that election" are the key to the situation, and that registration may be continued for subsequent elections under the code. Hite's action, he said, is depriving citizens of their right to register now for the November general election.

Newspaper Week Starts Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — American Newspaper Week will be observed in New York starting Monday.

More than 1,200 editors and publishers are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Associated Press and the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn.

The Independent and Press-Telegram will be represented at the Associated Press meeting by H. H. Ridder, publisher, and Larry Collins Jr., managing editor.

Publisher Ridder will be joined at the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. meeting by his assistant, Harold M. Hines, and C. E. Phillips, business manager.

The activities will begin with the AP meeting Monday morning in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will address the AP luncheon.

The ANPA convention will start Tuesday and continue through Thursday. Crawford H. Greenewalt, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., will address an ANPA bureau of advertising dinner Thursday night.

Another speaker will be Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, publisher of the Argentine newspaper La Prensa.

The convention will elect a new president on Thursday to succeed Richard W. Slocum, of the Philadelphia Bulletin, who is relinquishing the association post after serving two terms.

At the Associated Press business meeting Monday, AP members will elect six directors and vote on membership applications by 17 newspapers.

The panelists are Jack Bell, Washington political writer; Robert Eunson, chief of bureau in San Francisco and, until recently, chief of bureau in Tokyo; Saul Pett, AP newsfeatures writer, recently returned from an assignment to the Antarctic; and Daniel Deluce, former chief of bureau in Germany and now a general executive in New York.

Macy's Workers End 11-Day Strike

NEW YORK (UP)—The 11-day strike of 8,000 employes of Macy's, the world's largest department store, ended Saturday. The settlement was negotiated by a special three-man committee appointed by Mayor Robert F. Wagner.

Terms of the agreement were not announced, but an official of the retail, wholesale and department store union, which called the strike, said it would mean "more wages and better conditions" for union members although it did not include the 37½-hour work week the union had demanded.

Party Lines Do Good After All

DANVERS, Ill. (UP)—A rural telephone operator had the solution to a local mystery even before the sheriff knew about it.

Mrs. J. P. O'Brien of near here called Sheriff A. M. Campbell to report a missing Shetland pony. But telephone operator Mabel Smith had the solution already wrapped up. She informed the sheriff party line conversations indicated the pony had been found and was tied to a clothesline at a Danvers residence.

PALERMO, Sicily (UP)—Workmen digging near Monreale recently found a terracotta cup, human bones and stone slabs believed to date back to Saracen times.

With MALCOLM EPLEY

ALONG with five other adults, I've just been through a heartwarming and enlightening contact with three dozen teen-agers.

We six were judges of the Bank of America's achievement awards program through which thousands of dollars are distributed to deserving high school seniors to help finance their college educations.

Our zone interviews were held at City College, and we observed these young people in a demonstration of their knowledge and their thinking on social and cultural problems, their general attitude about life and the things around them.

It was heartwarming because they proved to be wholesome, intelligent, understanding and generous in their feelings toward each other in a competitive situation.

The other judges and I were not surprised at this, but certainly our confidence in the oft-maligned younger generation was bolstered and extended by this experience.

WE INTERVIEWED the 36 youngsters in groups of nine. They were divided according to their fields of interest—science and mathematics, fine arts, liberal arts and vocational arts.

Members of each group took seats in front of the judges in a semi-circle and just began talking. They proved at ease, alert and full of ideas. The conversation was lively and it covered a broad scope of subjects. Opinions expressed showed maturity and depth.

IT WOULD have done a lot of oldsters good to hear the youngsters in liberal arts discussing the problem of the non-voter.

One Lynwood girl, a pretty blonde, said she didn't want to be pessimistic, but she felt it was too late to do much about the older people who are apathetic about their duties as citizens. They had been in the old groove too long and probably are beyond redemption, she averred.

But a winsome lass from Torrance disagreed. We've got to remember, she said, that people over 21 compose the larger percentage of the population, that most of them are going to be around a long time, and we just can't let them go on through life neglecting their citizenship duties.

Some oldsters, I'm sure, would have been ashamed at hearing these teen-agers worrying about them.

I WAS impressed at the vocational arts interview session by the amount of talk about help given high school students through contacts with the business, trade and professional people of their communities. Vocational guidance conferences, at which adult "pros" come in to advise interested high school students, and opportunities to see actual operations in plants, business offices, etc., come in for warm praise.

It was apparent that more of this is done in some communities than in others.

Last week's vocational guidance day at Jordan High in Long Beach, when a score or more local citizens participated in conference with the students, was given a solid accolade by the girl from Jordan.

But a boy at a nearby community, who plans to be an electronics engineer, said sadly that there are several plants in his area where he would like to spend some time, but he has never been given a chance.

IT WAS especially interesting to note how social-minded were the bright youngsters who are primarily interested in science and math.

One might expect the "scientists" to be introverts, spending their time in lonely laboratory vigils or with their noses in books, paying little heed to the world outside the room.

But these kids were intensely interested in social problems as related to scientific achievements.

WITH few exceptions, the activities records of these top high school students of the area showed activity in some phase of church work.

One of our judges was Rev. Bruce Kurrie, Compton Presbyterian minister. The good reverend must have found real encouragement in looking through those reports.

PUPILS DISPLAY WORK

68 Schools Slate Open House

Visitors to Top Record of 85,000

Parents and other interested citizens in record numbers are expected to visit the 68 Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill and Avalon public schools this week in the 37th observance of Public Schools Week.

Last year's record outpouring of visitors totalled an estimated 85,000.

On the eve of the week-long program, Wenzel Fabera and Herbert E. Bromley, co-chairmen of the sponsoring citizens' committee, urged local parents to take advantage of this opportunity to get better acquainted with their children's teachers.

"During the school years, a child spends one-third of his waking time in school—more hours, sometimes, than he spends with his parents," Fabera said. "Next to mother and dad, teachers have the greatest influence on the life of a child."

• • • •

DOUGLAS A. NEWCOMB, superintendent of schools, joined the citizens' committee in inviting all adults to visit their neighborhood school during the week and reminded them of this year's theme, "Better Schools Build Better Communities."

Opening today, the observance will have special recognition in many churches. Special music programs featuring public school groups will be given in some churches.

Visitors will see youngsters mastering the three R's, exploring the world of science, learning about their American heritage and taking the first steps toward a lifetime vocation if they go back to school during the regular school hours.

Each of the school segments, however, has scheduled one open house night for those who are unable to visit during the day. Monday is City College night, Tuesday for elementary schools, Wednesday for senior highs and Thursday for junior highs.

• • • •

THE SPOTLIGHT Monday evening will be on the annual Industrial Arts Award program at the City College campus at 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway. More than 1500 exhibits of things made by junior and senior high and City College classes will be displayed. Judging will be completed during the day.

Another Monday evening program will be the annual North Long Beach Public Schools Week program starting at 7:30 p.m. in Lindbergh Junior High auditorium with six schools participating.

Public Schools Week was started after World War I to focus attention on the needs and accomplishments of the schools.

STUDENT PORTRAITS of teacher will be displayed in Helen Keller School observance of Public School Week. Fourth-grader Sandra Miller, 9, shows her sketch of teacher Beverly H. Barry.—(Staff photo.)

Elks to Give Scholarships

Scholarships totaling $700 will be awarded seven Long Beach and Avalon students at a Public Schools Week program in Long Beach Elks Lodge Monday night.

The students are Rose Ann Wood, Long Beach City College; Dennis Nelson, Jordan High School; John Leonard, Wilson High School; Bruce Tucker, Poly High School; Donald Fregeau, Long Beach State College; Wayne Ennis, St. Anthony's High School, and Miles Kara, Avalon High School.

The students were selected because of outstanding records in scholarship, student activities and citizenship. Each will receive $100 and will be eligible to compete for state and national scholarships offered by the Elks.

Chest Specialist

Dr. Arnold L. Freed, chest specialist, will speak on "Selective Case Finding Pays Off" at the annual meeting of the Long Beach Tuberculosis and Health Assn. at the Lafayette Hotel Thursday.

DOWNTOWN TO BLOSSOM

Flower Pots Will Hang From Pine Ave. Posts

Downtown Long Beach will burst into bloom Tuesday.

Downtown stores will feature floral displays by professionals and amateurs who will be competing for $1,500 in cash prizes.

Along Pine Ave., from Ocean Blvd. to 7th St., 108 flower pots containing blooming ivy geranium will hang from lamp posts.

The event, known as "Downtown in Bloom," is sponsored by Long Beach Retailers Associated and civic-minded inviduals. The LBRA hope to make the three-day event, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, an annual affair.

However, Vito N. Romans, Retailers manager, said the ivy plants hung from the lamp posts may be maintained the year around if some persons or organization will undertake to care for the plants.

• • • •

IN ADDITION to the displays in the stores and on Pine Ave., Robert Obert, director of the City Park Dept., will have a display of plants, shrubberies and blooming flowers on the west side of the City Hall.

Prizes for professional florists will be: First, $500; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50, and fifth through tenth, $25 each.

Prizes for amateur flower arrangements: First, $200; second, $100; third, $50; fourth through ninth, $25 each.

The prize money has been put up by the participating stores. Judges will be Lovell Swisher, chairman, who is on the advisory board of the Descanso Gardens, and for five years has been on the board of directors of the Hollywood International Flower Show; Yvonne Benafell and Hal Halchester.

Judging will be completed on the first day of the event, and winners announced immediately.

• • • •

FLORAL DISPLAYS will be set up at the Bank of America's 1st and Pine and 4th and Pine branches, Barker Bros., Buffums', California Bank, Dobyn's, First Western Bank, Fisher's Chinaware, Frances Children's Shop, Grayson's, Al Greenwood, Honeywell & Carpenter, Imperial Hardware, Jeri's, Kay Jewelers, C. C. Lewis Jewelry, Mandel's, McCrery's, Melba's, Montgomery Ward, National City Bank, Newberry's, Pavey's, Penney's, Say-On Drugs, Schinnerer's, Sears, Roebuck, Security First National Bank, Van Dell's, Walker's and Winstead Bros.

Fred Wiesenhutter, owner of Park Nursery, 3842 E. 10th St., has donated the 108 flower pots and ivy geraniums for the decorations on Pine Ave.; Otis (Buck) Weaver, of the D&R Blacksmith Shop, 1160 W. Broadway, donated the brackets for the flower pots; Bill Harris, of Acme Sheet Metal Works, fashioned containers to hold overflow of water and Wade Orris, manager of Imperial Hardware, donated chains for the fixtures.

First Navy Wives Sign for Contest

The first Navy wives to enter the Mrs. U. S. Navy contest signed up Saturday as world headquarters were opened at the Wilton Hotel.

Prizes valued at up to $100,000 will be awarded.

William F. Hickey, San Diego, national president of the sponsoring Fleet Reserve Association, was on hand with other high ranking association officials.

At a press conference, Hickey revealed that purpose of the Sept. 15 contest is to honor Navy wives who have contributed to their husband's decision to continue the Navy as his career. Only wives of enlisted men—bluejackets and chief petty officers—may enter.

• • • •

"WE ARE LOSING many a valuable man because his wife and children write him to come home," Hickey said. Since it costs $10,000 to train an electronics technician, for example, the Navy wants to keep him.

"Seventy-five per cent of the difficulties in retaining enlisted personnel is caused by concern over wives and children at home," said Hickey.

President Hickey revealed the first place winner will receive $2,500 cash, an expenses paid trip to many U. S. cities and to Honolulu. A house may also be given the winner, Hickey said.

• • • •

FINALISTS WILL BE selected in 34 Navy commands throughout the world. With their husbands and children, if any, they will be brought to Long Beach. No government funds are used in connection with the contest.

A panel of enlisted men will judge the contest, based partly on an essay entitled "Why I Am Proud to be a Navy Wife."

On hand Saturday to enter the local Navy command's contest were a group of Navy wives, two whose husbands now are overseas. They included Eleanor Williams, Kanzatta Bernard, Lajoy Sargeant, Gladys Griffiths, Elizabeth Crabtree, Margaret Browning, Louise Nicolaus and Winnie Arsenault.

Assigned to the contest headquarters here is Lt. Cmdr. George Beck of Washington, D. C., an aide of Vice Adm. James L. Holloway, chief of Naval Personnel, to assist in liaison work with the Navy, Fleet Association, and Long Beach city officials.

Union to Ask Pay Increase for Teachers

A flat $500 annual increase for the 1956-57 semesters for all teachers in the Long Beach Public School system will be asked by the newly organized Long Beach Federation of Teachers.

Webster Kimball, federation salary chairman and a state college accounting professor, said the proposal will be outlined before the Board of Education at 4 p. m. Monday.

The Teachers' Assn. of Long Beach previously asked a 5 per cent pay increase for instructors. This boost would give salary increases ranging from $250 a year.

Robert Krogfoss, union salary committee member, said the increase is necessary because the "dropouts" of Long Beach teachers were "beyond the level" for stability.

RC Mobile Bank Arrives Monday

The Red Cross mobile blood bank will be at the Red Cross chapter house, 319 W. Broadway, from 3 to 7:30 p. m. Monday.

"The need for blood is constant and the only way it can be met is through donors giving blood," said Mrs. Lotta Kling, blood donor recruitment chairman.

Individuals wishing to replace blood used by family or friends may do so Monday.

RESTA'S SUCCESSOR

Pasadenan Will Conduct Long Beach Philharmonic

Appointment of Lauris Jones as permanent conductor of the Long Beach Philharmonic was announced Saturday by Charles Evett, president of the Long Beach Philharmonic Assn.

This fills the vacancy left by the retirement last November of Robert Resta after 20 years as conductor of the Long Beach Philharmonic. Since that time guest conductors have occupied the podium.

Jones will complete his current season with the Santa Barbara Symphony, which he has conducted for the past three seasons, and the Pasadena Symphony, where he has worked with Dr. Richard Lert as associate conductor since 1947.

• • • •

THE 1956-57 SEASON will not be Jones' introduction to Long Beach music lovers, however. In November he conducted a Junior League sponsored performance of the children's opera "Pepito's Golden Flower" by Mary Louise Caldwell, which had its premiere under him a year ago in Pasadena.

Jones has pioneered in the presentation of a number of contemporary works. In Pasadena in 1952 he gave the first West Coast performance of Gian Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors," fast becoming a Christmas classic.

Born in 1917 in Visalia, Jones received his A. B. as a music major in San Jose State College, and his M. A. in music from Columbia University. He now is working for his Ph. D. at USC.

• • • •

HIS EXPERIENCE includes Santa Barbara Symphony, three seasons; Pasadena Symphony Assn. conductor, nine seasons; Eagle Rock Civic Symphony, three seasons; Oneonta Congregational Church, choir director, four years; Pasadena Civic Chorus associate conductor, nine years. He formerly taught at Los Angeles City College and California Institute of Technology, and has been a faculty member at Occidental College since 1951.

In World War II he was an aerial navigator in the Pacific, serving in Australia, the Solomons, New Guinea, Tarawa and Japan.

He has a wife, Jeanne, and daughters, Barbara, 13, Elaine, 9, Kathy, 5. The family lives in South Pasadena.

Expert Warns More Jet Noise to Come; AF Wing Meets Here

By BOB WHEARLEY

Americans might as well learn to live with the car-splitting thunder of supersonic jets and rockets—because "aviation is tending toward more noise, not less."

This warning was voiced Saturday by Col. Harry W. Shoup, chief of the combat operations center of the Continental Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs, Colo. Shoup spoke at a symposium in the Lafayette Hotel in connection with the eighth annual convention here of the Air Force Assn.'s California Wing.

TREVOR GARDNER
Awarded Certificate

One of the highlights of the convention banquet Saturday was the presentation of a certificate of merit to Trevor Gardner, former assistant air secretary who resigned last February with a ringing blast at the Eisenhower Administration's missile program.

Gardner told a reporter that the current investigation of him by the Senate and Justice Department is "the standard way of rewarding an industrialist for three years of government service."

Investigators reportedly are seeking to determine whether Gardner severed all connections with his firm, Hycon Manufacturing Co. of Pasadena, before taking the government post. Gardner said Hycon is engaged in production of guided missiles, electronics and ordnance equipment.

• • • •

COLONEL SHOUP called for "pre-conditioning" of individual communities and the nation to win acceptance of jet noises as a necessary nuisance.

Building isolated air bases to spare the tender ears of city dwellers is impractical he said, because—

"Part of our air defense is necessarily located to protect population centers . . . Any other policy would be like putting the city fire department out in the country.

"We cannot expect effective Air Reserve participation if our reservists have to use most of their limited time just trying to get to their bases."

However, he said the Air Force will continue to try to keep its bases away from population centers "insofar as it is financially possible and tactically sound."

Thus far, said Shoup, many noise-suppressing devices have proved "unacceptable" because they hurt the performance of planes.

• • • •

AT A RESERVE FORCES CLINIC held at United Artists Theater, Col. J. M. Price, Long Beach Air Force Base commander, disclosed tentative plans to permit wives of reservists to live with them on the base during week-end training sessions. A building at the base will be redecorated for that purpose, he said.

Another participant in the clinic, Col. Ronald Wilson, 4th Air Force deputy chief of staff for materiel, said the short-term lease the government has at Long Beach Municipal Airport "precludes any new major construction" of reserve facilities there at this time.

Gil Wilson, national president of the AFA and publisher of Flying magazine, told the California wing at its banquet in the Lafayette Hotel "proper military spending and emphasis on airpower doctrines in the past decade have kept the dictators of the world off our backs."

If the same policies can be continued another 10 years, "we will have really assured peace for mankind," he said.

Others who received citations in addition to Gardner included actors Reginald Denny and Vince Barnett; Maj. Gen. Robert B. Landry, 4th Air Force commander; Lt. Col. Henry W. Yeagle, installation engineer at Edwards Air Force Base; Joanne Affronte, convention chairman, and Col. John Allson, vice president of Northrup Aircraft and commander of the Reserve's 452nd Tactical Bomber Wing, headquartered in Long Beach.

DOCTORS TRY MENTAL DRUG

Enter World of Insane

In a world that exists only in the minds of the insane, where a minute may seem to last a week and a man may learn to fear his own image in a mirror, psychiatrists of Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital are experiencing the horrors of mental illness.

Drugs which induce temporary insanity are used by the doctors on themselves to cause the hallucinations and anxieties of schizophrenia and other mental disorders.

How these daring experiments help the psychiatrists to treat patients will be described in detail in a series of articles by staff writer Ben Zinser, beginning Monday in The Independent and Press-Telegram.

Screams Rout 'Tenant' in Attack Try

Screams of a 21-year-old apartment house manager frightened away a husky attacker who seized her as she showed him an apartment at 605 W. 1st St. Saturday.

Marjorie J. Heberp told police that the man asked to be shown an apartment.

"Does anything go with this?" he asked when they looked at Apt. No. 2.

"Yes," the woman replied, "dishes, bedding and—"

She was interrupted when the visitor threw her onto the bed.

Her screams brought Robert Lynn, a tenant in Apt. No. 1, running to the scene. The attacker fled. He was described as 30 to 35 years old, 6 feet tall, weighing about 180 pounds. He was dressed in sport clothes.

Police Will Auction Dinghies, Sailboats

Seven boats — including rowboats, sailboats and dinghies—will be sold at auction by the Police Department Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the city yard, 16th St. and San Francisco Ave., Officer E. E. Wolthausen, police property clerk announced. The boats were found and impounded by Harbormaster Thomas O. McInturff.

Ike Not 'Sick Man,' Says Reporter

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—Democrats may have trouble tagging President Eisenhower as a "sick man" in the coming presidential campaign, according to United Press White House correspondent Merriam Smith.

Smith told the Cleveland City Club Forum Saturday the President is working longer hours than ever before, and there are indications he will actively campaign for reelection.

"In view of this any attempt by the Democrats to make a campaign issue out of 'sick man Eisenhower' is apt to boomerang," he said.

• • • •

SMITH SAID any illness of a major nature would change the picture but that it appeared "most unlikely the President would be defeated for re-election unless such an illness did occur."

Eisenhower's campaign duties will be more active than is generally assumed, the dean of White House correspondents said. The President won't limit his speeches to a half dozen cities, but on the other hand will not whistle-stop the country.

• • • •

SMITH PREDICTED Richard Nixon would again be the Republican Party choice for the vice presidency on the Eisenhower ticket. He ruled out the possibility that Eisenhower would pick Gov. Frank Lausche of Ohio as a running mate.

Adlai Stevenson has the edge as the Democrats' choice, he said, but it is unlikely any Democrat can beat the President.

In answer to a question on the likelihood of former President Harry Truman running again Smith said he did not believe Truman would consent, but admitted, "the White House brew is awfully heady."

Ike Judgment Not Sound, Eleanor Says

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, with 19 grandchildren and 71 years, Saturday said she's still plugging for what she thinks is right.

The former first lady was here for the wedding of one of the grandchildren, Miss Ruth Chandler Roosevelt, to Henry D. Lindsley III of Midland, Tex., Saturday night.

Honorary chairman of the New York Committee for Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Roosevelt is speaking in his behalf throughout the United States.

Spoke for him twice in Minnesota, she related in an interview. "We didn't do a lot of good there but we did carry those two places," she added with a prideful note.

Of Stevenson's chances of nomination, Mrs. Roosevelt said, "The man in front always has a hard time—the first stones are thrown at him."

• • • •

ASKED ON WHICH points she believes President Eisenhower has fallen short of what she expects in a President, Mrs. Roosevelt said she feels that Eisenhower "has not made the presidency as important as it really is" and has attempted to delegate to a sort of "general staff" duties and powers which should be exercised only by the President of the United States.

Also, "I feel he has not had the best judgment in choosing his general staff," she said.

Of New York Gov. Harriman, oft-mentioned seeker after the Democratic nomination, Mrs. Roosevelt said she has "admiration for Mr. Harriman—I have known him since he was a little boy."

• • • •

BUT SHE'S not for him so far as the Democratic nomination is concerned.

She also said that the question of segregation is not a domestic issue. "It is an international issue."

"Two thirds of the people of the world are colored," she said. These peoples will question the motive of the United States so long as they know Negroes in this country are segregated from white citizens at any level, Mrs. Roosevelt added.

Boy, 5, Injured in Power Mower

Michael J. Graeber, 5, suffered painful injuries Saturday when he was caught in a power mower near his home at 3426 Studebaker Rd.

At Seaside Hospital the boy was found to have fractures of two bones in his right wrist.

Police said the mower was operated by Jerry D. Jaeke, employed by the Lakewood Water and Power Co.

Theft at Boat Yard

Fourteen lights valued at $560 were stolen Saturday from the Pacific Towboat and Salvage Co. yard at Pier D, Berth 35. Ernest A. Judd, 56, of 4618 E. 6th St., spokesman for the company, reported the loss to police.

DREAMER ON THE LINE

Catching a dream of summer fun is Scott Edmondson. He'll pay his way to the Summer Day Camp of Catholic Youth Organization, Community Chest agency. Less fortunate lads will be aided in attending camp by CYO's annual cartoon comedy show starting at 9 a. m. Saturday in Crest Theater.

VISAS ABOLISHED

BONN, Germany (UP)—In a move to ease international travel, West Germany has abolished visa requirements for travelers from member countries of the council of Europe.

Here's Chance for Vacation With Salary

Applications from older youth and young adults for summer jobs in camp counseling will be taken Thursday from noon to 8 p.m. on the east side of Building F on the lower campus of Long Beach State College.

Arrangements for interviews have been made by the California Department of Employment.

"These jobs are for experienced individuals who want to spend their vacations with pay in mountain and seashore children's camps," according to Mrs. Shirley Wilson, who will conduct the interviews. "Numerous openings exist for junior, senior, waterfront and craft counselors, and program specialists."

• • • •

SALARY FOR full camp season (8 to 10 weeks) range from $75 to $500 with full maintenance and transportation.

Salaries will depend on amount and scope of leadership experience, extent of educational preparation, variety of camp skills, and employed evaluation of personal qualities and capacity for leadership.

Appointments should be made through the College Placement Office of Long Beach State.

COMMANDS CRUISER NOW

Submarine Hero Returns to City

By LEE CRAIG

In 1932, a Texas youth named Charles Cochran Kirkpatrick, a newly commissioned ensign on the battleship USS Pennsylvania here, was married to a Georgia girl in All-Saints Episcopal Church.

Several weeks ago, Kirkpatrick and his wife came back to Long Beach where, as a captain, he commands the cruiser USS Bremerton.

During the intervening years, Kirkpatrick established himself as one of the Navy's outstanding combat officers while earning three Navy Crosses, an Army Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Purple Heart and Legion of Merit.

• • • •

THE NAVY CROSSES were earned while Kirkpatrick was skipper of the submarine USS Triton during the first dark months of World War II.

On a war patrol in the China Sea north of Formosa, the American craft sank three enemy ships and damaged a fourth. On her way home, the Triton used her final torpedo to sink an enemy submarine.

Around Christmas, 1942, the Triton was ordered to Wake Island, held by the Japanese, where the submarine anchored offshore to guide B-24 bombers in the first American raid on the Island.

Kirkpatrick's Army decoration came after the Triton responded to an emergency call from Gen. MacArthur and intercepted a troop convoy on its way to reinforce Japanese forces on New Guinea, where hard-pressed Americans were fighting to control the island. Several ships were torpedoed and the convoy diverted.

CAPT. KIRKPATRICK . . . Where Did the Triton Go?
—(Staff Photo)

The Triton was ordered next to Brisbane, Australia, where Kirkpatrick received orders to report as aide to Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet and chief of naval operations.

A few days later, Kirkpatrick watched with mixed emotions as the Triton moved out of Brisbane on her next patrol, his close friend and classmate in command.

The Triton never returned. Even Japanese naval archives after the war failed to give a clue to her fate.

• • • •

KIRKPATRICK'S final combat assignment was to command the radar picket destroyer USS Shea.

During the Okinawa invasion, a Jap suicide pilot, riding a radio-controlled flying bomb, struck the starboard side of the Shea under Kirkpatrick, who was standing on the bridge.

The bomb went through the ship, exploding after it struck the water on the other side. Eighty-five men were killed or wounded and Kirkpatrick himself sustained a leg wound.

Kirkpatrick and his surviving crewmen stayed with the heavily damaged ship, which limped thousands of miles to Philadelphia Naval Shipyard for repairs.

By coincidence, the Shea is now based at Long Beach as the flagship for Rear Adm. M. E. Murphy, commander, Mine Force, Pacific Fleet.

Kirkpatrick lives at 72 Claremont Ave. with his wife, Lalla, and their nine-year-old daughter, Shelley. Another daughter, Lalla B. Kirkpatrick, 22, lives in Boston.

Miss Lucy and Pastor to Marry

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — Negro coed Autherine Lucy, who was the center of controversy at the University of Alabama, will be married here today to a Baptist minister.

The bridegroom is Rev. Hugh Foster, an education major at Butler (Negro) College in Tyler, Tex., who preaches at two Baptist churches now, at Teague and Powell, Tex.

Miss Lucy, who is living in Dallas for the present, said about 500 invitations have been sent out to the formal wedding in St. John Baptist Church, one of the largest Negro churches in Dallas.

Miss Lucy said some white persons have been invited to the wedding and there will be no segregation in the church.

The couple will live in Tyler, where Foster will get his degree next December. But Miss Lucy said she still has hopes of returning to the University of Alabama, where her enrollment set off mob violence.

An appeal of her expulsion from the University has been filed in federal district court in Birmingham, but no date for a hearing has been set.

HOME FROM ANTARCTIC

Sharon Turner, 3, appears bewildered Saturday in Boston, Mass., by beard on her daddy, RM2 Jesse Turner, crewman aboard the USS Edisto, first ship to return from Navy's Antarctic expedition. The ship, an icebreaker, returned Saturday morning after being away six months on "Operation Deepfreeze."—(AP)

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND BILL BROOM
(Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON—The Senate recessed all day Tuesday and the transcript of the House of Representatives brief session started out this way:

MR. KEATING (R-N.Y.)—Mr. Speaker, may I inquire at this point as to the program for today?

MR. McCORMACK (D-Mass)—I am very glad my friend, the gentleman from New York, makes that inquiry. There will be no legislative business today.

MR. KEATING—I thank the gentleman. The information is very illuminating.

The rest of the proceeding was taken up with the following:

A brief speech against importing Polish hams; a longer soliloquy on recruiting young men for the foreign service, a eulogy to Herb Plews, rookie second baseman on the Washington baseball club—"one of the few Montanans ever to make the major leagues," followed by a recital of Plews' lifetime batting average and his performance in such places as Quincy, Binghamton and Norfolk.

The lack of activity in the Congress was easily explained. It was the opening of the baseball season and all the legislators reasoned that if Eisenhower could take time off to watch the ball game, so could they. There may have been no quorum in the Capitol, but it could easily have been called out at Griffith Stadium.

In line of duty, one of these reporters went out to the stadium to keep an eye on the President, the congressmen and only incidentally the ball game. Priding himself on being in essence a better sportswriter than he is a Washington reporter, he scouted the Yankees and the Senators and reported back as follows: "The future of both teams is assured. The Yankees will win the pennant; the Senators will win the cellar."

The third week in April is always quite a week here in Washington. Not only do we have the opening of the baseball season, but we get the annual convention of the newspaper editors and the yearly meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Hotel rooms are at a premium and "big wheels" who generally get rooms whenever they want them have been known, during this week, to sleep in hotel lobbies.

Greatest confusion in town occurred at the Statler Hotel which was headquarters for two conventions: the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME). The two organizations were constantly getting the other's mail and phone calls.

Benefit Curbs to Kin Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Olin E. Teague (D-Tex) said Saturday the House Veterans Affairs Committee has found hundreds of cases where government benefits piled up for incompetent veterans are passed on to distant relatives.

Teague called for a law to turn back to the U. S. Treasury unused Veterans Administration payments to mentally ill veterans upon their death, unless the money can be inherited by a widow, child or dependent parent.

Teague said he would push a bill which would allow government recapture of VA compensation payments from an incompetent veteran's estate after his death, but not that part accruing from interest, investments or other sources. That would be when there is no widow, child or dependent parent to inherit the estate.

Is There New Hope at Last for FLAT CHESTED WOMEN?

France Acclaims Scientist's Tablet Formula

Now Available for Self Home Testing

Complete Safety Established

Paris, France: Flat chested women are given new hope at last. A scientific formula containing a special extract of Galega is said to have given such satisfactory results authorities have approved the sale of the product for self home treatment.

1000 WOMEN WANTED

to test this new French way that may help develop a firmer, fuller, natural bosom. NO MASSAGING...NO CREAMS...NO EXERCISE...NOTHING TO WEAR!

French scientists have made tremendous contributions to the world's medical knowledge. Yet we in America often have been reluctant to accept their discoveries sometimes for years. Madam Curie... Pasteur... many French Scientists... today their discoveries are an inseparable part of our science. But there was a time when American medical opinion often seriously doubted the very value of what we accept as fact so completely today.

Important Decision

Now we are faced with another important decision. After years of work and experimentation, French scientists say a unique prepared extract of Galego taken internally in tablet form as directed, may help many flat chested women develop naturally the firmer, fuller bosom that adds so much to feminine charm and womanly appeal.

Completely Safe

Already the safety of the preparation has been firmly established by tests conducted in a leading scientific laboratory. At the same time the value of the product in helping the bosom fill out has not been accepted as yet by current American medical opinion. If you are in normal health, you can become part of these tests and try this new discovery yourself at home and in secret. Our product is called "La Vie." In 6 weeks you either are satisfied or you need only return the empty bottle and your trial is free.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Patrolman Kills Gunman Who Shot Deputy

A 32-year-old ex-convict who wounded a sheriff's deputy was cornered after an 80-mile chase early Saturday and killed by another officer in Santa Ana.

Robert Neri Monteverde, Placentia, was slain by California Highway Patrolman James M. Bergman.

The wounded officer was Deputy E. H. Swanson, 28, of the Norwalk station. He was shot in the right arm when he and his partner stopped three men at 186th St. and Pioneer Blvd., Artesia.

Swanson, firing with his left hand, then wounded Monteverde with three shots. Monteverde stole a car and drove to Santa Ana, where he was slain.

Fumes Fell 7 Workers

Sulphur dioxide gas leaking from a catalytic cracking unit at the Union Oil Co. refinery in Wilmington was blamed when seven men were overcome by fumes early Saturday.

William Skipper, 24, of 2435 Cabrillo Ave., Torrance, one of those overcome is in serious condition at Seaside Hospital. Others were Warren Barton, 29, of 921 S. Beacon St., San Pedro; Neil Alitalo, 42, of 2930 Long Beach Blvd.; James Hall, 25, of 2602 Grand Summit Rd., Torrance; Morton Wagner, 29, of 1661 Hackett St.; Cecil Stephens, 39, of 1002 W. 227th St., and Charles Gibbs, 33, of 8730 Ramona St., Bellflower.

Booked in Fatal Fight

Fred L. Eden, 28, of 4246 E. 4th St. was booked Saturday for investigation of manslaughter in connection with the death of Lonnie E. Walker, 36, of 1021 Vienna Ave., after a brawl at a bar at 1887 E. 10th St.

Crash Hurts Marines

U. S. Marine Jay B. Cotham, 20, and his passenger, Pedro B. Andrede, 21, also a Marine, suffered serious injuries when his car collided with a Long Beach Motor Co. bus at 3rd St. and Grand Ave. early Saturday.

Bus driver Dale Hudson, 33, of 659-A Molino Ave., suffered abrasions of his right hand.

Prowler Collapses

A prowler grappled Friday night with cafe operator Louis Arvitt in his home at 214 2nd St., Seal Beach, and finally fled.

Arvitt said the intruder demanded the keys to the cafe, where the day's receipts supposedly were kept, threatening him with two knives. The cafe owner said he grappled with him and chased him to the foot of the Bolsa Ave. bridge, where the prowler collapsed and was seized by police. Arvitt identified the man as Carl W. Bailey, 46, of 142 Main St., Seal Beach.

15,000 March in Syria, Protest French Envoy

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—Fifteen thousand demonstrators marched through the streets of Damascus Saturday shouting anti-French slogans and demanding expulsion of the French ambassador.

Police threw a heavy guard around the French embassy and other French buildings. No violence was reported. The demonstrations were held in connection with a three-hour general strike called by Moslem religious leaders to protest French policy in Algeria.

Boy, 6, Injured Darting Into Car

Peter M. Conlan, 6, got a bump on the head and possible injury to the left hip Saturday when he was struck by a car at Alamitos Ave. and 7th St. The victim, who lives at 1046 Hellman Ave., is at Seaside Hospital.

Driver John L. Templeton, 52, of 1424 E. 2nd St., told police that the boy darted in front of his car. Templeton was not cited.

TOO CLEVER

Innocent Driver Convicts Self

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—When his car was stopped for a routine check, 20-year-old Edward Akin ducked his temporary driving permit and showed police a license belonging to his uncle, William C. Akin.

He was charged with displaying a fictitious license and got a $100 fine and 30 days in jail.

Pleading guilty in Municipal Court Saturday, Akin, a steelworker, explained:

He had a passenger with him when his car was stopped. He didn't know it then, but his passenger was a licensed driver, which made his driving on a temporary permit perfectly legal.

Southern Yard May Build Atomic-Powered Tanker

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The Birmingham News Saturday said Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp., Pascagoula, Miss., is expected to build the nation's first atomic-powered tanker.

Irving Beiman, News business editor, wrote in Sunday's editions that while actual award of a contract for this purpose is still months away, informed sources declare Ingalls "is known to be regarded with the highest possible favor in plans for developing 'push-button' naval and maritime equipment."

• • • •

"THE INGALLS COMPANY has submitted a proposal, along with three other shipbuilding companies to construct the nation's first atomic tanker, for the U. S. Maritime Commission. It will be designed to speed petroleum fuel to Navy jet carriers at sea, among other things.

"The Pascagoula yard has been in constant operation since it opened, while other yards—both naval and civilian—have suspended work periodically since the end of World War II.

"Government observers also are said to have been impressed with the fact that Ingalls is the one yard in the nation which has not lost its top staff or workers, and has had no major labor strife.

"The Gulf Coast also has a climate advantage over other shipyards.

"It is no secret that Navy and maritime officials look forward to the time when vessels will move under atomic power and fuel supplies will no longer be needed for such vessels."

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONIALS

Dear Dr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills, but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment, I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method."
Signed: Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "For over 20 years I have been going from one doctor's office to another hoping to find someone to help me with my asthma and stomach condition. No one knows how much I had suffered until I came to Dr. Chan. Night after night I had to sit up because I wasn't able to lie down to sleep. I was coughing and wheezing most of the night, besides my stomach was full of gas. After taking Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy for one week, I began to improve. Now, after five months of continuous treatment, my asthma and stomach troubles are just about over. I wish to recommend this treatment to anyone who is anxious to get well. I am sure that Dr. Chan will do all he can to help you as he has helped me."
Signed: Mrs. Tina Smith.

EVERYBODY LOVES A BARGAIN!

LOOK AT THE VALUES AMERICA'S DYNAMIC CHEMICAL INDUSTRY OFFERS YOU TODAY, WITH A PROMISE OF MORE TO COME!

Chemical manufacturers this year will pick up a check for over 350 million dollars . . . so that you may spend less to live better.

This is the chemical industry's annual investment in research (more than that of any other industry) which is creating the new "miracle" materials for home, farm and factory . . . as it improves and lowers the cost of basic chemical products. For example —

YOUR MENU Bountiful harvests of recent years owe much to improved agricultural chemicals which have increased crop yields almost 20% . . . and better feed additives which have put a plump chicken in every pot (and within range of everybody's pocketbook). They've made America's menu more varied, more delectable, more nutritious than ever . . .

YOUR WARDROBE Gone are washday blues! "Non-Shrinking" . . . "wrinkle-resistant" . . . "little or no ironing" . . . "steadfast colors" . . . "water repellent" . . . these are fast becoming standards of quality in the fabrics you buy for your family and your home. And wonder of wonders, you're spending far less of the family budget (30% savings on clothing alone) than the average American of 20 years ago.

YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH AND WELL BEING
Almost a full ten years have been added to life expectancy as compared with 1940. Better community sanitation . . . improved personal hygiene . . . better nutrition . . . and significant victories won by the antibiotics over infectious diseases—all have their roots in chemical progress. For example, 12 short years ago, penicillin cost over 1,000 times more than it does today.

YOUR PRESENT AND FUTURE HOME
About one and one quarter million new homes will be built this year, and millions more will be done over by enthusiastic do-it-yourselfers. Paints, lacquers and protective coatings — all dependents of the chemical industry — help in adding durability, ease of maintenance, and color to make yours a better neighborhood to live in.

TOMORROW Cattle fodder from sawdust . . . electricity from atomic energy — all hint at what the future holds through chemistry. By taking abundant raw materials from forests, oil wells, seas—and even the air — by transforming them into products that serve the needs of industry and the consumer at the right price . . . the chemical manufacturers of America offer you a better way of life—at bargain prices!

SOLID NAME, SOLID COUPLE

Saw L. B. Grow From Acres to Lots

MR. AND MRS. R. W. E. LEWIS
No Johnny-Come-Lately Nomads, They

Mrs. Ralph Waldo Emerson Lewis, 2321 Atlantic Ave., has lived in Long Beach 75 years.

Seventy-five years is right. And "Ralph Waldo Emerson" is right.

Mrs. Lewis came here when she was one year old, and believes she was the first white baby brought to Long Beach. She reports Ruby Reed was the first white child born here and Courtney Teel, a Los Angeles attorney, was the first white boy born here.

Lewis, 80, a painter and paper hanger still on the job, is a great-nephew of Ralph Waldo Emerson and was named for the essayist and poet. Incidentally, he has lived in Long Beach since the 1890's. The Lewises recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

"I was born in Garden Grove, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Saunders," Mrs. Lewis says. "When I was one year old we moved to Perris Road (Santa Fe) and Hill St. We were flooded out three times—there was no Los Angeles River flood control in those days. A team of mules got us out once, a team of horses once, and the third time we got out by boat. My father said that was enough.

• • • •

"HE BOUGHT 50 acres of the American Colony Tract—40 acres on the west side of Atlantic, 10 acres on the east side and moved our house to Atlantic Ave. and 23rd St. I went to school at the old Cerritos school on Willow St., then the Pine Ave. school at 6th and Pine—I walked from here to there — and then my father gave an acre and a third at Hill and Atlantic for the Burnett school. I went to school there, too.

"I've seen Atlantic change from 50-acre parcels to 50-foot lots."

Her father gave land on American Ave. from Hill to Burnett to the Pacific Electric, and Lewis and her brother, Albert, cut down the eucalyptus grove so that the Pacific Electric could run its tracks to Long Beach in 1902.

"Those trees were tough," Lewis grins. "I wouldn't have done it if I hadn't been in love with Frances."

When they were married, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis rented a six-room house, furnished, on 1st St. near Lime Ave. for $6 a month from C. J. Daugherty, father of Earl Daugherty, flier for whom Daugherty Field is named. They decided the rent was too high, so they moved back to "the farm."

• • • • •

ATLANTIC AVE. in those days was a dirt road. "Two ruts, each a foot wide, and a foot deep. It was adobe, and by the time we had walked to Anaheim Rd., the adobe had rolled up on our feet until they looked like footballs."

Mrs. Lewis remembers that when she was a child, Gus Fulman, a bearded sheepherder who worked for the Bixbys, herded sheep between their place and town. "He had a couple of dogs," says Mrs. Lewis. "My mother used to cook things and send them down to him."

The Lewises built their five-room frame house in 1922 and they have lived in it ever since. But with the exception of the short time, when as a bride she lived in the Daugherty house downtown, and a few trips north and east, she has lived on Atlantic, in that immediate area, for 68 years.

Tender Trap Opening Friday at Community Playhouse

"The Tender Trap" has its local stage premiere at the Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St., Friday. This recent Broadway success is a farcical merry-go-round of women going in and out of a Manhattan bachelor's life. The bachelor, Charlie (Bill) Weightman was never too popular back home, but when he arrives in New York he becomes a man-about-town. The flames in his love life include: Betty Joe Estes, Irene Faublon, Donna Borrege, and a very designing young woman with definite domestic plans, Kathleen Vaughn. The masculine members of the cast are: Cliff Medaugh, Corky Teska, a business associate, and Henry McCann, a real gone musician.

M. A. (Bud) Duncan, member of the Long Beach School Board, will speak on education problems at the meeting of the Long Beach Masonic Club Thursday noon in the Wilton Hotel.

'R-R-REALLY BIG'

NEW YORK—Herb Shriner's been tagged by CBS to be one of its 'r-r-really big" men next year—with an hour variety show—but he claims he doesn't intend to be any genius.

"If you go all out, you may go on right through the other side of the room," Harmonica Herb says. "I don't plan to come up with anything revolutionary.

"I'll see if I can get away with some more of my singin'," he adds. "I've got great hopes for the show, but to tell the truth, me and Pixie never buy anything when the payments last longer'n 13 weeks.

"Television's too uncertain. Firin' is bound to go on forever in television. Everybody fires people, but Godfrey and Sid Caesar are the only ones that get caught at it. I'm sure some day some big TV star is going to come on and say 'I think I've had it, as of right now I'm firing myself.'"

Herb's been trying to find out what night he'll work.

"I look 'em square in the eye and say 'What night am I on?' and they say, 'If we find out, we'll try to get permission to let you know.'

"Bein' a hi-fi nut, I'll probably have some music, to take the taste out of your mouth from my own singin'.

"And I'll continue interviewin' people. I was thinkin' of interviewin' people that stand up and I've always wondered what those people'd have said if Ed had allowed them to say anything."

Herb's become a "packager" now—"I got to build my own bunch," he explains.

This means the boy from Fort Wayne will be a corporation like Jackie Gleason and Perry Como.

SHE 'SELLS' SEASHELL SEAL

Pointing out qualities of a Long Beach city seal fashioned in seashells is Anita Canas, 12, president of Huntington Beachcombers. Dr. Strang to 'Explore' Great Future of Music in World of Electronics

Care to listen to a concerto for audio oscillators, or maybe a fugue for tone synthesizers and tape recorders?

Such weird and wonderful musical productions may not be too far off, Dr. Gerald Strang, chairman of the Long Beach City College music department, believes.

Dr. Strang, who is also a noted composer, will explore these and other musical possibilities next Friday when he delivers the second annual Faculty Honors lecture before members of the Faculty Club on the Lakewood campus.

His topic will be "Music in America — the Next 50 Years," and Strang cheerfully admits that his opinions may raise a lot of musical hackles.

• • • •

AMONG OTHER THINGS, he believes that the composer of tomorrow may have to have a degree in electrical engineering.

"They have electronic gadgets now which can duplicate the tone of any known instrument, and carry that tone higher and lower than the instrument ever could.

"For instance, the entire score of the movie 'Forbidden Planet' was produced without a single musical instrument. Sounded good, too.

"At Columbia University they're experimenting with music which cannot be played by conventional means. Tape-recording passages played on ordinary instruments, they speed them up or slow them down to produce sounds unobtainable by the instruments themselves," Strang said.

"Developments like these may alter our whole concept of music, and introduce an infinite range of tones and pitches."

However, music from little black boxes is only one facet of music's future development, Strang says.

"Much of the modern music produced in recent years has not been intelligible to the audience," he declares. "In the next 50 years I think that composers will attempt to consolidate past experiments into a new musical form with all the emotional and technical significance of the old.

"Who knows—we may be on the verge of a new age of musical giants," he says. "And we could use a few. A lot of the so-called modern music has just been like looking for new ways to make old beer."

• • • •

STRANG, WHO HAS BEEN a composer for more than 25 years, doesn't intend to go overboard himself on modern trends.

"I like to experiment a little, but my main purpose is to write music which is pleasant to play and pleasing to hear."

Strang believes that new musical developments will come from the Americas — European composers are stifling in their own traditions.

"American composers have always had the big problem of getting their music heard. The lucky ones have the even bigger problem of getting it heard twice," he says.

Strang's own music has reached a wide audience. He was one of seven composers represented last fall in the First Annual Chamber Music Concert of the American Composers' Alliance, and a number of his works have been performed at the Evenings on the Roof concert series in Los Angeles.

• • • •

POSSIBLY HIS MOST ardent admirer is a man in Buenos Aires named Juan Carlos Paz, who directs a confemporary music group there.

"I've never met him, but he's asked for everything I've ever published, and has written for my unpublished manuscripts as well," he says.

Strang doesn't think that there is any future in combining jazz and classical forms.

"Such music is neither flesh nor fowl. Contemporary composers should draw on it, certainly, but not try to mix the two."

As for rock and roll, Strang eyes it with a mild but philosophical astonishment.

"I don't think it has any real significance," he says.

"It's just a fad, and musical fads—classical or popular—never last long."

Playwright M'Arthur Dies at 60

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles MacArthur, 60, playwright, movie writer and husband of Helen Hayes, the actress, died Saturday in New York Hospital of a kidney ailment and severe anemia.

The co-author of the famous newspaper play "The Front Page" entered the hospital Wednesday suffering from nephritis. His illness became known when it was announced that Miss Hayes had cancelled a May 6 television appearance in the play, "The Cradle Song."

• • • •

MISS HAYES was with her husband when he died. He had lapsed into unconsciousness shortly before death.

Besides Miss Hayes, he leaves an adopted son, James. Their daughter, Mary, a fledgling actress, died at the age of 19 of polio on Sept. 19, 1949.

While MacArthur wrote plays and movie scripts on his own, he teamed numerous times with Ben Hecht. They collaborated on "The Front Page," a play about newspaper work in Chicago where both had been newspaper reporters.

• • • •

THEIR MOVIE, "The Scoundrel," won them Hollywood Oscars.

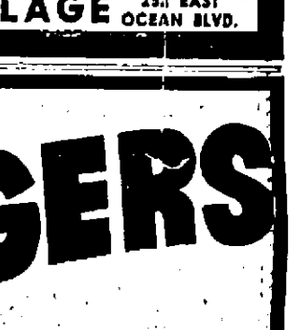

MacArthur was born in Scranton, Pa., Nov. 5, 1895, the son of the Rev. William T. and Georgiana Welstead MacArthur. He was educated at Wilson Memorial Academy in Nyack, N. Y.

Theater Club Honors Muni and Robinson

NEW YORK (AP)—Actors Paul Muni and Edward G. Robinson, who are as famous for their movie making as for their Broadway stage appearances, Friday night were honored by the Lambs Club for their contributions to the theater.

Muni, Robinson and nine others all were awarded silver mugs in the famed 82-year-old theatrical organization's first ceremony honoring theatrical figures. The awards will be made every year.

Big Tropical Fish Exhibit Set Saturday

One of the most dazzling collections of tropical fish to be seen anywhere in the state will be on display at Municipal Auditorium during the 23rd annual Long Beach Hobby Show. The exhibit will open a four-day run Saturday.

Admission to the show will be free, according to officials of the sponsoring Recreation Department and Long Beach Hobby Clubs Council. Show hours daily will be noon-10 p. m.

The main floor of the big auditorium will be packed with the displays of 48 hobby clubs and 82 individual lobbyists.

• • • •

THE HOBBY SHOW is strictly non-commercial and is rated as the greatest exhibit of its kind in the western part of the nation, according to Mrs. Lois DeLano, show manager.

"It will be a working show," Mrs. DeLano explained, "with spectators invited to discuss hobbies with the many exhibitors, who will be seen actually performing the skills necessary to their avocations."

Community History —Esprit de Corps

Carillo knew that his hundred men, woefully lacking in military equipment and ammunition, were no match for Stockton's force. . . . (He) gathered a vast cavalcade of wild horses from the ranchos and assembled them behind a gap in the hills . . . dispersing among them as many mounted troops as he could muster. He kept the whole body in constant motion passing and repassing the gap, the horses raising such clouds of dust that it was impossible to see that most of the horses were riderless. This was kept up long enough to give Stockton the impression of a vast army of cavalry, and so effective was the trick that Stockton withdrew immediately. . . ."

Ranchos of the Sunset. Published by Security Trust and Savings Bank, May 1925.

• • •

THIS MEXICAN WAR episode is one of countless fascinating stories in the history of the community of Long Beach. In a flower-filled garden of a Los Cerritos hacienda, headquarters for the California Army, the unusual strategy described above was invented by Gen. Carillo.

Few of our citizens know this story or the others which add immeasurably to the charm of living in the land where the "ranchos of the sunset" once flourished.

Historically speaking, any town is a flat, blank, colorless face to the new arrivals from other states.

But beneath the surface, in terms of time, is the depth, the shape, the color — the story of how the town began, the adventures it has seen, the people who made it what it became.

A town is like a person. More interesting, more instructive, warmer, easier to like if you know the story of its past, its troubles, failures, and its triumphs.

THAT PEOPLE thirst for this understanding is demonstrated by the encouraging attendance at the current series of lectures on local and regional history, presented at La Casa de Rancho Los Cerritos, now a city museum—and the site of the hacienda where the wild horse strategy of 110 years ago was plotted.

Life in the populous centers of Southern California tends to lose the flavor of community esprit de corps. The same forces that push people close together spatially, work to hold them apart otherwise — apart and lost from one another, apart and uninterested in community identity.

This need not be the case if the residents have an opportunity to absorb the local color. The lecture series at La Casa Rancho Los Cerritos, today and on subsequent Sundays, offers such an opportunity, which we earnestly recommend to those who live here.

'Plowed Through a Bumble Bee's Nest'

(One in a series of Sunday reproductions of cartoons by the famous "Ding" Darling.)

HERE WE GO AGAIN! President Eisenhower's veto of the farm bill isn't the first time a Republican president has aroused strenuous political discussion by disapproving agricultural legislation. In May of 1928 Congress passed the McNary-Haugen bill, and President Coolidge vetoed it. At that time, Jay N. Darling ("Ding") drew this cartoon. The McNary-Haugen bill was the first big measure for relief, but never became law. It would have had the federal government manage the marketing of farm products, selling enough abroad at a low price so there would be no surplus at home and price at home would be higher, the costs of it all being "equalized" to all farmers participating. The year 1928, like this one 28 years later, was a presidential campaign year. (Hoover defeated Al Smith.) So . . .

California Demo Sentiment on Adlai and Estes in Fluid State

NOW COMES the season when politicos, newspapers and other observers get those questionnaires asking how things look for the coming election.

One has arrived at this desk from an agency that wants to know about the outlook in the California Democratic primary.

EPLEY

Answering that one is about like forecasting the sex of an expected baby. One can make a guess with a 50-50 chance of being right — or wrong.

The fluidity of California's Democratic sentiment on the presidential preference issue makes pure guesswork out of a forecast at this stage. The indication that victory is yet to be forged is a challenge to the two candidates and their workers.

SENTIMENT HAS BEEN running back and forth, apparently in accordance with the showings of the candidates in other states' primaries. When Sen. Kefauver knocked over Adlai Stevenson in Minnesota, there was a great Kefauver surge in California. When Stevenson made a fair showing in Illinois, his California stock jumped, and he probably gained further when Kefauver flunked the popularity test with President Eisenhower in New Jersey.

This seems to indicate that neither candidate has a large band of followers who will stick through thick and thin. California Democrats want to be on the bandwagon of the man with the best support nationally. The candidate's chance of victory is more important than his position on issues.

ATTY. GEN. EDMUND G. BROWN, bellwether of the Stevenson forces in the state, apparently doesn't agree with the growing opinion that Stevenson and Kefauver are going to kill each other off and that a dark horse with some such name as Symington or Harriman is going to the wire at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Brown says that the Democratic winner at the June 5 primary in this state will be the party's standard bearer in the general election. Stevenson and Kefauver are the only California candidates, so Brown is ruling out all other possibilities.

Probably what the Attorney General is thinking is that Stevenson will win in California and that Stevenson will win at Chicago. Stevenson's top man in the state could hardly be looking at it any other way.

BUT THE KEFAUVERITES aren't going for any talk like that. L. A. Pipkin of Long Beach, for instance, is certain Kefauver will repeat his 1952 victory in California.

Brown and Pipkin are dedicated to their respective candidates. But objective observers may see it otherwise. From here, it appears that the crystallization of sentiment is yet to come, and that it could go either way. A few more weeks, and the prospects should begin to clear.

JOHN S. KNIGHT

Now for Important Stuff Like Baseball and Derby

NEW YORK — With Grace Kelly and Margaret Truman both married, happily we hope, perhaps some attention will now be paid to important matters like baseball and the Kentucky Derby.

After reading reams of hysterical reporting from Monaco, whose 20,000 people live on a plot of land twice the size of a good golf layout, nothing much was proved except that Margaret Truman is a nice, sensible American girl.

"Sentimental and sweet and simple" was Margaret's wedding theme. To be sure, Grace Kelly cried at the altar, but were they tears of sentiment?

KNIGHT

Coinciding with Grace's marriage was the New York opening of "The Swan" in color and cinemascope. It is billed as "the love story of a princess," starring, of course, one Grace Kelly.

It was amusing to read in the pre-wedding buildup of Prince Rainier's terrible temper with photographers. Someone like Henry Wallace could tell him the time to worry is when they don't want your picture.

I never met the prince but got acquainted with Margaret's Clifton Daniel Jr. in London during the war. He had quite a way with the ladies and was well liked and highly respected by the newspaper corps.

Cliff and Margaret should make a go of it. We're not so sure of Grace and her prince. Tiny Monaco, like the rest of Europe, is a man's world.

• • • •

BUT BACK TO BASEBALL and the Derby. Someone has a calculating machine that says Detroit will win the American League pennant but the Yankees and Boston look stronger. The Dodgers should repeat if they get good pitching.

Rival trainers are claiming that Needles, the Florida-foaled Derby favorite, has a "big knee." Hugh Fontaine, Needles' trainer, answers: "So what?"

Of course, the big answer will come on May 5 when Needles will have no weight advantage against such highly regarded colts as Head Man, Career Boy and Calumet's Pintor Lea.

• • • •

MY FRIEND, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corp., takes exception to a statement in this column that the proposed hike in steel prices may not be justified.

He makes the point that the steel industry had no obligation to see "that there are no steel shortages." But he asks: "Where do we get the money" to build the required additional capacity?

The answer seems simple: You save it from earnings and you borrow the rest.

But Ernie says "this simply cannot be done on the present earnings basis."

NOTE: Earnings in the steel industry are the highest in history.

• • • •

WHEN THE Soviet Union offered to support a United Nations settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict, it produced the usual skeptical reactions in Washington and from most of the U. S. press.

Mr. Dulles said he would welcome a "genuine" Kremlin effort. The New York World-Telegram said the Russians are waving an olive branch in one hand while brandishing a gun in the other.

Isn't this line wearing a bit thin? Wouldn't our position be stronger if just occasionally we conceded that the Soviet Union might be sincere?

This doesn't mean letting down our guard, or being taken in by Red propaganda.

But we could be a little less shrill, and not always quite so certain that the Russians are leading from weakness.

Tax Cut Proposals Will Again Pose 'Sign-or-Veto' Dilemma for President

WASHINGTON. President Eisenhower soon will find himself up against another sign-or-veto dilemma, and this time it will affect everybody and not just farmers. The politicians will be offering bills to reduce taxes, and Mr. Eisenhower probably will veto any that are passed.

LAWRENCE

It's true there's a surplus coming in the federal budget for the fiscal year that ends June 30 next. It will be at least $2,000,000,000, instead of the forecast of about an eighth of that sum made last January in the President's message.

The Treasury has experts who can estimate on the basis of the way installment payments are coming in just what the receipts will be by June 30. Hence it is pretty well assured now that there'll be a surplus of at least two billions on the so-called ordinary budget.

In fact the "cash" budget, which is merely a tally of money received as against money to be paid out during this fiscal year, will show some more than $4,000,000,000 surplus. The official forecast last January on the "cash" budget was about a fourth of that amount. All these estimates may turn out on the low side, as the Treasury hasn't had a chance yet to total up the income-tax payments made on Monday of this week. There are indications that record totals soon will be announced.

With these favorable trends in the flow of money into Uncle Sam's pocketbook, the taxpayers will be asking, "Will there be a tax cut?" The politicians, particularly the Democrats, will be urging the passage of a law granting a tax reduction to persons of low income or even a percentage cut straight across-the-board.

• • • • •

ON THE SURFACE, the figures would justify a tax cut, but to do so might actually be fiscally disadvantageous to the country. The Federal Reserve Board at the present time is trying to head off any more inflation and is restricting credit. Tax reductions are usually voted when business isn't good and when the country needs the stimulus of private spending.

Since it is the administration's program to keep prices stabilized and the purchasing power of the dollar from going downward, the President would most certainly veto any tax-reduction bill passed in such prosperous times as the present.

But what about the politicians? They will press their measures. In the past, when one party has been in control of Congress and the other party has had its man in the White House, the custom has been to pass measures in the Senate and House which the President was expected to veto, and the political hope was that the electorate would become irritated and vote against the party in power. These bills have always been called "pop-gun" measures because their sponsors never expected them to become law but merely wanted to embarrass the administration in power.

The arguments, of course, are powerful against using the surplus for tax reduction. For one thing, the public debt in recent years hasn't been reduced and it would be a healthy thing to apply the surplus against the debt. The dollar would grow stronger all over the world and the dangers of inflation would be considerably reduced.

• • • •

THE TROUBLE with a tax reduction law is that it would add to the spending power of the present boom, start a new round of wage increases and a corresponding rise in the prices of the articles of necessity which the farmer and the city worker have to buy. It would, indeed, put the brakes on prosperity and could cause a business recession. That's why a presidential veto would seem to be certain, though it may prove embarrassing for the Republican candidates to face the electorate with the responsibility fixed on them for refusing to reduce taxes.

AFL-CIO Political Chiefs Almost Give Up on Adlai

WASHINGTON — Interesting piece of political intelligence: The AFL-CIO's political chiefs have practically written off Adlai Stevenson's chances to win the Democratic nomination.

PEARSON

James McDevitt and Jack Kroll, who operate the political arm of the big, merged labor organization, took a careful political survey after the New Hampshire and Minnesota primaries and declared in a secret report to the AFL-CIO Executive Committee: "Unless the present trend changes radically, it would appear most unlikely that Stevenson can get the nomination."

Before the primaries, Kroll tried to persuade Sen. Kefauver to settle for the vice presidential nomination on a Stevenson-Kefauver ticket. Kroll talked for an hour with Kefauver, trying to coax him to sit down with Stevenson and make a deal for the vice presidency.

Every time Kroll mentioned a Stevenson-Kefauver ticket, however, the tall Tennessean quietly changed the subject. He still hadn't committed himself as he got up to leave.

"What about it?" Kroll pressed as the senator walked toward the door. "Will you talk to Stevenson about a Stevenson-Kefauver ticket?"

"I would be happy to talk to Stevenson," smiled Kefauver, "about a Kefauver-Stevenson ticket."

A LOT OF PEOPLE will be watching the Florida primary vote for governor for straws in the wind on the segregation issue.

The man who is fairly sure to come out on top is Gov. Le Roy Collins, who is opposed to integration, but who is a moderate.

Collins is opposed by a variegated field of candidates of which the two most important are rootin-tootin' Gen. Sumter Lowry, a retired Army officer who has been pounding the race issue for all it's worth; and ex-Gov. Fuller Warren, an old-line Democrat who got into trouble with Sen. Kefauver during the crime probe and never did accept Kefauver's invitation to testify regarding the dog tracks of Florida and who was behind them.

Warren got some amazing contributions when he ran for governor the first time, including $154,000 from William T. Johnson, head of the old Capone gang and a dog track organizer; also $154,000 from Louis Wolfson, the Florida junk dealer who last year tried to acquire the Montgomery Ward mail order house.

Florida moderates and middle-of-the-roaders have been solid behind Gov. Collins. Such differing newspapers as the conservative Tribune and the liberal St. Petersburg Times are also strong for him. If he wins on the first ballot, as seems likely, it will prove that the South is not going in for rabble-rousing as much as some northerners think it is. dressed a letter to President Eisenhower urging that he call a conference to consider the entire segregation problem.

TOWN MEETING

Labor Politicians Missing the Boat

TO THE EDITOR:

Labor in California, particularly in Long Beach, is in need of some honest self-appraisal before it is too late. And this criticism is from a militant labor supporter.

Upon checking into the endorsements made by labor concerning candidates for Congress, I find that the only candidates who have received labor's endorsement are those who have no real opposition, representing districts that have been so gerrymandered as to elect a Democrat every time. In districts where the Democratic candidate has a fight on his hands, labor sits on the fence. Why does labor make endorsements at all if not to help elect a candidate? Which candidate can best use shoo-in or the one who has a 50-50 chance? Obviously, help is only needed where there is a struggle. A doctor doesn't vaccinate against a disease to which the patient has a natural immunity.

• • • •

IN LONG BEACH Democrat Simpson, a liberal, is running against Republican Hosmer. Labor has made no endorsement here.

Are there so many liberal Congressmen that labor can afford to pass up one more when invariably a liberal vote is a vote that benefits labor? Once more, labor has missed the boat thanks to poor leadership in the Committee on Political Education.

Ike Faced Farm Issue Squarely

TO THE EDITOR:

An account in your paper April 15 told about James P. Patton, president of the Farmers' Union, making a disrespectful attack on President Eisenhower.

The union official would for political expediency rather run away from the farmer's problem than to face it.

Sure, it would be easier to keep paying more subsidies to create more surpluses, and let "George" worry about unfair taxation, and $1,000,000 daily storage costs just to keep in good standing with the farmers to garner some votes.

• • • •

NEEDLING the taxpayers for continued and higher subsidy payments to be the farmers customers for more than they can consume will not solve the farmers' problem any more than to throw more cereal in a pan of rice would keep it from boiling over. The farmers' problem is their problem and needs to be solved where it originates. It can never be entirely remedied in Washington.

President Eisenhower had the courage to veto a farm bill he believed would do more harm than good for America without fear of losing popularity. And for the benefit of Mr. Patton, he did not rush home from the ninth hole to fire Secretary Benson. He and Mr. Benson see eye to eye. They believe the sinews in men's souls should be strengthened, not softened. Contrary to Patton's idea they are not running away from the problem, but facing up to it.

Lakewood Citizens Should Vote Again

TO THE EDITOR:

I note a recent announcement that Congressman Hosmer has notified the good citizens of Lakewood that a post office building will be built in their city. Also some time ago the announcement of the Lakewood City Council to the effect that a civic center will eventually be established.

Before these projects are undertaken, the citizens of Lakewood should have a final chance to vote on annexation to the City of Long Beach. This opportunity has never been given to that area as was the various other districts around Lakewood, which all voted overwhelmingly to annex.

• • • •

AT THE TIME Lakewood voted to become a city there was great apathy on the part of the voters, far less than 50 per cent of all persons qualified to take part casting their ballots. Since that time it has been revealed that the Southern California Gas Co. provided most of the campaign funds in behalf of the movement to incorporate the City of Lakewood.

Before the above building projects are started, the good citizens of Lakewood should be given a final opportunity to vote on annexation to the City of Long Beach.

Writes Eulogy on Late Dr. Evans

TO THE EDITOR:

We just lost an exceptional young man here in Long Beach. He never won fame nationally or internationally (although he earned it) but he did win great honors. He won the heart, faith and confidence of pet owners from Los Angeles to Laguna Beach for his kindness and gentleness in his treatment and surgery of their pets.

He saved the lives of hundreds of pets. He loved pets and our pets loved him, the late Dr. Milton R. Evans, Veterinarian, who operated the small animal hospital on Redondo Ave.

Dr. Milton R. Evans was struck down by an incurable disease when he was only 41 years old.

His funeral service was attended by hundreds of his grief stricken friends because he was humane, honest and a loyal American with top rating in his profession. May God rest his soul.

Hits Ike, Nixon 'Special Interests'

TO THE EDITOR:

An orchid to E. R. Smith for his excellent appraisal of "Ike the Golfer," and a big bunch of onions for C. W. Campbell who went to great lengths to extoll the virtues of Eisenhower and his two hatchet men, Nixon and Dulles.

Mr. Campbell says "Nixon is deeply informed and deeply dedicated and that his record is great for a man of 42."

I am led to believe by his remarks that he is the one who is not informed.

It is inconceivable that a man with a record such as Nixon's should preside over the Senate of the United States.

And as for Ike he is a tool in the hands of big business.

The next four years could very well prove to be the most critical in the history of our country. If the people fail to elect friendly and sympathetic representatives, the powerful lobbies will recklessly increase the burden on wage earners and further favor special interests.

Adlai E. Stevenson was right when he said, "I'll tell you what this country needs. It needs some drivers more than it needs putters."

Jap Mission to Get Bodies of War Dead

TOKYO (AP)—A government mission will go to the South Pacific this summer to collect bodies of Japanese war dead. About 80,000 Japanese soldiers were killed in western New Guinea, northern Borneo and the Celebes in World War II.

Dentures first, money LATER at Dr. Campbell's for over 20 years

WHY NO MONEY DOWN

"I don't have to worry about paying my expenses as a dentist if I am interested first in giving service," Dr. Campbell said. "I have found through trial and error that every one of my offices must give a lot of credit to be prosperous. In the past, when one of my offices curtailed credit, this office became less prosperous. People gladly pay for good service when you are thinking of them before the money. My records prove that insisting on cash, even in small amounts, hurts my dental practice. No money down helps my dental practice."

SEE YOUR SAVINGS

When you go to buy something at a department store you see article tagged with a price. You don't have to be a good bargainer to get a good price. "I am doing this in dentistry," Dr. Campbell said. Machine Smarter Than Man Seen

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — A British scientist claims science now can produce a machine more intelligent than its maker.

Dr. W. Ross Ashby said in his book "Automata Studies," published by Princeton University Press Saturday, that such machines "are possible in the sense that their building can start today."

"If physical power can be amplified why not intellectual power?" Dr. Ashby asked.

He said that while time to get an answer from a brain machine might be a discouraging factor, "it is not impossible the method may be successful in those problems to which the question is specifically addressed."

Corsets Hurt Women, Health Expert Finds

KANAZAWA, Japan (AP) — A health expert has come out against corsets. Raoru Murakami of Kyoto University reports his research shows women's corsets cause breathing difficulties, weakened backbones and stomach disorders.

TV Tele-Vues

by TERRY VERNON

TV is becoming more and more "colorful" as equipment is being made available to the studios for colorcasts, and more and more people are finding an extra $800 or $900 lying around so they are buying color receivers.

"Renaissance on TV," featuring Dr. Frank C. Baxter, will be a colorcast on (2) at 4 p.m. Artist Rico LeBrun will visit Baxter and together they'll show and discuss such great works of art as "Creation of Adam" by Michelangelo and "Vulcan's Forge" by Tinoretto.

This is the first time that famed works of art have been shown on TV in full color and should prove a very interesting experiment.

Another colorcast will be "Zoo Parade" on (4) at 3:30 p.m. with Dr. Marlin Perkins of the Chicago Zoo showing more films of the Deeber animal capturing headquarters in Africa. The safari will be followed and we'll see animals captured by use of the lariat and also visit a pair of newly-captured rhinos.

DRAMA — Emmett Kelly, world-renowned tramp clown of Ringling Bros. circus, has never spoken during his acts but he does on TV tonight when he stars in his first dramatic role on "Telephone Time" at 5:30 p.m. on (2). He plays the role of a German tramp who turns the German military system upsidedown by posing as an officer . . . The final "Front Row Center" is on (2) at 12:30 p.m. starring Mercedes McCambridge and Katherine Bard. Tale of a woman who loses her 10-year-old son and then forms an attachment for a neighbor boy that is so great it nearly wrecks several lives . . . A beautiful woman's struggles against alcohol, her unreasonable jealousy and an unjustified feeling of insecurity end in tragedy when "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" on (2) at 9:30 p.m. Phyllis Thaxter and Warren Stevens are featured . . . Betsy Palmer, Jessie Royce Landis and Gene Lyons head the cast of "Goodyear Playhouse" on (4) at 9 p.m. in a study of women in big business. Sort of a femme version of "Patterns," the play deals with a woman whose desire for success leads her into a web of company politics and personal enmities until she comes to a major crossroads of life . . . Host Ronald Reagan stars on "G.E." Theatre" at 9 p.m. on (2) as a gambler who returns to his home town to settle down to respectability. Only the minister accepts him and on Sunday the minister distributes one dollar bills and asks the congregation to use them to make money for the church. The gambler uses "The Lord's Dollar" to gamble with three of the town's big shots, cleans them good and finds his life taking a new course.

RONALD REAGAN
"The Lord's Dollar"

GUESTING — Hostess and special guest of the "Comedy Hour" on (4) at 8 p.m. will be Gloria DeHaven and the most outstanding act will be Baron and Grady, a couple of jazz-playing chimps with a new sound in music. William Bendix, Shecky Greene and Jonathan Winters will be featured . . . "The Ed Sullivan Show" on (2) at 8 p.m. offers Tony Martin, Alfred Hitchcock, Marion Marlowe, Sam Levenson, The Ames Brothers, Senor Wences, Enzo Stuarti, the Alcetty act of balancing-juggling and The Three Goelahis, a unicycle act. Ed and his wife take off for Tokyo after the show and next Sunday Eve Arden takes over as emcee . . . Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will "Face The Nation" on (2) at 2 p.m. discussing the farm bill veto . . . Adlai Stevenson faces the panel on "Meet the Press" at 6 p.m. on (4) . . . Dimitri Tiomkin, Oscar-winning songwriter, plays his new "Prince and Princess Waltz" for the "Mary McAdoo Show" on (4) at 4:30 p.m. . . .

Dental Clinic Aids 40,000 Youngsters

It was a momentous occasion Friday when the 40,000th child was treated at the Children's Dental Health Center, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

His parents, like the parents of all children treated at the clinic in its 24-year history, paid only a nominal sum.

Children of low-income families receive dental care at the price they can afford to pay at the center, a project of the Junior League, aided by other organizations.

The clinic, staffed by two full-time dentists, two dental assistants and an office force, is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Children of pre-school age through junior high school are treated.

• • • • •

CLINIC FIGURES show that from September 1955 through April 15, a total of 1,423 children were treated. The clinic figures: total operations (an operation is anything done to a tooth), 8,123; total chair appointments, 3,791; completed cases, 811; number of X-rays, 1,471.

The youngest child who has received care at the clinic is 3 years old. One 5-year-old "dental cripple" coming to the clinic requires 35 fillings and one extraction.

There is a 14-year-old child who needs the following work done: Three crowns, 24 deep cavities filled, one extraction. Also the child has lost five permanent teeth which must be replaced. The cost of this work to the patient will be $112.40. The family is able to pay 70 per cent of the clinic's low dental fees. The dental work will cost the clinic $160.55.

• • • • •

TRAINED CLINIC VOLUNTEERS instruct patients in the correct way to care for teeth and gums. Any child unable to afford a toothbrush is given one. Parents and children are instructed in proper diet. Dental education is considered one of the most important phases of the clinic work.

The center, a non-profit community service, was created in February 1932, fulfilling the dream of Dr. Robert E. Anderson, a children's dentist, to provide care for children financially unable to receive dental attention.

The Junior League of Long Beach adopted the clinic as the league's project in 1936.

The clinic also has the support of other organizations, including Children's Dental Foundation, PTA Council, Board of Education, Kiwanis Club, Rotary Club, Harbor District Dental Wives Auxiliary, Harbor District Dental Assistants Society, Belmont Shore Lady Lions, California Community Foundation, Catholic Parochial Mothers Clubs, Children's Benefit League, Hollywood Turf Club, Elks, Bachelorettes and Los Angeles County.

• • • • •

THE CHILDREN'S Dental Foundation was organized in 1952 to administer and promote an endowment fund. Members of this administrative board include members of the Third District Dental Society, Junior League and interested individuals. By expanding the endowment fund, effectiveness of the clinic services can be multiplied.

Mrs. Robert Sully recently succeeded Mrs. Franklin Waters as president of the Junior League. Mrs. Robert Godwin is recording secretary of the League.

Mrs. John B. Fowler is president of the foundation, with Mrs. John Christopher, clinic chairman. Mrs. Edwin J. Squire is education chairman for the clinic. Mrs. William Cheney is treasurer of the foundation.

Funds raised at the Yale Glee Club concert June 19 in Poly High School auditorium, sponsored by the Junior League and the foundation, will go toward financing the work of the clinic. Mrs. Llewellyn Bixby Jr. is chairman of the committee sponsoring the concert.

Many members of the league and the foundation are active as volunteer workers in the clinic.

Vannevar Wins Alamitos Derby

By JERRY WYNN

Vannevar, a tall chestnut gelding with a stride that wouldn't quit, won the $20,000 Pacific Coast Quarter Horse Racing Assn. Derby before 12,358 fans at Los Alamitos Race Course Saturday.

While the touted Go Man Go was forced to zig-zag out of contention and Sure Now was never sure, Vannevar charged down the 440-yard straightaway in :22.2, two-tenths of a second off the world record, to beat outsider Dolly's Ace to the wire by a head. Arizonan was third, a neck behind Dolly's Ace.

Vannevar's rich triumph overshadowed a world-record equaling trip by Diamond Mac in the supporting feature, the $3,500 Miss Princess Stakes. The four-year-old mare raced the 350 yards in :17.8.

• • • •

IT WAS an all-around banner day in the young history of the Orange County track. The attendance smashed the previous mark of 10,732 set on Derby Day last year and the total wagering of $695,931 and the single race betting on the Derby, $100,687, were also all-time marks.

Taking nothing away from Vannevar's sterling race, the Derby was more a story of Go Man Go's failure at the post and the questionable strategy of his jockey, Tommy Chavez, to get him untracked.

All eyes were on the sensational roan colt, a 4-5 post-time favorite, as quarter horse racing's finest field in history came out of this gate. But to the astonishment of all, Go Man Go didn't go.

• • • • •

HE SAT BACK as the ground seemed to crumble underneath him, and when he started to run, he found his path completely blocked by his quick-starting neighbors. He moved from his No. 7 lane around No. 8. Still no room. Around No. 9. Still no room. Then to the rail and room.

In a blur, he streaked down the outside to the chants of Go Man Go. But it was all in vain. With far too much ground to make up, his gallant effort was only good for fifth place, a neck and three noses (a quarter-of a length) behind the winner.

Chavez had no excuses to offer for the disastrous start or for his maneuver to the outside. Many of the jockeys were of the opinion that he should have kept straight ahead and forced an opening.

• • • • •

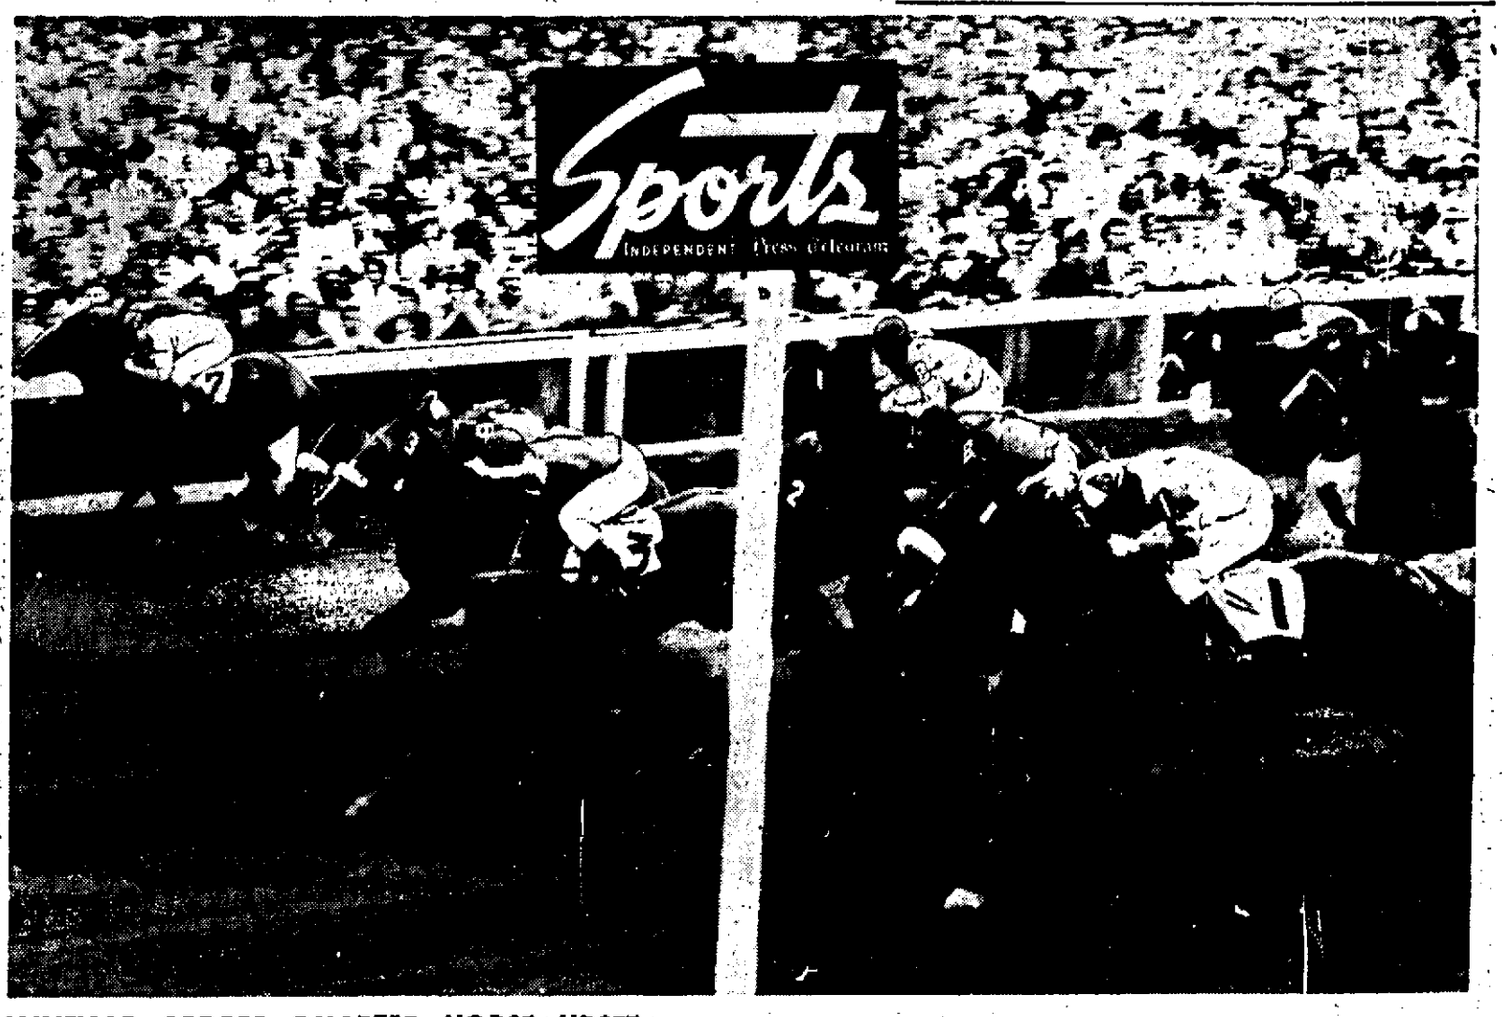

MEANWHILE, Vannevar ran straight and swift as an arrow. Given an expert ride by Lloyd Ballou, the Dee Garrett-owned and Willie Kelley-trained Oklahoma horse, took the lead from Arizonan near the start and never lost it.

"I hit him just once about 35 yards from the wire," said Ballou, "and that was enough. He had a stride that wouldn't quit."

The third choice in the wagering, Vannevar returned $13.20, 6.90 and 4.90; the surprising Dolly's Ace, 31.40 and 11.10; Arizonan, 5.30. Sure Now closed fast for fourth. After Go Man Go came Club-Win, Do It For Me, Jayhawker Bar, Chief Win and Prosser's Bar.

Diamond Mac, with jockey Henry Page in the irons, was in front wire-to-wire but only finished a nose ahead of Miss Myrna Bar, who was two and one-half lengths ahead of Pokey Vandy. The winner paid $3.70, 4.20, 3.10; Miss Myrna Bar, 9.00 and 5.60; Pokey Vandy, 4.70.

The program was enlivened by a stream of longshots, three inquiries and some extra-curricular fisticuffs described on page A-1. Without question, it was quarter horse racing's most exciting day.

VANNEVAR SCORES QUARTER HORSE UPSET

A's Tally 13 in 2nd, Win 15-1

KANSAS CITY (U.P.) — Slim Art Ditmar hurled a one-hitter at the White Sox Saturday and his mates exploded for 14 hits and 13 runs in the second inning for a 15-1 win before 15,688 fans.

The game avenged a 29-6 drubbing Chicago handed the A's a year ago this corresponding Saturday in Municipal Stadium.

Two men were out before the A's could muster their first run in the second inning, but it made little difference as they batted around twice and knocked three Sox pitchers from the mound. That one-half inning took 40 minutes.

• • • • •

CHICAGO'S LONE run, unearned, came in the fourth inning and robbed Ditmar of a shutout. Earl Battey got the lone single and scored the run.

Jim Finigan started the record second for the A's with a single between pitcher Sandy Consuegra's legs. Joe DeMaestri doubled to the leftfield fence. Then Ditmar hit to short and Power to the pitcher for two fast outs and it looked like just another inning.

However, Spook Jacobs singled over second, Enos Slaughter and Harry Simpson singled to right and Gus Zernial worked Consuegra for a walk. Bill Fischer relieved and Joe Ginsberg greeted him with a single to center.

• • • •

HEC LOPEZ, who went in to run for Finigan when he sprained his ankle at third, came up for the first time and tripled to right center. DeMaestri and Ditmar singled, bringing on Harry Byrd.

Power and Jacobs singled, Slaughter walked, Simpson and Zernial singled, and Morris Martin took the mound. Martin struck out his first batter, Ginsberg, to retire the side.

The inning set a new American League record for runs scored in the second inning and also tied the major league record set in 1890 by the New York Giants. The Red Sox scored 17 in one inning in 1953.

Baker Runs Wind-Aided 9.3 Century

COLUMBUS, O. (U.P.)—Thane Baker set an American record and tied a world mark Saturday at the Ohio Relays to become a top Olympic sprint hope.

Baker, a first lieutenant at the Lockbourne Air Force Base and previously a Kansas State speedster, spurted to a 9.3 100-yard dash victory and then raced to a record setting 29.4-second 300-yard dash.

The 100-yard time equaled the world mark but the serviceman was aided by a tailwind in excess of eight miles an hour that prevented it being entered in the record book.

Because Baker ran around a curve and was running both into and out of the wind, his 300-yard time which broke the 1946 American record of Herb McKenley of Illinois can be certified as a new mark.

Six Ohio Relay records were set, including one by Harrison Dillard, two-time Olympic champion who was making his first appearance here. Dillard won all three high hurdle heats, stepping the finals in 14.0 seconds.

Glenn Davis of Ohio State won the 400-meter hurdles in 54.4.

9:03.1 2-Mile by Dellinger

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oregon's Bill Dellinger, 1954 NCAA mile champion, ran the third fastest college two-mile in the country this season as Oregon defeated Washington State, 72½-58½, in a Northern Division dual track meet here Saturday.

Dellinger's time was 9:03.1. He was pressed for the first six laps by Washington State's John Mitdbo, a Norwegian exchange student, but Dellinger pulled away in the seventh and eighth laps, running them in 66 and 64.1 seconds.

Max Truex of SC has run 9:01.5 this season and Jim Beatty of North Carolina has been clocked in 9:01.8. Dellinger's effort is among the top 10 two-mile times in college track history.

Jim Bailey, last year's NCAA mile winner and Oregon's other ace distance man, set a meet record of 4:11 in the mile.

Charles Wins TKO in Ninth

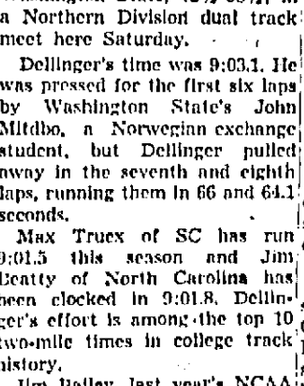

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP)—Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati Saturday night won by a technical knockout over young Don Jasper of Duluth, Minn., in a battle of heavyweights at the Windsor Arena. Referee Johnny Weber stopped the bout at 2:46 of the ninth round of the scheduled 10-rounder.

The former heavyweight champion weighed 195. Jasper came in at 191.

Charles slashed open half a dozen cuts about the face of the former railroad worker, who had won 17 of 21 previous professional bouts — 14 of them by knockouts.

Charles, out of action since late December, flashed his style of old only in the late rounds when he stepped back out of the way of Jasper's wild swings and kept his left in the younger man's face.

Charles' last fight was a TKO loss to Young Jack Johnson in Los Angeles.

PARRY O'BRIEN
And Still Champion!

Doris Hart Here Today

Doris Hart, longtime amateur tennis star and national champion the past two years, meets Beverly Fleitz of Long Beach today at 9 a.m. to feature a free tennis clinic and exhibition given by Miss Hart on the Recreation Park courts.

The former Wimbledon champion who won 23 different national tourneys, will demonstrate grips, strokes and tactics during the clinic. Commemorating the 75th anniversary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association the event will be open to the public at no charge.

Miss Hart turned professional this year and will not be able to defend her national championship at Forest Hills. Mrs. Fleitz is the third ranked amateur. Her second place at Wimbledon last year boosts her into a challenging berth for Miss Hart's vacated crown.

Their meeting thus could be a match between the retired champion and the up-and-coming.

Longhorns Crack 440-Relay Mark

LAWRENCE, Kan. (U.P.)—Four flying Texans Saturday blazed a 40.1-second quarter mile relay, the fastest time in track history.

Officials of the 31st Kansas Relays said they will submit the mark of the University of Texas team for record recognition.

George Schneider, Jerry Prewit, Bobby Whilden and J. Frank Daugherty shaved one-tenth of a second from the best previous speed in a 440-yard relay as 15,000 cheered.

The Texans eclipsed the 40.2 record set last year by another Texas University team at the Modesto, Calif., relays. Prewit and Whilden were part of that effort.

Baylor University, which led until the anchor leg, when Daugherty sprinted ahead by just a foot, was second. Officials felt there was little doubt of acceptance of the new record. A 10-mile-an-hour breeze hindered as much as it helped around the K-U Oval.

• • • • •

IT WAS A record-shattering day. Bill Nieder of Kansas put a new shotput mark of 59 feet 7⅛ inches into the books the first time he tossed the 16-pound iron ball.

An even longer toss, 60-2½, came from world shotput king Parry O'Brien of the Air Force. O'Brien was on exhibition and not a meet competitor.

Phil Mulkey, sophomore at Wyoming, took the 10-event decathlon with a record 6,393 points.

Gene O'Conner, Kansas State, led all the way to take the 400 meter hurdles in record time of 52.2 second, three-tenths under the 1952 mark of Lee Yoder, Arkansas. At that, he barely beat Willie Atterberry of Compton College.

Whilden dashed 100 yards in 9.4 to tie the record time of Cy Leland of TCU in 1930.

Charles Dumas of Compton College won the AAU division high jump at 6-8¾, a new stadium record. Kansas freshman Wilt Chamberlain tied for second at 6-2½.

EDDIE ROBINSON
Pinch Hit Wins Game

Rally After Blowing 8-0 Lead

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Eddie Robinson, a $20,000-a-year benchwarmer, delivered the key single in a five-run eighth-inning rally that enabled the New York Yankees to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 14-10, Saturday after they had blown an eight-run lead.

Seven home runs were hit in the marathon three-hour and 44-minute game, with Mickey Mantle slamming his fourth of the season in the second inning, Hank Bauer connecting in the same frame, and Yogi Berra clouting an eighth-inning homer which tied the score at 10-all.

Faye Thorneberry, Mickey Vernon, Jim Piersall and second-string catcher Pete Daley each homered in Boston's 13-hit attack on five Yankee pitchers.

• • • •

SOUTHPAW Tommy Bryne, called in from the bullpen in the eighth inning after the Red Sox had forged ahead 10-9, stopped Boston on two hits thereafter to receive credit for the victory, while righthander Tommy Hurd, the fourth of five Red Sox pitchers, was charged with the defeat.

After Berra's homer off Hurd knotted the score in the eighth, Bill Skowron followed with a single and stole second. Rookie Jerry Lumpe walked and Robinson came through with his line single to center that scored Skowron. A single by Bauer and a two-base error by rightfielder Jackie Jensen on Billy Martin's fly helped the Yankees complete their five-run uprising against Leo Kiely.

• • • • •

RIGHTHANDER Bob Turley started for New York and was staked to an 8-0 lead after three innings, thanks to homers by Bauer and Mantle. But he was nicked for three runs in the fifth when Throneberry and Vernon homered, and then chased in the seventh when Boston put together three hits and four walks for four runs.

A crowd of 26,644 watched Red Sox Manager Mike Higgins employ 20 players while Yankee Manager Casey Stengel used 17.

Stevens Hits Two as Stars Win, 8-6

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.) — R. C. Stevens slammed two homers and drove in four runs Saturday to lead the Hollywood Stars to an 8-6 Pacific Coast League win over Portland before 2,636 fans at Gilmore Field.

Stevens' teammate, Bill Mazeroski, also homered and drove in three runs as the Stars took a 2-0 lead in the series. Roger Sawyer (1-0) emerged the winner, while Bill Werle (1-2) suffered the loss.

The Stars scored their first run in the fourth frame when Roman Mejias tripled and then came across on a relay throw into the stands by second baseman Dick Young.

Stevens blasted his first homer of the game in the fifth with Mazeroski and Mejias aboard.

• • • •

PORTLAND GOT its first run in the sixth when Jack Littrell singled in Ed Mickelson, but the Stars bounced back for four tallies in the bottom of the same inning when Mazeroski socked his homer, good for three runs, and Stevens connected for his second four-master of the game.

Tom Saffell was forced in with the bases loaded in the seventh to give the Beavers one run. Portland tallied four more in the eighth on a two-run homer by Ron Bottler and a single by Bob Borkowski that drove in two more tallies.

Easy Win for Seixas

HOUSTON, Texas (U.P.) — Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the nation's ranking tennis player, defeated former Wimbledon champ Dick Savitt of Dallas, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4 Saturday to advance to the finals of the River Oaks tennis tournament.

Seixas' opponent in the finals will be either Ham Richardson, the Oxford Rhodes scholar from Baton Rouge, La., or Herb Flam of Los Angeles. Their three-hour, four-set semifinals match was called because of darkness.

Richardson was leading 6-4, 0-6, 8-6, when the fourth set was called in a 7-7 tie. The match will continue this morning with the winner meeting Seixas in the afternoon finals.

Seixas, who lost to Tony Trabert in the River Oaks finals last year, kept Savitt off balance with his tremendous volleys and slices.

In the men's doubles Tom Brown of San Francisco and Savitt, who advanced by default over Flam and Ulf Schmidt of Sweden Saturday, will meet the winner of this morning's Seixas-Richardson and Bernard Bartzen-Grant golden match in the afternoon finals.

Stanley in 1:48.7 880

SAN JOSE (U.P.)—Lang Stanley of San Jose State College ran the 880 in a blistering 1:48.7 Saturday to beat world record holder Lon Spurrier and lead his squad to a 81-48 win over the San Francisco Olympic Club track team.

Stanley's time was the best half-mile of 1956.

Spurrier, who holds the record of 1:47.5, broke first and led to within 180 yards of the finish. Stanley overtook him at that point and pulled steadily away.

Spurrier crossed in 1:49.6.

Once Over Lightly

—DAVE LEWIS

For several years now, a group of Chicago fans regularly has filed into Wrigley Field during the baseball season, sat down in a special section behind first base . . . and then ceremoniously unfurled a banner notifying one and all that it is the "Smead Jolley Fan Club."

Nobody quite seems to know why these fans show up at the Cub games . . . since Jolley was never with the club.

It could be that they are still grateful for that fact.

For while Smead was one of the leading hitters of his time . . . he also probably was the worst fielder ever to hit the majors—even worse than old Zeke Bonura.

Jolley, who saw service with both the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox in the late 1930s, is one of my all-time favorite sports characters.

We remember when he started making baseball news with his slugging for the San Francisco Seals. Many is the time we saw him break up a ball game with his mighty bat. In those days he wore a red sweat shirt with long sleeves and you could pick him out the minute he stepped onto the field.

After a fling in the big time he came back to the Pacific Coast League and played for a while with the old Hollywood Stars . . . now the San Diego Padres.

It was only natural that Al Schacht, the "clown prince of baseball," named him to his "all star screwball team."

It has been many years since he played, but his name is still frequently mentioned . . . especially in discussions about whether or not his batting made up for his atrocious fielding.

• • • •

JOLLEY PROBABLY is the only player—at least an outfielder—in modern history who was charged with three errors in one play.

He was playing right field for the Chicago White Sox at the time. The incident happened when the Hose were playing the St. Louis Browns at Sportsman's Park.

He was playing rather deep in right field when a batter lined a single in his direction. Smead dashed in for the ball, but it slipped through his hands and rolled out to the fence for the first error.

Smead went after the ball, picked it up, dropped it, tried again and once more fumbled. The runner, who had gone to second on the first error, went to third on the second misplay.

Really mad by this time, Jolley picked up the ball and heaved it toward third base. He had a strong arm and he made an exceptionally strong throw, so strong that the ball sailed into the stands . . . the runner scoring from third on the error.

By this time the St. Louis players, the fans and even some of the members of the White Sox were roaring with laughter, but Donie Bush, skipper of the Hose at the time, didn't see anything funny about it because the run Jolley kicked around the bases won the game for the Browns.

That evening a scribe remarked to Bush that Jolley was quite a fielder.

"Yes," said Bush, "the greatest stationary outfielder in history."

• • • •

SCHACHT HIMSELF tells of experiences in Boston.

Smead was put in left field when there was a hill in Fenway Park . . . a sort of incline up to the left fold wall. They called it Duffy's Hill in memory of Duffy Lewis.

"Well, every time Jolley started up after a fly he'd trip and fall on his face," Schacht relates. "Finally they got him out mornings and had him practice running up the hill after fungoes.

"Washington was the next club to come to town and just before the first game somebody asked 'Smeadie, how are you going to manage Duffy's Hill today?'

"Smeadie said 'Don't worry about me, guinea—he called everybody guinea—I got it mastered now.' Well, the first ball hit out there looks like it might be caught if Jolley can make the hill.

"Jolley turned and dashed up the hill and wheeled with his back pressed against the fence. Then he saw he had overrun the ball, so he started down. One step and, oops, he went flat on his kisser . . . the ball hit him on the head . . . the batter slid into third base . . . and Smeadie was yanked from the ball game.

"I can still see him sitting there on the bench rubbing the knot on his head and cussing. 'A lot of smart guineas on this nine,' he mumbled. 'Ten days you spend teaching me how to go up the hill and there ain't a guinea in the crowd with the brains to teach me how to come down.'"

• • • •

"The next day they decided to make a catcher out of him. Joe Judge is the first batter and he turned to Jolley and said, 'Smeadie, how do you like this catching racket? Smead had yet to catch his first pitch in a major league game.

"'Well, Joe,' Smeadie said, I'll tell you. Out there in the outfield you're all alone by yourself, but here you got conversation.' With that, there's a pitch and Judge hits a high foul straight up in the air.

"Now Smeadie was getting a little bald and his wife was always telling him to wear a tight cap. 'Smeadie,' she would tell him, 'you look like an old man.' Thus, he used to wear a cap so tight he'd have to practically unscrew it off.

"When Judge fouled, Smeadie yanked off his mask, and, of course, the cap came off, too. Smeadie immediately thought of his bald spot. He clamped his mitt over the top of his head, turned to the stands and yelled 'I got it, Mary.'

"Then at the very last minute he turned to the third baseman and hollered, 'Okay, guinea, it's all yours!'

"The next day he was headed back to the Pacific Coast League."

BOB MATHIAS STILL SHARP

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP)—Olympic decathlon great Bob Mathias, competing unattached, "won" four events as Camp Pendleton lost to the University of Arizona track team, 68½-62½ Saturday.

None of the four Mathias victories counted in the point standings.

Mathias, an assistant coach for the Pendleton Marines, put the shot 51 feet, 6¼ inches; skimmed over the high hurdles in 14.4 seconds; threw the discus 159 feet, 1 inch, and won the low hurdles in 24.2 seconds.

Cardinals Win Homer Battle

ST. LOUIS (U.P.)—First Baseman Wally Moon's single in the last of the seventh inning Saturday gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-5 victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

The Cardinal victory snapped the Braves' winning streak at three. Five of the 17 hits in the free-swinging game were home runs. The Cardinals got to three Milwaukee pitchers for 10 hits while the Braves got seven off Willard Schmidt and Lindy McDaniel.

The Cardinals went ahead in the seventh when Don Blasingame walked, moved to second on Red Schoendienst's sacrifice and Stan Musial singled, with Blasingame being tagged out at the plate. Musial went to second on the play. Hank Sauer batted for Joe Frazier and walked. Moon singled, scoring Musial, but Sauer, attempting to reach third, was thrown out.

Cubs Shade Redlegs in 11th, 3-2

CHICAGO (AP) — Jimmy King singled with the bases loaded in the 11th to give the Chicago Cubs their second successive victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs, 3-2, Saturday.

It looked as if ex-Dodger Russ Meyer would peg his first triumph since returning to the Cubs, but his 2-1 lead vanished in the ninth. With two out, Wally Post slammed Meyer's first pitch for a homer to send the game into extra innings.

Rivers in 1st Round TKO Win

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.) — Neal Rivers scored a technical knockout over Charlie Sawyer in the first round of their scheduled 12-rounder at Legion Stadium Saturday night to win the California middleweight title.

Rivers, 155¼, Los Angeles, dropped Sawyer, 151, Los Angeles, twice before Referee Charlie Randolph stopped it at 1:53 of the round.

The first knockdown came from a quick right cross to the chin and Sawyer went down again moments later from the same punch followed by a left hook.

Sawyer took one count both times. Randolph said he stopped the fight because "he was unable to defend himself." It was Sawyer's first defeat in nearly two years.

• • • •

THE SCHEDULED four-round exhibition match between former middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson and Sonny Gill was called off at the last minute when the State Athletic Commission ruled there had to be a decision rendered.

Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager, refused to hold the match under those circumstances, saying he feared a butt or other injury to his fighter if they went ahead with what had been planned only as an exhibition match with Olson's sparring partner.

Commission secretary Clayton Frye said it was a law that a decision had to be rendered and the law couldn't be changed.

The stadium announced to about 4,000 fans that they could get their money returned prior to the upcoming main event, but few took up the offer.

Nothing to Bragg Over

NEW YORK (AP) — Villanova, Manhattan and Yale each hauled off two of the big events Saturday in the Queens-Iona Relays, but the big eyebrow-raiser of the meet was the fellow who failed to win.

He was Don Bragg of Villanova, who has been advertised as a surefire bet to win the Olympic pole vault crown for the United States this year. Bragg has topped 15 feet a couple of times and Bob Richards, the last Olympic winner, is on record with the prediction that Bragg will be the first 16-footer in history.

But this wasn't his day, and he was shut out. To add to his embarrassment, the winning vault was only 12 feet, 6 inches. Jim Beckman of Yale and George Paulides of New York University each got up that high.

"That's life," scowled Bragg after the event. He missed three times with the bar at 13 feet. Under the rules, he is permitted to start at any height he desires.

Ron Delany helped Villanova to both its relay victories, the four-mile in 17:32 and the mile in 3:19. The Dublin-born sophomore reeled off a 4:09.5 mile on his anchor leg of the four-mile and was caught in 49.1 for his third quarter of the mile baton event.

Homeier Flips, Hurt

Bill Homeier, who raced at Indianapolis last year, suffered serious injuries Saturday night when his car flipped and landed on top of him on the fourth lap of the 100-lap main event in the midget races at Gardena.

Homeier is in University Hospital with a concussion, possible fractured nose, lacerations of the face, compound fracture of the left arm and finger injuries. Results:

100-lap main—Johnny Parsons, Johnny Boyd, George Amick, Jimmy Reece, Edgar Elder. 28:02.32.

15-lap semi-finals—Don Edmonds, Roy Forster, Howard Kelley, 3:58.40.

Bilko's 5th Homer Leads Angel Win

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.)—Big Steve Bilko hit his fifth home run of the season Saturday afternoon to pace the Los Angeles Angels to a 7-4 victory over the San Francisco Seals and even their series at a game each.

A crowd of 3,054 saw Bilko, a right-handed batter, bang a 380-foot blast into the rightfield seats, an unusual feat in spacious Seals Stadium. It was the second homer in two days for the big first baseman, who drove in three runs with a single and a double in addition to his homer. A ball had been there only four times in the last 10 years.

Gene Fodge, Angel rookie, went the route for the victory after the Angels built up an early 7-0 lead. Two late Seal rallies fell short.

Los Angeles got runs in the first on a single by Gene Mauch, Bilko's double and Bob Speake's single. In the second they added two more on four walks and an error.

Bilko homered in the fifth and later in the frame Joe Tanner doubled in another run. Bilko closed out the scoring with his RBI single in the sixth.

Friend 3-Hits Brooks; Thomas, Long Homer

PITTSBURGH (U.P.)—Right-hander Bob Friend scattered three hits and Frank Thomas and Dale Long smashed homers Saturday to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Friend, who posted the lowest earned run average in the National League last summer, was denied a shutout when rookie second baseman Charlie Neal poled his first major league homer in the third inning.

The Pirates went ahead in their half of the third when Thomas belted his third homer of the year off loser Ken Lehman. Thomas scored behind Dale Long who got on base when his grounder went through Neal's legs.

Long, who had three hits, registered his third homer of the year when he blasted an offering by reliefer Ed Roebuck into the right field stands with two out in the seventh.

Whitfield Takes 1:53.8 880 Race

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mal Whitfield, two-time Olympics middle distance champion, broke one track record and helped lower another Saturday as he paced Los Angeles State to a 74-57 victory over San Diego State in a dual track meet.

Whitfield was clocked in 1:53.8 for the 880, bettering the former Aztec oval mark of 1:54 set by Jerome Walters of Pepperdine in 1954.

The Los Angeles State runner hit the finish 15 yards in front of Aztec freshman Darrell Sanger. Sanger was clocked in 1:56.9, good enough to lower the old meet record of 1:57.9 set last year by Aztec Jim Hunt.

Whitfield ran the anchor lap in the mile relay and brought his team a 15-yard victory in 3:23, one of four new meet records.

Troy Crew Beats Cal for First Time

VENICE, Calif. (AP)—Southern California's crew defeated the University of California by two feet Saturday in the Olympic distance of 2,000 meters at Ballona Creek.

It was the Trojans' first triumph in history over their Northern rivals. UCLA was last in the three-way race.

The winning time was 6:16.2. California's time was 6:16.4.

SC Nine Hammers Fresno State, 9-1

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California hammered Fresno State 9-1 Saturday in a baseball game featured by clutch pitching of the Trojan starter, Marty Zuanich, who also drove in two runs.

Fresno State had the bases loaded with none out in both the sixth and seventh innings but managed to get only the lone run.

WHERE'S THE BALL?

Everyone in this third base action seems to be looking for the ball that got away from Detroit third baseman Ray Boone in fifth inning against Tigers Saturday. Indians' Gene Woodling grounded to pitcher Bob Miller (28), who fumbled it, and tossed to Boone, who dropped it. Hoot Evers was safe at third on the play. Umpire is John Flaherty.—(AP Wirephoto)

HOORAY DEPT. There is hope on this beautiful April Sabbath for the Amateur Athletic Union, the self-appointed and self-perpetuated guardian of our simon-pures.

There should be loud cheers from the peanut section in the balcony, because for quite a spell it has appeared the AAU had doomed itself to a life of confusion intermingled with unpopularity.

Outcries from all walks of life were heard when the AAU highhandedly banned Wes Santee for life. The AAU followed this "rank" by tossing a curve ball at a group of college-AAU basketball players who, in all their blissful ignorance, announced that they had intentions of turning professional.

This stroke almost pulled the AAU under. Men of the nation who were planning to pick up the tab of a donation to the U. S. Olympic Fund suddenly turned against the AAU — withdrew their support. Others felt the AAU had gone far too far this time. In the nation's press, the AAU was chastized from Page 1 all the way back to the want ads, and not without logic, either.

Ah, Eureka! Today there is hope this august body will survive and return to the good graces of the people of our land. Arrogant and haughty though it may be and given to high-handed methods, the AAU has within its ranks one who admits by his actions that perhaps it COULD be wrong.

President Carl Hansen, a San Franciscan, has announced that he will suggest to the Executive Committee at its June meeting in Bakersfield, where the AAU will hold its national track and field championships a week prior to the final Olympic Trials at the Los Angeles Coliseum, that it reconsider its rules on expense money and on "the intentions of amateur athletes to turn professional."

This is epochal. One of its own has indirectly admitted that perhaps something is wrong within the fold. To have an admission from the austere AAU that it is wrong alone indicates there is reason for hope. When this admission comes, indirect as it does, from the president, there is even greater chance that amateur athletics may enjoy common sense in the future in the matters of control.

To demand athletes under its jurisdiction must refrain from all comment on intent to turn pro under threat of disqualification is to take the unrealistic approach. Suppose the high school athletic federation of the land pursued this course of reasoning. Every prep baseball player, footballer, basketeer and tenniseer would be declared ineligible.

Tell me what young athlete doesn't dream of the days when he might convert his athletic talents into coin of the land? Why should he have to remain silent about his ambitions and his intentions?

Maybe you're not as enthused about this as I am. You should be. Your boy may come under the jurisdiction of the AAU some day. If he does, you will want him to abide by all the rules — providing they're sensible ones. So, you see, there is hope. The AAU proxy has suggested another look-see at its own rules. Something COULD be wrong, or out of date!

OPINION DEPT. Emil Zatopek, Czechoslovakia's most famous athlete, expects the record-breaking carnage in track and field to continue uninterrupted within the next few years. At 34, the famous Olympic Games distance champion is preparing for his last Olympic fling in Melbourne late this year.

"Track records will be improved because of the following reasons," he commented recently. "First, there is greater interest in the world in athletics. Second, more national and serious training is being exercised. Third, the athletes themselves are making greater competitive efforts. And fourth, a greater number of youths are participating."

GOOD READIN' DEPT. Two sports stories worth your time: "Deep Wading Pays Off," by Claude M. Kreider, of 2001 Dawson Ave., Long Beach, in the May issue of "The Fisherman," and "Sports Writers Are Always Wrong," by Elliot B. Spalding, in the May issue of American Mercury.

Mercury pulled a neat stunt. It sent out tear sheets of the story to the nation's sports writers, to which were attached an aspirin tablet.

Kreider, one of our town's finest anglers and authors, makes his points, emphatically. This is a must, if you want to improve your angling technique.

RACING ROUNDUP

Head Man Wins on Foul

(Compiled from AP and UP)

C. V. Whitney's Head Man, a leading candidate for the Kentucky Derby, won the $61,000 Wood Memorial on a foul after finishing two and one-half lengths behind Golf Ace before a crowd of 39,673 at Jamaica Saturday. Golf Ace was placed second, and Oh Johnny was third.

With Eddie Arcaro riding, Head man made his bid from third place at the head of the stretch, but Golf Ace continually drifted out and forced Head Man to the inside. Tony Despirito rode Golf Ace.

Winning time for the mile and one-eighth was 1:50 1/5. Head Man paid $3.90, $2.90 and $2.50.

A PAIR OF Kentucky Derby nominees, No Regrets and Lucky G.L., ran one-two in a thrilling finish of the $38,950 California Derby at Tanforan—and probably both won a trip to Churchill Downs.

No Regrets, with Johnny Longden up, staged a wild finish to nip Lucky G.L. at the wire. A 70-1 longshot named Cleofosta had led for more than a mile of the mile and one-eighth race and finished third, several lengths back. Favored Social Climber was fourth.

No Regrets was clocked in 1:50.3 and paid $8.40, $5.20 and $4.00.

• • • •

TIMELY TIP, a lightly-held 5-year-old stakes winner, upset favored Sea O Erin by a nose to capture the $10,000-added Ben Ali handicap at Keeneland. Third was Breakers, a neck ahead of Happy Go Lucky.

Timely Tip paid $60, $15.20 and $9.40 and covered the seven furlongs in 1:27 4/5.

• • • •

FROSTY MR., disregarded by the crowd of 20,849 in favor of a couple of Kentucky Derby hopefuls, completely upset the form in the $24,150 Chesapeake Stakes at Laurel by galloping to a $200.80 victory. He paid $58.80 to place and $21.60 to show.

Frosty Mr., ridden by Sidney Small, rallied in the stretch to win by a length and a half over Kingmaker, who like Frosty Mr. is being pointed for the Preakness Stakes. Time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:44 2/5.

Besomer and Born Mighty, the derby candidates, finished fifth and third, respectively, in the field of 10 three-year-olds.

SIX HORSES from the stable of Rex C. Ellsworth arrived at Hollywood Park after an 11-hour air journey from Gulfstream Park, Florida. Ten more are expected to arrive via train today to start preparing for the 55-day Hollywood Park season which opens Friday, May 11.

Included in Saturday's shipment was New Trend, winner of the El Dorado Handicap at Hollypark last year. Like Magic, a top 3-year-old, will arrive today.

RAY ROBINSON
Sets Up L. A. Camp

Sugar Ray, Party of 17 to Hit L.A.

World middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, the former song and dance man, taps into Los Angeles Tuesday to set up camp for his May 18 title defense against Bobo Olson at Wrigley Field.

A "chorus line" of 17, including five managers, four trainers, two sparring partners and a body guard, will accompany the Sugar Man. Also in the party are his wife, Edna; son, Ray Jr.; Dr. Vincent Nardiello; his aunt and cook, Mrs. Blanche Holly; and publicist Harry Mendel.

Robinson will be quartered for a few days at the Watkins Hotel before moving to San Jacinto, near Palm Springs, for the final phase of his training.

Sugar Ray's five current managers are George Gainford, Harold Johnson, Vic Marsella, Joe Glaser and Ernie Bracca.

Olson has been training in Santa Monica for the last two weeks. He has been sparring daily at the Ocean Park Arena and Saturday night went through a four-round exhibition with a spar mate at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

"I don't intend to lose," Robinson stated as he prepared to break camp in New York. "My legs are 'right' now and that has been my main worry."

The sleek, splendidly-conditioned Robinson retired in December of 1952 and then, after winning five of six comeback tuneup efforts, kayoed Bobo Olson in the second round last December. It was almost three years to the day from his retirement.

EYES SECOND STRAIGHT CROWN

Manager Joe Rodgers of Long Beach Nitehawks, confident that his club will win its second straight national softball crown, directs practice for May 19 opener at Park Ave. Field. Rodgers has nearly recovered from a brush with a 2,400-volt live wire in January, and looks forward to unbeaten season.

Tab Middlecoff in Vegas Golf

Golf's elite field of 22 tournament winners moves onto the outdoor greens of Las Vegas this week for the fourth annual $37,500 Tournament of Champions. Play begins Thursday and continues through Sunday at Wilbur Clark's 7,102-yard Desert Inn course.

The tourney, limited to winners of major PGA events during the past year, had 24 qualifiers, but Masters champion Jackie Burke and Sam Snead withdrew because of previous commitments.

The field will include 10 first-time starters. Newcomers are National Open champion Jack Fleck, Dow Finsterwald, Henry Ransom, Arnold Palmer, Max Evans, Frank Stranahan, Mike Fetchick, Al Balding, Don Fairfield and Gardner Dickinson.

• • • •

FIRST PRIZE money is $10,000, but all qualifiers are guaranteed a minimum payoff of $1,000 plus expenses.

The tournament will be preceded on Wednesday by the annual Calcutta auction. Last year's Calcutta pool topped the $200,000 mark. Another sidelight will be a putting contest featured by Bob Hope and Bing Crosby.

Cary Middlecoff, usually near the top in pre-tourney odds, is the 5-1 favorite on the official Las Vegas line. Defending champion Gene Littler is the 6-1 second choice.

• • • •

ALSO STRONGLY backed are Lloyd Mangrum and Mike Souchak at 8-1, and Tommy Bolt, Ted Kroll, Julius Boros and Doug Ford at 10-1. The rest of the field is made up of Shelley Mayfield, Dick Mayer, Bo Wininger and Chandler Harper.

Experts figure the field will be bunched much tighter than last year when Littler came breezing home a 13-stroke winner. Littler was the only player to match par figures with a 72-hole total of 288. Jerry Barber, Bob Toski and Pete Cooper tied for second. None of the runner-up trio qualified for this year's money.

Middlecoff won four tournaments the past year to lead the field. He and Mangrum are the only eligibles who have competed in all three prior Las Vegas events.

HARRIMAN SIGNS

New Stadium for Dodgers

BROOKLYN (UP)—Gov. Averell Harriman, in a special ceremony, signed the bill Saturday for the Brooklyn sports and civic center that will include a new stadium for the Dodgers.

Although Harriman's action brought the project one step closer to reality, it was emphasized that it did not guarantee that it would go through. The City of New York now must approve a bond issue through a referendum. The overall cost of the bonds for condemnation of land and rebuilding various structures in the sub-marginal land area designated for the stadium would be $30,000,000.

JUST CALL HIM 'SPARKY'

Rodgers Hopes to Take Full Charge of Nitehawks Soon

By DOUG MILES

When Joe Rodgers, mastermind of the Long Beach Nitehawks, stepped on a 2,400-volt live wire last January it just about grounded — literally grounded — his plans for successfully defending the national softball title this September.

But Rodgers, who pins his survival on clean living, is up and around and has already carded a beefy slate of practice opponents.

Doctors said because he didn't smoke or drink there was enough oxygen in Joe's blood to take the full charge. When they stopped using him as an X-ray machine Joe began lining up opponents for Friday or Saturday night games. Losing only two of 28 contests last season was nice but the "John McGraw of softball" is shooting for a perfect record this year.

• • • •

"WE OPEN against Monterey Park on May 19. Beat them twice last year. Twelve innings both times, 1-0 and 2-1. They're real tough," Joe says.

After the Monterey opener on the Park Ave. diamond the Nitehawks host the Gardena Merchants, Iowa Ghosts and play a pair of home-and-home engagements with Hanford on successive week ends.

Nitehawk practice began last Monday and will be held each Friday night until the season opener. Rodgers has handed the managerial reins to Clint Herron until his legs lose that "feathery feeling."

"We should go all the way," said Rodgers. "We've lost pitcher Ted Carlsgaard for the coming season. Naturally we'll miss him. He's moved to San Bernardino but we still have All-Americans Leroy Zimmerman and Jack Randall so our pitching won't hurt.

• • • •

"OUR INFIELD of All-American Larry Silvas at first, All-American Cleo Goyette at second, All-American Herron at third and scrappy Jimmy Jones at shortstop is back intact. Lou Novikoff, who's been with me for 22 years, home run hitter Bill Hull and sophomore Lucky Humiston will take the outfield. Red Mealrs is back as an invaluable utility man and coach.

"Stan White, one of our five 1955 All-Americans, is the finest catcher in softball and he's returning. To improve our left-handed hitting we've signed Larry Stevens, 21-year-old outfielder from Whittier who has starred in Long Beach City League play."

That is the lineup that may carry the Nitehawks to their second straight national championship.

• • • •

THE NITEHAWKS hit the national scene in 1951 when they went to the finals in the first annual International Softball League tourney at Greeley, Colo. The same thing happened in 1952, only at Plainview, Tex. The third time was the charm when in 1953 at Selma, Calif., the Nitehawks pitched shutout ball to nab their first title.

In '54 White was injured and the Nitehawks' best was a semi-final berth, again at Selma. But they came back to sweep last year's crown at New Bedford in shutout fashion.

"Those folks in New Bedford are real nice people—all 80 of 'em," quipped Rodgers. "When we first got there I wondered why they were given the tournament. Then when 8,000 persons showed up to watch us play I was given the answer."

• • • •

RODGERS IS A sincere believer that the Long Beach Nitehawks have created both good will and publicity for the city. "When I was bedded down I got letters from all over the country," he revealed.

One letter from New Bedford was signed by 150 names—nearly twice the city's population.

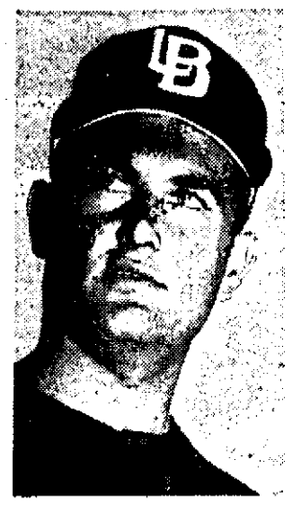

Joe has some 22 years of managing behind him. His record stands at 725-230—a nifty .743 percentage. His family is hoping he gets on his feet real quick to take his old place on the Nitehawks' coaching lines.

Until then Joe will keep handling his supervisory work for an oil company and serving as an official of the Virginia Country Club.

It was near the course that he stepped on that high voltage wire.

When asked about it he simply replies: "Yes, that was quite a shock."

But he's just itching to get back and manage those Nitehawks to the title. They'll probably give him a new nickname—"Sparky."

Bob Kelley Says---

Apparently Ted Williams isn't the only one who has it in for draft boards. Yankee fireball Billy Martin came out this week to scream about his delayed induction:

"I'm sore at the draft board. If they threw me out of the Army the first time for having five dependents, why did they put me back again with the same five — my mother, my father, my sister, my ex-wife and my little girl?"

Billy the Kid answered his own question: "Because I got my name in the paper and they didn't have guts enough to stand having people ask why I wasn't in the service. I'm glad to serve my country—but why didn't they just leave me in the first time?"

Of course, Martin isn't the only one to gripe about Uncle Sam's call. And actually, there seems to be considerable justification behind his beef. Others have had it worse, though. A good friend of mine named Bob Feller spent four years in the Navy at the very peak of his career.

There's no telling what kind of a mark he might have left in baseball had Feller not lost those four peak years of his life.

HAS THE KENTUCKY DERBY a new contender—a horse by the name of Golf Ace? Golf Ace was disqualified and placed second in Saturday's Wood Memorial for interfering with the highly-regarded Head Man. But you can't get around the fact he beat Head Man and Arcaro to the wire.

Over a very dull Jamaica track, the time of 1:50 and ⅕ was excellent.

Incidentally, Saturday's Wood must be a very touchy subject with CBS TV officials. They had the race scheduled for 1:30, but when the Yankee-Red Sox game ran way beyond that time, the horse race never did hit Southern California TV screens.

Despite the fact that the Red Sox were overcoming an 8-0 Yankee lead to go out in front about the time the Wood was due for airing, more than 600 irate Southlanders flooded the CBS switchboard with angry calls.

As an old umpire once said: Whatever you do, you're a bum.

CHECK ME ON THIS: Friday night's fight between Gene Fullmer and Tiger Jones must have been still another example that you can't always judge a bout accurately on TV. Though Fullmer won a unanimous decision, I actually thought Jones' forcing tactics earned him a slight edge.

Anybody agree with me?

EARLIER IN THE WEEK, I USED THIS item in The Independent, so some of you may not have seen it. But it's a fact that Elroy Hirsch offered to tutor the Trojan ends during the current spring practice, and was turned down with a curt: "Sorry, our staff is filled."

I'm told Elroy would have worked for practically no fee. And can you imagine the tricks he could teach those college ends about running pass patterns!

TALKING ABOUT PRO VERSUS COLLEGE, Hamp Pool—who tutors the All-Stars' offense in the Chicago Tribune game, and is recognized as one of the great offensive minds of football history—can't understand why college coaches don't instruct their quarterbacks to pick out one receiver and throw to him:

"Most collegiate coaches," Pool says, "tell their passer to wait till the last minute and throw to whomever is open. That is absolutely impossible. There isn't a thrower in the world who can watch four receivers."

In fact, Pool has tried it: "In practice, we used to put our four pass-catchers in different colored jersies—green, red, yellow and white. At the last second, I'd yell a color to our quarterback—meaning he should throw to that man. He couldn't do it.

"So if fellows like Waterfield and Van Brocklin and Wade can't pass successfully without picking out just one intended receiver, how do college coaches expect their kids to do it?"

SAM JONES' BRILLIANT PITCHING JOB for the Cubs the other day sort of tickled me. For a fellow with great speed and great stuff, Jones has never won as many games as he should. He's always been wild.

• • •

"Jones has more stuff than any pitcher in baseball," Angel hurler Dave Hillman tells me. "I think he tries too hard, that's why he'll hit the wild streaks. Jones wants to put all he has on every pitch, and if you've ever watched a fellow like Robin Roberts, you know it just isn't done."

According to Hillman, Jones takes as many as 160 to 165 pitches in a game, whereas the average is about 40 less.

ON OUR DEBUT AS TELECASTER OF THE Hollywood Legion fights (Channel 9) Saturday night, we learned that boxing is run for TV—rather than vice versa. Within my reach is a buzzer that sounds in the dressing room, and calls the fighters into the ring . . . when television is ready for them.

Further, should the cameras be back at the studio for a commercial, there is no chance another bout will start. Because the man at the bell doesn't summon the announcer to the center of the ring for introduction of the fighters till he gets a wave from the telecaster.

Most sports now realize they must play ball with TV.

Aztec End Coach

SAN DIEGO (UP)—Frank Vitale, former star guard at Cornell University, has been named end coach at San Diego State College.

MEETS PARK IN SALTON SEA SWIM

Former Olympic swimming champion Greta Andersen (above) will make her distance debut next Sunday when she faces Tom Park in a 10-mile race across the Salton Sea. Miss Andersen, formerly of Denmark, has been a Long Beach resident the past two years.

Danish Swim Star in Distance Debut

Greta Andersen, the Danish miss who won the 1948 Olympic 100-meter freestyle swimming championship and who at one time held three world records, will make her debut as a long distance swimmer next Sunday when she meets Tom Park in a 10-mile race across the Salton Sea.

Although Miss Andersen has never swam more than 400 meters in competition, she believes in challenging the best available in her first distance attempt.

Park is one of the great marathon swimmers active today. He resides in Lakewood.

• • • •

MISS ANDERSEN, formerly of Copenhagen, Denmark, has been living in Long Beach for the past two years and working at the YWCA.

The 28-year-old Danish miss didn't learn to swim until she was 17, but three years later was an Olympic champion.

In addition to her Olympic crown, Greta holds eight European championships and 24 Danish titles.

She set world sprint records in the 100-yard freestyle and the 100-meter and 400-meter freestyle events. Her latter three marks, established in 1948 and '49, stood through 1954.

• • • •

MISS ANDERSEN has been working out daily at Alamitos Bay for the past three months in preparation for her first long-distance swim.

After conquering the Salton Sea, Greta hopes to swim the Catalina Channel and then compete in the 26-mile Absecond Island Swim at Atlantic City and the Lake Ontario, Canada, Swim.

Her rival in next Sunday's race, Park, holds the record for crossing the Salton Sea, having negotiated the desert sea in four hours and 32 minutes.

The women's record of 6 hours and 14 minutes was set by Long Beach's Amy Hiland.

Tournament golf returns to Long Beach next Sunday with the 15th renewal of the Recreation Park Pro-Lady-Amateur.

Although not quite up to rivaling its glamorous $37,500 Las Vegas competition, the $2,000 Park event is one of the most popular in Southern California and has drawn its usual outstanding field. There'll be no floor shows, roulette tables or gallery fees—just golf.

Scoring is based on the best ball of the fivesome. The pro, in most cases, brings one amateur and one lady while the Recreation Park Men's Club completes the team with two of its own members.

Last year, four Park golfers—Ruby Perry, Chet Krutalk, Ray Oda and Norm Fuller—combined with pro Don McCracken, the Parker Glove salesman, to win top honors with a phenomenal 54. They had three eagles, 12 birdies and three pars.

Individual pro pace-setters in 1955 were Cecil Harris of Montebello and Paul O'Leary, unattached, with six under par 66s. Long Beach area leader was Recreation's Harry McCarthy who tied for third place with a 69.

Practically all of the Southland's finest will compete this year with only Jerry Barber and Jim Ferrier among the notables still to be heard from. Eric Monti, always a terror at the Park, is a definite starter as are Elly Vines, Paul Runyan, Fay Coleman, Olin Dutra, Zell Eaton and Bob Duden.

Host pro George Lake and Joe Robinson of Virginia will make it a family affair with Brian Lake and Joe Robinson, Jr., as team partners. ZaMona Schoepflin of the Park pro shop will be Lake's female cohort.

Other strong area combinations find Meadowlark's Frank Cormact teaming up with Dave and Lu Grand; Jimmy Ireland making his Lakewood playing debut with Curt and Betsie Straub; Wayne Otis of Recreation with Connie Freeze and Bill Connor; McCarthy with Jane Lange and Gene Combs (are they tough!); Irv Cooper with Harriet Glanville and Ralph DeChevreaux; Jack Henry of Meadowlark with Boots Cormact and Rollie Sims; Monty Blodgett of Meadowlark with Norma Deeble and Ray Henderson; Johnny Anselmo of Lakewood with Ruth Miller and Bob Burns, and Joe Calwell with daughter, Connie, and Ronnie Fox.

One team will have two ladies, when proette Shirley Spork tees off with Long Beach's Sophie and Red Bernstein.

In all, there'll be at least 64 fivesomes in action which leads one to opine that if there'll be anything lacking in quality, it's sure to be made up in quantity.

TURNING TO the Tournament of Champions in Las Vegas, we wonder if we should shoot for three in a row?

In 1954, we picked Porky Oliver to win and he finished last. Last year, we tabbed red-hot Tommy Bolt and he finished last. Whom should the kiss of death fall upon this time?

Gene Littler's too nice a guy so we'll pass him up. If we go for Lloyd Mangrum, his hepatitis is sure to cripple him. Tommy Bolt lucks out since we'd rather not have cubs broken on our head.

We'll just be plain conservative and choose golf's greatest (when he's right) player today, Dr. Cary Middlecoff who has the big game needed to command the Desert Inn's 7,100 yards.

If he finishes last, he can pull all our teeth out one by one!

THE 36-HOLE Publinx Seniors Championship at Lakewood will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 12 and 13. Dates reported here last week were incorrect . . . Championship flight entries for the Long Beach City Championship (qualifying May 20) are now being accepted . . . Montebello hosting Publinx championship flight finals today.

HOLE - IN - ONE honors to Mickey Bemis and Ron Brewer.

Bemis of 6551 Rose Ave. hit a two-wood into the 291-yard, par-four first hole at Recreation Park, which was playing from a short tee. It was only the second time the hole had been aced and helped Bemis, a Park Men's Club member, to a 70 for the round. He was accompanied by Ray Biggs, Roy Bray and Roy Stone.

Brewer of 3733 Colorado St. hit a 3-iron against the wind which found a home in the 170-yard ninth hole at the South Course. Golfing for only three months, he toured the nine holes in 54 playing with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Buehner and their daughter, Janine.

AL DAVIS, 75-10, and L. V. Cassaday, 74-9, tied for first place in the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes with net 65s.

Sol Deeble's 73-7—66 took second, a stroke ahead of George Johnson, 84-17, and D. S. Perkins, 86-19. At 68 were O. M. Slosson, 80-12; D. S. Bradbury, 81-13; L. H. Conley, 84-16; Glenn Scott, 83-15, and Dr. Cliff Easley, 77-9. At 69 came Bob Sellery, 75-6; Bob Leebrick, 90-21; Bill Harrower, 89-20; Charles Whitchurch, 84-16; Harry Bouchler, 77-8; Dr. Lyle Murphy, 87-18, and Dr. Harry Jacob, 86-17.

Blind bogey (78) victors were Frej Hagelberg, Max Becker, Tim Bonney, Hugh Davies and W. H. Eckert.

GARDNER GOES TO BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP)—The Baltimore Orioles Saturday purchased utility infielder Billy Gardner from the New York Giants, paying well over the $10,000 waiver price for the 28-year-old righthanded batter.

Gardener, who was used in pinch-hitting roles and in fill-in jobs with the Giants at shortstop, second and third base, had seen no action this season and was used only rarely during spring training.

Man
Reducing Waist

NEW—not a diet weight-loss system

This is the new, pleasant way to reduce the size of your waist.

This is the famous, tested and proved Relax-A-cizor. You use it while you REST. Use it while you sit watching television or while you read in bed.

You exert no effort. Yet, your abdominal muscles exercise vigorously. This active NO-EFFORT exercise tightens bulging abdominal muscles—fast!

Now, you can get rid of that bulging abdomen—and with no effort and no feeling of fatigue.

This is the normal, healthy way to pull in inches. It is completely safe. No diet is required. This is NOT a vibrator—it is real exercise.

BING CROSBY says: "I found it to be very beneficial, very relaxing."

BARRY SULLIVAN says: "The perfect way to keep or get in shape . . . takes so little time, and absolutely no effort."

EDWARD W. COWDREY, insurance man, says: "I reduced the size of my abdomen 4½ inches."

The Relax-A-cizor is NOT a diet, weight-loss method. It is a pleasant method of NO-EFFORT exercise. If you find dieting difficult, this is the method for you—it will exercise and tighten your abdominal muscles—even if you don't lose a pound of weight!

If you are overweight and prefer to diet, you may. We furnish, at no extra charge, a Caloric Intake Guide to help you lose weight.

Remember this important fact: You will reduce the size of your waist and abdomen MORE when you use Relax-A-cizor with your diet, than when you use diet alone. Diet does not exercise and tighten muscles — Relax-A-cizor does. When you combine Relax-A-cizor with your weight-loss program you enjoy truly dramatic FAST results.

Remember, too, please: Diet is not required. The Relax-A-cizor ALONE (without diet) reduces inches through the exercise and tightening of the muscles that support and "hold in" your abdomen.

Do not confuse Relax-A-cizor (pictured above) with bicycles, vibrating tables, heat or massage. It is completely different. It is the only way we know of to actually EXERCISE the muscles of your abdomen while you REST at home. No effort is required. You use it while you read, rest, watch television . . . even while you sleep! And it reduces inches . . . and does the job in a hurry.

The new Relax-A-cizor is simple to use. You clip the belt (shown above) around your waist in 10 seconds. Turn a dial. Relax for 30 minutes. That's all. Often dramatic results are seen the first week!

As Bing Crosby says, it is a PLEASANT experience; you will enjoy . . . and look forward to . . . this half hour of relaxation . . . 30 minutes of rest that can give you a younger-looking, more efficient appearance.

Appearance is important. You envy and admire the trim, athletic looking man. Socially, too, greater preference is given to the healthier looking man. Now, you can enjoy the financial and social benefits of looking your best . . . of wearing a belt inches smaller.

If you are a busy man, you probably have no time for gym classes after work . . . and, after a hard day, have little desire to take "exercises."

So, instead, do this: TRY Relax-A-cizor AT NO COST. Enjoy a FREE no-effort workout. There is no obligation of any kind. No charge of course. TRY IT. For FULL information and illustrated literature, mail coupon now!

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

REDDING—California is going to see one of the largest armies of bug-eyed fishermen on its streams and lakes next Saturday in all history. It's the date for trout season opening throughout most of the state. In Southern California it marks the beginning of an endless trout season, provided the Fish and Game Commission doesn't change its mind in a couple of years.

Trout season begins in all of California Saturday with these exceptions:

May 19—Counties of Plumas, Sierra, Nevada, Placer, Yuba, El Dorado, Alpine, Amador, Calaveras and part of Butte.

May 30—Counties of Del Norte, Humboldt (except lagoons), Mad River and Eel River below Lake Pillsbury.

Your limit this year is 15 fish, or 10 pounds and one fish, or three fish, irrespective of weight. The season will run through Oct. 31, except in Southern California, where it continues on a year-around basis.

• • • •

WE FIND THAT the fishermen in this area don't worry about the Southland's year-around season. The resort owners don't either because they feel that Southern Californians will have to come this way eventually.

If you remember, back in January and February, there was a hectic fight between north and south over the prospect of cutting the trout limit to 10 fish. The north bitterly opposed the plan and won. The northerners' argument—to themselves, at least—was sound. Sportsmen in this area said that southerners didn't want to travel two days to the Shasta-Cascade country and be limited to 10 fish. Besides that, they pointed out that the north doesn't have to rely on planted 7½-inch trout for its sport.

In fact, up here they just want the opportunity of proving to you that there are some mighty rainbow and brown fighters back in the waters of the Trinity Alps country. Whether the fish are native or planted doesn't matter—they have grown up now!

• • • •

REVIEWING TROUT season in general, it looks as though April 28 will find the anglers climbing over one another in their battle to reach favorite streams in Southern California. They will be doing that in the knowledge that the Department of Fish and Game has planted one million catchable trout (7½ inches or longer) in southern waters.

The pressure still will be on Mono-Inyo, however, with Crowley Lake the favorite spot. If you ever took part in a previous Crowley opening and thought the going was rough, try it this year for a new thrill—or chill. Conservative estimates indicate that 7,000 to 9,000 fishermen will be trying to jam into boats at Crowley next weekend.

June, Silver, Grant, Gull, Convict, the lower lakes of the Mammoth group and various streams will be taking care of some of the overflow that can't make Crowley. Unless storms hit this week, the opening day should be good. Lower lakes are free of ice.

• • • •

DON'T FORGET to pick up an abstract of 1956 fishing laws when you get your license this week. The DF&G reported last week that thousands of the pamphlets are on their way to sporting goods stores and license dealers. The abstract will list all closures and the laws which you may or may not know.

As to plantings in Southern California, The Independent and The Press-Telegram (April 5 issues) carried a full list of streams and lakes that would be planted prior to opening day, provided water conditions were favorable.

Good rains a couple of weeks ago improved stream conditions tremendously and practically all of those creeks listed are on the planting schedule. Tank trucks of the DF&G have been rolling for the last 10 days and will continue to work from dawn to dark this week. More than 300,000 fish are being planted in the final week before the season opens.

Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties were helped by rain amounting to 5 inches in some localities; Gibraltar Reservoir is overflowing; Cachuma has twice as much water as at this time last year; Piru Creek is filling up Santa Felicia Reservoir, Ventura County's newest trout lake.

If you go to Inyo or Mono Counties and if you are lucky enough to catch two limits, one on Saturday and another on Monday, you may take home both limits under a tag system which goes into effect for that area.

• • • •

OUR PURPOSE for being up here this weekend is to honor Dr. Paul R. Needham, professor of fisheries, University of California at Berkeley. He is the second recipient of the annual Sportsman's Award, an outstanding event of the Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Assn.

About two dozen outdoor writers in the state, who participated in the selection of Dr. Needham, are here as guests of Shasta-Cascade.

My immediate concern at the conclusion of the official banquet and meeting honoring Dr. Needham is not trout, but bass in Shasta Lake. And from what I'm told, Dr. Needham will be at the same place trying his rod and reel and getting a few days of rest.

Dr. Needham, beyond any doubt, is one of the outstanding fisheries experts in the western United States. It's no wonder that the Shasta-Cascade group wants to honor him. He spent eight years figuring out plans for the protection of salmon in the Sacramento River after Shasta Dam was completed. His survey resulted in fish ladders at Keswick Dam and the construction of the Coleman Fish Hatchery on Battle Creek, near Redding. We'll have more to tell you about Dr. Needham in a later column.

• • • •

IRVINE LAKE will get a shot in the arm Friday evening, April 27. C. H. Stevenson, operator at Irvine, will plant a ton of rainbow trout on that date in anticipation of the opening of Southern California's trout season the following morning.

The trout will range from 1 to 3 pounds. Thereafter, Stevenson will plant another ton of trout each Monday noon while Irvine is open. Howard E. Vlarick, Downey, topped Irvine anglers last week with a bass weighing 7½ pounds. He caught it on a Hawaiian wiggler.

GREAT STRIDES IN COMING MONTHS

Big Marine Schedule on Tap

By BOB RUSKAUFF

Bigger entry lists, keener competition — by anyone's seven-league boots—marine sport will have taken its greatest strides in history in the southwest during the coming months of 1956. Viewed from the storm window:

Already motorboat racing is "secure," with Long Beach Marine Stadium carrying the burden of three holiday inboard classics (Memorial, Independence, Labor days); the outboard nationals in September and the boat show-regatta July 14-15, plus others.

Alamitos Bay YC plays host to the 1956 National Snipe class championships Aug. 8-12, with other top features included during the summer.

Some 30 sleek power yachts, a record, may compete May 27-30 in the Long Beach YC predicted log race for the $5,000 Craig trophy—to Coronado and return.

Conservative heads viz entry chairman George Michand, predict 185 deep-water yachts may be signed for the 9th Newport-Ensenada yacht race before entries close for the May 3 classic. No greater single fleet has started anywhere in the world.

The world's longest yacht race, 3,570 miles from San Pedro to Papeete, Tahiti, has eight boats signed, others possible, for staggered starts in June, designed to get them there for July 14 celebration of Bastille Day.

• • • •

TODAY THERE are many events over a series of fronts:

Finish of two 'round-Catalina deep-water yacht races; collegiate sailing windup at Balboa YC; return from Avalon, racing, of both sail and power yachts in the West Coast YC spring cruise; also return from Avalon of the stock outboard fleet which cruise-raced cross-channel Saturday.

GUST AND PROP-WASH: Miss Supertest, Canada's unlimited hydroplane challenger for the Harmsworth trophy, is hailed as greatest foreign threat in 20 efforts since 1903. Gotta have a queen and Belmont Shore Lions still lack one for their May 30 inboard regatta, says Chairman Don Thompson. Still behind the West L. B. Lions, who have one picked for July 4, though President L. B. Stambaugh won't name her yet. Queens don't make boats go faster, but.

Rockets Face Glendale

Pete Cassidy and Keith Peacock will divide the pitching for the Long Beach Rockets today when Bill Feistner's semipro club meets the Glendale Dons at Recreation Park. Game time is 2:15 p.m.

Peacock, former Marine from Costa Mesa, made his Rocket debut last week as the locals bowed to Chandler Rock and Gravel, 4-3. He pitched the first five innings, giving up three runs, striking out three and walking two. Cassidy hurled the last four innings.

Other Rocket starters today (in batting order) will be Chuck Winslow, second base; Frank Estes, shortstop; Bob Carter, right field; Jack Graham, first base; Ev Pearson, left field; Don Taylor, third base; Tom Lloyd, catcher and Bill Squilte, center field.

Next Sunday the Rockets play Nat's Diamonds, followed by the L.A. All-Stars on May 6.

Ruttman, Amick Enter Final Race of Spring

Troy Ruttman, Lynwood, the youngest driver ever to win the "500", and Indianapolis rookie George Amick, Los Angeles, added their names Saturday to the entry list for the spring season's final 100-lap USAC late model stock car race next Saturday night at Gardena Stadium.

Ruttman at the age of 21 drove managing director J. C. Agajanian's No. 98 down victory lane in 1952. His winning average of 128.922 mph has only been topped by Billy Vukovich's 130.840 mph in 1954 when Troy finished fourth.

STOCK CARS RACE TODAY

It will be a battle of the Fords against the Hudsons, Chevrolets and Dodges today at Gardena Stadium, 139th St. and Western Ave., in a modified stock car racing card.

Ten events are slated, featured by a 100-lapper. Superpowered sedans will start in the time trials at 1 p.m., followed by the main events at 2:30 p.m., which will be televised until 5:30 p.m.

Some of the nation's top stars from both amateur and professional ranks will meet in this two-day event.

46 of Royal Palms Units Already Sold

Thoughtful planning for modern adult living is a feature of the Royal Palms apartment tower that has attracted special attention among a large number of visitors to the model unit during the past week. The results of this planning are seen in the feeling of spaciousness maintained throughout each apartment, the provision of ample closets, cupboards and lighting facilities, and the convenient, step-saving layout of the rooms to reduce daily housekeeping to a minimum, salesmen report.

All apartments in the Royal Palms, to be built at 1st and Atlantic, a block from the ocean, are outside apartments with large window areas that take full advantage of the view. There is special soundproofing between apartments to maintain quiet and privacy, and the steel and concrete construction is designed to make the building fireproof and quakeproof as well.

• • • •

THE ROYAL PALMS is organized on a mutual ownership plan, and the 12-story building will belong to the purchasers of its 164 de luxe 1 and 2-bedroom apartments. It is the first multi-story Class "A" apartment development on the West Coast to receive an FHA commitment, and the units can be purchased on FHA terms or on an all-cash basis.

"Increasingly large crowds have been visiting the completely furnished model 2-bedroom apartment the past week," according to E. T. Moore of Moore Realty, sales agents for the Royal Palms.

"THIRTY-TWO of the 2-bedroom and 14 of the 1-bedroom apartments have been sold," says Moore, "and the rate of sales indicates that we should soon be ready to announce a date for ground-breaking and start of construction. It is most important that reservations be made promptly to insure choice of exposure and location."

Included with every apartment will be an all-electric kitchen with built-in oven and range, garbage disposal, refrigerator and ventilating exhaust fan. Maintenance and replacement of these appliances is provided for in the regular monthly payment that covers all costs, including taxes, insurance, water, heat, operating expenses, interest and principal. A heated swimming pool and a large social lounge will be located on the street floor.

Sponsors of the Royal Palms are Dr. R. L. Buffum and family, P. I. Wilsey Jr. and R. T. Hebard. Architects are Francis O. Merchant and J. Richard Shelley.

Excelsior Village Offers New Terms

New financing that means non-veterans can move-in for a $395 down payment and veterans can purchase for no-down is proving popular at Excelsior Village, sales agent, Don Coleman reported this week.

The big 4-bedroom 2-bath homes are located adjacent to one of Garden Grove's grammar schools and bring the buyer scores of luxury features for as little as $12,620.

Among the advantages listed by the sales firm are built-in range and oven, washer-dryer, forced air heat, natural cabinets, fire alarm system, exterior planters and screen fencing, and spacious lots.

An added plus to the $395 down to non-vets and the no-down payment offer to qualified veterans, is the quick-move in plan that can be arranged for at the site, the sales agent said.

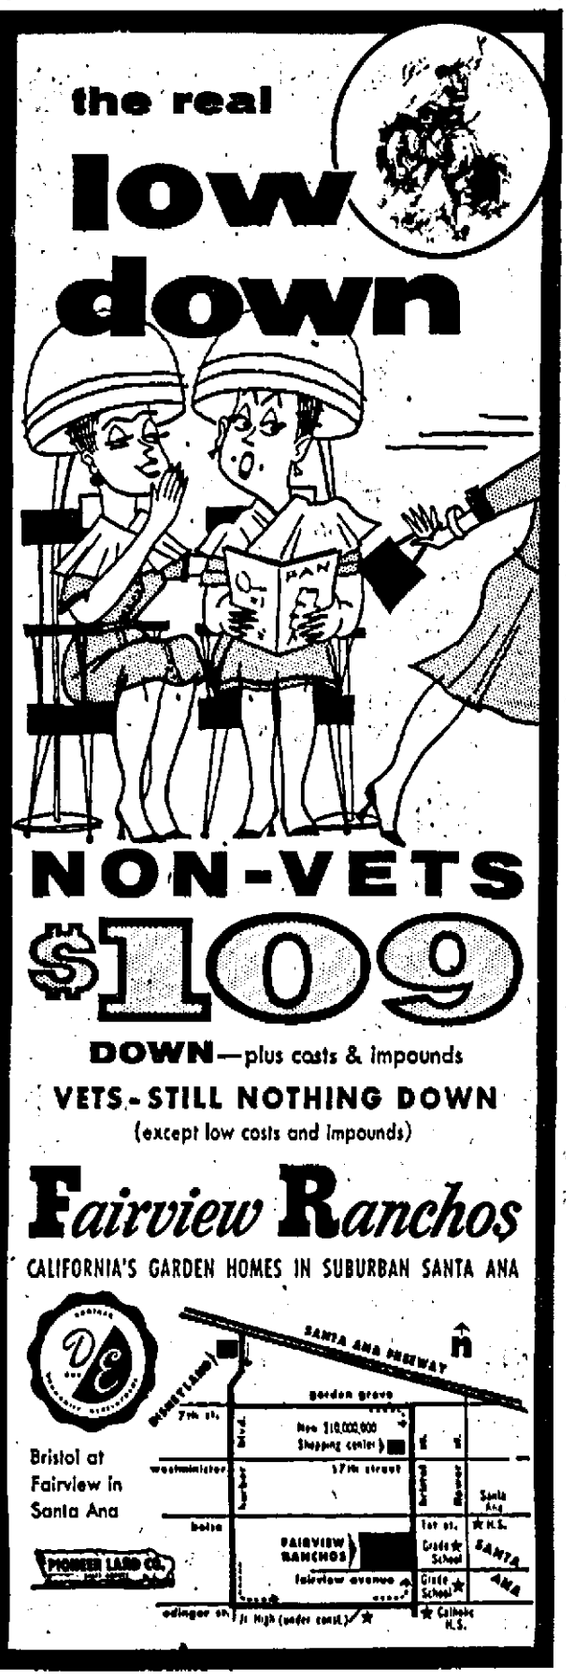

To visit the four furnished models from the Long Beach area go straight out Westminster Blvd. to Wright St. (Brookhurst) and the site. The location is one of the best of the near-Long Beach locations, Coleman pointed out.

C. C. Curtis Now Structural Engineer

Charley C. Curtis, consulting civilian engineer, 3667 Atlantic Ave., has been notified by the state that he may use the title "structural engineer." This authorization is only given to those registered civil engineers who have completed the required examination.

This broadens the engineering service to include prime contracts on bridges, schools and other public work projects.

Prior to opening private engineering offices Curtis held positions with Douglas Aircraft, U. S. Naval Construction Brigade, Long Beach Building and Water Departments, and C. F. Braun & Co.

Fairview Ranchos Showing Good Sales on Easy Terms

The feature-packed new 2-bedroom, 2-bath, 2-car garage residences in Unit 3 of Fairview Ranchos, Bristol at Fairview in Santa Ana, continue to be in heavy demand by non-veterans according to Frank Chandler of Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Easy FHA monthly terms are also available, he said.

Although the new homes are VA-appraised at $12,855 or $12,995, they contain luxury features and quality construction usually found only in much higher-priced homes, Chandler points out.

Three basic center-hall floor plans with front or rear living rooms are available to buyers. Twenty-three distinctive exterior designs ensure complete individuality of design.

HOMES ARE OF-SOLID construction, with genuine lath and plaster walls and ceilings. Wiring system exceeds new adequate wiring standards of National Builder's Association. A 220-volt rough-in is available for range, clothes dryer, power tools, or air-conditioning unit.

Real oak hardwood floors are laid over raised sub-flooring. Concrete patio, 120 square feet with redwood dividers, has decorative redwood planter box garden light, and seat.

Kitchens feature a convertable dining nook, breakfast bar, buffet and desk, natural-finish wood cabinets, and range hood with exhaust fan and wall switch.

All lots are completely landscaped, with sprinklers installed both front and rear yards, and backyard area of each home completely enclosed by redwood fencing.

To reach Fairview Ranchos from Long Beach, take 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Bristol; turn right on Bristol to new models.

Soft Drink Firm Shows Big Gain

James T. Powell, president, Pepsi-Cola-Bireley Co., of Los Angeles, has released a first quarter report indicating a 47 per cent sales increase of the Bireley soft drink line over the same period of 1955.

Powell ascribed the impressive gain to an aggressive advertising campaign, addition of a separate fleet of 30 Bireley trucks, and conversion to a 10-ounce bottle.

IN FREMATIC HOME

The kitchen is one of the favorite spots in the new Frematic Homes which are selling rapidly. This shows some of the built-in conveniences of the kitchens.

Frematic Homes Selling Rapidly

"The exceptional value of Frematic Homes and the many award-winning features combine to bring prospective homeowners out of the furnished models and into the sales office," was the statement Saturday by Ross W. Cortese, who reported heavy sales in the Anaheim subdivision of 3 and 4-bedroom or family room, 2-bath homes.

Notable among the features of the dwellings is the Betty Furness Beautility Kitchen, a room keyed to efficiency with beauty as the high light in color-matched fully automatic built-in Westinghouse appliances. These include a large refrigerator-freezer, extra wide built-in oven, built-in top burners, automatic dishwasher and disposal unit. A breakfast bar is in addition to the dining room area, separated from the outdoors by sliding glass walls.

Living areas have sound-absorbing acoustical ceilings in popular open-beam design, introduced in developments by Cortese and his associates. Ample room is noticeable throughout the house, with bedrooms designed to accommodate king-size furniture. The master bedroom forms a suite with a private bath equipped with stall shower, fully tiled and glass doored, and an enclosed lavatory. Pullman-type bath also has a private dressing and storage area.

Gabled glass windows add to the spaciousness of the home, which features sliding wardrobes in all bedrooms and family room, conveniently convertible to a fourth bedroom by use of a folding wall; 100,000 BTU forced air heating, oversize front door, two-car garage, colored Crane plumbing fixtures and raised hooded fireplaces with adjacent seating space are more sale-promoting features.

Priced from $15,750 to $17,500, approximately and available on both FHA and veterans financing, Frematic Homes are at the corner of Lincoln and Gilbert in Anaheim. Visitors drive out Carson St. (Lincoln Ave.) to Gilbert to visit furnished models.

Long Beach Park's Low Price Attracts

Opening of 2 furnished model homes at Long Beach Park brought sales of $150,000 during the past week in the new quality-built homes which are offered by Butler-Harbour Construction Co. on low budget terms to non-vets.

Offered at less than $10,000, the homes already have passed the 50 per cent sellout point, though the furnished models were completed and opened only a week ago, officials emphasized, in underscoring the immediate public acceptance of the new community.

LARGE CROWDS were reported visiting the furnished model homes on Garden Grove Blvd., between Alamitos and Huntington Park Blvds., in Garden Grove. They are open every day from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Full price of the homes is from $9,095, it was noted, and total down payment, including all impounds, is $495, while monthly payments are set at $77.50, including taxes and insurance as well as principal and interest.

IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY is available on some of the homes, according to Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, who said reservations are already being taken in a second unit of 61 3-bedroom dwellings. Many of the homes have built-in Pioneer gas ranges and oven, available for an additional $2.25 per month.

"Public reaction to the opening of Long Beach Park indicates that here at last is the quality home, at a price the average family can pay. Buyers have a choice of floor plans offering two bedrooms with den, or three bedrooms. Lots are a full 60 feet by 120 feet and all utilities are in and paid for," a spokesman said.

Long Beach Park may be reached from Long Beach by taking 7th St. east and continuing on Garden Grove Blvd. to the models on the south side of the street.

ON BUDGET TERMS

Non-vets are offered special terms on 141 new three-bedroom quality-built homes, typified above, in Long Beach Park, new Butler-Harbour Construction Co. development on Garden Grove Blvd., between Alamitos and Huntington Park Blvds. in Garden Grove.

Vets Offered Buena Berry Park Home Without Cash

The current "no cash down" policy at Buena Berry Park, offering free occupancy to buyers, will be in effect to April 30, Don Coleman, sales agent for the Moss Building Corp., stressed.

Veterans need no down payment, and non-vets will be asked for an initial outlay of as little as $1,195, with monthly terms as low as $53.63, principal and interest.

The monthly rates for veterans amount to as little as $58.92, principal and interest.

The 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes are ready for immediate occupancy. The community is situated just one block directly east of famous Knott's Berry Farm, and is near the site of a proposed 80-acre Sears Roebuck shopping center. Schools, churches and additional shopping centers are nearby.

Buena Berry Farm is just a 20-minute drive from Long Beach, and the development is only 25 minutes from metropolitan Los Angeles.

Some Buena Berry Park models boast raised-hearth and floor-to-ceiling fireplaces, thermostatically controlled forced-air heat, built-in oven and range, sliding walls of glass and orange trees on the lot.

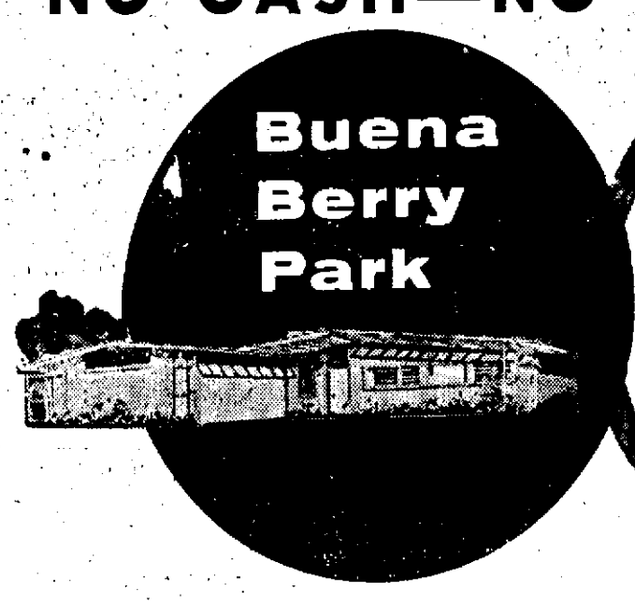

Buena Berry Park 4-bedroom stylings offer an expansive living area arrangement. The fourth bedroom is joined to the living room through folding wooden doors, converting easily to a conversation corner, television lounge, or in general, to a "special purpose" room.

Buena Berry Park is reached from Long Beach by driving on Carson to Highway 39, turning left to Crescent, then right one block to the model homes.

BUENA PLAZA OFFERS

Exemplified above are the new Aldon 1956 "Triumph Series" three and four-bedroom homes, with two complete baths, floor-to-ceiling fireplaces and many built-in features, located on La Palma Ave. east of Miller St., in close-in Buena Park.

Aldon's Buena Plaza Reports Soaring Sales in Final Unit

Sales since the first of April at Buena Plaza have pushed past the $500,000 mark for the 3-week period, reflecting an equal demand for both the 3-bedroom and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes of the 1956 "Triumph Series" in the planned community's last unit, it was reported yesterday.

"Immediate occupancy is another factor that has boosted sales during April," it was noted by a topflight official of the Aldon Construction Co., developers of the $50,000,000, 2100-home property now nearly complete in Buena Park, just off the Santa Ana Freeway, on La Palma Ave., east of Miller St.

"Literally thousands of visitors are inspecting our big public display of 9 model homes, all with 2 bathrooms, 5 with three bedrooms and 4 with 4 bedrooms," the spokesman added. "Seven of these display dwellings are furnished by Aaron Schultz and the entire area of the display has been attractively landscaped for the showing."

• • • •

IT WAS NOTED that 2 of the 9 model homes are new to the display. They are both 4-bedroom, 2-bath traditional stylings, prepared especially in response to demand for more of the traditional designs, according to Aldon officials.

Vets' terms of nothing down but costs and impounds and monthly payments of $66.67 for principal and interest were characterized by Aldon's general sales agent, E. "Billy" Hamburg, "as representing the "lowest terms in this category in Orange County."

Non-vets are offered terms featuring down payments as low as $990, plus costs and impounds, Hamburg added.

"Luxurized" features associated with Aldon homebuilding techniques also include thermostat-controlled forced air heating, sliding walls of glass linking living rooms to outdoor living, custom-designed fireplaces of brick or slumpstone with raised hearths, Higgins oak block floors, big two-car garages and model all-gas kitchens.

Within the kitchens are natural ash cabinets finished in exclusive Aldon-Glaze, covered worktops, double sinks with Waste-King garbage pulverators, Dish-Whiz semi-automatic dishwashers, grease-proof Ma-Ti-Co asphalt tile floors, eating space and service areas.

Orangewood Sells to Vet on $25 Down

For the few remaining homes in Orangewood Manor, veterans may purchase with only $25 cash required, including impounds, it was reported by Thomas Helt, spokesman for the McCarthy Co., sales agents for this beautiful Garden Grove development. "Because of increased construction costs," Hart state, "this may be the last chance veterans may have to buy such a quality home for only $12,750."

Kitchens in Orangewood Manor have proven very popular with their beautiful Roper gas ranges in pastel colors that match the Columbia steel cabinets. The living room boast real fireplaces and ski-vue walls of glass that offer popular indoor-outdoor living. Spacious patios have built-in barbecues.

Other custom features include: Thermador electric bath heaters, stall showers and Standard colored plumbing fixtures; forced air heating, Pioneer 50-gallon water heaters, resilient cork tile flooring, walls of genuine lath and plaster, rockwool insulation, weatherstripping on exterior doors, heavy rock roofs in five decorator colors, and exteriors of California redwood siding.

From Long Beach, visitors are directed to drive out Seventh Street (Garden Grove Boulevard) and turn north on Magnolia. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway, turn south on Magnolia and continue for four miles to Orangewood Manor.

A special welcoming committee has been appointed to greet today's expected 10,000th visitor at the fourth unit of Beverly Gardens, Chapman Ave. and West St. in suburban Garden Grove, according to George J. Heltzer, president of George J. Heltzer and Associates, builder-developers.

According to records, the 10,000th visitor will go through the community's "Gateway to Quality" model home show almost simultaneously as sales top the $3-million mark.

Offered in both 3 and 4-bedroom models, as well as 3-and-a-den styles, 20 floor plans and 33 varied exteriors are available.

Qualified vets can still take advantage of the easy financing of nothing down but costs and impounds. Non-vets can buy for $1,700 down plus impounds and closing costs on FHA terms. Fully priced from $14,000 to $14,750, monthly payments range from $62.36 that includes principal and interest.

Each new home is positioned on a spacious lot averaging over 7,200 square feet.

Walker and Lee are sales agents for the new community.

To reach Unit 4 from Long Beach, follow 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to West St., turn left on West and drive to Chapman Ave.

NEWS FOR VETS

Award Homes are offered to vets on no-cash-down payment terms at Golden West St. and Garden Grove Blvd. Vets make no cash down payment, pay no cash closing costs or impounds. Monthly payment of $61.93 buys a three-bedroom and family room de luxe series home with two baths and two-car garage.

Vets Need No Cash for Award Homes

"No cash to move in for veterans" are the new terms for Award Homes, de luxe series, Golden West St. and Garden Grove Blvd., state the developers, a Volk-McLain Co.

"At last we have worked out a plan which offers veterans a chance to buy an Award Home with no cash down payment, no cash closing costs, and no cash impounds," it was announced by a spokesman for the company. "However, this no-cash offer expires May 15."

Veterans may buy Award Homes on monthly payments of $61.93. Full price of $12,025 is set for the new 4-bedroom or 3-bedroom and family room Award Homes. All have 2 baths with colored fixtures, and 2-car garages.

• • • •

THE NEW CONVERTIBLE family room lends unusual flexibility to these newest de luxe series Award Homes between Long Beach and Garden Grove.

This room, located next to the king-size ranch kitchen, may double as a daytime dining area and a night-time bar for entertaining. It may be a daylight children's play room, and a television room after dark. It may be a day sewing room, and an evening game room.

Since only a convenient food bar separates kitchen and family room, a spacious, modern, open motif results.

Seven furnished model homes are open daily till 9 p. m. Patios, exteriors, and back yards of model homes are flood-lighted for after-dark viewing.

• • • •

VETERANS FROM Los Angeles and the Lakewood area take Lakewood Blvd. to the traffic circle, Highway 101 to 7th St. in Long Beach, then east to Golden West St. Seventh St. becomes Garden Grove Blvd.

The Award Homes are easily reached from Long Beach by taking 7th St. to Golden West St., then south to the site.

Award Homes are located near fine beaches, parks, schools and churches, and are convenient to super-markets and shopping centers in adjoining Garden Grove.

Fast busses go to downtown Los Angeles and nearby Lakewood Village. The tract is on the route of the proposed Santa Ana-Long Beach freeway.

Homes by Tietz Are in Demand

The continued high sales volume being recorded at Skylark Terrace, Town and Country Unit No. 2, indicates a strong preference for Provincial type architecture among today's homebuyers, revealed Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers of the Garden Grove homes.

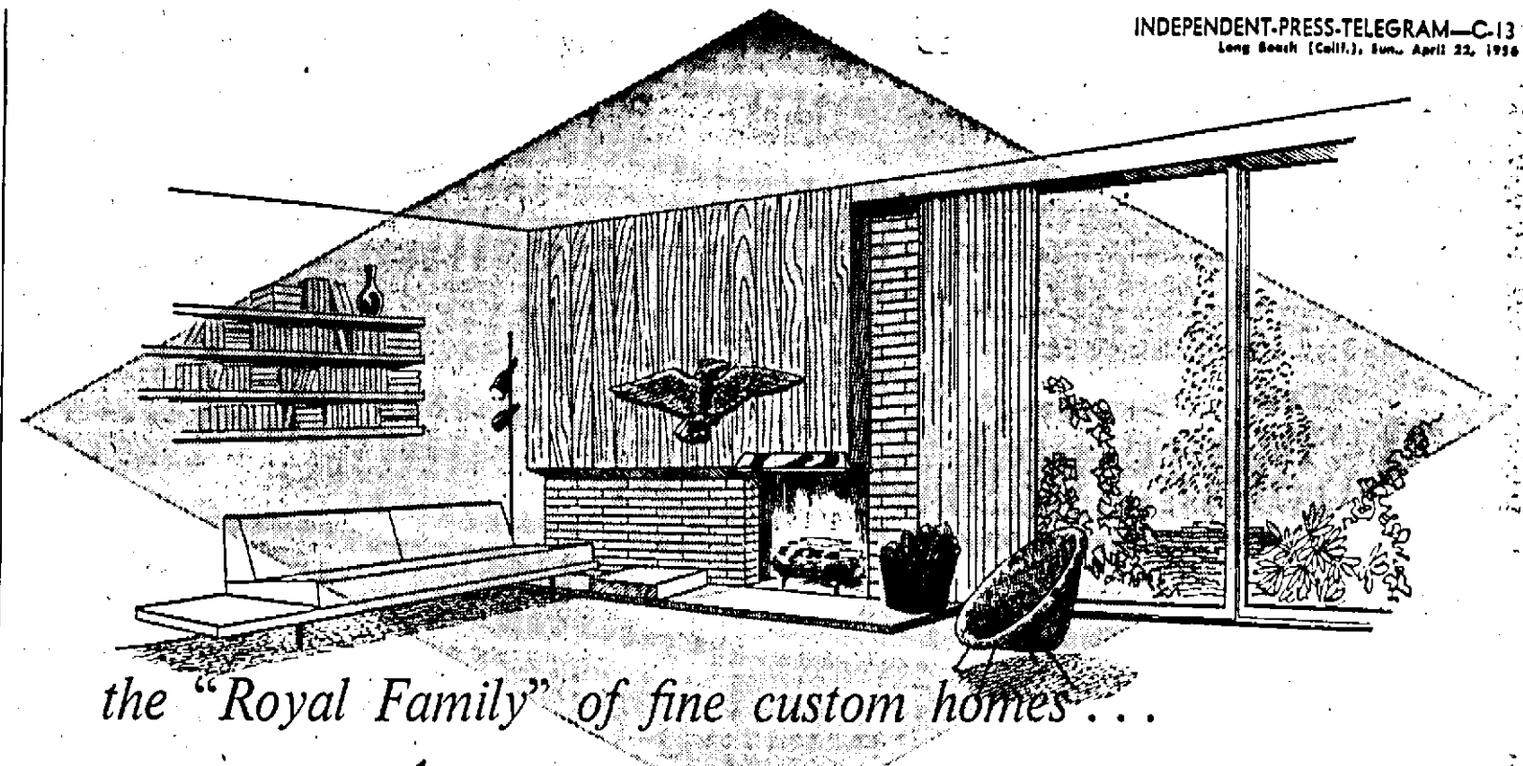

The select location, close to new shopping districts, transportation, beach cities and other recreational facilities is another factor cited as an important consideration in the purchase of Skylark Terrace homes.

Among the features most widely acclaimed are the extra spaciousness within as well as outside the homes. On lots of up to 85-foot frontages, the dwellings offer many recreational possibilities, such as swimming pools and badminton courts in the back yards. Inside, roominess is notable in living areas as well as bedrooms, closets and cabinets.

KITCHENS, featuring all-electric built-in appliances, are equipped with Hotpoint ranges, dishwashers, ovens and have garbage disposals and electric exhaust fans. Available on both veterans and FHA financing, models of the dwellings are open at Brookhurst and Chapman in Garden Grove. From Santa Ana, visitors drive west on Garden Grove Blvd. to Brookhurst and north on Brookhurst to the models. Vandruff Bros. Are Building Many More Cinderella Homes

When Vandruff Homes, Inc., built its first subdivision of 168 Cinderella Homes last year, they sold out in the record time of 3½ weeks, before the models were furnished and landscaped.

Shannon and Jene Vandruff, the brother designer-builders announced the groundbreaking for 701 more new Cinderella Homes to help fill the demand. These homes will be located at Ball and Western, in Anaheim.

Prior to their entry into the subdivision field last year the Vandruff brothers won wide acclaim as designer-builders of custom homes, and when they transferred to subdivision building they determined to incorporate in popular-priced, housing many of the expensive features that had characterized their finer custom-built homes.

The new subdivision will contain all the same basic plans and features of the first.

• • • •

WHILE THERE ARE four modern exterior designs, "California Ranch" is the dominating exterior style, with 14 separate designs in that popular mode. The 4 basic floor plans all feature central hall plans, and offer a choice of 3 bedrooms, 4 bedrooms, or 3 bedrooms and family room; all have two baths. Other features include heavy shake or heavy rock roofs, long low roof overhangs, brick planters and veneer across the fronts, massive floor to ceiling fireplaces, hardwood paneling, TV viewing directly from kitchens, built-in music systems with speakers, and a host of other comfort-convenience features.

The Cinderella Homes office and furnished model homes are presently at the first subdivision at Ball and Hwy. 39 in Anaheim and are reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Hwy. 39 in Buena Park and then due south past Knott's Berry Farm another 1½ miles (or ¼ mile south of Orange Ave.). Long Beach residents drive east on Carson St. and turn south on Hwy. 39 to the subdivision ¼ mile south of Orange Ave.

Offer Eight Homes at 'Bargain' Prices

Money-saving opportunity is offered home seekers in the Anaheim area this week-end when Wonderland Homes will sell 8 3-and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes at prices from $1200 to $1500 below the level of prices in the soon-to-open second unit.

This was the announcement yesterday by the builders who explained that the 8 specially-priced homes being offered this week-end are in the first unit and represent top stylings and locations selected by buyers who failed to establish adequate credit.

Priced from $12,485 to $13,825, the homes are offered to vets for nothing down, except costs and impounds, with low monthly payments.

"Not only will the 173 homes in Wonderland Homes second unit cost more, but monthly payments will be necessarily higher also due to sharply increased costs of both labor and materials," a spokesman explained. "This means fast acting vets can get a real bargain in both price and terms while these eight homes last."

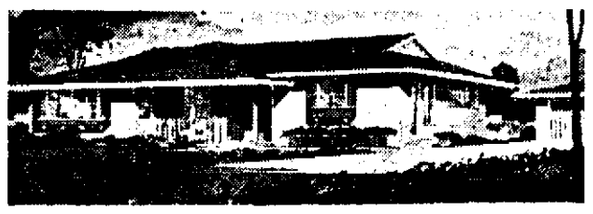

• • • •

LOCATED AT the southwest corner of Ball Rd. and Walnut St. in Anaheim, all Wonderland Homes were designed by architect William M. Bray, A.I.A.

Among the many special features are lots which contain from six to eight full-bearing mature orange trees, and living rooms with a complete wall of glass and sliding doors. Fixed floor-to-ceiling windows overlook paved concrete terraces.

Other features included forced air heating, hood and electric fan over kitchen range area, garbage disposers, ceramic tile in bath rooms, formica in kitchens, colored rock roofs, lavish use of brick and Palos Verde stone planters, and covered breezeways in some models.

Visitors from Long Beach are advised to follow Carson Ave. (Lincoln) to Euclid. Turn right on Euclid to Ball Rd. Then left on Ball Rd. to Walnut and Model Homes.

ANAHEIM HOMES

Typified are the eight three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes which remain in Wonderland Homes' first unit in Anaheim, at corner of Ball Rd. and Walnut St., off the Santa Ana Freeway. Available because early buyers failed to qualify, the homes are offered to vets at important savings.

Buckingham Square Wins Another Honor

OPENING IS TODAY

Sweeping shake roofs that hang wide over diamond-lite windows are part of the charm of the new Enchanted Homes, in Garden Grove. The unique home development opens its second unit today. Enchanted Homes sell in the $15,200 to $15,400 range with low down payments both VA and FHA. They are located on Magnolia Blvd. at Orangewood.

One of the outstanding exteriors and floor plans from George M. Holstein & Sons' Buckingham Square development has been selected as the "crown jewel" model for the Orange County Home Show early in May, it was announced.

The Buckingham Square homes feature both 3 and 4-bedroom homes from $15,400 and are located in one of Southern California's finest areas.

Attractive fireplaces, panelling, natural cabinets, luxurious pullman type baths, family rooms, large service porches, master bedroom suites with private baths, and attractive color-matched kitchens with built-in range and ovens are all listed by the sales agents, Walker & Lee, as outstanding features of the Buckingham Square homes.

• • • •

THE SALES FIRM pointed out that easy terms can be arranged for both veteran and non-veteran buyers and that immediate occupancy in some models is available.

Buckingham Square is located near West Anaheim's new school sites on Nutwood St. between Ball and Orange Ave. From Long Beach visitors can go out Lincoln to Brookhurst and turn right to Orange. Then out Orange Ave. to Nutwood and right to the furnished model homes.

The Evidence

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UP)—Police had little difficulty solving the theft of a quantity of beer and wine from a tavern at nearby Augusta. Two 15-year-old boys staggered into Kalamazoo High School drunk the following morning.

LIVING ROOM CHARM

Beautiful panelling, brick and copper hood lend charm to this "fireplace corner" of a typical Buckingham Square home in West Anaheim. The homes that recently were selected as the Orange County Home Show prize are located on Nutwood just off Broadway in Anaheim and offer terms to both veterans and non-vets. George M. Holstein & Sons are the builders.

Enchanted Homes Unit 2 Opening

Unique Enchanted Homes open their second unit today. It is announced by Pioneer Land Co., sales agents.

Designed with a south-of-France styling to meet requirements for leisurely living, the Garden Grove home development has been an instantaneous success. The first unit of Enchanted Homes was completely sold out in 45 days.

Sweeping shake roofs and diamond-lite windows capture the eye. Inside, such luxurious "extras" as an individual powder room, an abundance of turned-wood posts, wood panelling and wide hearths before antique brick fireplaces command admiration.

• • • •

DESPITE THEIR unusual styling, every Enchanted Home is strictly modern in its home-making facilities, reports Godbey Development Company, builders. Floors are fine hardwood with sturdy two - inch sub - floors. Forced air heat is 75,000 BTU with finger-tip thermostatic control. An abundance of hot water is assured via a 50-gallon water heater.

Bedrooms vary widely in shape and many have coved ceilings, window seats and interesting corners. In the master bedroom suite, a full bath is adjacent; and next to it a colorful powder room has its own wide dressing table, maximum-size mirror, special washbasin and even a stall shower.

• • • •

ALL HOMES have 3 bedrooms, 2 baths and an around-the-clock family room.

The Enchanted Kitchen, designed by Mary Olsten, contains built-in eye-level gas oven and counter-top range, sturdy work surfaces, highly efficient garbage disposer and many roomy birch cabinets.

Both VA and FHA terms are available with low down payments, and full prices from $15,200 to $15,400.

From Long Beach, go straight out 7th St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Stanton Ave., then left to Orangewood, and right to Enchanted Homes.

Eastchester Park's Sales Are Soaring

Last week was the best yet for sales in Eastchester Park, reports Mel Mack, sales agent for the Fullerton development. In addition, we are offering the unique rent-with-option-to-buy plan which has proven very attractive to non-veterans who may purchase for as little as $395 down.

"Eastchester Park offers quality construction and the style of indoor-outdoor living desired by Southern California home buyers," Mack stated, "and the homes are ideally situated for both relaxation and proximity to Los Angeles via the Santa Ana Freeway."

Some of the quality features included are: beautiful redwood siding on the exteriors, weather-stripping on exterior doors, heavy rock roofs in five decorator colors, rockwool insulation, sound-absorbent and resilient cork tile flooring, forced air heating, Woodall sliding closet doors, TV jacks and outlets, large two-car garages with ample storage and work areas, 50-gallon Pioneer water heaters and walls of genuine lath and plaster.

Front and side yards are landscaped, public sewers, paved roads, curbs and gutters are already in and paid for. Both exterior and interior color harmony is planned by color consultants.

Eastchester Park is at Orangethorpe and Nicklett in Fullerton. From Los Angeles, take the Santa Ana Freeway and turn east on Orangethorpe to Nicklett. From Long Beach, drive out Carson to Euclid, turn north on Euclid to Orangethorpe; then turn east on Orangethorpe to Nicklett.

THIS VETERAN IS SORRY!

He qualified for a $14,025 house, so he bought it. Now he realizes an Award Home at $12,025 would have given him just as much. He had to move into his new home with his dingy old furniture. That $2,000 meant "No furniture!" His monthly payments are so high that his budget is straining at the seams. No fun for his family!

THIS VETERAN IS HAPPY!

He could have qualified for a $14,025 home, but he chose an Award Home for only $12,025. Now he finds that the size, construction, and luxury are at least equal to costlier houses. With the $2,000 he saved, he bought new furniture. His monthly payments are less than rent for his new Award Home—only $61.93. Plenty of money left over to enjoy life!

IN ORANGEWOOD ESTATES

Typified is the wide range of stylings by Architect Max Maltzman now offered in the Fireside series of three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes at Orangewood Estates on Orangethorpe Ave. at Eadington Ave., Fullerton.

Vets Given Special Orangewood Terms

For one week, beginning with today's preview showing of the new second unit of homes with built-in barbecues in kitchens or paved patios at the W. E. Robertson Co.'s Fireside Series in Orangewood Estates, Fullerton, veterans will be able to buy on special terms featuring $95 to move in, officials announced.

It was noted also that non-vets may buy on terms of only $995 down, and there are likewise FHA terms available.

Designed by Architect Max Maltzman in a wide range of stylings, the homes all have built-in gas ranges and ovens, deep double-deck sinks with dish sprays and coved one-piece textolite counter tops, and some models offer "split living," with separate baths and bedrooms at opposite ends of the house.

• • • •

AMONG THE MANY features shown in a display of 8 model homes at the new community are: the combination breakfast buffet-bars between dining-living areas and kitchens in many of the models. On two levels, they are useful for formal dining service or breakfast and snack purposes.

The model home display is on Orangethorpe Ave. at Eadington Ave. All homes are open daily and Sunday from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Prices are from $15,675 to $16,870.

The homes have lath and plaster construction, select oak hardwood flooring over raised sub-flooring; 40 and 50-gallon water heaters; pullman baths with ceramic tile; oversize stall shower with sliding glass shower door; ash kitchen cabinets; built-in TV outlets and roof jacks; fenced play yards in many models, and ornamental fences.

Shamrock's New Terms Boost Sales

New financing arrangements recently introduced at Shamrock Park have boosted sales tremendously, announces Frank Hart, general sales manager for Walker and Lee, sales agents for the popular Garden Grove development. "Under these new terms, veterans may purchase for only $25 cash, impounds included," Hart pointed out.

Furthermore, purchasers have available such needed appliances as Westinghouse refrigerator, laundromat, and Gaffers & Sattler's range without the necessity of making an additional down payment.

Very popular with Shamrock Park buyers are the large living rooms with walls of glass and fireplaces, Hart pointed out. Adjoining the living rooms are spacious rear patios with barbecues which afford families real opportunity to enjoy Southern California's indoor-outdoor living.

Additional features found at Shamrick Park are: step-saving kitchens with gleaming ceramic tile and quietly efficient garbage disposals, family-size bathrooms with colored plumbing fixtures, large bedrooms with Woodall sliding wardrobe doors, forced air heating, walls of genuine lath and plaster, and large two-car garages.

Shamrock Park is reached from Los Angeles and northern points by taking the Santa Ana Freeway to Harbor and turning south. From Long Beach, take Seventh Street (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn south at Harbor to Shamrock Park model homes.

Walnut Manor Asks Vets Only $60 Before Moving In

The rains came, but Walnut Manor in Anaheim remained high and dry, due to the excellent drainage. This important factor, plus the new low terms of only $60 to move in, has spurred sales to Vets, stated Louis Herson, builder. Low FHA terms are still available to non-vets. Low-priced from $13,000 and monthly payments of only $66.60 including principal and interest, these 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath luxury homes have "everything" including wall-to-wall carpeting in many models.

To reach Walnut Manor drive out the Santa Ana Freeway to Walnut St. in Anaheim, then south 1 block to furnished models. Ideally located near schools, churches and the new Broadway Department Store shopping center, Walnut Manor is only one block off the Santa Ana Freeway and just 4 blocks from the proposed Disneyland golf course.

These homes feature "dream" kitchens with a view, 2 large dining areas, birch or mahogany cabinets, ceramic tiled counter tops and work tables and Waste King garbage disposers. The spacious living rooms are expensively panelled in mahogany and there are sliding walls of glass opening on to patio for carefree indoor-outdoor living.

Non-Vet Terms Now for Magnolia Manor

Terms especially designed for the non-veteran or the veteran who has used his GI privileges but who needs a larger home, are stimulating sales at Magnolia Manor in Garden Grove where a $295 move-in price is featured.

At Magnolia Manor an ideal location is combined with a large lot and quality construction with prices that start at only $11,050, sales head Frank McFarland, explained.

Already 75 per cent sold, floor plans and exteriors are still available in every plan. All homes have conventional styling, plaster walls, natural kitchen cabinets, and two baths.

To visit the Magnolia Manor location, drive out Garden Grove Blvd. straight through Garden Grove to Harbor Blvd. Cross Harbor one-half mile to the home site. The Magnolia Manor location is near new Garden Grove schools and shopping centers.

ON NEW TERMS

Big bedrooms, conventional styling, genuine lath and plaster, natural kitchen cabinets are all of the features included at Magnolia Manor in the Garden Grove area. Located just off Harbor Blvd. on Garden Grove Blvd., non-vets can move in for only $295.

Homestead Offers Easy Terms

Immediate occupancy and ease of qualification are factors responsible for rising sales at Homestead Gardens, new Garden Grove community of 3 and 4-bedroom, 2-bath homes, it was reported by the builders.

"Vets earning as little as $85 a week are now being qualified and all they need is $35 in cash," a spokesman explained, adding that 70 per cent of the big second unit on Verano St., just north of Westminster Ave. is already sold.

A spokesman for Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents, said a large number of homes has also been sold to non-vets on down payments from $950, plus costs and impounds. FHA terms, he pointed out, are being offered.

• • • •

OF INTEREST to many visitors, he noted is a display of furnished model homes, with decor by Aaron Schultz, which exemplify the many features of the new dwellings.

Included are such items as mahogany kitchen cabinets, large 7,200-square-foot lots, thermostat - controlled heating, wardrobe closets, steel casement windows, fiber glass insulation, acoustic ceilings, lath and plaster walls, stall showers with large glass doors and large garages with storage space.

Also featured are Waste-King garbage pulverators, wide driveways, weatherstripped doors, 40 and 50-gallon water heaters, modern exteriors with redwood accents, rock roofs in many colors, gutters and downspouts, wide overhangs.

The property is within easy walking distance of schools, and churches, while an excellent shopping center is only four blocks away.

Community improvements include sidewalks and sewers and all utilities are in and paid for.

IN GARDEN GROVE

Pictured is one of many Homestead Gardens three and four-bedroom, two-bath homes now offered for immediate occupancy in Garden Grove on Verano St. just north of Westminster Ave.

In looks, too, Ford's out front—with styling that only the Thunderbird could inspire

Ford goes First!

In Performance

At NASCAR's Speed and Safety Events at Daytona Beach, Ford won the Manufacturer's Trophy for best all-around performance. And Ford's 225-h.p. Thunderbird Special V-8, in one day, smashed 30 world speed records at Kingman, Arizona. No wonder the Ford V-8 is the world's largest-selling eight.

In Safety

When the editors of "Motor Trend" unanimously voted Ford's safety program "the top car advance" of 1956, they had in mind Ford's Lifeguard Design . . . a whole family of safety features, including a deep-center steering wheel and double-grip door latches, to help protect you from injury in case of accident.

In Economy

In this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, a Ford Customline V-8 with Fordomatic Drive won over all cars in its class. The sturdier, heavier Ford carried more weight with greater gasoline economy per pound than any competitive car . . . "sixes" as well as "eights"! In this tough test, Ford proved itself a regular gas miser.

The way a Ford performs, the way it saves, the way it protects you, go hand-in-hand with the way it looks and lasts. Ford's look was inspired by America's most exciting car, the Thunderbird. Its rugged K-bar frame and carefully-built body give it the endurance and reliability traditional with Ford. These are the facts behind Ford's reputation as the car that's worth more when you buy it . . . worth more when you sell it, too! Come in and let us show you!

What's Going On in Government? Ask the League!

KEENLY AWARE of the responsibility of each citizen to exercise his right to vote, members of the Long Beach League of Women Voters use a giant-sized sample ballot to spread their own awareness to the public. Mrs. C. E. Crittenden, left, and Mrs. George Hall, chairman of the League's voters service, join with other members of the League in interpreting to the public the pros and cons of ballot amendments. The group also uses questionnaires and candidate meetings to give people an opportunity to become acquainted with the men and women seeking public office.

OBSERVERS GROUP is an important facet of activity within the structure of the League of Women Voters as members strive to keep informed on local civic activities. Representatives from the observers attend each session of the City Council, Board of Education, Harbor Commission and Citizens Committee hearings, and in turn report back to the general membership. Here Mrs. Don Smith, chairman of the league observers, takes notes on a conference between, from left, John Davis, chairman of the Board of Harbor Commissioners; Mrs. Gail Hudson, president of the Board of Education, and Mayor George Vermillion.

Group Keeps Informed on Civic Issues

By JOYCE KENT

Susan B. Anthony and Carrie Chapman Catt could well be proud of their crusade for woman's right to vote if they were to visit for a day in Long Beach and watch the League of Women Voters in action.

As many faceted as a fine cut diamond is the structure of the League, with its light carrying far into the corners of government—local, state and national.

With a total Long Beach membership of 198 women, the League maintains headquarters at 3932½ E. 4th St., on Tuesday and Wednesday from 10 a. m. until noon. Members encourage the general public to visit headquarters for information on any civic question, or on becoming a member of the League. It also invites community groups to take advantage of the Speakers Bureau.

Units of the League meet regularly in geographic areas, with the total membership called together at least three times a year. Included among the many activities is a Voters Service, particularly active at election time, with members registering new voters and placing "reminder to vote" posters throughout the city.

Members of the legislative program write to local, state and national officials either in support of current legislation, or voicing its reasons for opposition.

Recent activities which give statistical evidence of the group's impact on the community include 2,000 new voters registered; 61,000 reminders to vote issued prior to the recent bond elections; and 5,000 leaflets distributed on pros and cons of ballot measures.

Of prime importance on the current agenda are plans for the state convention to take place May 15 through 17 in Long Beach. Mrs. Alexis Jacoubowsky of Long Beach has been appointed general chairman. Working with her as members of the convention committee are Mmes. W. D. Morris, Edythe M. Carman, Stewart S. Small, Terrance E. Roseen, C. E. Crittenden, George C. Underhill, David P. Mealiffe, Charlotte E. McGee, Rebecca Loy, Robert H. Minor and Miss Emma P. Greenman.

A two-year study of the "Administration of Juvenile Hall" now is being conducted in unit meetings. Last year members visited Juvenile Hall in Los Angeles and the Juvenile Bureau here, and at their annual meeting in April voted as a continuing responsibility, "support of adequate financing, efficient administration and sufficient trained personnel for Los Angeles County Juvenile Hall."

Second half of the study, shown on the 1956-57 agenda, will be needs of local government agencies concerned with the prevention and treatment of juvenile delinquency.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS members from throughout California will gather in Long Beach May 15 through 17, setting up headquarters at the Lafayette Hotel for their 35th annual state convention. To Long Beach goes the distinction of being not only convention "home," but also of having one of its leading citizens, Mrs. Alexis Jacoubowsky, standing right, as general chairman of the conclave. Among those assisting Mrs. Jacoubowsky on the convention committee are, from left, Mrs. W. D. Morris, Mrs. Harvey A. Barr, League president, and Mrs. Edythe Carman.

State Convention Slated Here

Thirty-fifth annual convention of the League of Woman Voters of California will take place in Long Beach with headquarters at the Lafayette Hotel, May 15 through 17. Mrs. Alexis Jacoubowsky of Long Beach has been appointed conclave chairman, and Mrs. Paul Holmer of Kentfield, state president, will preside.

Delegates from 44 Leagues throughout the state will meet here to formulate plans for the coming year. Possible action as a result of the current study on education in California will be determined, and the League's legislative program and action on ballot measures also will be discussed.

On the California level, a study of "The Administrative and Financial Structure of Public Education in California" is taking place in Leagues throughout the state during 1955-57. Mrs. Rebecca Loy is Long Beach chairman for the study topic.

Divided into two sections, the first year's study was on finance, and this spring marks the beginning of a year's study on the administrative structure of California Public Schools.

A special feature of the gathering will be reports from the national conclave scheduled April 30 to May 4 in Chicago, Ill. Representing the Long Beach League in Chicago will be Mrs. Harvey A. Barr, president, and Miss Mary Bell.

The League of Women Voters is a nonpartisan organization established in 1920 to study and act on governmental issues. An organization of "doers," League members dig in primarily at the local level, and it is there the League probably has its greatest impact.

The League has a membership of 127,000 with nearly 1,000 local groups in the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii and the District of Columbia. It has an unusual organizational setup, with local Leagues remarkably independent of each other on local issues, and providing a grass root basis for national policy.

The League does not support or oppose political parties or candidates. After intensive study it may take a position on an issue provided there is a consensus among the membership. It then supports or opposes specific legislation in accordance with that position.

Members are encouraged to work in the political party of their choice, but leaders closely identified in the public mind with the work of the League may not be active workers in their parties while holding League office.

MTA Speaker

"The American Symphony" is the topic of guest speaker Marian Higgins who will present her program before members of the Music Teachers' Association. The meeting is to be in Municipal Art Center Wednesday at 10:00 a. m.

MOTIVATED BY A DESIRE to keep informed on governmental issues—local, state and national—and in turn to inform the community, the unit meeting of the Long Beach League of Women Voters proves to be the "heart" of the organization. Units are divided into geographic areas for study, and all units are brought together periodically for general meetings and an exchange of knowledge. Meeting in a typical unit session in the picture at left are Mrs. Victor Willits, Mrs. David Mealiffe (standing), Mrs. Arthur Loy, Miss Emma Greenman and Miss Charlotte McGee. Still another phase of the League's work is shown in the picture at right which features a panel from the group's speakers' bureau. Speakers are available to any community group, with talks prepared on ballot issues, both pro and con, as well as current League study topic, "The Administration of Juvenile Hall." Panel members are, from left, Mrs. Stewart S. Small, Mrs. David W. Rose, Mrs. Robert H. Minor and Mrs. Ruth Foster Herman.

Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

Essence of Bernice and "Curly" Stansbury's gay and pretty party yesterday was "please come by for cocktails so that we may introduce you to our new home." Consequently, invitations like that being among the most popular, a bevy of their friends said "we're so pleased to know you" to 1114 Tehachapi Dr.

Among those who toasted the new manse with amber liquids were Marguerita and Don Hall, Hazel and George Robinson, Nance and Bill Winston, Alma and Elmer Decker, and Donna Decker, Mildred and Bob Cook and Velma and Monk Cook.

Others who happily nibbled on tempting hors d'oeuvres were the Boyd McKinleys, Mable and Ned Brown, Oma and "Slim" Fowler, Muriel and Lloyd Hill, Frankie and Win Payne and Mildred and John Koster.

Most sought after couple present were Rosemary Applegate and Einar Peterson because, we've been told, they plan to marry in the near future! Then, let's see, other guests included Helene and Paul Dutton, Mollie and Bob Reid, Alice and Jack Stansbury, Nell and Irving Recknagel, Lucille and Harry Owens, Ann and Onas Lindsay, Gloria and Park Shorthose, Freda Owens and daughter, Diane Owens, and Paulette and Carl Herwick.

Couldn't be anything more pleasant than greeting old friends and meeting new people predestined to become close acquaintances! That's the way it will be when Donna Ridings entertains at a coffee hour for sister-in-law, Rosemary Jackson, this coming Wednesday. Rosemary and Howard are back in the civilian fold again after about 10 years Army duty. The Jacksons have bought a home near the Ridings on Myrtle and so Donna has asked soon-to-be neighbors over to meet Rosemary as well as friends from years gone by.

That popular and pretty new bride about town, Rosie Nicholson, was feted at a bridge luncheon Friday for 12 close friends by Peggy Akers in her home, 900 Cartagena. Lots of friendly laughter, talk, good food—and of course some bridge!

A coonskin cap darn near stole the show—laughwise, at least—at the GOP Jr.'s smart headdress ball last Saturday night at Lakewood Country Club. What's more it was worn very a la Estes Kefauver by Dr. Earl Gates in a sly rib-poker at all the staunch Republicans present. Which for no particular reason except as a rejoinder to Dr. Gates reminds us of the Washingtonian who said she felt out of date wearing her 1952 "I Like Ike" campaign button. Newest being sported in the capital read, "I Used to Like Ike—Now I Adore Him!"

Back to the GOP party. It was really loads of fun and there was never a lack of something to look at or talk about with all the clever head decorations devised by guests. Lorraine (Mrs. Mel) Hamer won sweepstakes prize for an exotic "Bridey Murphy Dream" creation. In the amateur division (headdresses made by the wearer herself) Kay (Mrs. William) Nesbitt took first honors for a luscious "Dream of a Kashmir Garden"; Edith (Mrs. Lewis) Hindley was second winner for her gay and stalwart "GOP Victory" head gear, and Dorothy (Mrs. Norris) Nelson was third place winner for a modernistic "Rocket-to-the-Moon" creation.

In the professional division (headdresses created for the wearer) Frances (Mrs. Lorris) O'Bryan took first honors and Pat (Mrs. James F.) Collins was second. Large kudos from everyone to Pat Horrocks and husband, Harold, for chairmanship of the affair and to Audrey Romeyn, president, and her staunch "right hand husband," Arnold.

Been conscious of the general exodus from Long Beach to Palm Springs this weekend? We have the reason: another of Frances and Henry Clock's elegant parties in their rambling desert home. Lots and lots of local people were bidden for cocktails and buffet yesterday.

Flashing eyed, laughing exuberance filled Doris Richards' 3905 Myrtle Ave. home last Sunday as Doris entertained for daughter, Janice, and her whole complement of just-turned-active Theta sisters from USC. In all 23 pledges and their dates celebrated the end of THAT week over buffet and fun-filled hours. Among the cute young gals present were Marjory Thomas (daughter of a certain Danny T.) and Sandy Crabbe (whose father is known as Buster).

Tiny Bertha Jaques took her courage in her own two fists and decided she'd fly off to New Orleans just for the sightseeing. Its a city she's never seen and always wanted to. She flew away last Saturday and on her return will stop in Houston, Texas, to visit daughter and son-in-law, Donna and Gordon Bartholomew and Bertha's little grandchildren, Stevie and Doug. She expects to be home by May Day.

This has been a year spelled out in capitals for Olive (Mrs. Sumi) Swanson and it isn't slowing up one bit. The YEAR has included rebuilding their home, traveling in Europe, greeting a new grandson, redecorating the rebuilt house and now comes a big reception today, a sort of open house for their refurbished home. Assisting will be the Swanson's daughter, Gloria Grandle, and their daughter-in-law, Deedee Swanson; Olive's sister, Della Goodmundson, as well as Gertrude Winston, Ella Burgess, Olivia Dodge and May Cook. About 130 Los Angeles and Long Beach friends have been bidden.

Tuesday Olive will entertain for Icelandic war brides of the area—about 35 in all—at a party in honor of Sumi's niece from Iceland who arrived last Saturday to make her home here with the Swansons. The honoree is tall, blond and Nordic Hrefna Asgeirson—a name to baffle and intrigue American ears, owned by a girl whose charm, nonetheless, will capture American hearts!

Ivah Blumenstein flew out of town last weekend, straight as a plane-line for Chicago, where she'll visit daughter, Carol, and her son-in-law. "Bush" plans to drive back about May 1 to visit, too, and chauffeur Ivah home.

Moving day has come and gone for Janice Humphreys who has almost outgrown the which-drawer-did-I-put-it-in phase by now in her new Belmont Park home.

If cute Sandy Hubbell ever travels to Monaco she'll have half the natives thinking she's "Her Grace, Grace." Her resemblance to Ia Kelly was noted repeatedly when she modeled at a Panhellenic fashion show last Saturday in a big Angelville store, a charming representative of her Delta Gamma chapter at USC.

Jack Teele, he with the collegiate good looks, Independent's sport's scribe and author of the zippy "Sports About Town" column gave this society scribe's world series opinions (baseball stuff, dear ladies) space last Tuesday. His remarks were much more clever than our pennant selections. But we'd still like to see the Braves and the Indians take to the warpath come series time! But, alas, the vanishing American!

'Mr. Willie' Is Quite a Man!

By ILKA CHASE

I went to call upon my old friend Mr. Willie. Many call him Willie; I call him Mister because he is elderly and famous. A good many thousands, possibly millions, after so long a time call him W. Somerset Maugham.

Mr. W. Somerset Maugham lives at Cap Perat, about half an hour—if you know the way — from Monte Carlo, and I drove over to have tea with him while I was doing my stint on the Kelly-Rainier wedding.

In treating me to the owner's tour through his beautiful house he showed me a batch of communications from the palace, inviting him to the wedding and assorted functions. He grumbled a bit about having to put on a stiff shirt and white tie in the morning, but I took it with a grain of salt. After all, what with those Coronations and openings of Parliament, many Englishmen pass their days looking like contestants on Masquerade Party, and I think he was secretly pleased to have been included in the festivities.

Not that he feels very much out of things, I shouldn't think. Hostesses clamor for him, and such obscure characters as Sir Winston Churchill count their day made when they lunch with him, although I understand the great statesman was heard to mutter that the stairs were a so-and-so nuisance and Willie should jolly-well install a lift.

As one who can claim neither the age nor the fame of Sir Winston, I am inclined to agree. It is tactless of Mr. Willie to be so spry at eighty-two. Not only are the staircases of his house long and high, but the house is set in a nine-acre property lavishly terraced, and he sprints like a gazelle up and down the outside stairs as well.

His happens to be a face for which I have great affection, but you could scarcely call it benign, and there is a detached waspish satisfaction in his gaze as he watches you huffing and puffing at his heels.

After a lifetime of acclaim there is little point in underestimating oneself. Maugham said quite frankly that his present to the Grimaldis had been three handsomely-bound volumes of his own short stories. "Less expensive for me than a jewel and more valuable to them." I gave to him, by way of a reunion present, a copy of my novel, "The Island Players," with qualms!

Maugham, in the quiet room at the top of his house looking out over the Mediterranean, now writes only about an hour a day. "But an hour every day, that mounts up," he said. In the past he has written religiously four hours a day and always in longhand. "I wish I could use a typewriter—I get bad writer's cramp." But a lifetime habit doesn't die. Besides, a handwritten manuscript is extra-ordinarily potent.

In March, when I went to San Francisco for a Book and Author Luncheon, I went to call on Mr. Bertram Alanson, an old friend of Maughams, who showed me the original manuscript of "Rain" that he has owned for many years. The handwriting evoked the man and his period and his thought as a typewritten sheet never can, and the tears stood in my eyes. It is a wonderful story.

It is wonderful, too, to wander through his high, square house, looking at his fine collection of the French impressionists, Pissarro and Sisley, Renoir and Matisse, an early Picasso and an early Utrillo; delightful to stroll along the terraced hillsides and gape at the swimming pool—to which any Hollywood pool would ripple a salute—and to say to oneself, glancing at the host at one's side, "an engaging combination of the sharp and mellow and very wise. Neither an assembly line nor a stock market nor an oil well did it, simply what came from that one small skull and that one right hand — with an assist from the lad in Gutenberg who happened to turn up with a printing press."

Pilot Club Installs; Quota to Host Gay Carnival

Popular Margaret Darby, office manager and assistant secretary for the Long Beach Recreation Commission since its inception, was installed president of Pilot Club of Long Beach at impressive ceremonies Wednesday night in the Starlight Roof of the Lafayette Hotel.

Mrs. Darby, who has a more than average "sidewalk superintendent" interest in architecture and construction acquired vicariously through her son, a designing civil engineer in San Francisco, will be joined in "piloting" Pilots by her officers Martha McRae, first vice president; Frances Catchpole, second vice president; Beulah Gee, treasurer; Lorene Yett, corresponding secretary; Virginia Rogers, recording secretary; and by directors Margaret Fenwick, Edith Klien, Virginia Linabury, Vern Preston, Ruth E. Tay (immediate past president) and Glada Thrall.

Joseph M. Kennick, chief of the Juvenile Bureau, was guest speaker and chose for his subject, "Service and Understanding, a Bridge to Peace" — which is also the theme of Pilot International for the year. Installation ceremonies were centered around a bridge motif with officers and directors each adding a span to complete the symbolic golden bridge as she took office.

Executives' Secretaries

"April in Paris" was the lighthearted theme for Executives' Secretaries meeting Monday at the Chandelier Restaurant and the theme was vastly enhanced by the songs of talented member Anne Barrows who entertained with several French compositions and by showing of glamorous colored pictures by Agnes Herbst taken on her recent trip to Europe.

President Georgia Gagna conducted the meeting with Grace Cooney, program chairman, presenting the program.

Dental Assistants

A new type of fashion show—but certainly a practical one for Harbor District Dental Assistants was presented at their dinner meeting Monday in the Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel. The dental assistants were shown a complete array of latest uniforms from Nelsons as well as after office hours styles from Micheles. Modeling were club members Jean Hatch, Helen Tenkoff, Eva Miner, Rosemary Leedom, Chesna Duls, Pat Inge, Theresa Hansen and Bettye Watkins.

Preceding dinner and fashion show members gathered at 6:30 for the customary social hour. Harriet Beadle was chairman in charge of the evening's activities. Mothers of members were especially honored on this evening. Decorations were carried out in a spring motif by Mary Ellen Doll. Business-wise, two major events took place — the election of new officers and presentation of the Clinic Trophy Award for the winning clinician. Winning clinician was Eva Miner for her presentation of "Credit and Collections" at the March meeting.

Elected to serve during the next year were Rosemary Leedom, president; Harriet Beadle, president-elect; Jean Hatch, vice president; Eva Hastings, recording secretary; Bettye Watkins, corresponding secretary; and Chesna Duls, treasurer. President Viola Engel conducted the meeting.

Mrs. H. L. Collins Named Fleet Wives President

Beautiful music, beautiful clothes and echoes of "Isn't that stunning" filled the Officers Club at Allen Center when board members of the Fleet Officers' Wives Club staged a lovely fashion show as their final function of the club year.

Nor was the style affair the only exciting business of the day. Election of officers preceded the program and named to lead the active Navy wives through the coming year was Mrs. H.L. Collins, wife of Adm. Collins who is Commander of Cruiser Division One, here. Mrs. Collins is well used to club offices having lately been vice president of the Treasure Island Officers Wives Club where her husband served as Commander, Military Sea Transport Service.

Elected to serve with Mrs. Collins were Mmes. N. P. Watkins, first vice president; Earl E. Buckwalter, second vice president; H. A. May, secretary; and L. E. Darby, treasurer.

During the showing of new styles from a Beverly Hills shop everyone from admirals' wives to ensigns' wives were busy taking notes on fashion ideas for their own wardrobes. Mrs. Joseph Rayburn was chairman of the show and models were all officers' wives including Mmes. W. F. Hardman, R. D. Faubian, J. E. Labarre, M. L. Hermsmeyer, E. B. Flory, Donald Pommer and Robert W. McElrath.

Commentator was Keith Gibson, who has been a commentator for Don Loper, California designer. Responsible for the lovely floral table decorations were Mmes. R. Ross, K. T. Shortall and O. B. Parker.

CAUGHT INFORMALLY by the camera lens as she chatted over her coffee cup is Mrs. H. L. Collins, just after her election as new president of Fleet Officers' Wives Club. Wife of Adm. Collins, commander of Cruiser Division I, the new president was elected at the last meeting of the club.

Special Teaching Methods Explained to Soroptimists

June Giddings, supervisor of special education in the Long Beach Schools, was recent guest speaker for Soroptimist Club at its noon luncheon meeting at the Lafayette Hotel. Her provocative talk, "What's Special in Special Education," was supplemented with color slides exemplifying the special techniques and equipment used in this field of teaching.

For certain physically handicapped children, Miss Giddings explained, home-school telephones are installed so the child at home actually "attends" regular classes; can answer questions, talk to his classmates and feel part of the every day school life. For the blind and partially blind there are Braille writers and books with large print or in Braille. Special tables and equipment for teaching coordination and color are used by children with cerebral palsy. These youngsters are provided with taxi transportation if parents are unable to bring them to school.

For the deaf and those with seriously impaired hearing there are lip-reading classes as well as hearing equipment for teaching through vibration. For the mentally retarded many methods are used to educate them to the farthest degree of their ability. In every case, the child—as a person—comes first.

Miss Giddings was introduced by Javus Fortman, who presided in the absence of President Gladdes Neff while Mrs. Neff was in attendance at a Soroptimist conference in Las Vegas.

Pythian Sisters

Long Beach Temple No. 63, Pythian Sisters, will meet Monday at 8 p. m. in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave.

Messicks Complete Southwest Lectures

By VERA WILLIAMS
Independent, Press-Telegram Art Editor

Ben and Velma Messick, 133 St. Joseph Ave., are back from a New Mexico and Arizona tour on which Messick, a fellow of the Royal Society of Arts in England and winner of many awards, gave 10 lectures and demonstrations.

He appeared at La Posada Hall, Santa Fe; Blue Door Gallery, Taos, N. M.; Botts Memorial Hall, Albuquerque; University of Arizona, Tucson; Tucson Art Center; Phoenix Art Center and Arizona State College, Tempe.

On much of the tour they were accompanied by Michael M. Engel of New York, director of art research for M. Grumbacher of New York, and wife, Mary Black Diller, portrait painter. The Engels, who have been at Grand Canyon for several days, are expected in Long Beach this weekend.

The visiting artists were entertained by the New Mexico Art League at Albuquerque; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bates of Albuquerque (Mrs. Bates is president of the New Mexico Art League); Emil Bisstram, head of the Taos School of Art, and Mrs. Bisstram (Mrs. Messick studied under Bisstram when he was in Los Angeles some years ago); Powell Scott, head of the art department of the University of Arizona; Frances O'Brien, Tucson portrait painter who does many magazine covers, and Dr. Harry Wood, head of the art department of Arizona State College.

A painting done by Messick in the demonstration in the Phoenix Art Center has been framed and hangs in the permanent collection there.

Messick did some traditional painting and several abstract designs. Into the abstract design he then painted a traditional subject, showing the importance of good drawing, as well as design and color for painting.

The Messicks sketched in Taos and in Oak Creek Canyon, Ariz. It was snowing in Oak Creek, and they drove away with four inches of snow on their car.

A loss to art circles in the greater Long Beach area was felt this week with the resignation by Miss Judith Cieslak as educational curator of Municipal Art Center. She has been granted a Fulbright scholarship for nine months graduate study at the University of Paris.

Her termination with the Art Center is April 30. Until she sails for France in September she will visit with her parents in Chicago.

Interested in esoteric problems related to 19th Century art, Miss Cieslak plans to write a monograph on Gustave Moreau, an obscure 19th Century French painter.

She will attempt to show him as a symptomatic figure of maladies of his century. Her project has been approved by the commission granting the scholarships.

To qualify, a candidate must have superior scholastic aptitude and background and ability to meet situations. Since funds for the scholarships are contributed by foreign countries and distributed through the state department, those granted the scholarships are known as good will ambassadors from the U. S.

Miss Cieslak studied art history at the University of Minnesota, received her master's degree there and was a university teaching and research assistant there before coming to Long Beach.

Drawings and paintings created for exchange among the youth of many nations through Junior Red Cross may be seen this week in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Hours will be 1-6 p. m. today; 9-5 p. m. Tuesday through Friday. Background music from many countries will be supplied by recordings.

Twenty-three paintings by California artists, including Francis de Erdely, Leonard Edmondson, Richard Haines, S. MacDonald-Wright, Richards Ruben, Sueo Serisawa, Millard Sheets and Howard Warshaw will be shown through May 13 in Municipal Art Center, 2030 E. Ocean Blvd.

Also displayed through May 13 at the Art Center are Creative Photography, exhibit of photographs including work by Roger Coar and Victor Haveman of Long Beach and Henry Niska of San Pedro; ceramics by Ward Yourey, State College instructor, and three prize-winning paintings by Fran Soldini and seven paintings by her students.

This is the last day to see Haitian primitive paintings in Pomona College's Rembrandt Hall, Claremont. From Pomona College, the exhibit will go to the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco. The paintings come partly from the collection of Jason Seley of New York and mostly from the Centre d'Arte, Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

Mrs. Virgil Koon Elected to Head N. L. B. Women

Meeting in Jordan Hi-Teen Canteen Wednesday, members of North Long Beach Women's Club elected Mrs. Virgil Koon president. The new executive brings to her office a rich background of club experience. Within her own organization she has served on many committees, including publicity, program, Americanism, federation secretary and corresponding secretary, and was a member of the Choralettes.

This year she has served as literature chairman of the County Federation, CFWC; was on the Council of Parents and Teachers; is a past president of Jordan High School, where she was awarded a life membership. She is a member of North Long Beach Methodist Church choir, sings with the Long Beach Civic Chorus and is a member of Florella Guild, Auxiliary to Children's Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.

Williams; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. A. Robinson; financial secretary, Mrs. R. A. Terrell; treasurer, Mrs. R. C. Auth; general chairman of standing committees, Mrs. Earl Heise; and curator of departments, Mrs. William O'Harra.

The program, arranged by the Garden Department under direction of Mrs. Jasper Sanders, featured as speaker Mrs. J. W. Jenson from the African Violet and Begonia Societies.

Group Seven, with Mrs. William Adams as chairman, served as hostesses at the sandwich and salad bar. Stage decorations of colorful spring blossoms were arranged by Mrs. Lester Peebles. Greeting guests and members at the door were Mmes. Carl Puckett, Abrahamson and Paul Lawrence.

Under direction of Mrs. J. L. Montague, group advisor, names were drawn for new groups; chairmen will be chosen at a later date. Mrs. Lee Carter, president, conducted the business session at which time the award for the Institutions and Veterans Affairs, won at the district convention, was displayed.

Events on the future calendar announced were: Book and Travel Department to meet April 23 with Mrs. Earl Heise, 6516 California Ave., for election of new officers; Philanthropy Department, to meet with Mrs. Pearl Lumley, 3955 Locust Ave. April 25 for covered dish luncheon and election; and a card party to be sponsored by the latter department and the Project Committee April 30 at North Long Beach YMCA. Proceeds will be used to complete the furnishing of the YMCA kitchen.

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

—by PLACER MINER—

Advice for the future can be obtained by attending the annual Business Career Day Conference at Long Beach State College, next Friday, April 27.

Sponsored by the State College business fraternity, Psi Kappa Alpha, the program offers to high school and junior college students the facts, figures, and futures in six major business fields.

The program will get under way with a luncheon for fraternity members at the Hawaiian.

Campus activities will start at 1 p. m. in the Little Theatre, with speakers in the fields of accounting, business education, finance, management, marketing and personnel. A special agent for the FBI will also be on hand.

All business students from State College, surrounding high schools and junior colleges have been invited to take advantage of the conference, get acquainted with Long Beach State College, and be guests of Psi Kappa Alpha.

It's politickin time out at Long Beach State College. The 49er campus not to be outdone by all this national excitement, has come to the time, as it does each year, to choose new students officers.

However, this is not a matter to be rushed into. All candidates must take a test on the school constitution, restrict their posters around the campus to 50 square feet, and not spend more than $10 for publicity and advertising.

Publicity posters were not allowed up before 7 a. m. last Thursday and must be taken down by 9 p. m. next Tuesday. Perhaps it is needless to add that careful restrictions were laid down to keep the posters from defacing the campus and its buildings.

The holders of 23 offices will be decided next Tuesday, and if a run off is necessary, it will be held Friday.

Those two Mexican trips reported here last week have turned out to be only one.

Instead of two trips, there is a choice of two courses. Option No. 1 is: The student may take the full course which includes the two-week instructional course before the trip, or, No. 2, the trip itself.

College credit will be given for the trips which are under the direction of LBSC instructor Oliver P. Johnstone. The trip will cover territory from Guadalajara to Oaxaca, to Puebla to Acapulco. Cost of the tour is $550, which includes transportation, lodgings, and meals.

Perhaps you might have noticed it! Summer is approaching, and summer means employment to a lot of students.

The Long Beach State College Placement Office keeps students informed of potential jobs, arranges for students to apply for jobs, and invites representatives from employers and firms to visit the college and talk to graduating students.

Next week, for example, three representatives from different firms will be on hand to look for promising additions to their companies.

Part time work is also taken care of by the placement office. It's quite a service the school offers and quite a few students take advantage of it. A job is sometimes the difference between school or no school.

Beards, well I guess! The campus looks as though it was either a spring camp for a House of David convention, or a return to the days of the forty-niners.

Rules covering the facial growth have decided that two prizes will be given. One for the longest beard, and one for the beard requiring the most effort. Just what the effort is no one but the judges know. Perhaps it's growing it; some of those guys are really putting their heart into the project.

State Conclave

Long Beach Gold Star Mothers Inc. will be represented at the state convention of their organization at the Statler Hotel, Los Angeles, April 23-25, by Elsie Scruggs, Margaret Winter and nine delegates and eight alternates.

May Day Luncheon at Allen Center to Be Gay Event for Officers' Wives

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

With May Day as their theme, with its gay accent on beautiful flowers and lovely spring colors, the busy Officers' Wives Club of Long Beach will meet on May 1 at 12:30 p. m. at the Officers Club, Allen Center, for an important luncheon meeting. This will be the time of election of officers for the coming year and all members are urged to attend to cast their vote.

Now another important note to remember is that reservations must be called in to either Mrs. R. M. Whelpley or Mrs. J. L. McAnn by noon of Saturday, April 28.

As do so many high-ranking retired Navy folks, so do the former residents of this city, Capt. Dirk M. te Groen, USN, (ret) and Mrs. te Groen who have returned to call this their permanent home.

Just back from Corpus Christi, Texas, where Capt. te Groen was commanding officer of the Naval Hospital there, the well known couple have taken residence at 5291 E. 27th St. and Capt. te Groen has just taken the position of associate director of the Harbor Branch of the Los Angeles General Hospital located in Torrance.

Prior to the te Groens' duty and residence in Texas, they enjoyed three wonderful years seeing parts of Europe while the medical officer was stationed in Italy where he was senior medical officer for NATO.

While in Italy, Mrs. te Groen said, they attended many brilliant social events that included nations of all the world and were superb in their Old World charm and graciousness.

Among the loveliest spring luncheon parties of the entire season was the recent event given at the Assistance League Clubhouse by Mmes. Arthur Moen, G. W. McMillin, D. C. Laizure and F. D. Truesdell for their many civilian and service friends in this area.

A surprise potluck luncheon plus a lovely farewell gift was given last Tuesday for popular Mrs. Gene Fair by members of the Tuesday Bridge Club. Among those attending were: Mmes. Dale Everly, William House, Nap Rainbolt, Gus Kraft, Frank Lowry, Paul Greeny, Leon Forman and Willis Brooks at whose home the affair took place.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig are enjoying a vacation in Palm Springs and are spending some time at Lake Arrowhead.

House guests of Lt. and Mrs. A. E. Hohn are the Navy officer's nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Steen from Luverne, Minn.

In San Francisco seeing the cosmopolitan sights of the hilly city are Col. and Mrs. Frank Lowry of this city.

Newly-elected president of the Long Beach Air Force Officers' Wives Club, Mrs. Nick DiGiglio, announced the appointment of her committees: Mmes. J. W. Underwood, hospitality; Betty Kline, ways and means; Connie Turpin, entertainment; N. Rainbolt, military dependents league; Irene Palmer, liaison; Xyla Steverson, bridge; and Kathrine Alverson, welfare.

Wednesday, April 18, the Mine Forces Officers' Wives Club met at Welch's for a spring luncheon party; hostesses were Mrs. Thomas B. Wilson and Mrs. William Schaefer.

Back from the Far East is former 2nd Lt. John Peterson, who is now a civilian. He and Mrs. Peterson and family were in Berkeley recently visiting Mrs. Peterson's folks, and will remain here until fall, when they will move to the Bay area, where the former Air Force officer plans to attend law school in San Francisco.

Cmdr. B. P. O'Hare enjoyed fishing with friends at San Felipe, Mexico, recently.

Enjoying dinner and visiting with T/Sgt. and Mrs. Robert Bragg in Riverside were M/Sgt. and Mrs. Albert T. Sandborn.

Mrs. Kalgern and children, Karen and Cheryl, are remaining here while Staff Sgt. Blaine A Kalgern is on temporary additional duty at Parks Air Force Base near San Francisco.

While A-1c Ralph W. Murphy goes on to duty in Goose Bay, Labrador, his wife, Mrs. Murphy, and children, Francis and Christopher, will go to Mrs. Murphy's former home in London, England, to visit friends and relatives, while awaiting her husband's return. Because of the extreme hardship and cold, families are not allowed to go to Goose Bay.

At a recent meeting of the NCO Wives Club of the Long Beach Air Base where Mrs. Murphy was honored with a farewell shower, she expressed gratitude for the kindness and friendly feeling she found here in Long Beach for service families.

It was really different and loads of fun, the exciting do-it-yourself barbecue party held recently at BOQ, NAS, Los Alamitos, by the officers of that station and their ladies as a farewell event honoring the former executive officer, Cmdr. and Mrs. B. A. Miles, who are leaving shortly for Lincoln, Neb. There the newly-promoted captain will assume command of the Naval Air Station.

At the party, Capt. Joseph B. Paschal presented Capt. Miles with a lovely farewell gift from officers of the station.

Lt. Cmdr. A. McDonald and family left Friday for a vacation in Tucson, Ariz., to visit with relatives and then will go on to Sacramento to see friends and relatives before returning home.

Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. R. R. Lovelady and family are leaving for a vacation in Lubbock and Coleman, Tex., to see relatives and friends.

Churches Need Service From Their Lay People

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case R-336; Bert B., aged 31, is married and has two children.

"Dr. Crane, I need some vocational advice," he began, unhappily. "I am a die maker with Alcoa and have a steady job. But my mother always wanted me to be a clergyman.

"I couldn't see things her way while I was younger but now I realize the valuable leadership that preachers offer their communities.

"So I am wondering if maybe I shouldn't go back to school and study to be a minister. I have a wonderful wife and she says she will sacrifice to help me go to college. So what do you suggest I do?"

Nowadays the churches are emphasizing that ministers obtain four years of college and then an additional three years in theological seminary.

That means seven years of schooling would lie ahead of Bert. The financial strain would likewise be great, since he is married and has two children to support.

So I reminded him that a layman can exert a tremendous amount of good if he will serve as a sparkplug in the church. Indeed, the founder of the Christian religion was a layman. For Jesus was not of the priestly tribe of Levi, nor had he attended a theological seminary.

Jesus was a carpenter from the non-clerical tribe of Judah. If on earth today, he would possibly speak to us as an AFL member of the Carpenter's Union.

Furthermore, Jesus chose 12 Apostles to serve as the mainstays of the new Christian religion. Oddly enough, not even ONE of those Apostles was a clergyman.

No, they were ordinary workers, such as fishermen, Christ was surrounded by many trained clergymen but he didn't select even one of them for an Apostle.

The greatest sparkplug in building new churches during that first century A. D., was also a man who worked all day as a tentmaker. His name was Paul. He probably devoted 10 hours per day (maybe 12) to his job of sewing canvas to make tents.

Only when, figuratively, the quitting whistle had blown, did he shift his energy to the absorbing hobby or avocation which has made him famous—namely, the job of preaching on street corners and the founding of little mission churches.

Clergymen are the most influential men in modern society and we need to recruit topnotch youth for these vital posts.

But laymen should never feel discouraged. They can emulate St. Paul and leave a lasting imprint of their constructive personality on civilization, just by their lay work in moral societies.

Think of the splendid services rendered in the Red Cross and Community Chest Drives.

So in Bert's case I suggested that he could probably do more good for the cause of the church as a livewire layman and Boy Scout leader than go back to college for a 7-year schooling.

Your Baby & Mine

Are You a 'Spanker'?

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Whenever we mention the subject of spanking we get all kinds of responses to it. Largely because all mothers do not think the same about spanking. The same motives do not influence them and so no two of them can see the subject in the same way.

There are about four general categories into which we might place mothers and note their probable differences and thus why their reactions are so varying.

First there is the mother who never, never will spank. She doesn't believe in it. She doesn't think it effective. She considers persons who use it to be "low" and ignorant.

Also, she has a sense of revulsion at belaboring a helpless child. She may use many other methods of punishment (and some of these might be equally ineffective) but her intelligence will not allow her to use spanking.

There is a large group of intelligent and thoughtful mothers who use spanking occasionally. They do this when the child's behavior is such that they consider this to be the ultimate remedy. They want to show their disapproval strongly and words and milder punishment do not seem to fill the bill. They spank infrequently but firmly and painfully, when necessary. They intend to show the child that he has gone beyond the limits of their endurance.

There are many parents who use no other form of discipline. They spank as easily as they yell. It is a spontaneous kind of behavior and the child expects it, doesn't think too much of it, yells in return, gets out of the way and isn't either helped or harmed too much by it. He knows when his mother disapproves and if he feels her disapproval is justified he may react to it. If he thinks it unjust, he screams and cries loudly enough to satisfy her that he is being punished and then he goes on and does as he pleases again.

There is another type of parent who is sadistic in her approach to a child's misbehavior. She doesn't like children. She is mad at life and all its frustrations. She wants to hurt something and children are an easily available target. In this way she gets back at something for having loaded her with responsibilities and burdens she has no way of sloughing off.

How could one expect that these four general types of mothers would think of spanking in the same way? They are intellectually, emotionally and temperamentally separated from each other.

The parent who takes out on her children the blows fate has dealt her, is cruel and mean. She damages her child because she destroys his belief and confidence in himself. She wants to hurt and she does, not only physically but emotionally.

It's apparent that just to say you're for or against spanking doesn't mean much unless you know what type of mother is using it—and how.

Nine-Day Diet Follows on the Heels of Spring

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

When 9-Day Diet appears in Why Grow Old? you can be sure that it's spring! Each year along with the robins and flowers and new leaves comes this short diet series to help you get ready for swim suits and light summer clothing.

We are likely to pick up a few extra pounds during the winter months, in fact many of us are apt to pick up a few most any old time when we become careless about our calorie intake.

However, many women begin the fall slim and sleek or just a little overweight and then comes Thanksgiving. We just get over that when Christmas arrives, with New Year's celebrations following immediately afterward. Then, too, we are less active physically in winter weather and cold winds whet our appetites.

The result of all this may be a gain of from five to 10 pounds, just the number you can lose in nine days' time. It is so much easier to stick to a diet if you know just what you can accomplish in a given length of time, especially when the time is short.

So 9-Day Diet can solve your problem quickly is you have just a few pounds to lose. If you are many more than 10 pounds overweight it will give you an encouraging start on a longer reducing trek.

Tomorrow I will give you your diet for Tuesday so that you will be able to do your marketing on Monday. Therefore, 9-Day Diet will begin on Monday in the Press-Telegram and last for nine days. Each day the menus for the following day will appear in this column.

If you would like to have my complete 9-Day Reducing Diet in a pocketbook-size booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

"When in doubt, lead trumps," West murmured to himself at the beginning of today's hand. This may have been good advice in the days of whist, but the rule has no place in contract bridge. It is particularly foolish to lead trumps against a slam contract.

The trump lead was welcomed by Alvin Landy, executive manager of the American Contract Bridge League, during the recent tournament for the Harold S. Vanderbilt Trophy. Landy, an expert as well as a tournament manager, proceeded to run off the rest of the trumps to see what he could find out.

It would have been safe for East to discard all of his hearts and one diamond. He might have been able to come to this conclusion if West had opened the deuce of hearts. With no information at all to guide him, East floundered and sank. At a fairly early stage he discarded the nine and then the jack of clubs.

Landy saw East's distress and correctly interpreted the club discards. He led the king of clubs from his hand, forcing out the ace and picking up the queen at the same time. The ten of clubs was then good for his twelfth trick.

Alvin F. Slaight

Chef of the Week
'Turned Out to Pasture,' Retired Chief Still Racing

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

He's retired! After 21 years with the Long Beach Police Department, five of which he served as its chief, Chef of the Week Alvin F. (Al) Slaight is now "down on the farm." The city limits of Long Beach surround it, however.

Though born in Ava, Mo., the county seat, Slaight moved with his family to central Kansas in time for his grand entry into kindergarten. He was a full-fledged Kansas lad (19 years) when he deserted the prairie for the sea. With the U. S. Navy, he toured the world on the USS Pennsylvania.

It was in 1926 that he came to Long Beach and joined the police department. Starting as a patrolman he went up the ranks, becoming its chief in 1944. He held that position until retirement in 1949. Some big name gamblers came under his surveillance as head of the vice squad during the robust gambling ship era. It was Slaight who had the graveyard watch at the time of the still mysterious anti-aircraft "raid" early in World War II.

A fullback with a reputation, Slaight captained the Long Beach Police team for a period of two years.

His hobbies are horses, and he has ridden since he was big enough to sit atop one—even including circuit races. He presently rides with the Long Beach Mounted Police and has served them as a past president. Slaight officiated as general chairman when that group journeyed to Washington, D. C. to ride in President Eisenhower's inaugural parade. He "transported" some 126 people and 48 head of horses.

Though officially he has retired, being a man of action, he subsequently runs a used car business and owns a farm back in Kansas way.

Our "chef" is a man known for preferring his steaks "straight" and rare, yet he's gone fancy today, coming up with a recipe for Swiss Steak in sour cream.

SWISS STEAK IN SOUR CREAM

3 pounds round steak (2 inches thick)
Flour, salt, pepper, fat
2 onions, sliced
½ cup water
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons grated cheese
¼ teaspoon paprika

Dredge steak with flour and season with salt and pepper. Brown on both sides in hot fat. Add remaining ingredients; cover pan closely and simmer until meat is tender, about 2½ hours. Serves 6 to 8.

Jewell Tent

The Sewing Club of Emily R. Jewell Tent No. 15, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, will meet April 26 in Veterans Memorial Bldg. for a covered-dish luncheon at 11 a. m. and an afternoon of sewing and cards.

Election Slated

New officers will be elected and outgoing officers honored at a noon meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Harbor Chapter, Painting and Decorating Association on Thursday, April 26, at Sam's Sea Food Spa, Surfside. Mrs. C. L. Tewell and Mrs. Dan Alde will be hostesses.

Molly Mayfield
Hubby Has a 'Honeybunch'

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been happily married for four years. Happily married, that is, until three months ago. Then I discovered that my devoted (?) hubby and my best (?) friend were slipping little love notes to each other.

I always thought this best (?) friend of mine was just a bookworm. Every time she came to our house, she had her nose in the books. Then three months ago, I discovered her literary attraction. As I was dusting, I dropped a uniquely-bound red book. A note from her to my husband fell out of it. It was a gem! Here's how it began:

"Dearest Jim,

"It's a cold winter night, and I have a fire crackling in the fireplace. I'm sitting on the couch, and I'm wearing my gold robe, and what do you think I'm doing? Thinking of you, honeybunch, thinking of you . . ."

There was more drivel, but that will give you an idea. I kept watch and discovered that my husband would put similar sweet nothing in the red book, to be picked up later by her.

My husband always makes a fuss over me, and claims to love me. I think he does, in his way, but he wants a little fun on the side, I haven't said a word yet, but I'm about to. I think the thing that makes me maddest is that she always calls him "Honeybunch." Actually, I don't think this has progressed out of the note-writing stage. She's married, too.

Now, Molly, before I really blow my stack, advise me what to do. —BURNED-UP

DEAR BURNED-UP:

I can see you've kept your sense of humor through this, and that's a valuable ally. Maybe together we can break some spokes in that old gal's wheels.

You sit right down now and write a note to "Dear Honeybunch." Tell her you know the whole story, and that you'll gladly relinquish your husband to her, but only on condition that she marry him.

As for Hubby, start calling him "Honeybunch" at every opportunity. Now and then, you might even call him up at work and tell him, "I'm sitting on the couch thinking of you, Honeybunch, thinking of you." I'll bet he gets so sick of it he won't look at another "Honeybunch." Not for a while, anyway. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a girl just turned 16, and I think I have a hard problem. My mother won't let me do any of the things other girls in my classes do. I'm not allowed to wear lipstick or have dates. I can't even stay up past 8:30.

I can't date because Mother says no boys can be trusted. We have talked about dating at school, and the teacher says I should be allowed to have dates at my age. I'm not allowed to go to school doings, either.

I love my mother, but I think she is wrong about this. She says I'm boy-crazy and says other girls my age don't like boys. —DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE:

I never like to take sides against a mother, but in this case, I feel your mother is being unjust. She means the best for you, we both know, but she's away behind the times. Why, even in my day—and that was quite a while ago—girls of 16 were allowed to wear lipstick.

The 8:30 bedtime seems a mite severe, too. At 16, I don't think it would hurt your health to stay up regularly to oh, say 10 p.m., with a midnight curfew on Fridays.

And, of course, you should be allowed to attend some of the school functions with boys. That's part of the fun of going to high school, and no girl should miss it. Those school-day memories will be dear in after years.

I'll make two suggestions. One, show this letter to your mother. It might help. Two, ask your teacher to call on your mother, and perhaps invite her to look in on one of the school dances. Let's hope it works! M.M.

Next Saturday evening they will stage their annual spring dance in the Supper and Ballerina Rooms at Lafayette Hotel. Funds obtained from this final social event of the season will go to the club's philanthropic projects, Exceptional Children's Foundation and aid for Navajo Indian Children.

The dance is open to the public and tickets will be sold at the door. Music will be provided by George Laughlin and his Melody Crew.

In charge of arrangements is Mrs. Robert Greenberg, dance chairman. Mrs. Bernard Quinn and her committee are supervising decorations.

IT'S SPRING, and feminine fancies turn to new fashions. Ebell Juniors will have a chance to display new cotton cocktail dresses Saturday when they gather with husbands and friends at their annual spring dance in the Supper and Ballerina Rooms of Lafayette Hotel. Above, from left, Mmes. Bob Greenberg, chairman; John C. Dixon and William Guyser, president, look over the garden's offerings for party decor.—(Staff photo.)

Choosing, "Understanding" as her theme for the year, Mrs. Doris Dearden assumed the presidency of Margaret Ives Business and Professional Women's Club at a gala, beautifully appointed dinner meeting at the Lafayette Hotel Monday evening.

A floral setting emphasizing the federation colors of green and gold added color and beauty to the scene and provided a background for the impressive installation ceremony conducted by Myrl Cypher, past district president and a member of the Margaret Ives Club.

Seated with Mrs. Dearden as her official slate of 1956-57 officers were Maxine Hill, vice president; Clara Christe, recording secretary; Virginia Lightle, corresponding secretary, and Lilly Lee, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheff Marshall

Couple Wed Fifty Years

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today are Mr. and Mrs. Sheff Marshall, 2200 E. 6th St. Although the actual date of their wedding 50 years ago in Fillmore, Utah, was April 24, the observance today allows friends and relatives to attend. Several relatives plan to come from Salt Lake City.

The Marshalls came to Long Beach in 1918 and recall the days when rent was $12 a month. At one time they lived where the city hall now stands. The couple also remembers when early Long Beach residents drove horses and buggies on the beach.

Both are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Mrs. Marshall is active in church functions and is a former member of the Degree of Honor. Mr. Marshall, a mechanical engineer, served in World War I.

They have a son, Sears C. Marshall, whose family lives in Tacoma, Wash.

'Algeria' at Ebell Club

Scenes range from those in cosmopolitan cities to primitive mountain tribes and barren deserts. Ancient historical sites and mysterious practices of the East flavor the film.

Mrs. Will H. Winston will preside at the business session following luncheon served by Group U, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Evett.

Youngsters Are Observant, Don't Discourage Them

By ANGELO PATRI

"If you want an errand done, don't send Billy. Oh, he will do it all right. But don't be in a hurry. He has to look at everything along the way. He has a speaking acquaintance with every dog in the neighborhood. He knows when the first daffodil blooms in the neighbor's garden and just what color it is.

"When, at last, he reaches the shop, he states his errand and the groceries are forthcoming promptly. But he has to pet the cat and she, to return his courtesy, must show him the kittens. By and by he gets back with the sugar and the butter and a long tale to unfold. Nothing escapes him. Nothing. From the hole in front of Thomas's house, right on the lawn, to the fact that one light is out on the sign over the drug store. It's as much as your day's work to get one errand done."

This may be a cross to his mother, but it is all the world of good to Billy. He's in the "Barefoot Boy" class. He is storing up all kinds of impressions, all sorts of facts, and he is cultivating a great interest in the people and things about him. His senses are alert and they are storing information that in time to come will be priceless. Into the bargain, and it's a good one, he is cultivating the habit of seeing, hearing and recording what his senses bring to his mind.

Ever have a little girl in the house who saw everything that happened and recorded it with unerring accuracy? She said nothing at the time, but she noted that Grandmother had taken off her spectacles and laid them on top of the bookcase, so when the next day their owner was hunting desperately for them, Little Girl piped up, "Granny, you put them on the bookcase yesterday."

And how she heard things nobody thought she heard! She was busy with her dolls at the time Aunt May told about the plan to give the young bride a shower, what Mother was to prepare and where and when the party would be given. She had seemed to be completely absorbed in her own business.

"Dear me," said Mother, "was that to be pink or blue? I should have written that down. What day was that? Goodness, I wonder if I will have to knit it now?"

"You have time, Mother. It's not till the end of the month and it's blue. The baby is a boy. His mother wanted a girl, but his father said 'No,' so it's a boy. And Aunt May said to have it done before the end of that week 'cause she had to go around and pick things up and remind people."

Don't call them "Nosey" and talk about the cat and his curiosity. Tone down their enthusiasm for the news if you must, but don't discourage this seeing and hearing and knowing. It is a wonderful gift of intelligent interest in life.

This feature appears daily in the Independent.

WORLD RECORD-HOLDER FOR ENGLISH CHANNEL SWIMS

Last summer, my hopes high, I swam out from Dover, on the chalky southern coast of England, and headed for France. I was trying to recapture the title I had won in 1953, when I swam the English Channel in 14 hours and 42 minutes, setting a new world record for men and women.

But conditions just weren't right and I had to turn back. After two more unsuccessful attempts, I truly thought Providence was taking a hand in stopping me, and I was getting embarrassed about it. It was just a matter of waiting for the right time, I kept telling myself. But each day looked more discouraging. I would get up and find the wind blowing hard and the sea still choppy. Day after day passed; before I realized it, October was at hand. Everyone warned me to go home and try again next summer.

Then I met a nun in the town. "I don't know what's happening this year," I told her. "I'm praying, my family is praying; it seems that everyone in Dover is praying for me. But I'm afraid God isn't answering our prayers."

The nun looked startled and said, "Oh, no, never say that; it isn't true. God is answering your prayers. The answer is 'No.' God is evidently saying, 'No, Florence.'"

But the morning of October 11 broke crisp and bright. I looked out my window and the water was quite calm, the wind dropping. Now, if ever, was the time. Hopefully I set out . . .

About half way across, I began to weaken. But then my friends in the pilot boat wrote a great big "Yes" on a blackboard and held it high for me to see.

I couldn't help but smile — right there in the middle of the English Channel — because I knew what they meant: and God said "Yes!" At last our prayers were being answered.

When my feet touched the sand on the French shore, someone told me I had set a new world record for men and women — 13 hours and 55 minutes, 11 minutes under the men's record and 47 minutes under my own women's record.

But the only thing I could think about was that one wonderful word up there on the blackboard. ■

Head of the firm that bears his name, Donald Douglas is so busy that no one has been able to interview him on his current No. 1 project, the DC-8 jet transport. No one, that is, except PARADE West Coast correspondent Lloyd Shearer (r., with Douglas). Thanks to time, effort and well-thought-out questions, Shearer finally managed to pin the plane-maker down. Result: the exclusive interview which starts on page 8. You'll enjoy reading it.

PALMIRA, COLOMBIA.

There's something new on the big South American bullfight circuit this year. Where practically all other matadors fight bulls to the death, a man billed as "El indio" takes them on strictly for laughs. Crowds here and in other Colombian cities have been turning out to gasp, applaud and frequently tear the bull ring down over his antics, some of which are pictured herewith.

El indio dresses as an Apache but hails from the other India — to be exact, Goa, Portuguese East India. His real name is Antonio Augusto; his age, 32. Dark, handsome and wiry, he developed his novel technique some 15 years ago. His specialty is standing still as the bull charges, turning his body only a matter of inches to let the razor-sharp horns slip harmlessly past. When the bull has thus tired itself out, El indio calmly grasps its nose and flattens it.

Every so often a bull nicks El indio; recently he was hospitalized for a week. But his act pays off — with, among other things, a movie short soon to be released to U.S. theaters. ■

FINISH: After bringing the spent bull to earth by twisting its nose, El indio celebrates his victory by twisting its tail.

AN EXCLUSIVE PARADE INTERVIEW

Donald Douglas TELLS WHAT

FOUR YEARS ago BOAC (British Overseas Airways Corporation) introduced the world's first jet transport, the Comet 1: It was an immediate success. Manufactured in Great Britain by De Havilland Ltd., the Comet not only flew smoothly and quietly at tremendous heights but broke numerous speed records and gave British aircraft makers a seeming world lead in commercial jets. Soon U.S. airlines got interested. Pan American World Airways placed a tentative order for three Comet IIIs, and Eastern Air Lines weighed a similar order.

Then the Comets began to crash.

In 18 months four of them blew up, killing 110 people. Finally all Comets were grounded, and De Havilland began a slow, painstaking investigation that ultimately pinpointed the trouble: metal fatigue at great heights. Meanwhile, American aircraft manufacturers began to make up for lost time. Both research and production on jet transports were accelerated by the two big firms in the field, Boeing and Douglas.

- Boeing, maker of giant jet bombers — the B-47 and the B-52 — invested $16,000,000 in a prototype jet airliner, the 707, which flew successfully in July, 1954. Soon the Air Force ordered a number of 707s as jet tankers to refuel the B-52s.
- Simultaneously, Douglas (producer of the famed "DC" series of commercial planes) announced that it had been working since 1951 on a jet transport of its own, the DC-8.
- Last October a 707 prototype was flown from Boeing's Seattle plant to Washington, D.C. — 2,340 miles — in three hours and 58 minutes, an average of 592 mph.

Six months ago, after studying the relative merits of the 707 and the DC-8, Pan American ordered some of both. Since then every major U.S. airline has ordered Douglas and/or Boeing jet transports for delivery in 1958, 1959 and 1960.

Says W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, first domestic carrier to order Douglas DC-8s: "These jet transports will shrink the world by at least 40 per cent. They will provide the fastest, most comfortable, most dependable air service ever conceived."

Such claims as these are now par for the jet course. But progress always has its problems, and no doubt the jet age will have its particular share. Already the public wants to know what jet transports will mean in terms of time, money and pleasure. So numerous are the questions, in fact, that PARADE West Coast correspondent Lloyd Shearer has put the main ones to one of the world's real authorities in the field — Donald Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co. in Santa Monica, Calif.

Normally, Douglas is chary of interviews. Here, however, he talks revealingly on what PARADE considers one of the most important developments currently facing the U.S. public.

Q. Mr. Douglas, when do you expect the first commercial jet transports to fly across the U.S. in regularly scheduled flights?

A. I would say sometime in 1959. (Editor's note: American Airlines has announced that transcontinental service with turbojet aircraft will be in daily operation commencing June 15, 1959. Tentative time for the first schedule of the 707 Flagship between Los Angeles and New York: 4 hrs., 15 min.)

Q. What is the target date for delivery of the first DC-8 and which airline gets it?

A. First flight of the DC-8 is scheduled for the spring of 1958. We expect to turn over some of these DC-8s to United Air Lines, Eastern Air Lines and National Airlines for familiarization and training during the month of May, 1959. Douglas by then will have completed one year of development testing before any airline receives a DC-8. Data and experience will be accumulated on perhaps a dozen DC-8s flying simultaneously for several additional months before they are placed in passenger service.

Q. There have been so many rumors about the DC-8 that PARADE readers would welcome a few authoritative facts. Can you give them any?

A. The first thing the public will notice about the DC-8 is its size. The new jet transports are larger than current airliners. The DC-8, for example, will take off at 220,000 to 265,000 pounds, which is about 100,000 pounds heavier than our present DC-7s.

The DC-8 will have seats for more than 100 passengers. First-class versions of the DC-8 will accommodate up to 122 passengers. Those that go into tourist service can carry as many as 145 without crowding because of the greater diameter and length of the cabin.

Normally the jet will operate at altitudes between 35,000 and 40,000 feet, flying above the weather. At 35,000 feet, cabins will be pressurized to the equivalent of 5,000 feet; at 40,000 feet the cabin will register 6,700 feet. The average cruising speed of the DC-8 will be 550 miles per hour, a jump of about 200 mph over the fastest piston-powered airliners.

Q. Do jets cost more to fly than prop-driven aircraft? Once the airlines take delivery of the DC-8s, will they raise or lower coast-to-coast fares?

A. You're really putting me on the spot. This really is a rough one. Let me say that while it may cost more to fly a jet transport for one hour than it does to fly a comparable piston-powered plane, the jet will fly farther and carry more people in the same time. So the cost per seat-mile — which is how the airlines figure their operating expenses — will be appreciably lower than the most efficient conventional aircraft.

When you ask about airline fares from coast to coast, that's not in my domain. That's worked out by Government regulation in conjunction with the airlines. From the standpoint of operating cost alone, without considering the initial purchase price, I would say there would be no reason to expect transcontinental fares to increase. Airlines, however, may be justified in charging more for a faster and more comfortable jet ride just as they charge more right now for first-class fares than they do for coach flights.

All in all, I don't look for any immediate change in rate structure as a result of jet operation.

Q. Won't the DC-8 be noisier than prop-driven planes?

A. The alarm being raised about the noise of jet transports, I think, is based largely on the experience of hearing jet military aircraft. These are noisy because the jet sound is augmented by the roar of an afterburner. The truth is that very few people in this country have heard the sound of any commercial jet transport and no one, except those directly concerned with the development, has heard jet engines with sound-suppression devices.

Our engineers have made considerable progress in altering and reducing the sound of jet engines. The public can be certain that a jet transport on take-off will not sound like present military jets. I have every

WHO IS DONALD DOUGLAS?

On April 6, Donald Wills Douglas was 64 years old. All but 17 of those years have been devoted to American aviation. The first Martin bomber . . . the first U.S. airplane to get off the ground with a useful load equal to its own weight . . . the first airplane to fly around the world . . . the DC-3, best-known and most widely used twin-engine airliner on earth . . . the B-19, DC-4, DC-6, DC-7 and now the DC-8 — all this is but a portion of Douglas' aeronautical achievement.

He was born in Brooklyn, educated in New York City, the U.S. Naval Academy and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, taught aeronautics before signing as chief engineer with the Glenn L. Martin Co. At 28 he founded his own company with a capital of $600. Since then it has grown so that in World War II it was responsible for some 29,500 planes (one-sixth of all those built in the U.S.), today has built 52 per cent of all the commercial planes in the world and employs more than 77,000 people.

Modest, soft-spoken, casual, Donald Douglas seems more like a dreamer than a dynamo. The truth is that he is that rare combination: both

How fast will jet transports be? How safe?
How noisy? An authority gives the answers

THE JET AGE MEANS TO YOU

reason to believe that the sound created by the DC-8 will be acceptable to the public.

Q. Supposedly jet aircraft burn up fuel so rapidly that they cannot be "stacked up" over an airport waiting to land. Is this true?

A. Although the rate of fuel consumption on jet transports is higher than on conventional aircraft, we've taken this into account by making the capacity greater. Strict safety standards are required by both our customers and Government regulation, and the DC-8 is being designed and built with these in mind. The DC-8 will have enough fuel on any flight to stack or, if required, to fly to an alternate airport.

Q. Is it true that there are only seven U.S. airports with runways that can handle jet airliners?

A. Any airplane, jet or piston-powered, requires longer runways for extended, nonstop flights. The fuel you need on a long-range trip increases your take-off weight, and the plane must have more runway to get off the ground. This is no serious problem for domestic flights, since airplanes don't carry their total fuel capacity on intercity runs.

Even for transcontinental nonstop service, such major airports as Boston, New York, Los Angeles, Miami, San Diego and Fort Worth appear adequate for the DC-8. In fact, all the airports now being used for transcontinental service will be able to handle the DC-8 very nicely.

Q. What is your reaction to the recent Russian announcements concerning their jet-transport development?

A. From what I've read about the Russian twin-jet transport, it is a military aircraft first flown two years ago with 40 seats recently installed for modernization. If this is true, then it can't compare with our four-jet DC-8. America has been flying jet-powered military aircraft for 10 years. Our civilian aircraft have dominated the world's airways for 20 years. From the limited information I have, I would say that Russia's commercial jets offer no immediate challenge to us.

Q. Do you foresee any jet-age traffic jams? Aren't present airports already overburdened?

A. As a matter of fact, it's highly probable that jet transports will relieve airport congestion where it exists. Since each DC-8 or 707 will carry about twice the load of the most widely used propeller planes, the number of aircraft landing or taking off should tend to decrease.

Q. William "Pat" Patterson of United Air Lines reputedly said when he ordered 30 DC-8s from you, "This is the most important decision in our history. If we make a mistake, we're busted." The order totaled

Jet flight will be a boon to both passengers and the crews that fly them

$175 million, nearly equal to the assets of $201,975,000 listed in United's 1954 annual report. Other airlines expecting jets are in much the same financial position. Is it possible that the airlines are moving into the jet age too quickly?

A. I don't think so. "Pat" Patterson is one of the shrewdest, most brilliant men I know. So, too, are the other men running the country's airlines. They realize that, although the cost of individual jet airplanes is high, their productivity is in turn higher than the propeller-driven types. This means that jet transports will pay returns on the initial investment in larger increments.

I think it's rather interesting that a large part of jet-airliner purchases are being financed by the insurance companies. Traditionally, the insurance companies are the most conservative investors of capital in America. So they must think jets are a pretty safe investment.

Q. How will pilots currently flying commercial airliners adjust to jet aircraft?

A. Our DC-8 has been designed to fit the present environment, both human and physical. We know that the pilots who fly the present nonstop flights will be assigned to the jet airliners. So we've engineered the DC-8 to make the transition with a minimum of training. In many respects the DC-8 will be easier to fly than current piston-powered transports. Because of higher speed and lack of noise and vibration, flight crews will know less fatigue. They'll have fewer instruments to watch in the cockpit and better navigational aids to help them.

Q. In what ways will the DC-8 be an improvement over the DC-7Cs, the last of your prop-driven models?

A. I could talk about this one all day long. But let's take it from the standpoint of the passenger. His trip will be faster and more comfortable. The comfort will stem from the lack of vibration in jet-powered aircraft. The noise caused by propellers will be gone. There will be little or no turbulence at altitudes previously unattainable by commercial transports. In addition our human engineering section has worked out larger cabins, more comfortable seats, improved lighting and air conditioning. The total effect will be a new sensation of relaxation for air travelers.

Q. To date, there are three manufacturers of pure jet transport aircraft in the world — Douglas, Boeing and De Havilland. Do you expect any further foreign or domestic competition?

A. Only the DC-8 and the 707 have sufficient range for nonstop operation, such as over the heavily traveled North Atlantic. Because of the jet's productivity, its ability to carry large numbers of people a long distance in a short time, the number which can be used by airlines is somewhat limited. Since more than 200 jets are already on order, it doesn't seem probable that any other manufacturer would find it profitable to enter the market at the present time.

TWO TOP AIRMEN — "Pat" Patterson of United Air Lines (l.) and Donald Douglas — beam over signing of United's contract for DC-8 jets.

Q. What is the difference between pure jets and turboprop airplanes (currently manufactured by Lockheed)?
A. The turboprop is a gas-turbine unit geared to a conventional propeller. Most of the power developed by the turbine is applied to the propeller, but some thrust is added by the jet exhaust.

Although turboprop airliners are now in service and others are in production, we've felt that the power plants presently available to us have not been developed to the extent of pure jets. The jet, as a type, has reached a high state of development in military service. When similar flight time has been accumulated on turboprops, they will be useful for short-haul and cargo aircraft. A turboprop has an advantage over the jet in its ability to lift heavier weights with a shorter take-off run, but it has a disadvantage in speed.

Q. In your lifetime, how fast do you think commercial jet transports will fly from, say, Los Angeles to New York or Oakland to Newark?
A. That's like asking a man how long he expects to live. In my lifetime man has managed to lift himself off the ground with power. He's increased the speed of airplanes to 1,600 miles an hour. Commercial-transport speeds have gone up from 180 mph for the DC-1 to 365 mph for the DC-7 in a span of 20 years.

With the DC-8 we'll normally operate at 550 miles an hour. Since subsonic speed beyond this point is not efficient, the next step we take must be in the supersonic range — beyond the speed of sound. I expect to see commercial transports cross the continent in two hours or less at 1,200 mph and up.

But, as in the case of all aviation advancements, the realization of supersonic commercial transports must first await the improvement in propulsive systems. This may come as an orderly development of the turbojet or we may have a breakthrough with nuclear power.

Q. Aren't we living fast enough right now? Will the jet age make life more frantic or more comfortable for us?
A. A doctor would undoubtedly be better qualified than I am to answer the first part of your question. As for the second — flights on a jet airliner, as I've told you, will be faster and more comfortable. The jet transport will make an important contribution to a better way of life. It will speed up the means of personal communication around the globe. You can't progress by standing still. ■

SERVICES at Covington, Ga., Confederate monument typify the Deep South's version of national holiday.

Our other Memorial Day

Next Thursday, ceremonies like that shown above will be repeated in hundreds of American towns. To the people of Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida, April 26 is Confederate Memorial Day.

It is dedicated to the more than 133,000 dead out of an army that totaled only 600,000 from 1861 to 1865 in the War Between the States. By extension, like the better-known national Memorial Day, it honors all Americans who have died in war since.

Confederate observance is much like that of the national Day. It differs in that the songs — in addition to the National Anthem — include Dixie, The Conquered Banner and Gen. Robert E. Lee's favorite hymn, How Firm a Foundation. And above the graves, in addition to the Stars and Stripes, flies the Confederate Battle Flag.

No one knows precisely how it started. Even while the war was on, Southern ladies in battle-ravaged towns, uncertain whether a newly dug grave contained friend or foe, placed flowers on all. Oldsters say that as a formal memorial day it started in Columbus, Ga., in 1866 — 90 years ago. April 26 was chosen because it was the first anniversary of the last-ditch surrender of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston at Durham Station, S. C., 17 days after Appomattox.

Northerners didn't get the idea of Memorial Day until later. The national Day was first observed by the G.A.R., in 1869.

Even in the South, not all agree on the date. In North and South Carolina, it is May 10; in Virginia, May 30; in Louisiana and Tennessee, June 3 — birthday of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy.

Whatever the date, Confederate Memorial Day lives on. ■

When the "ball of fire" starts cooling off...

Maybe you're this fellow...

Maybe you can remember a time when you came to work every morning ready to lick your weight in wildcats.

The job was your oyster, brother. And the boss kept throwing the tough ones your way because he figured you for a comer. As the expression goes, you were a "ball of fire."

But somehow . . . somewhere along the years, you began to get the uneasy feeling you were losing your stuff, like a pitcher gets when he feels the zip going out of his fast ball.

You couldn't quite put your finger on it. You weren't old . . . and you weren't sick.

But, oftener and oftener you'd have to drag yourself out of bed. Your job began to look like a mountain, and it was all you could do to shovel your way through it.

Making excuses?

At first you could make excuses to yourself. "A man can't be up to snuff all the time. Even a .300 hitter has his bad days at the plate." And so on. And so on . . .

But maybe the excuses are beginning to wear thin . . . even to yourself. You're face to face with the fact that—almost every day—you're nervous, edgy, dragged out. It's an effort to get up enough steam to do your job, let alone have fun with the wife and kids.

You're beginning to wonder about other people. Do they notice the change in you? Do any of them feel the way you do?

Well, if it's any comfort to you, the truth is that you're not alone. Many, many men have had the same problem. And many have found the root of their trouble in a habit that is so commonplace it seems above suspicion.

It's the caffein habit—the habit you acquire as you drink coffee or tea, cup after cup, day after day. And—if you're one of the millions affected by caffein—it's a case of a little stimulant multiplied by the number of cups of coffee you drink each day . . . multiplied by the years you've been drinking it.

Your doctor would tell you

Your doctor would be the first to tell you that, for some men, one of the worst offenders against the human nervous system is caffein. When you use this strong stimulant constantly, its effects tend to "build up"... and may result in nervousness, sleeplessness.

If this has happened to you . . . if caffein is acting as a "drag" on you . . . isn't it time you did something about it?

And there is something you can do—to get in tune again and feel as you used to.

You replace a bad habit with a good one

You switch from caffein-heavy drinks to a new, wonderful, caffein-free hot beverage . . . Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum—now available for the first time.

What a rich aroma this new beverage has! And it tastes so full-bodied, so satisfying!

Your grocer has both new Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum and famous regular Instant Postum with a distinctive flavor that millions have enjoyed for many years.

You make Postum instantly, right in the cup. Just add boiling water and stir. You can enjoy it straight, or with cream and sugar, all day long, without fear.

There isn't a taut nerve, a sleepless hour or a headache in Postum. It can't make you irritable. It can't keep you awake because it doesn't have a single speck of caffein in it.

You owe it to yourself and to your family to try this wonderful, caffein-free beverage not just once, but for 30 consecutive days. After all, you can't expect to free yourself from the accumulated effect of a habit of years in two or three days, or even a week.

Costs half as much as most coffees

Whether you choose new Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum (red label) or regular Instant Postum (blue label), you'll get up to 100 cups from the 8-oz. jar and up to 50 cups from the 4-oz. jar—for less than a cent a cup! Postum is so inexpensive, compared with most coffees—cup for cup, it costs only half as much.

So, try Instant Postum for at least 30 days—take this one step that may make a real difference in your everyday life—every waking hour, every sleeping hour.

Don't let another day go by without giving this caffein-free beverage a fair trial. Start the 30-day test today. See if you don't feel better! Act better! Look better!

Postum is a registered trade-mark of General Foods Corporation

IT PROBABLY happens in your family, too: the children's idea of a vacation involves plenty of running around, but you'd prefer an easier pace, with fresh air, good meals and maybe a chance to swim occasionally, or fish. And of course you're pleased if you can save money as well.

When the four Moores — Bill; his wife, Vera; Anne, 10, and Lynn, 8 — ran into this problem, Bill had a solution ready. His suggestion: a week at Silver Sycamore Farm, a few miles south of here. There were 800 acres of farmland for the kids to romp in, haylofts for them to explore, animals to feed, an ole swimmin' hole. For him and Vera, there was a chance to relax on the front lawn under tall sycamores, to fill up on country cooking, to fish for shad and channel catfish in the nearby Altamaha River.

And add to this the price: $30 a week for adults, $20 for children under 12. At a flat $100 for the whole family (plus transportation from their home near Augusta, about 75 miles away), it should be one of the most economical — and relaxing — vacations the Moores had ever spent.

On both counts, Bill Moore was right. His "secret," however, wasn't very secret; more and more Americans are finding a week or two down on the farm the ideal family vacation. And more and more farms are taking in visitors. One enterprising travel agent has figured out that his agency's farms alone total more than 50,000 acres. A vacation among the pigs and chickens seems just the thing to families who want a not-too-strenuous holiday in the outdoors.

Helping With Farm Chores

The Moores' vacation was more strenuous than Bill had expected, however. He'd had a rough year, and this week, he said, he was "just going to unwind." In a day or two, though, he was tramping around the farm, inspecting the cane and tobacco crops, watching the work crews gather resin for turpentine in the pine forests, listening as the farmer explained why he had planted 100 acres in Bermuda grass. He even took a turn at driving the tractor.

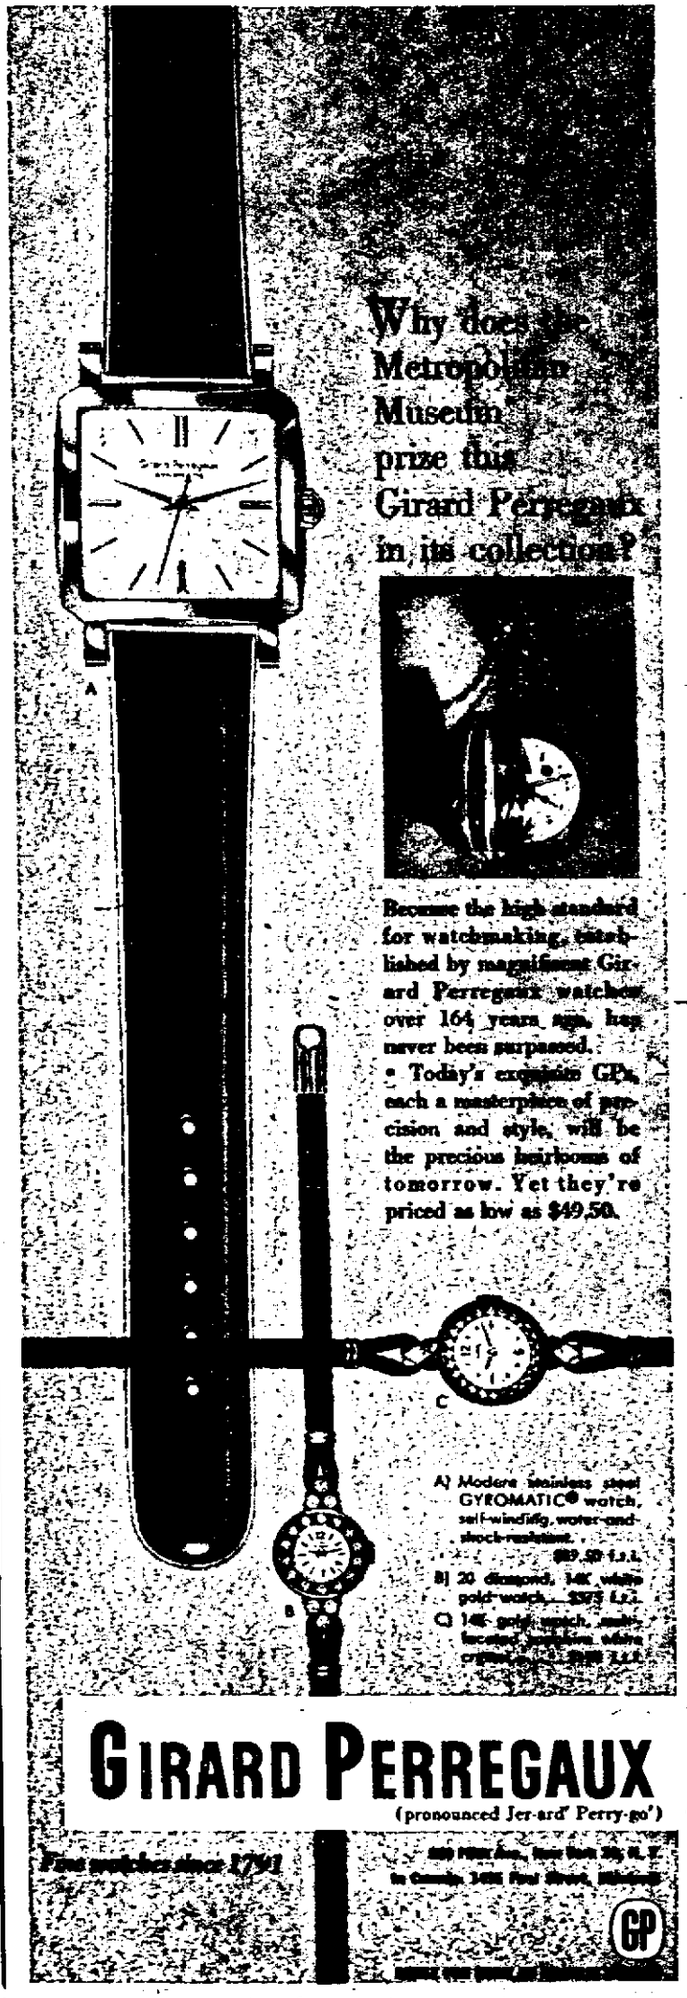

If Bill's vacation was more active than he had expected, the children's was not. Up by 6 a.m. (their parents slept late. Breakfast, including fresh eggs right from the henhouse, was ready when they wanted it), they were on the move all day long.

There were eggs to be gathered and pigs to be fed. Anne, who loves animals (she has two dogs, a cat and a deodorized skunk at home), was given daily lessons in how to milk a cow. The docile mule, "Laura," was available for riding

A city family in the country:

when the girls wanted her. And there were a hundred mysterious corners of the barn, the henhouse and the smokehouse to be investigated.

Afternoons, the whole family usually walked down to the swimmin' hole, fed by cool springs and just right on a hot day. Their father rigged up cane fishing poles for the girls, and they fished for lake trout in the pond.

Bill and Vera tried their luck on the river, in a rented boat, and came back with a full load of bass and catfish. (Bill decided a channel catfish, cooked fresh out of the water, was as tasty a fish as he'd ever eaten; the girls' appetites, however, were spoiled by the fish's looks.)

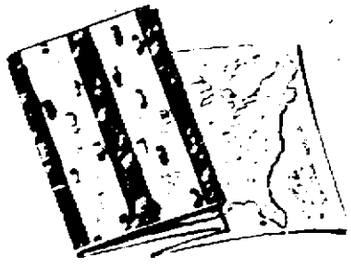

PICNIC SUPPER with plenty of home-grown food was nightly ritual at farm.

Evening suppers usually were eaten on the lawn, against a backdrop of palms. The outdoor table hung heavy with food produced on the farm: home-made bread, butter, fresh milk, vegetables just picked in the garden, home-cured ham. The Moores ate heartily, made it a point not to check their weights when they arrived back home.

All four went to bed early. Nearby was a summer theater, the local Grange held—a barn dance once a week, the farm was equipped with TV—but the Moores found that country air made them sleepy at an hour they would have thought ridiculous in the city. Several nights, Bill and Vera slept on the screened porch.

Once, after supper, they walked through the dusk down the farm lane to the pine forests, watching the stars wink on, listening to the bullfrogs' serenade, flopping down on the dew-dampened grass. In one place, the farm lane forded a small stream; the girls thought it great fun to take off their shoes and socks and splash through. In many ways, the Moores found that walk through the gathering country night the high point of the week. It was an "adventure" they eral farms in New York State, truck farms in New Jersey, "plantations" in the South. Although the East and Midwest are most heavily represented, a farm can be found for you in almost any part of the nation. In fact, many vacationers like to pick a farm hundreds of miles away, make their farm stay part of a long auto trip.

All these are working farms, have been inspected to be sure they're up to date (including such citified conveniences as indoor plumbing and electricity). All of them cater to children; many farms listed in the catalog also list the number of children, and their ages, in the farm family. Generally, you'll have the whole farm to yourself; like Silver Sycamores, which has space for only six guests, they prefer not to take more than one family at a time.

Also like Silver Sycamores, they offer a relaxing vacation at a bargain price. Prices range from $25 to $40 a week for adults, with a cut rate ($15 to $25) for children under 12. But these farms offer more than just relaxation and economy. Like the four Moores, maybe you'd enjoy a place where you can get out into the outdoors and make your own recreation. America's farmlands are an ideal place for you and your family to do it. ■

Other sports in the open spaces

Interested in trying a farm vacation? The agency mentioned above, Farm Vacations & Holidays, can recommend a farm for you almost anywhere in the country — including poultry farms, fruit farms, farms on hills, farms in valleys, farms with or without television.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH: For something off-beat, Pennsylvania Farm Vacations (Mailing address: Mount Joy, Pa.) specializes in farms in the Pennsylvania Dutch country. These afford a close-up look at the famous black-bonneted "Plain People" of Pennsylvania, offer hearty Pennsylvania Dutch cooking, comprise some of U.S.' most fertile farmland. Rates: $30 to $45 a week for adults, half price for children under 12.

DUDE RANCHES: Vacation-wise, these are the Western equivalent of farms. Most popular pastime is riding. Usually each vacationer, including children, is furnished a horse. Other recreation includes square dancing, fishing, hiking, pack trips, sometimes tennis and swimming. Rates from $50 to $125 a week a person, including horse. Information: Dude Ranchers Assn., Billings, Mont.

FRAGILE BOY Hope is carted off by Joan during his telecast. A moment later she lost her hold, had to let him drop.

MUSCLE GIRL Joan Rhodes bends an iron bar — with her teeth.

The girl who dropped me on my head

by BOB HOPE  as told to LLOYD SHEARER

LONDON.

When I was here several weeks ago making a film with Katharine Hepburn, I spent a bit of time interviewing entertainers for my television program. One applicant was a tall, well-turned blonde of 29 named Joan Rhodes. "What do you do?" I asked her.

"Pick up men," she said.

"Your private life aside," I said, "what do you do professionally?"

"Pick up men," Joan repeated. And with that she grabbed me by the shoulder and thigh, picked me up and held me high above her head. "I see what you mean," I called out. "Put me down." When she put me down, I signed her up.

We worked out a sketch. While I was singing Embraceable You, Joan was supposed to walk onstage, throw me over her shoulder and cart me off. Came the night of the program and Joan attacked her assignment with vigor. She tossed me too far over her right shoulder, slipped, lost her balance and bounced me on my head. The accident made headlines everywhere. But for Joan, I think, it was the most embarrassing moment in her colorful career.

For the past six years this London-born lovely (5' 6", 135 pounds, 36-22-36) has been touring the world demonstrating her unique combination of appealing femininity and tremendous strength. She has appeared on TV, in films, night clubs and theaters in 17 countries. Do the customers like it? She's had only five days free in five years!

In her typical act, Joan slithers across the stage in a Paris gown. While the audience expects a torch song from this sexy creature, she breaks 8-inch nails, rips thick telephone directories in half, twists steel bars into pretzel-like figures, inveigles the heaviest men out of the audience and carries them around like babies.

Occasionally there are scoffers. In Paris three years ago a Frenchman offered to prove that Joan was a fraud. He followed her to the machine shop where, after each performance, she straightened out her steel bars on a vise. Continuing his barrage of insults, he so annoyed Joan that she bent one bar around his neck like a collar and pinned him against the wall. I like that picture.

She Tops the Champs

In Vienna last year two champion weight-lifters stood and announced that they were prepared to match all or any of the muscle-girl's feats. She called both men to the stage, handed each an 8-inch nail — the kind she regularly bends until they snap. Neither man could break one.

In Lisbon, Joan outraged the vanity of the local wrestling champion. Five nights in a row the Portuguese tried fruitlessly to break an 8-inch nail. On the sixth night he grew so exasperated that, when Joan sympathetically patted him on the back, he swung on her. She neatly sidestepped, caught his arm and threw him over her shoulder.

What is the secret of Joan's startling strength?

She says, "There is no secret. My parents were just average people. I didn't inherit any particular strength. I guess I just developed it. With perseverance I think any woman can do the same. When I first started to tear telephone directories I kept at it until my hands were raw and bleeding. After a while I developed the knack. You have to concentrate on one great effort. Without the knack all the strength in the world is no good."

Mickey Wood, a British physical-culture expert, calls Joan "one of those natural athletes like Babe Didrikson used to be in your country. The girl has enormous power in her shoulders and forearms."

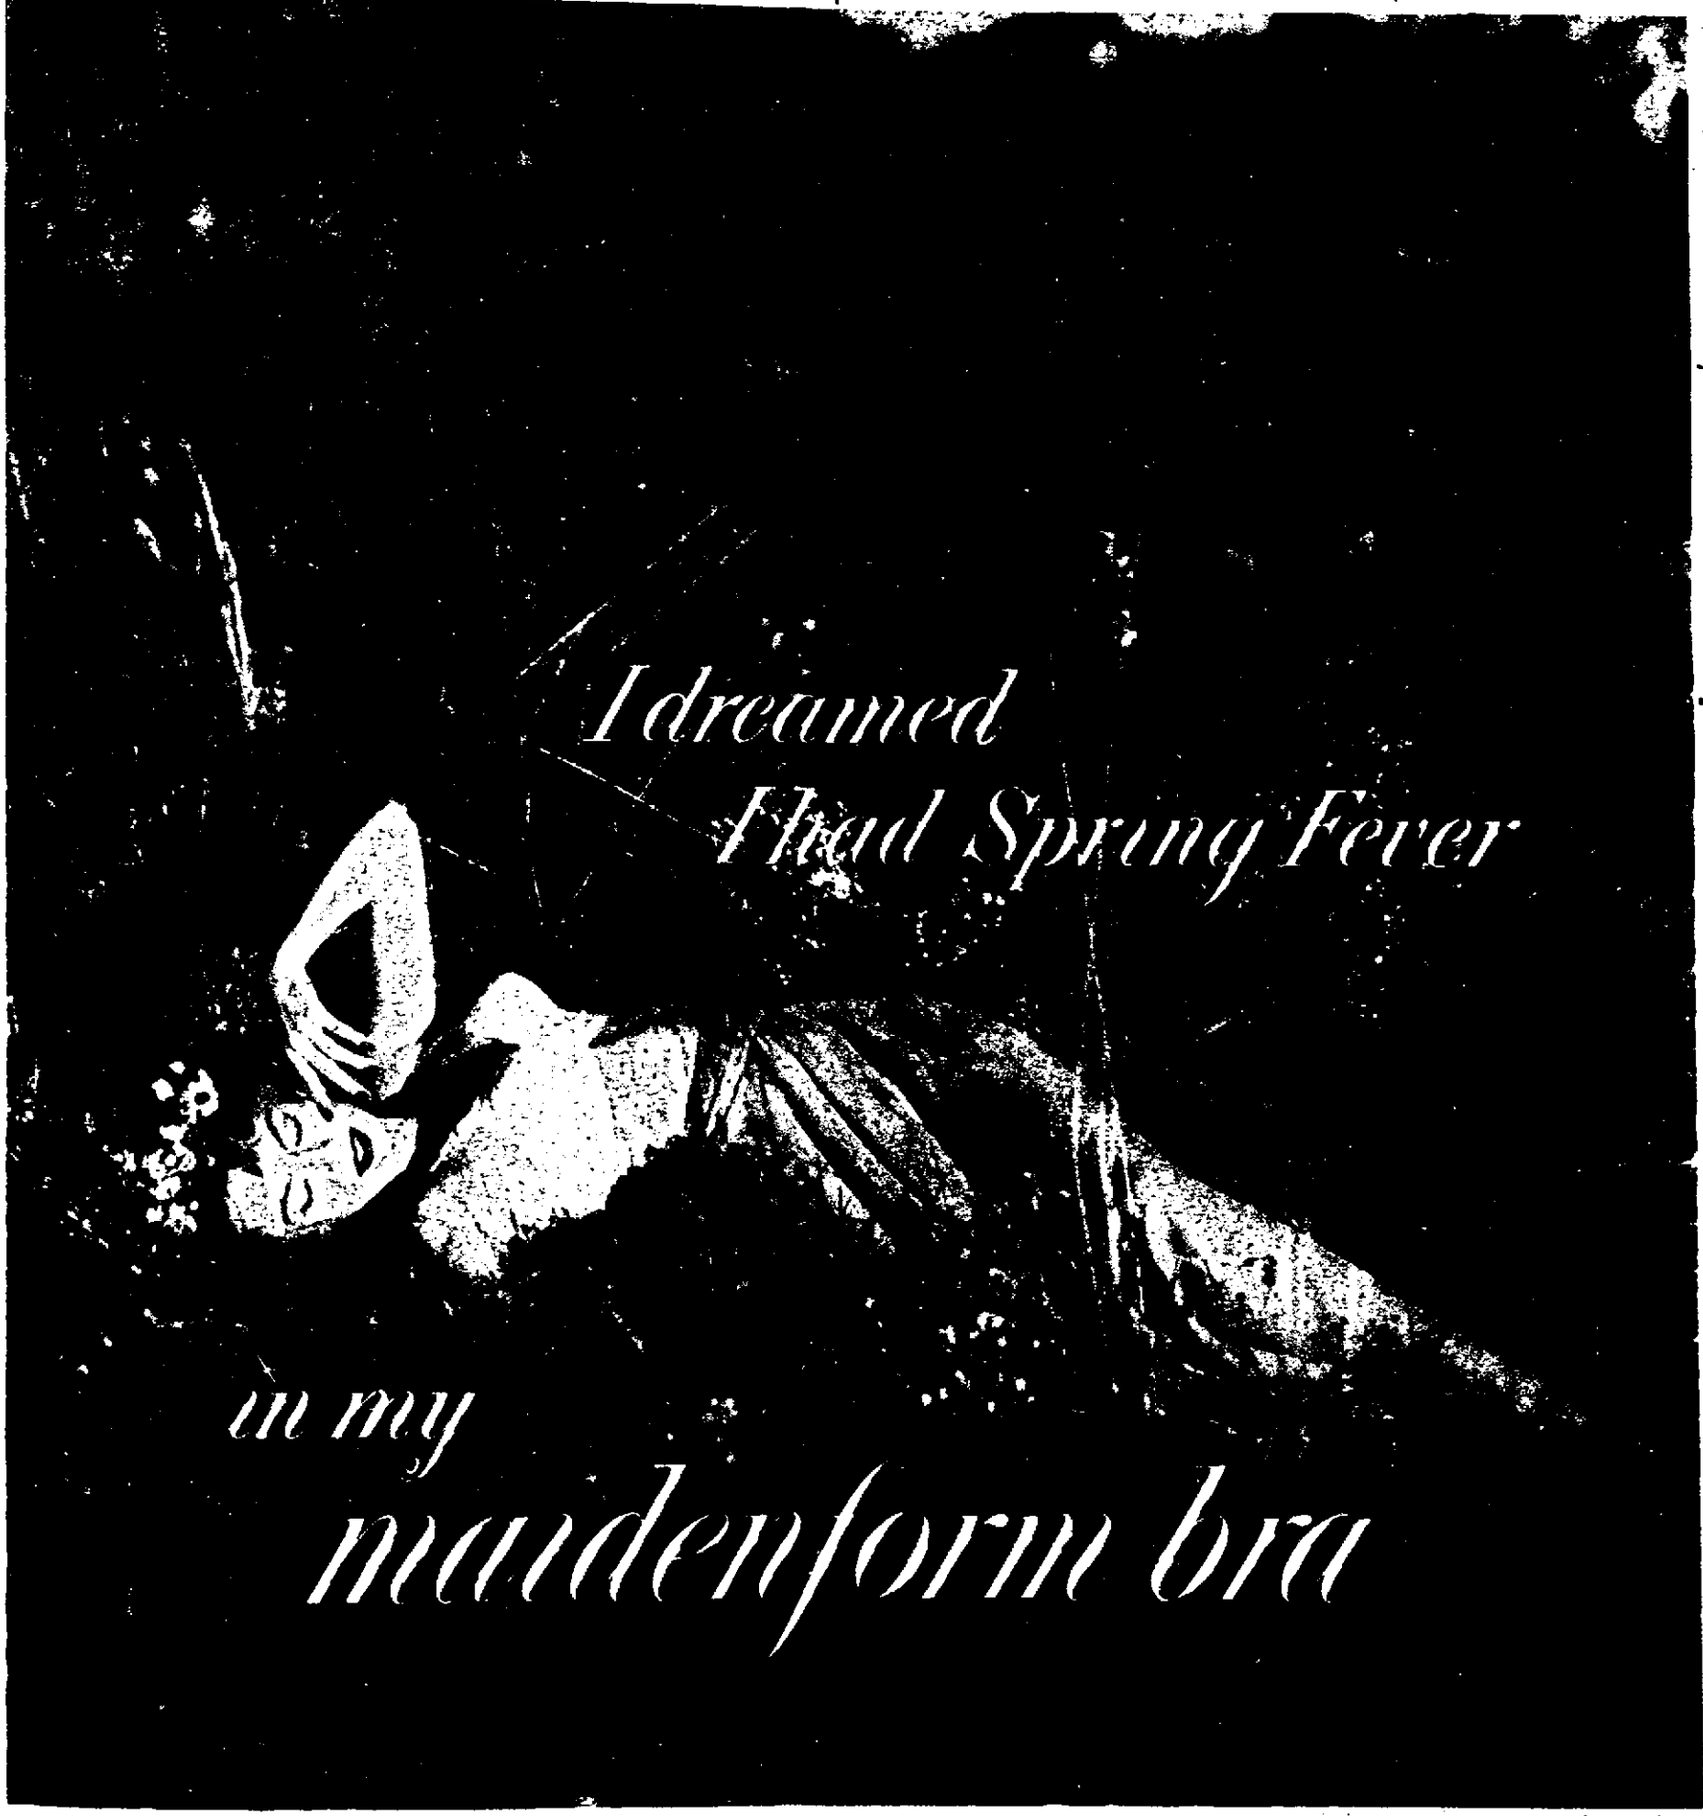

Mrs. Elizabeth Stone, her sister, remembers that Joan was exceptionally strong as a child. "In the south London school we attended," she recalls, "Joan was always in trouble. She had this habit of throwing boys around the place, or lifting the student monitors over her head and whirling them around until they were dizzy." Some habit.

Joan ran away from school at 13 and joined a traveling circus. After a brief spell as an apprentice trapeze artist, she was made assistant to the circus strong man. One day he took ill and Joan proceeded to put on his entire act. She's been on the muscle kick ever since.

Because of her beauty, earning power and intelligence — she reads omnivorously, speaks French, German and Spanish — Joan receives, on the average, three marriage proposals per month. Most of these are from publicity-seekers, odd-balls and phonies. Joan is not disillusioned about men, but she does make it a point when meeting "some nice new man" to keep her occupation a secret.

"Somehow," she says wistfully, "when he finds out what I do, the average eligible man just seems to fade away."

After what she did to me, I can understand why. ■

SAVORY BAKED BROILERS

2 (2 to 2½ lbs. each) ready-to-cook broilers, halved
Monosodium glutamate
Salt
½ teaspoon hot-pepper sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon molasses
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Sprinkle chicken halves on both sides with monosodium glutamate, then lightly with salt. Place chicken halves, skin side down, in shallow baking pan. (Do not overlap.) Combine hot-pepper sauce, mustard and Worcestershire sauce; mix well in saucepan. Add remaining ingredients; heat until butter is melted. Brush mixture over cut side of chicken. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 1½ hours. At end of first half hour, turn chicken over and brush again with sauce. Bake 30 minutes; brush with remaining sauce; continue baking 30 minutes longer. Teen-age Topics

Many of the questions and answers that you have read in this column appear in my new book, Amy Vanderbilt's Everyday Etiquette (Hanover House, $2.50). It is now in many schools and libraries and answers many of the common questions on daily manners. Here are some recent questions:

Q. I am 17 years old and in love with a soldier. Recently he was discharged and he said that he would write me. He hasn't, and he wouldn't give me his address for some reason. I honestly love him. Please tell me what to do. — H.P., Fort Worth, Tex.

A. A man who does not give his address to a girl he courts has something to conceal. Forget him.

Q. I am 14 years old and overweight. The kids at school tease me about my diet. What should I do? — S.J., Gaith, Md.

A. Ignore them — and don't talk about your diet. Your friends are interested only in the results.

Q. I am 12 but my parents think I am too young to go to dances — even though they are well chaperoned. What do you think is the proper age to attend chaperoned dances? Do you feel it is all right for boys and girls my age to go to shows, parties and skating together as long as they are picked up and dropped off by their parents? — L.G., Akron, Ohio.

A. If the other girls in your class go to these particular dances, I should think that your parents could safely permit you to go.

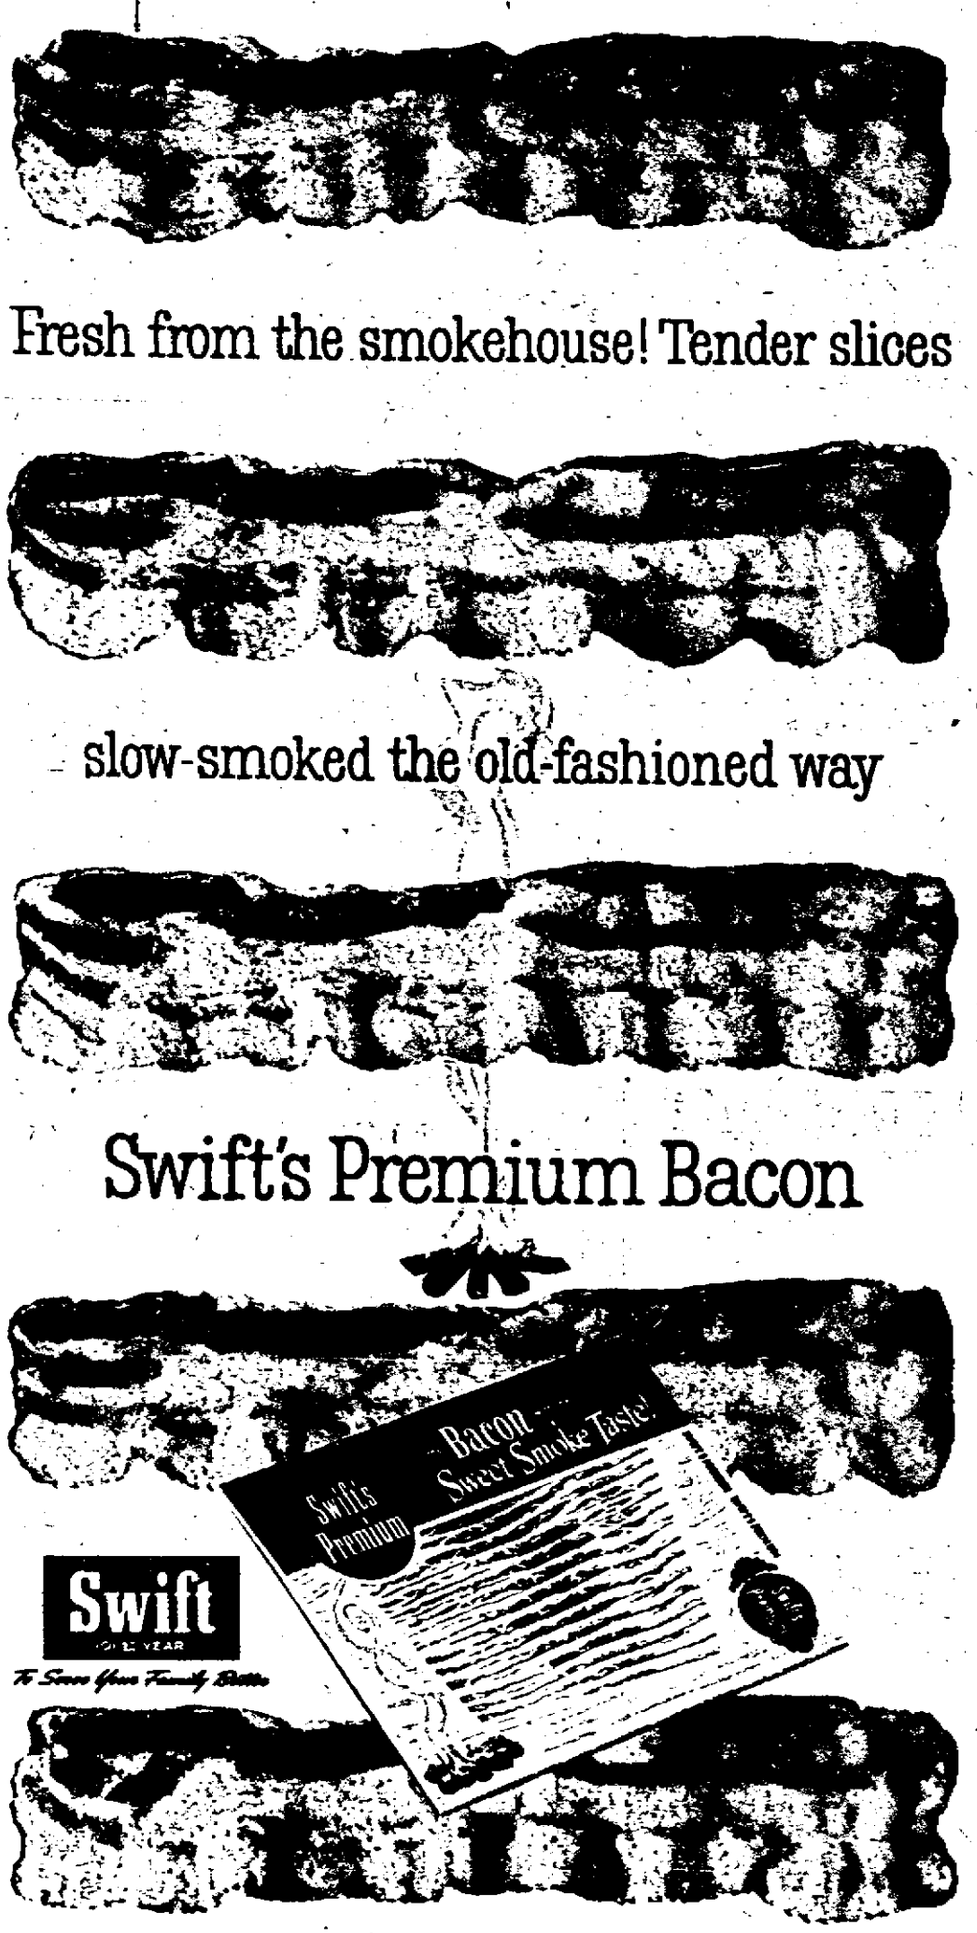

You seem too young for shows — except in the afternoon, and even then you should be in a group or chaperoned. I see no objection to afternoon skating parties or the usual parties given by your age group so long as you are fully protected.

Q. I am 12 years old and I receive many gifts from boys, such as jewelry. My parents think I am too young to accept such gifts. What do you think? Boys come over to my house and make a lot of noise, and when I tell them to quiet down or else go home, they get mad and feel as if they are not wanted around. How should I handle this problem? — P.L., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A. I have often said that it is in bad taste for a girl to accept certain gifts from a boy unless she is engaged to him. For example, she does not accept real jewelry except from her fiancé. Occasionally, a girl much older than yourself might accept an inexpensive piece of costume jewelry as a gift, but nothing of real value. Gifts on special occasions, such as birthdays, Christmas, Valentine's Day and Easter, are all right — but they should be relatively impersonal.

You must help your parents maintain the dignity of your home. If the boys do not behave well there, they must be asked to leave — either by you or by your mother.

LOW-SALT DIET?

If your doctor has said, "Cut down on salt," you know how flat and insipid unsalted foods can be. Millions of Americans are discovering that a few drops of fresh lemon juice (itself virtually salt free) transform tasteless, unsalted foods into delicious, appetizing ones. The taste of salt is replaced by the wonderful sharp tang and aromatic flavor of fresh lemons.

Overweight? Many reducing diets recommend cutting down on salt. Seasoning saltless foods with fresh lemon instead of salt adds zest and flavor. Ask your doctor.

"Your husband's trouble is dyscrasia of the pocketbook"

Mrs. Brown: I'm not sure I understand just what you mean, doctor.

Doctor: Heart's sound. Digestion's perfect. No pain anywhere. Says he's making more money than ever before. Yet he can't sleep. Why?

Mrs. Brown: That's what I need to know, doctor.

Doctor: Simple. Frittering away his money. Got nothing to show for it. When money leaves the pocketbook, air rushes in. Upsets balance. Dyscrasia. Man can't sleep.

Mrs. Brown: What should he do for it?

Doctor: I'd say stop frittering. But don't ask me. I'm a doctor. Ask a stockbroker.

Mrs. Brown: Why a stockbroker?

Doctor: Broker I go to says if a man's got his bills paid and a reserve put by for emergencies, maybe he's ready to invest extra money to get income from securities—like bonds and good common stocks.

Mrs. Brown: But you have to be rich to buy stocks.

Doctor: Nonsense. My broker said 75 percent of people who own stocks have incomes under ten thousand. Many under five. Tell Henry not to try to get rich quick or fall for tips or any of that rubbish. Idea is to get income from dividends and grow with the company.

Mrs. Brown: But do companies always pay dividends?

Doctor: Certainly not. Depends on the company. But I understand last year 90 per cent of the stocks on the New York Stock Exchange paid dividends. And about 300 have paid 'em every year for 25 up to 100 years. Thing to do is pick stocks carefully by getting all the facts you can get. Broker I go to is stuffed with 'em.

Mrs. Brown: You know something, doctor? I don't even know what common stock is.

Doctor: Didn't know myself until recently. You buy stock and that makes you part owner of the company. I practice medicine but I'm part owner of these companies I own stock in. They pay me dividends out of their profits. Not bad, eh? This is for your husband.

Mrs. Brown: But doctor, that's not a prescription—it's just somebody's name!

Doctor: Name of broker I go to. Tell your husband to ask him for that wonderful new booklet called "Dividends Over the Years." Goodbye, Mrs. Brown.

"DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS—a Basic Guide for Common Stock Investment" is packed with information. It gives dividend records and earnings of more than 300 stocks that have paid dividends every year for 25 years or more. These stocks are also grouped to show:

Stocks which have paid progressively higher dividends over the past 10 years

Stocks with yields of 5% to 6% at recent prices

Companies not reporting a deficit for 45 years

plus other useful information including—stocks most favored by financial institutions, facts about the convenient Monthly Investment Plan. For a free copy of this booklet send in the coupon.

This ↑ is an iron lung. Will the IPPB machine replace it? →

New weapon against diseases that choke

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN and SID ROSS

CHICAGO.

For people with polio and other "choking" diseases, there's new hope: a safe, comparatively simple way to get them out of the "prison" of iron lungs.

No longer will some patients have to lie on their backs for seemingly endless periods. No longer will they have to look at the world upside-down through mirrors. No longer will normal everyday activities — moving about, bathing, eating — be a problem.

The discovery which holds out such hope to patients with ailments paralyzing their respiratory tracts is called "intermittent positive pressure breathing" (IPPB for short). It even permits patients to carry out mild forms of work.

Doctors in Sweden and Denmark hit on IPPB just a few years ago. In Denmark it already has virtually replaced the iron lung. In the U.S., IPPB research is increasing.

Some West Coast hospitals have tested it in combination with other forms of artificial respiration. In certain other areas, doctors are leery of it. But last month a team of Chicago scientists reported on their first series of 22 patients (many with polio) "breathed" exclusively with the new instrument. The team: Dr. Ernest T. Mörch, of the University of Chicago, and Dr. George A. Saxton, Jr., and Gareth Gish, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

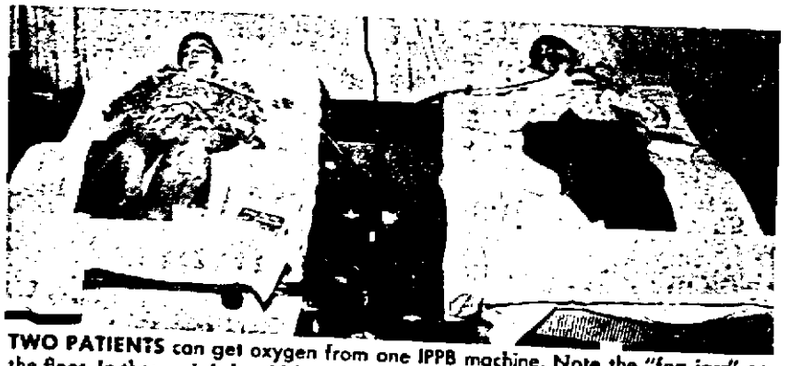

IPPB employs a small motor-driven piston which pumps air 16 to 20 times per minute to the patient. En route, the air is humidified in a bottle partly filled with water. From there, it travels through a tube fitted at the end with a little metal "elbow." This, in turn, is inserted into the patient's neck and down his windpipe. (The insertion requires surgery, but the patient, under anethesia, feels nothing.)

In contrast, the iron lung employs "negative" pressure. A vacuum is created in the iron lung itself. This causes the patient's chest to expand; thus air is sucked in through his mouth and nose.

Here are the advantages of IPPB over the iron lung as seen by the Chicago researchers: 1) It allows easier feeding, examination and nursing care of the patient; 2) Because the patient can move easily, he does not get bed sores; 3) Fewer chest and lung complications occur; 4) Physical therapy (muscle re-education) and occupational therapy can be started earlier; 5) Equipment is smaller, cheaper (about one-half the $1,800 cost of an iron lung) and easier to handle; 6) IPPB boosts patient morale.

Says one polio victim: "The lung gives you a feeling that you have a head but no body. This set-up makes you feel like a human being again."

IPPB has some disadvantages. The operation to insert the tube into the patient's windpipe can be hazardous, inadvisable in some cases. The tubes might become disconnected. (After testing many fittings,

TWO PATIENTS can get oxygen from one IPPB machine. Note the "fog jars" on the floor. In these, air is humidified to get just enough moisture for ideal breathing.

HELPED by a nurse, a teen-age patient at the University of Illinois Respiratory Center makes a phone call. Note that the IPPB machine (rear) is mobile, thus can follow patient.

gadgets and even baby-bottle caps, the Chicago scientists feel they have licked such mechanical problems.)

Then the motor may break down. IPPB machines used by the Chicago doctors have been fitted with alarms, which sound off if too little air is being pumped.

Finally, the patient, too, has to make some adjustments. Well people talk when exhaling. But IPPB patients cannot. They must speak when inhaling — a reversal of normal order. Thus they speak somewhat haltingly. In addition, IPPB patients can swallow food only before and after inhaling.

However, patients soon adjust to such minor worries.

Says Dr. Saxton, who is director of the Respiratory Center at the University of Illinois medical school: IPPB has potential value far beyond polio. Experimentally, it has been used successfully among patients suffering diseases of the central nerve system and barbiturate poisoning. In addition, it can help some accident and stroke victims.

Will IPPB replace the iron lung? It is too early to answer that question.

But this much the Chicago scientists will say: Until the patient's normal breathing is restored, IPPB can substitute for iron lungs where no lungs are available — thus saving lives.

So it's a safe bet that you'll be hearing a lot more about IPPB in the future. ■

USING a mouth pick, patient types out a hospital newsletter by hitting keys on an electric typewriter.

EASE of treatment with IPPB is shown as a physical therapist starts to work with a patient's arm.

"MY LIFE IN A CONVENT ...How I Escaped!"

Perhaps you never have seen a booklet with a title like that. And most likely you would cast it aside in disgust if it did come into your hands.

But freshly-printed copies of such "literature" continue to circulate through the mails, and through book stores dealing in lurid printed matter and vulgar "art." It survives with the same malign durability which, for more than 40 years, has kept alive the infamous bogus oath of the Knights of Columbus despite court convictions of those who circulate it.

"My Life In A Convent" is not designed to appeal to intelligent and fair-minded people. Its purpose is to poison the minds of the gullible and uninformed. It will not influence those who have seen Catholic sisters at work among the poor and afflicted ... in their services in hospitals and orphan homes ... in their numerous missions of charity and mercy. It does create suspicion and prejudice, however, among those who do not take the trouble to learn the truth.

It is for this reason that we say to people of good will everywhere: "Why not investigate?" Investigate not merely in the interests of truth ... not merely to render justice to the hundreds of thousands of consecrated women serving Christ in the Catholic sisterhoods of the world. Investigate, we respectfully suggest, for your own sake.

Find out for yourself not only how these humble servants of Christ live in their homes, but why they choose such a life. Ask yourself what it is about the Catholic Faith that could cause so many women to turn their backs on the pleasures of the world for a life of poverty, chastity and obedience. For in the answer to this question you may find not only a new respect and admiration for the Catholic nuns, but perhaps a new and better understanding of Christ's plan for your life.

A woman does not choose to become a nun only or solely that she may teach school, work in a hospital, or engage in works of mercy among the aged and afflicted. She doesn't join a sisterhood to escape the responsibilities of family life. The activities in which she engages ... and which are so often regarded as her chief merits ... are, in fact, mere by-products of a loftier purpose.

That purpose is to strive incessantly with all her heart and soul for one thing — holiness. She seeks what Christ promised when He said: "And everyone who has left house, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold and shall possess life everlasting."

If you want to know what really goes on in a convent ... if you want to feel in your own heart the deep Christian inspiration which motivates the nuns — write today for our Free Pamphlet No. PR-25. It will be mailed in a plain wrapper ... nobody will call on you.

Easy-to-make window boxes

Blooms sprouting under windows are pleasing to view from either side of the glass, and window boxes are so easy to make. Inexpensive, too — so there's no need to patch up and repaint old ones.

The plant-box designs pictured here have been worked out so that basic construction requires a minimum of time, effort and experience.

In buying lumber for any of the planters, look for the cheapest grade that will serve the purpose. Knots are permissible since painting and other decorative trim conceal them.

The only tools needed are saw, hammer, square, screwdriver and coping saw. Just send the coupon (right) for patterns showing how to cut each part to exact size.

TRIUMPH OVER TOOTH DECAY

Crest Toothpaste with Fluoristan strengthens tooth enamel to lock out decay from within

Fluoristan is Procter & Gamble's exclusive stannous fluoride formula—proven the greatest decay-preventive in any toothpaste

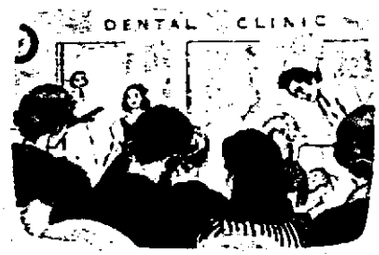

Miracle of the Towns Without Toothaches. For years, children growing up in certain Western towns were virtually without cavities. Then science learned why: nature's decay-preventive, fluoride, was present in their drinking water!

Science Long Tried to Capture Fluoride—only medically approved preventive of decay—in a toothpaste. At last, after years of research, university scientists discovered Fluoristan—the greatest decay-preventive in any toothpaste.

Fluoristan Makes Possible Crest. Without Fluoristan, you cannot get maximum protection against tooth decay with a toothpaste. Crest protects all permanent teeth, both of adults and of children, six years of age and over.

Dentists Tested Crest for three years on 5,673 people. No toothpaste stops all decay—but Crest set decay-prevention records never approached by any other toothpaste. Thus Crest marks a new era . . . triumph over tooth decay everywhere.

IMPORTANT

Crest with Fluoristan is the only toothpaste ever developed that makes possible a major reduction in tooth decay for everyone, everywhere, by strengthening tooth enamel. Thereby, Crest marks a turning point in man's age-old struggle against this almost universal disease.

Instead of waiting helplessly for cavities to strike, Crest now makes it possible for you to build strong defenses against decay within teeth themselves . . . to actually fortify teeth so that they turn back the destructive attacks of decay (as opposed to the old-fashioned method of brushing a temporary coating of protection on the surface of the teeth). With Crest, your family approaches the long dreamed-of day of healthy, decay-free teeth.

NO OTHER TOOTHPASTE PREVENTS DECAY LIKE CREST!

Los Angeles' Super Hoosegow

By Ted Krec

WHEN Long Beach builds its new $4,660,000 Public Safety Building, you can just bet that it won't look like the ones you used to see in the small towns back home a red brick building with a clock tower and a wooden fireman on the balcony.

They build them differently these days—and Long Beach has a shining example to follow. The city's big brother, Los Angeles, has completed a Police Administration Building at 1st and Los Angeles Sts. that is, without doubt, the showplace of the city.

Constructed on a site of 358,758 square feet, the structure is a modern miracle from the electronic elevators in the lobby to the glassed-in jail at the rear.

THE NEW HOME of Los Angeles Police Department has eight floors above ground and one below, with a total floor space area of 312,078 square feet exclusive of the parking areas.

But let's start at the beginning—with those electronic elevators in the lobby. If you push the button with a pencil, no elevator. You must push it with a finger, for it is activated by heat. The speedy cars are hooked into the intercommunication setup, too, so that you can talk out of the elevator and persons can talk in to you. This facilitates shifting of loads in event of overloading on one of the cars.

The entire building—except the jail—is air conditioned. The jail was neglected in this regard because prisoners are held here for a maximum of only four days, for processing. However, there are compensations for the hapless prisoners, for in the trusty quarters FM music is piped in on the intercom! The only bars are on the doors, the rest of the walls are three-quarter-inch-thick glass. Even the visiting rooms are glass, and prisoners and their visitors talk via telephone.

STATISTICS ON the building? The land cost $2,600,000 and the building and all the ultramodern equipment came to $7,015,779. There are 25,000 square feet of glass; 22,000 cubic yards of concrete were poured; 5,000 gallons of paint were used in the decorating. And just a couple more: 3,700,000 pounds of reinforcing steel and 78 miles of electric wire!

Size defies description. There are seemingly miles of corridors, hundreds of rooms, and all is done in simple, modern, unostentatious style. The building is functional inside and out.

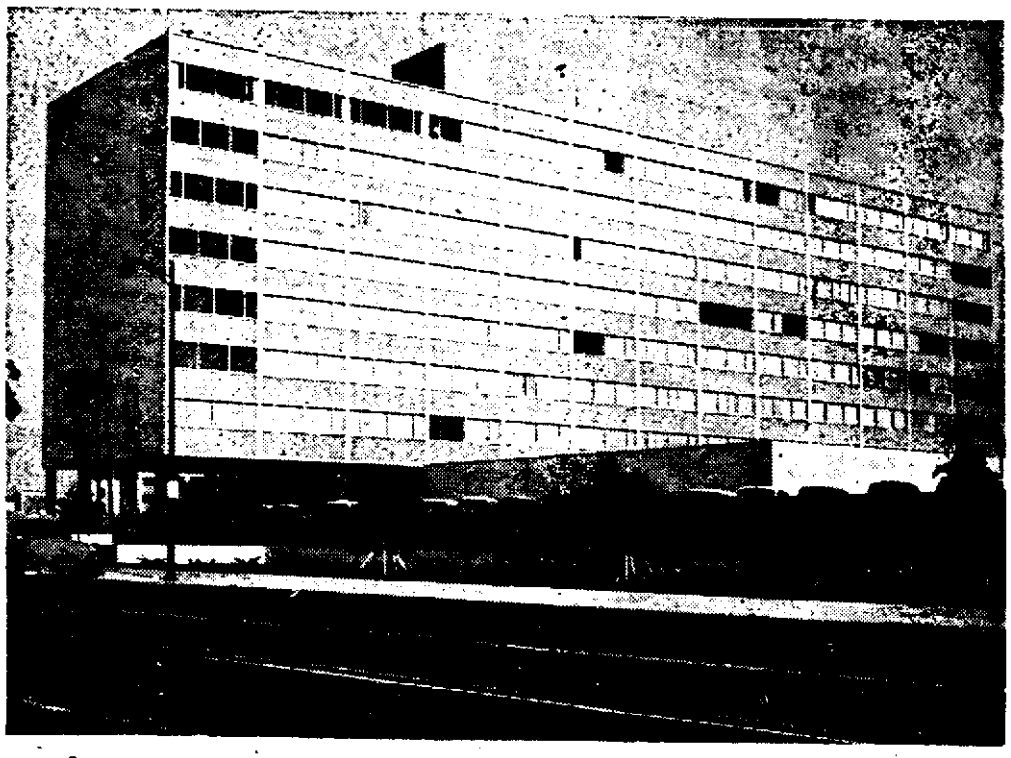

Communication throughout the building, exclusive of the intercom setup, is by telephone (there are 500 phones) and by pneumatic tube. This tube system is the latest thing, too. The person sending the object through the tube dials a number on a device similar to a phone dial. Then the cartridge containing the papers is put into the tube—and away it goes to the proper department. Oh, yes, there are big cartridges called "boxcars" which can be used for sending bulky file folders or even guns.

ON MANY OF THE massive windows are vertical aluminum blinds which can be regulated over their entire length merely by adjusting one slat.

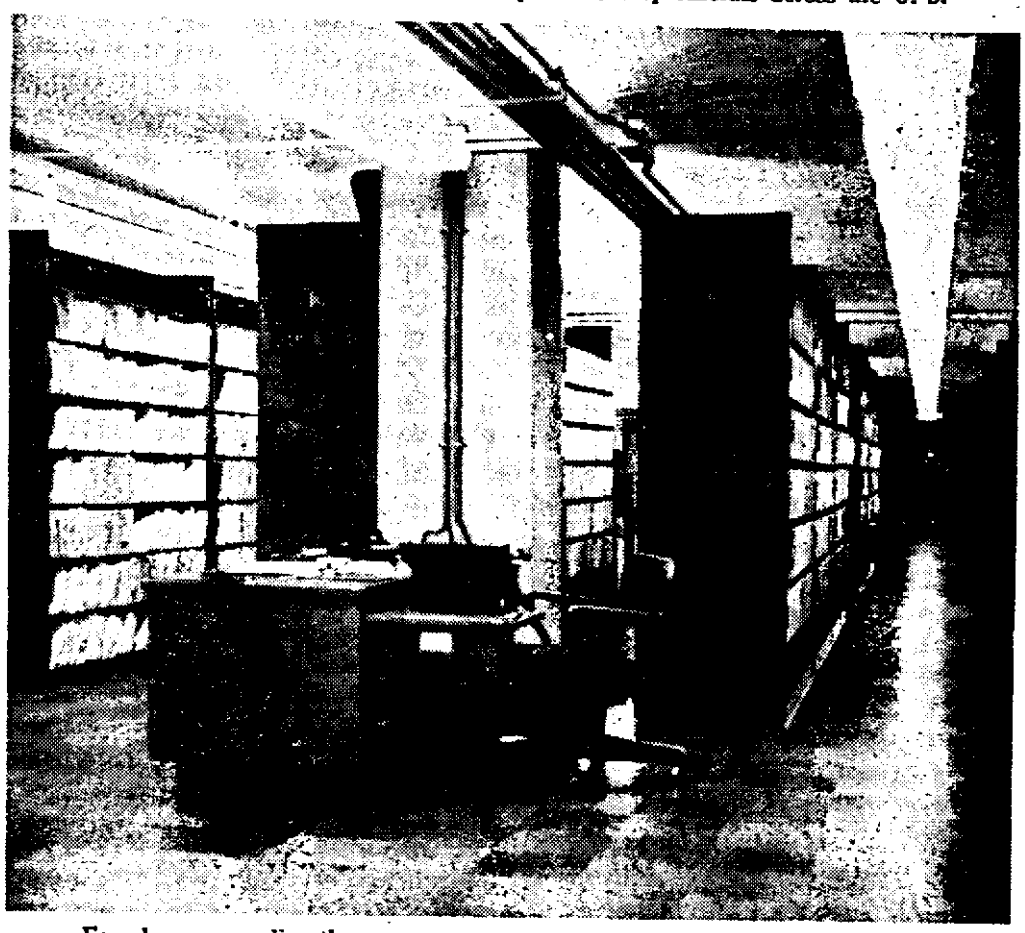

The building has its own television or movie studio, where pictures can be filmed, and the auditorium, which seats 452 persons, is full of surprises. Here the familiar lineups are held, but in an ultramodern way. In the first place, the auditorium is equipped to televise lineups for coast-to-coast use. Secondly, due to clever arrangement of lights, a suspect can be shown under any conditions in which he was seen — moonlight, neon, daylight or other lighting.

However, this array of switches can be a bit baffling, too. Take the incident that occurred when the attractive policewoman was showing some youngsters through the building. She herded them into the auditorium and was flashing the switches for them when she hit a special one. This one means a prisoner is escaping. She knew almost instantly what had happened, for help came pouring in over the stage as jail officers responded to the alarm. But that wasn't all! The back doors of the auditorium were hurled open and

In this lineup room—a modern auditorium—suspects may be seen in any light. Lineups can be televised.

IT SPREADS THROUGH ENTIRE FAMILIES

Epidemic Called Rockpox

By Albert Eagle

AN EPIDEMIC is spreading slowly through Southern California. The disease is seldom fatal, but it can ruin marital relations unless both spouses catch it. The afflicted become completely demented, and even form clubs with fellow sufferers. The clubs travel to beaches, mountains and deserts, which only aggravates the condition.

Rockpox, or more commonly rockhounding, is a contagious but enjoyable hobby sometimes caught by entire families.

The reasons are hard for people to understand unless they have been exposed to it.

"Why collect rocks?" they ask, "my back yard is full of them."

THE ROCKHOUND will explain patiently that even rockhounds don't particularly want clay boulders and hunks of granite; but show them a good gem stone and the symptoms of rockpox become evident.

Traveling in search of prize specimens is as much fun as displaying them. Camping in inaccessible spots and tramping over beaches in search of prizes is a sport in itself, claim the rockhounds.

The Southland area is rich in mineral specimens of beautiful and interesting structure and also in gem stones.

THE DESERT AREAS such as Barstow and Death Valley yield many gems: agate and the richer-colored jasper, opals with their hidden fire, all tints of smoky, rose and amethyst quartz and garnets, to name a few.

Areas of roughly crystalized rock, particularly around San Diego, Pala and Riverside produce aquamarine, sphene, rainbow tourmaline, topaz and sapphire.

Along the beaches, especially on rocky coasts, the ocean will occasionally toss up pieces of mottled jasper, agate, breccia or puddingstone and, farther north, near Willow Creek, beautiful Monterey jade.

IN THE WILEY WELL district of the Mojave, in the Houser Beds, are the mysterious round rocks with holes and scenes in them. These are geodes, formed when agate in a water solution filled in an ancient hole in the rock. When completely filled, without the central hole, they are termed thunder eggs. When cut with a diamond grit saw, some display pictures of indescribable beauty, due to a marbled or banded interior.

Another nearby area is Mint Canyon, above Los Angeles. Scattered along the ground among other stones, there is Howlite, and various tints of blue agate. Howlite is white with black markings and makes striking bookends or spheres.

There are two methods of working the stones. The most popular is the lapidary machine that cuts oval, round or square smooth stones called cabachons. Some machines can facet stones, or cut the little faces which give the diamond or emerald its brilliance.

A GOOD MACHINE for polishing in quantities is the tumbler. The stones when polished are called baroques, and are often of irregular shape, which lends itself to modern free-form jewelry.

Minerals, or naturally occurring crystallized chemicals, are often as prized and rare as gem stones, and sometimes even more beautiful. Most crystals are of regular geometric form. Even common salt takes on beauty as a mineral, forming perfect clear squares often tinted by impurities.

The mineralogist in Southern California can collect literally on his front door step. The beginner taking a drive along the coast highway between Palos Verdes and Corona Del Mar will find many interesting specimens.

ALONG 101 HIGHWAY, just west of the Arcades at Newport, the inland bank for about a mile is laced with fairly good sheets of gypsum called selenite. The fiberous or thready satin-spar is found along with it, and an occasional fossil.

Above Point Vicente in Palos Verde, about a mile up Crest Road, the northern bank is made up of glassy plate-like crystals about an inch in size. This is barite, or heavy spar. They are found in clusters or roses, and glow bright yellow under an ultra-violet or black light.

The entire Point Vicente area is also laced with barite. In the Livingston quarry, just inland from Portugese Bend, there are pyrites, dolomite marble, terminated quartz crystals and many other specimens.

ALONG THE BEACHES, below Corona Del Mar, one can find fairly good jasper. It is mottled yellow and black. There is some petrified wood in the gullys along the beaches, with very good wood markings. There is also breccia, stones which nature has shattered and recemented.

These three collection areas are all within a 45-minute drive of Long Beach, and can still afford a beginner the fun of collecting without traveling too far.

You don't have to be a mountaineer to take up rockhounding. There are many elderly people who can't go on field trips who, through shrewd trading and buying, have a wonderful collection. There are also entire families who collect gem stones and make jewelry.

IF YOU WISH to become a rockhound there is a club in Long Beach which meets the second Wednesday of every month at Belmont Recreation Center.

Rockhounding will add pleasure and purpose to a trip. It can be turned into a profitable and absorbing hobby. It is a family hobby which appeals to young and old.

Try it yourself and see; but remember, rockpox is contagious.

Barite crystals make showy display pieces. Crystals are employed commercially to make paint pigment.

Rockpox can be a family affair. Here a family spends a weekend prospecting and panning for gold in a California stream. They found few small nuggets.

Ramona, poignant outdoor play given near Hemet, is presented annually to huge crowds. This is part of the capacity audience at one of 1955 performances. The play is based on Helen Hunt Jackson's famous novel.

Ramona, played by Dorothy Bailey for her 6th season, is in love with Alessandro, played by Maurice Jara, but their romance is troubled as Senorita Moreno, household head, wants Ramona to wed her son, Felipe.

Ramona Loves Again

THE TRAGIC BUT BEAUTIFUL STORY of the undying love of an Indian maiden for a handsome brave who returns her devotion with his life is being re-enacted this weekend as the people of Hemet and San Jacinto reopened the Ramona Outdoor Play for the 29th season.

Presented in an acoustically perfect outdoor amphitheater at the outskirts of Hemet, the play opened yesterday and continues at 2:30 p. m. today, April 28 and 29, and May 5 and 6. Since its inception in 1922, it has been seen by more than 600,000 visitors from all parts of the world.

The cast of 350 is made up of residents of the Hemet-San Jacinto Valley, many of them descendants of families involved in the episodes that inspired the famous novel, "Ramona," from which the play is taken.

Dorothy Bailey of San Jacinto will play Ramona for the sixth year and Maurice Jara of Claremont has the part of Alessandro, the Indian hero, for the fifth year.

Senora Moreno (Fanchon Jennings) tells Ramona she will be sent to convent unless she gives up Alessandro as her lover.

Alessandro urges Ramona to run away, be married to him and live in peace among own people. She consents. They depart.

Pablo (Charles Seares), worker on rancho, and flirtatious Dolores (Linda Hagan) offer lighter moments of play with romance.

Alessandro appeals to the Sheriff (played by O. E. De Vinna) for aid after being told that his and Ramona's lives are in danger.

Ramona's baby dies and Alessandro is murdered. Felipe begs Ramona to wed him, forget cruelties suffered, and seek happier life.

WHO KILLED EVALINER CROCKETT?

The Case of the Black Necktie

(Editor's Note: This is the last of a series of articles on unsolved mysteries in the Long Beach area to appear in Southland Magazine.)

By Vera Williams

WHO GARROTED pretty Evaliner Crockett, 27, of Los Angeles and tossed her lifeless body out of a speeding car in Wilmington two days after Christmas 1953?

And why?

Police do not know the answer to either question although they have questioned hundreds of possible suspects and run down dozens of clues.

THE BODY of a shapely woman was found lying on a dusty stretch of Lomita Blvd. east of Eubank Ave. in Wilmington about 8:30 p.m. Dec. 27, 1953.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Thompson, 1114 E. Sandison St., Wilmington, driving home from a church meeting, found the body.

The woman was clad in a gray suit which had a black felt-trimmed bolero cape, pink blouse and one black pump. The other shoe, an earring and empty purse lay nearby.

A MAN'S BLACK necktie was knotted tightly around the victim's neck, and an autopsy disclosed that she died of strangulation. She was not pregnant.

After several days of investigation, the body was identified as that of Mrs. Evaliner Crockett, 27, of Los Angeles. The mother of two small children had been reported missing since the afternoon of Dec. 27 by her husband, Charles Crockett, of Los Angeles.

Her body was lying face downward beside fresh auto tire marks. Police believe she was strangled in the automobile by someone she knew and was pushed from the moving car.

HUBERT J. DUNWOODY, 236 Covina Ave., Long Beach, reported seeing a man and a woman in a car parked along the lonely stretch earlier in the evening. Dunwoody was a guard at a nearby oil company tank farm.

In the next few months, police questioned several hundred persons and arrested five men as suspects. All were released after they presented alibis that held up under investigation.

Police still are looking for the murderer.

This Is Tennis Without the

Paddle tennis gives a good workout and test of skill. Game is fun for the "thirtyish" player who finds regular tennis has become bit too energetic.

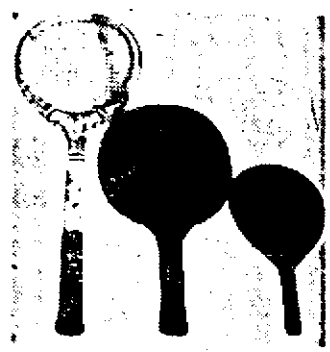

By Blaine Nels Simons

THE AVERAGE tennis player, upon becoming "thirtyish," finds that he reaches the far corners of the court a step or two later than the ball gets there, and that in running to the net for a play at a drop shot, the ball has bounced dead before he reaches it. An afternoon's tennis is then no longer fun, but only one of weariness and complete frustration. Forgetting that few long-distance runners and no sprinters at all are "in business" after 30, the thirtyish tennis player either gives it all up or plays on against weaker and weaker competition.

Today, however, many tennis players in this category, as well as many who have never played before, are finding the game of paddle tennis the answer to their problems. Actually begun as a sport in 1898 by Frank Peer Beal, now a New York minister, paddle tennis has only in recent years really caught the fancy of sports-loving Americans.

The benefits of paddle tennis are obvious to those who are old enough to realize they are not young any more. First of all, a paddle tennis court in length is 44 feet, according to American Paddle Tennis Association standards, as compared to 78 feet for a tennis court. In a run from baseline to net, therefore, the paddle tennis player has only 22 feet to go, while the other has 39 feet. Secondly, a regulation tennis court measures 36 feet wide; a paddle tennis court 20 feet wide. From mid-court the latter player must then cover only 10 feet on either side of him, while the tennis player must watch 18 feet to either side. Tennis nets are three feet high; the others two-and-one-half feet; hard low drives hitting the net in tennis are often scoring volleys in its smaller counterpart.

THE BALL USED is generally the regulation tennis ball on the West Coast; a sponge rubber ball on the East. In the West a bounce underhand serve is customary; in the East the overhead smash serve is in style, as in regular tennis. The paddle is a cross between a regular tennis racket and a ping-pong paddle in size, but more closely resembling the ping-pong device in appearance. The economy of the game is reflected in the fact that the paddle face itself is made of hard, perforated wood which, of course, never wears out or needs restringing as in tennis. (See photograph.) The court markings and rules of paddle tennis are exactly like those of regular tennis. Gone, however, are the long runs; back is the fun of tennis. Gone is the frustration of seeing a healthy teenage boy or girl across the net from you; back is the feeling of equality no matter the age.

The American Paddle Tennis Association estimates that over 6 million Americans play paddle tennis at some time or another. Balmy Southern California, with weather conducive to all-year sports, is fast becoming alive with private and public courts. Long Beach itself has three public courts located on Ocean Blvd. and 54th Pl.; on winter weekends these courts are crowded with paddle devotees and in summer draw many players daily.

SEVERAL LOCAL paddle tennis clubs are in existence, the oldest being the Alamitos Bay Paddle Tennis Club composed of 21 members and headed by B. P. Weill as president. Weill can recall when, years ago, he and other members of the club would block off side streets from Ocean Blvd. on the peninsula, put up a net and play paddle tennis all day. Subsequently, the game "caught on" all over town, and the existence of many courts for the sport then relieved the bay group from the hazards of chasing stray balls out onto Ocean Blvd.

range in age from 20 to 50, though most are over 30. It will take but a few minutes' observation of the game to realize that these players are going as fast and furiously as those playing regular tennis.

SKILL OR KNOWLEDGE of tennis arts is helpful to the paddle tennis newcomer, though the changeover is not immediate. Weekly, tennis players out for a little diversion will find themselves completely outclassed and outscored by the average paddle tennis player. Many come back for more and soon find themselves preferring the smaller court game to the large. Newcomers and oldtimers alike seem to find more enjoyment and exercise in sprinting around a paddle tennis court than they did in running crosscountry races around tennis courts. To me, tennis courts seem to get larger each year.

Today, I can, in stride, whomp someone 10 years my junior and be miserably defeated by someone 10 years my senior. Therein lies the enjoyment of paddle tennis. You're never too old.

Super Hoosegow

more officers cascaded onto the scene from first-floor offices, weapons at the ready.

MUCH OF THE CREDIT for the extreme utility of the building should go to the men of the LAPD Planning and Research Division. These visionaries, given a bare room, can be relied upon to get the full measure of usefulness out of it. To do this they put a piece of ruled graph paper over a metal plate. Then, with scale model pieces of furniture, each one magnetized, they can envision exactly how the room will look. The magnetism holds the models against the graph paper and the planners can get an idea of where to place everything—a 3-D planning board!

Many of the officers themselves, veterans in their jobs, have contributed developments and inventions to enhance the new building. Almost every department boasts two or three of these department-developed pieces of equipment.

As soon as the building was opened, it began to catch the public's fancy, mostly because of the modern design. And that interest didn't center just in the Southland area, either.

The boys at LAPD still chuckle about the letter they received from a crossroads hamlet in the midwest. It said:

"Gentlemen: Would you please send us a copy of the plans for your new police building . . ."

San Blas, Mexico's Sleeping Beauty

By George C. Booth

SAN BLAS nods peacefully on Mexico's west coast, 962 miles south of Nogales, Ariz., and well into the tropical zone. The village probably has everything that has been sung or fabled about a tropical retreat. A tropical moon, a lazy lagoon, coconut palms drunk with the sun, brown-skinned fishermen who sing as they head their boats into the setting sun, and beautiful dark-eyed maidens who dance with baskets of flowers on their heads — all of these are part of the daily life.

However, the true romance of San Blas is hidden deeper; it is embedded in the cobbled streets or guarded by the toothless old fort on the hill; it is buried in the silted-up harbor and cherished by the bronze-belled church in the plaza. Longfellow captured some of this feeling with one of his last poems:

What say the Bells of San Blas
To the ships that southward pass
From Macatlan?

Four hundred years ago San Blas was a terminus for the Manila galleons; the town's cobbled streets were once the end of a paved road that crossed Mexico to Vera Cruz carrying fortunes in Oriental goods. In 1579, Sir Francis Drake freebooted the Santa Ana as she neared San Blas with a cargo valued at $20,000,000 — a feat that puts the Brink's holdup far down the line.

IN THE MIDDLE 1600s French and English pirates harried the port so steadily that a stone fort was built on a high bluff dominating the harbor. A few years later Padre Junipero Serra built his monastery headquarters behind the fort and set out from there to establish missions in California. Since then the harbor has filled in and bananas grow where ships once anchored.

Today's tourist who comes to San Blas on a 22-mile, paved turnoff from the west coast highway and stops at the palatial Playa Hermosa Hotel on the beach suspects little of the town's history. Tall coconut palms shade thatched homes whose doors are always open; the standard greeting of the townspeople is "That which you wish."

Visitors who wander through the town are greeted with friendly "good mornings" or "good afternoons," but no one tries to sell them anything. Those who want novelty go to the beach, where they can hire fishing boats or take a trip in a dugout with an outboard up one of the many rivers. On these jungle trips the sightseer is certain to spot iguanas and alligators sunning themselves or to see flocks of parakeets flying through the trees.

SWIMMERS HAVE a choice of two of the Pacific's finest beaches. Playa Hermosa fronts the town and extends two miles of wide, shell-strewn strand. Malanchin Beach is three miles south of town and offers a half moon shoreline flanked by banana plantations.

Tourists will find three modern hotels in San Blas, and a cafe in the center of town that is equally surprising for its excellent cuisine and low prices. Many Americans park their trailers on one of the two beaches and settle down for a lengthy stay.

It matters little whether the visitor stays a few hours or a few days, as soon as he steps out of his car the somnolent spell has him.

Author's Photos

Father Junipero Serra planned and equipped his mission-building expedition in this San Blas building.

Tropical charm abounds in San Blas. This is a quiet side street in that easy-going Mexican coastal city.

San Blas has three hotels; one of them, the Belmar, is managed by Jose Espincosa and sister, Magdalena.

Around the World With DELAPLANE

"I am a college student, male, 21, with very little money but a big yen to see Europe. What about it?"

THE NETHERLANDS government operates 9,000-ton student ships in the summer with dormitory accommodations for $152.50, New York or Montreal to Southampton. Three round-trip sailings in June, two in July, one in August and two in September. Book through Holland-America. If you want a little more luxury, including a full bar instead of beer only, you can put up $27.50 more and go via Holland-America's virtually one-class ships Maasdam and Ryndam. All take eight days for the crossing.

Hitchhike when you get to Europe. This is a much more acceptable mode of travel over there than it is here. And you'll get to know the people better. But travel light or you won't fit into some of those small European cars.

Here is an unscientific analysis culled from college students who have done it. France, very good. You can get a ride free, or possibly for 500 or 1000 francs, from Paris to the Riviera by going at 2 or 3 a. m. to Les Halles, the big wholesale food market in the middle of Paris, and shopping around for a truck heading south. Camion (truck) drivers are your best bet in France. England and Holland, very good but short hauls. Belgium, not so good. Spain, not enough cars. Italy, fair. Germany, not bad if you avoid the autobahns. Scandinavia, not many cars on the highway.

Some of these kids say they got three and four-day rides and free meals thrown into the bargain.

If you don't want to hitchhike, travel third class.

Be sure you have "Student" stamped in your passport so you can take advantage of student deals I've mentioned before, special museum rates, etc.

"You are always mentioning cheap places to live in Mexico and Europe. Isn't there any such in the United States?"

I UNDERSTAND, especially through reports from Texas, that Arkansas is now the land of milk and honey.

I don't know how far the land rush has gone there, but you can buy land covered with trees, wild berries, springs and streams and overlooking a river for not too much. Taxes are low. The natives are friendly, sometimes even quaint and original.

They say that food is less expensive than most places and that anything will grow there. The place is covered with ginseng, the plant that kept the Chinese living so long. Lots of beauty and lots of building material—rocks, clay and logs available from the Forest Service.

"I have to go to Rome this summer, and I am tired of looking at ruins."

GET A TAXI DRIVER to take you to Piazza Santa Maria in the Trastevere section. There are a dozen restaurants around there with offbeat entertainment. And up in the park you'll find a pleasant outdoor dancing spot. I forget the name, but it may be Casa Rosa.

Your mailed questions will be answered (no phone calls). Send stamped and addressed envelope to: Stan Delaplane, Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

She's the New Vargas Girl

When Vargas, prime exponent of girlie drawings and delight of magazine gawkers, visited Paramount, he was vastly impressed with the physical attributes of Carol Ohmart, studio's newest star, who makes her film debut in "The Scarlet Hour." He called her the "New Vargas Girl" and asked to paint her.

The posing gets under way and Vargas sketches out his picture. Carol, he says, has that "rare peachy skin." Look at Vargas, fellows, not the model.

Now the final result—Carol Ohmart, by Vargas. Paramount rates Carol high among its new stable of stars. "Scarlet Hour" was filmed in VistaVision.

Solvang's Wind Harp

By Bertha Blanchard

Author's Photo

Largest wind harp in the U. S. is this one located at Solvang, Danish town north of Santa Barbara.

IF YOU HAVE ever listened to the wind play sweet music on the strings of a wind harp, you are indeed fortunate, for there are only a few wind harps in the world today.

Largest and most unique wind harp in America is located on the grounds of Atterdag College, in the Danish town of Solvang, north of Santa Barbara. Originally, this wind harp adorned the top of the Greek exhibit building at the 1915 World's Fair in San Francisco. That same year, Rev. Benedict Nordenloft, who built the college, brought the harp to Solvang and perched it high on a hillside among the whispering pine boughs, over-looking the Atterdag Bowl.

The harp tower stands on four steel pillars, about 15 feet high. Inside the lower globe, pipes are hung on chains. Close to each pipe is a solid lead ball, smaller than a golf ball, hanging on a chain. When the wind blows, both ball and pipe move and as they strike, make a musical sound.

THE PIPES ARE of different lengths and therefore give off different tones. The long ones give off deep tones, the shorter ones a higher note. When the wind is strong, these musical notes can be heard two blocks away.

This wind harp descended from the ancient Aeolian Harp, a stringed musical instrument, played automatically by the wind. Wires stretched across an open framework or a box of thin wood were tuned in unison. The play of the wind across the strings caused them to vibrate and produce harmonic effects.

The principle of natural vibration of strings by the pressure of the wind is familiar to all who have heard telephone wires "sing" in the breeze, the sound being intensified by the posts which practically act as soundboards.

THE HARP was named for Aeolus, the Greek and Roman Mythological deity, who controlled the winds.

Perhaps the earliest record of this quaint instrument is the ancient account of King David and his kinnor, or small harp, which he had suspended over his bed. When the wind swept over the strings in the silence of the night, musical sounds emitted seemed to be as if the chords were struck by some supernatural agency. It is also related that St. Dunstan of Canterbury hung a harp over his couch, but he was charged with sorcery. In an old Irish poem, we read of the delightful music produced by the wind on the strings of a cruit or crott.

San Francisco, April 18, 1906

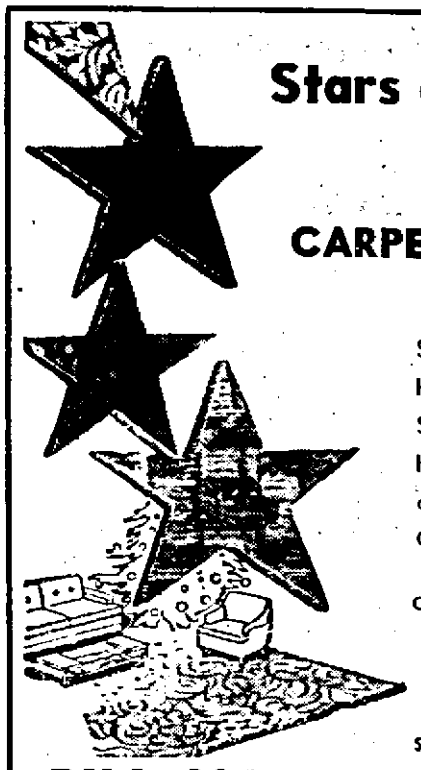

One of the great fires of history followed a 5:12 a. m. earthquake at San Francisco fifty years ago.

Hammond Lumber Company had offices on the 4th floor of the Merchants Exchange building on California Street.

Everything inside our offices was destroyed, excepting, by good luck, the contents of our office vault. The papers therein were browned from the heat. Some banks could hardly decipher the charred records they later removed from their vaults, such as a $100,000 note, very black indeed, which our company paid off, framed and hung in our office

By Terry Vernon

Press-Telegram TV-Radio Columnist

SOME smart pundit once said, "You can take the boy out of the country but you can't take the country out of the boy," and in the case of William Moore it's a good thing.

When I walked into Don the Beachcomber's in Hollywood the other night to have dinner with Moore and his charming wife, professionally known as Beryl Davis, Bill jumped up and practically yelled across the room, "Over here, Terry."

No other star would be caught dead raising his voice in the sacrosanct precincts of Don's place except to sing his own praises. Not so, this part-Cherokee boy who came from Henrietta, Okla., and hasn't yet let Hollywood force him to upstage anyone. He is just the same as he was when he broke through the golden gates of fame and fortune years back—it's a charm that no school can teach, a personality that fits him like a glove and wins him friends who stay friends—even in a town that loves knives in the back better than pheasant under glass.

ACTUALLY BILL came to Hollywood as a writer and he had a script with him to prove it . . . a script that one producer took a look at and immediately declared, "the only thing good about this is the name of the leading man" and tossed it back at the budding author, who was then employed at Barker Brothers at $15 a week.

That did it . . . and William Moore of Henrietta became Peter Potter of radio, movies and TV fame and during the past years has amassed a comfortable bank account, a beautiful and talented wife and some small fry to haunt his swimming pool.

Changing his name seemed the magic formula to success and Peter Potter started out in radio, wound up doing some stage plays, then parts in some movies but primarily became a radio disc jockey—sort of a Louella Parsons or Hedda Hopper of the discories. If Peter took a record and played it on his shows, then sales were pretty sure to hit a new high.

SUCCESS DIDN'T come easy to Peter—he worked at it and still does. He is on the air a lot of hours each week and has a terrific following among those who like the newest recordings of the older tunes. Peter brings a freshness to the microphone because he personally knows nearly all of the performers who are appearing on his record shows.

Potter finds top stars always eager to appear on his show. Here he is with Sammy Davis Jr., Eddie Cantor.

Let Peter Potter spin a record on "Juke Box Jury" and the sale of that particular "platter" starts climbing.

"Juke Box Jury" was the actual turning point in his career, however, and this panel show has become one of the most popular in the Southland. He has also had it on the network as summer replacement for top-rated shows.

Recently Peter couldn't negotiate with KNXT satisfactorily so KRCA jumped in and made a counter-offer that Pete could not refuse. So he shifted the show to a new time and station but remained right up in the top rungs of the rating reports.

WE ASKED HIM about the numerous stars who appear on his "Juke Box Jury," and Peter said he was amazed at the number of persons who want to get on the show.

"It's not a high budget show, you know," he said, "and what we pay must look like peanuts to the stars who command five- and six-figure weekly paychecks. But I'm real pleased at the waiting list we have. When we need someone to fill in it is a cinch to get a top star and I just don't know why."

Peter and Beryl used to live on a "ranch" in the San Fernando Valley but traffic became too heavy on the freeways so they got a place near Hollywood, high in the hills overlooking the smog-filled valley. It is only ten minutes to his studio by Jaguar. They have two children Bill Jr., 7, and Mary Bell, 3, and the youngsters don't know Peter Potter at all. They know he works on the radio but are innocent as to his profession. Fact is, Bill Jr. has only seen his dad on TV once and didn't care much for the show since there were no cowboys and Indians riding that-a-way.

COOKING

Here's Help with Junior's Meals

By Mildred K. Flanary
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

Prepared junior foods take much of drudgery out of raising a family, as Mrs. Lawrence Maguire finds in feeding her daughter, Mary, and son, Michael John.

SPEAKING of "holler" days, there's a National Baby Week in the 1956 calendar from April 25 right through May 2. Actually, in the good old U.S.A., it's Baby Week the whole year round.

There's one sure way to be a howling success with the bawling department — that's by keeping in mind that its members are entirely individual with personalities to match. Each one's different, yet each is best.

Right from the cradle up, we like our children to be happy and satisfied. We train them for adventure, and for full expression of the gifts they have been given. Even in the matter of diet, wonderful strides are being made every day.

WHAT A BLESSING for mothers that they no longer have to measure, mix and stir, for the infant of today has its own food from pre-cooked cereal (corn, wheat, oats and rice) to every vegetable the garden can muster or the fruit trees can produce. They owe much to the large food companies which have specialized in the production of baby foods.

Such a lucky mother is Mrs. Lawrence Maguire, 6003 E. Arabella St., whose daughter, Mary, is just one year, to a day, older than her brother, Michael John. Their birthdays fall on January 21.

Diets for Mary and Mike run the gamut now of the vegetable kingdom from strained carrots, sweet potatoes to green beans, frozen orange juice and dry cereal.

TIME WAS, TOO, that baby shifted highchair gears from strained foods direct into high living at the family table. But now, thanks again to prepared food companies, the toddler can be given that smug feeling of sharing family meals yet having his own chopped foods from the junior cans and jars. Junior can favorably compare his own chopped carrots and green beans that may wear a garland of riced, hard-cooked egg yolks.

In most cases a pediatrician prescribes for each individual child, so we won't attempt today to add to or detract from his advice. However, the few random suggestion given below may help a bit.

HOW TO INTRODUCE SOLIDS: A small, narrow-bowled spoon, preferably with a long handle, should be used for feeding your baby solid foods.

The first solid, which probably will be cereal, should be thinned to a semi-liquid state with water, milk or formula. As your baby becomes accustomed to the different consistency, add less liquid.

It might be advisable to thin his first strained meats, fruits and vegetables in the same way.

It is a good idea to introduce your child to new flavors one at a time in order to avoid confusion and permit you to examine his reaction to each. Continue one food for a week or so until the baby is accustomed to it, then introduce a second.

When you first feed your baby solid food, he might appear to reject it. Remember, however, that heretofore he has been used to obtaining his food from a nipple by a sucking reflex. Now he has to adjust his tongue and swallowing mechanism to the heavier texture. It is best to place the food midway on his tongue; thereby prompting an almost unconscious swallowing action.

Never force your child to eat unwanted foods. If he rejects a new flavor, try another; come back to the first a week or so later.

Some babies eat new foods best when they are hungriest—at the beginning of a meal. Others are too fussy and not in a mood for experimenting until they have had a bit to eat. See which is the case with your baby, then proceed accordingly.

But remember: Relax! take it easy! Make mealtime fun for both you and baby.

SELF-FEEDING: Somewhere along the way, perhaps as early as six months, your baby will begin grabbing the spoon with which you are feeding him. This is the first step toward mastery of his own knife, fork and spoon.

The best thing to do when your child starts holding tightly to the spoon is to give him a second one — a straight-handled spoon which will be easy for him to handle. Let him practice picking it up, putting it down, directing it to his mouth.

Once your youngster is sitting in his high chair, you might allow him to experiment by guiding his hand with the spoon from his plate of food to his mouth.

Once you see that junior is able to manage the spoon — even a bit shakily — don't sit and watch him. Nonchalantly look out the window for a minute or two, talk with others at the table; return for a few words of encouragement; now and then help him a bit when he gets tired.

The foods you feed him as well as the utensils you give him can mean a lot in helping your baby along the road to self-feeding.

WHEN YOUR BABY is eight months old, or earlier (just as your doctor recommends), it's about time to shift to junior foods. Prepared under the same high standards as strained foods, these diced vegetables and finely minced meats are the way to a well balanced diet for the toddler.

Texture is the chief difference between strained and junior varieties. Many of the old favorites are present. They are still mildly seasoned so as not to impair the child's palate for natural food flavors nor prove irritating to the digestive tract.

Not all junior foods are of the same consistency. Listed below are those which might be considered "transition" foods because of their finer texture. Perhaps you and your baby would like to try these first:

Beef Lamb Beef heart
Pork Veal
Chicken farina vegetable porridge
Applesauce Peaches Pears
Apricots and applesauce

Quaint Hideaway in a 'Sleepy Hollow'

Photos by H. S. Melvin

Antiques, including spinning wheel, cobbler's bench, pie safe now holding TV, are of interest in living room of Lloyd de Blois family's home.

By Eileen Ball

JUST A FEW blocks off the busy thoroughfare of Long Beach Blvd. is a "sleepy hollow" sort of community where a handful of houses nestle under old shade trees along quiet, block-long streets.

In the midst of this area is a quaint bungalow and barn sheltered by lofty eucalyptus and wept over by lacy willows. It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd de Blois, 4650 Ruth Ave., and their daughter, Mimi.

The house, barn and guest cottage are located on an irregularly shaped and spacious lot that is informally planted with trees and shrubs. The rustic architecture of the buildings set in the wooded site look like a bit of New England dropped in the midst of this city.

WHILE THE COTTAGE abounds in romantic charm, it is somewhat lacking in the sort of new innovations that earmark the more "modern" dwelling. Such features as forced air, electric dishwashers and inter-communication systems are as alien to this house as to a country farmhouse of a generation or two ago. And this is just the way the de Blois family likes it!

So remote and withdrawn is this home from the high-powered, high-pressured city hassle that a visit is like a vacation at a countryside inn. A pathway leads to a long, covered veranda grown over with English ivy and pink cabbage roses. The porch is faced with old brick salvaged from an old house wrecked years ago. On the veranda stands a long, spindle-back church pew.

THE HIGH-PITCHED ceiling of the living room has exposed pine rafters. The walls are paneled in vertical, waxed knotty pine. And the furnishings are authentic early American antiques.

Near a fireplace of old brick stands an apple green rocker and an old spinning wheel, both about 100 years old. Other antique appointments include a cobbler's bench, a rare cabbage slicer (which looks a lot like a cobbler's bench), a pair of spinners' chairs and a pie safe. The latter is an amusing wood cabinet with perforated tin panels set into its double doors. The design punched in the tin was once calculated to please the eye while discouraging flies and little fingers from sampling the pastries closeted therein. (Now enclosed in the pie safe is a television set.)

A WINDOW SEAT on the north wall has French windows that swing wide to the garden. Hanging over this alcove is an antique lantern, its six panels of amber glass overlaid with ornamental tin.

On the wall opposite is a balcony which runs the width of the room and off which opens the left bedroom occupied by Mimi. A steeply-ascending wood staircase leads to this quaint, sloped-ceiling room with its old-fashioned trundle bed and antique rocking horse.

Under the scallop-trimmed balcony is the area designated as High light at front of the de Blois house is a long, covered veranda. At side is informal patio. Quaint guest house (right) has storybook flavor.

Girdle Hurdle

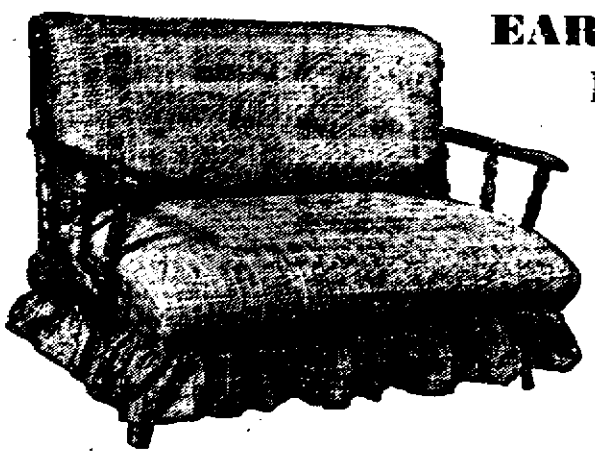

Travel which requires sitting for many hours in a plane, train or car, is very taxing on the flow of blood and other fluids through the body. Keeping a good circulation requires body motion according to a recent article in the official publication of the American Society of Travel Agents. The society advocates an hourly walk for all and, in a special note to the ladies, advises them to "leave their girdles at home."

the entry. Hanging on the panelled wall nearby is an old hayrake, cranberry rake and small pine shelves.

Amusing brass and glass hurricane fixtures hang on the walls for the sake of illumination. Daylight is dealt with equally cleverly with the placement of a small colored glass window high at the crest of the ceiling.

FOR COMFORT'S SAKE, this 17x22-foot room has been carpeted in cocoa-colored, deep-tufted cotton which harmonized nicely with the upholstered settle that may be drawn close to the fire.

The master bedroom, located directly under Mimi's upstairs room, opens off the living room and, in turn, has French doors that swing open to a secluded side garden. Fan-shaped steps of used brick are partially overgrown with ivy and framed with myriad little English garden flowers.

Novelty is achieved in the bedroom by installing cedar shingles for finish of the wall opposite the doorway. Since the area opens directly off the living room, attention is attracted to the unusual treatment whenever the bedroom door is opened.

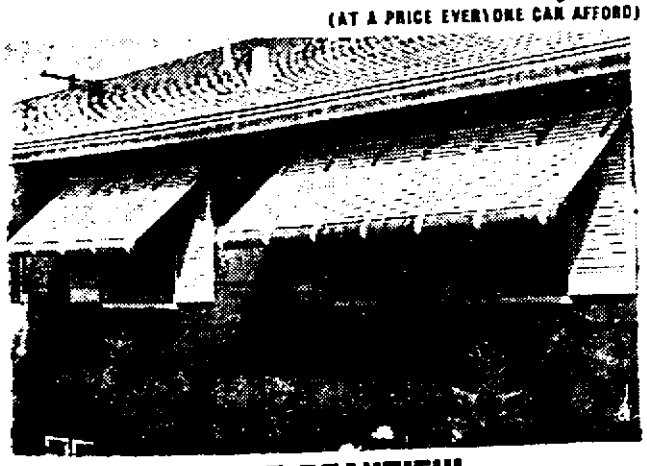

The bed (a plain boxspring, mattress and legs arrangement) is pushed against the other wall, against which stand 10 antique louvered shutters. The mellowed old pine shutters create a charming headboard for the bed which is lighted by a hanging Paul Revere lantern over 75 years old. By the bed is an old oil lamp, converted to electricity. It stands on a dough box that serves nicely as a bedside table.

Opening off the living room to the east is the kitchen with its round table, old rush-seat, ladderback chairs and its very old butter churn.

THE PATIO, which hugs the house close in the ell established for it by the placement of living room and kitchen, is paved in a semi-circle with used brick. Old hickory and wicker furniture blend harmoniously with the plants growing informally all around. Filtering the sunlight into fragile patterns over the patio is a huge old weeping willow and a pepper tree. The pleasing presence of brick masonry is introduced by the back of the living room fireplace. One portion of the structure opens to the patio to form an outdoor barbecue. Utensils and dishes used for outdoor cookery are handily — and surprisingly — housed in an amusing old bread wagon that stands nearby on the lawn. Once a horse-drawn conveyor of fresh bakery products, this boxey little wagon seems perfectly suited to its new role.

Back of the house is an old barn in fine repair that, until recently, was used as a ceramic studio. The de Bloises, who have owned the property only since September, have plans to convert the kiln to a fireplace and the barn to a residence.

Already highly livable, on a smaller scale, is a pert, brown-and-yellow guest cottage with Dutch door, cupola and shed-roofed veranda.

Kipling's Children Get Together

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

FIRST of the British writers to receive the Nobel Prize for Literature, Rudyard Kipling gave to the world some of its most wonderful classics in prose and verse. Certainly everyone who has ever read what he has written has found a gem or two to be remembered always. To read his stories or ballads usually calls for more of the same, with the wish that his entire writings might be brought together in a single collection.

Now, in answer to the continuing popularity of this acknowledged master who died 20 years ago, much of Kipling's best has been published in a two-volume set by John Beecroft. It is titled "Rudyard Kipling: A Selection of His Stories and Poems" (Doubleday, $7.50), and is the May selection of the Literary Guild.

Packed in ostentatious jackets which Kipling himself would have loved—because they smack of India where he was born and where he spent many happy years—the contents at once become a prize for those who know or do not know this writer. First off, in Volume I, is his most famous novel, "Kim," the tale of a street-Arab apprenticed to the Indian Secret Service, a beautifully vivid panorama of Indian life with a detective twist. There follows the "Jungle Book" in which Kipling personalizes the tiger and other denizens of the Indian jungle for the child Mowgli, whose teachers they become; his incomparable "Just So Stories" for children including "How the Whale Got His Throat" and "How the Leopard Got His Spots," and, finally, selections from "Puck of Pook's Hill."

Volume II contains 27 of Kipling's miscellaneous short tales, his own story about himself, and more than half a hundred of his most famous poems, including "Danny Deever," "Mandalay" and "The Ballad of East and West," each marked by a verve and robustness so characteristic of Kipling's writings.

In his introduction, Mr. Beecroft quotes Somerset Maugham as saying that Kipling is ". . . our greatest story writer. I can't believe he will ever be equalled. I am sure he can never be excelled."

Maugham, like Kipling, speaks great truths masterfully.

LONG A STUDENT of philosophy and comparative history, actor Lew Ayres recently made a globe-circling trip to seek understanding of the many doctrines in his continuing search for spiritual truths. The result is "Altars of the East" (Doubleday, $4.50), in which he explores colorful religions of which little is known in the United States.

Mr. Ayres has written a sequence on Hinduism, another on the Jains, the Parsis and the Sikhs; the two branches of Buddhism, and Confucianism, Mohammedanism, and Judaism, all of which represent the spiritual ideals of 1½ billion persons.

While Mr. Ayres was once a conscientious objector, he lets it be known in this work that he believes peace may be good and that it can also be evil, that the peace with which he is concerned "is surcease of international armed conflict for a sufficient period to allow time, energy and money to tackle and overcome the subhuman environment degrading and demoralizing more than half the world's inhabitants."—F.T.K.

PETER GIBBS
. . Knows African Colonies . .

A fascinating new book which reveals strange ways in which colonies were created in Africa — with trail-makers like Cecil Rhodes and Leander Starr Jameson stirring life in its pages—is "A Flag for the Matabele" (Vanguard, $3.50). Author is Peter Gibbs, who has lived in Africa and Rhodesia for the past 20 years.

WITH 1956 political battles beginning to shape up, "This Is Nixon: The Man and His Work" (Putnam's, $2.75) should be must reading for those who admire the Vice President and wish to defend him, for those who dislike this young man who's almost certain to be Eisenhower's running mate, and for those who want a closer look at the man before deciding whether they will or will not support him.

Written by James Keogh, an editor of Time, the book is compact but still is a definitive look at the 36th Vice President — where he came from, what he believes, what he says and where he stands. Here, certainly, is ample proof that he is the most active vice president in the country's history, and there are generous quotations from interviews and speeches.

Actually, Nixon is almost a "home town boy" since he was born in nearby Yorba Linda on Jan. 9, 1913. This is a full, readable account of this rising young American from that day until now, when he is probably the most controversial figure in politics.—F.T.K.

THE BEGINNING struggles of modern Israel are those of a people with a world against them. "Vanquish the Angel" by Diana and Meir Gillon (Day, $3.50) begins with Yoel as a child of the older Jews who grows into his birthright and returns to Israel with an English education and a gentle wife. At that time the British blockade impressed the Israel people into a secret battle against authority. Bombs and bullets comprised the language of resistance, and every Jew had his own place in the struggle for freedom.

All is not well between Yoel and the lovely Olivia. A fight for a state grows into a fight for a marriage, when Olivia turns to a British officer for comfort in a fashion which it seemed could not be given her by Yoel. It is the secret Jewish network which has to disclose to Yoel that his wife is suspect. From then on the novel gains in tension, until at last Israel is a state, the British leave but the Arabs attack. The reader will gain a new understanding of what comprises Jewish independence with the reading of this fine novel. —G. L.

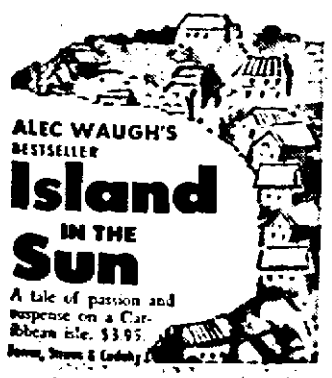

DETAILS OF BEING a Navy wife are many and varied, often frustrating, but the ultimate achievement is a grand life, in the opinion of Florence Ridgely Johnson who, more than 20 years ago, married a young junior lieutenant. Today, her husband is a rear admiral. That other Navy wives may have the benefit of her experience as they "report for duty," Mrs. Johnson has written what she terms "a service manual for the naval officer's wife." It is "Welcome Aboard" (U. S. Naval Institute, $3.50), and in it, carefully titled by chapters and efficiently indexed, are the answers to a myriad of questions confronting the new member of the vast Navy family.

SABRINA KANE, from the novel of the same name by Will Cook (Dodd, Mead, $3.50), was a pioneer immigrant to Illinois. Her husband died en route, and the beautiful lady determined to continue to the new land. She could swing a bullwhip as good as any man, though she was "hardly taller than a rifle and weighed less than a barrel of rum." Had her own ideas about bossing men, too, until she ran into Benjamin Travis, who finally conquered her.

"MURDER IS WHERE You Find It," and you'll find lots of it in the book of that name by Robert P. Hansen (Mill-Morrow, $2.75). You ought to be able to guess the ending, too.

DOGS AND CATS, big and small, pedigreed and alley, have definite personalities, repaying in love and trust those who care for them, says George DeClyver Curtis in "Cats' Tales & Dogs' Days" (American Press, $3). In his California mountain home he has had a variety of these furry pets and he writes of them with charm. The volume is well illustrated.

DELL CONTINUES to publish exciting First Editions, or original stories not hitherto printed in book form. Titles this month include "The Devil's Spawn," Robert Carse's story of revenge and primitive passions; "The Great Locomotive Chase," a story by MacLennan Roberts based on the Walt Disney production and on authentic Civil War documents; and "The Angry Man," fast-action western yarn by T. T. Flynn (all 25c).

Crossroads of the Pasteboards

Citizens have their fun at Lincoln Park Card Club.

By

Margaret Vassau

UNPRETENTIOUS in design and crouched in cloistered anonymity beneath pepper trees is the Lincoln Park Card Club, where people from all parts of the world meet to while away the time in pleasant but competitive companionship — a crossroads of the pasteboards. On a staggered basis of first come, first served, three hours' playing time is alloted to each individual.

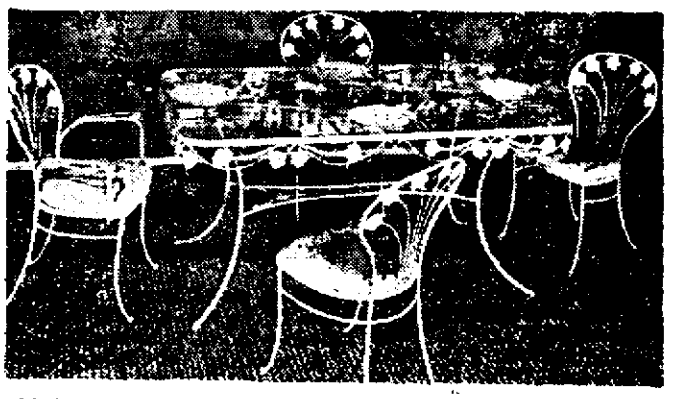

The club is strategically situated in the midst of the urban hotel district and draws much of its patronage from this source. Erected in 1918 at the insistence of 300 local eager beavers who had been courting pneumonia in a crude shed with a canvas roof, it now boasts a cosmopolitan membership of more than 1,500 men and women.

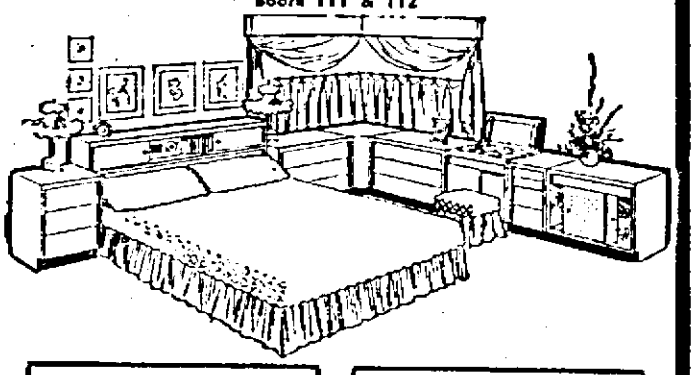

Planned, and originally built under the auspices of the Recreation Commission, the club is now self-supporting and even has a little surplus capital which is pooled and diverted into an entertainment fund. The dues are nominal, 50 cents per month, $2 semiannually, and $2 if paid on a yearly basis.

YEARLY PATRONS only are allowed a voice in the selection of officers, who are responsible for the maintenance of the club and the conduct of its members. The affable and urbane president, Ed Millett, waives a salary and donates his time and energy to the cause, and the competent and agreeable secretary, Mrs. Barbara McFiggen, welcomes newcomers, keeps the accounts straight, and collects ruthlessly from the veterans, many of whom regard the club as a home away from home.

The chairs were formerly designed for utility, not comfort, and perhaps with the thought in mind that an aching back will make a player less reluctant to leave an interesting game when his alloted time has expired. In November, 1954, however, the powers that be seem to have had a change of heart (or personal experience playing cards the hard way) for comfortable chairs with seats padded with two inches of foam rubber in an eye-arresting and durable green plastic, and sturdy tables with shining masonite tops were installed at a cost of $2,483. Of this, $1,700 was contributed by the city, the remainder paid from the club fund.

THE DOORS are opened at 8 a. m. by Millett and are closed at 10 p. m. Canasta, hearts, pinochle and the old standby, bridge, are the popular games. Gambling, of course, is taboo, but most of the players are expert at any game they espouse.

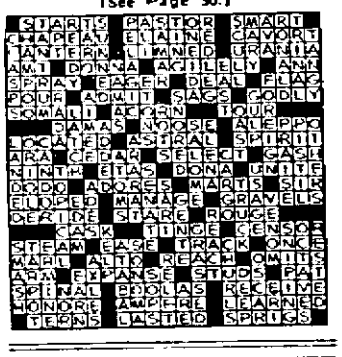

Membership in the club is an excellent investment and gives the purchaser the privilege of sauntering in when the spirit moves him and displaying a technique acquired, for example, in Dubuque to three diehards from Alaska, Canada and Muskogee, Okla.

Players occasionally find that a stubborn foursome has taken up squatters' rights at a table which they have been watching with a covetous eye, but a stern word from Mrs. McFiggen will dislodge the offenders pronto and the table is theirs. They look at their watches. Three hours, they remember, and no favorites are played.

Bachelors, Note

Eligible bachelors in the United States, fearing the Leap Year's tender trap, would be wise to go to Japan, suggests Pan American World Airways. It seems that 1956 is the Year of the Saru, or Monkey, and Japanese girls are putting off marriage thoughts until 1957. Why? "Saru" also means "going away" and feminine logic reasons that any mates acquired this year might take the double meaning seriously and take off for parts unknown.

PET PARADE

Pets Are Good Medicine

By Eleanor Avery Price

FAITH IN GOD is the best known support for those who suffer pain or who undergo tragic experiences. But "Faith without Works is dead," and service to all harmless living creatures, human or dumb, is work of the highest order.

The list is endless of those who have found relief from sorrow and trouble by loving and caring for pets—animal, fish, or fowl. The stories of two are told in this article.

MRS. PEARL DREWRY of Lakewood has been an unfortunate victim of that dread disease, muscular dystrophy, since she was three years old. A fine husband, a lovely daughter named Diane and talents for painting and sewing have been precious gifts from faith to her, but Mrs. Drewry also has found that the pleasures of having small pets who need her loving care give her immeasurable comfort.

Mrs. Drewry has George a parakeet, a tiny squirrel monkey called Lucy, and a kitten, Queenie. Although she enjoys the antics of all her animal friends, Mrs. Drewry feels there is no pet better for one in her condition than an affectionate, soft, purring kitten.

In many instances, especially for afflicted boys and men, a dog of the right breed brings great pleasure and solace, and to this John G. (Johnny) Hunt, now official photographer at the Wilton Hotel, happily attests.

TWO YEARS AGO, following extreme illness, discouragement hung like a heavy, black mantle over Johnny's head until his cousin, Terry Hines, director of public relations at the same hotel, brought him a Japanese spaniel puppy so small she could be held in the cup of one hand.

Terry deliberately left Johnny alone with the puppy so that the young man, a bed invalid, would have to manage alone. And he did. Whereas he was refusing to help even himself, he could not let a tiny puppy shift for itself. Johnny got up out of bed and tended to his pet, and in return the puppy gave him affection and understanding beyond measure.

Before long Johnny had a "new lease on life.

Named Princess Ya Keena of Nik-Cin, but more endearingly called "Doggy," this little spaniel is the sweetheart of the Wilton Hotel and is right on hand to meet all guests, including celebrities who come there.

SPONSORED BY the Leland Schencks of Long Beach, Japanese spaniels will be featured just inside the entrance to the Hobby Show at the Municipal Auditorium, starting April 28 and continuing through May 1. The Schencks will be pleased to tell about their work with the Japanese spaniel and their efforts to place the right one in the right home.

Thousands of people "discovered" this breed of dog at the Hobby Show last year, and many ill or discouraged persons came especially to see this small dog with the big dog's personality, a dog who knows when to be quiet and when to romp.

According to Lois De Lano, show manager, the entire Hobby Show is non-commercial and admission is free. Hours are from noon to 10 p.m. daily during the show period.

LAKEWOOD DOG Obedience Club Drill Team practice and obedience refresher course are both being held Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. in the southwest corner of Veterans Memorial Stadium grounds. Spectators are invited. The Club has accepted the invitation of the Harbor Cities Kennel Club to take charge of the obedience trials at the kennel club's show June 23 and 24 at the Veterans Memorial Stadium.

A FREE BASIC training class for dogs owned by kids ages 8 to 14 inclusive will start on Saturday, May 12, from 11 to noon at 5400 Cherry Ave. At least one parent must attend his child when the dog is entered. The class will be conducted by Joe DeBeck. For other information, phone GA 23564.

HOLLYWOOD DOG Obedience Club will hold its trials in North Hollywood Park May 6. On the same date, there will be a boxer puppy match in the Glendale Auditorium.

George, a parakeet; Lucy, squirrel monkey, and Queen, black kitten, are special pals of Mrs. Pearl Drewry.

Affectionate natures are Japanese spaniel feature.

HOW TO Build a Handsome Modern Couch; Bookcase With Individual Look

1. HANDSOME MODERN couch has a plywood slab on black-painted dowel legs. Facing of mahogany finishes the base around all sides, and two iron supports hold the slanted back rest. Seat is made of 4-inch foam rubber, encased in unbleached muslin and slipcovered in upholstery material. Snaps are tacked to the plywood slab to secure the seat to the base of the couch.

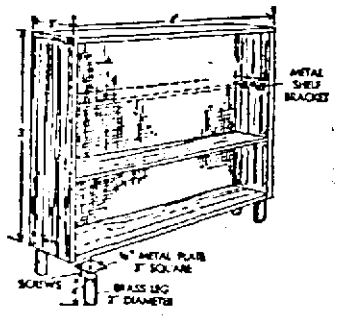

3. LEGS OF 2½-INCH doweling are screwed to corners of the plywood slab. The facing is attached to the slab with corner braces, spaced at regular intervals along the inside, and glued together at the corners. The insets show braces used for back rest and for bracing the corners.

2. FOOT-WIDE BACK rest is screwed to two iron supports, each placed 9 inches from either end of couch. Facing along back of couch is indented to allow space for brackets—see drawing for details.

4. BOOKCASE WITH an individual look is simply a 3x4-foot open-ended mahogany box with ¼-inch brass screening nailed onto the inside of the back. Two shelves are placed a foot apart.

5. DRAWING SHOWS dimensions of bookcase, as well as leg-mounting detail. Legs are 4-inch lengths of 2-inch brass tube, brazed to 3-inch squares of metal, which have screw holes for fastening them to the base.

Cameraman on Skis

By the Shutterbug

HOW TO MAKE a business out of a hobby has been demonstrated by John Stephens, 391 Wisconsin Ave., free lance photographer, at Sun Valley.

Stephens came to the famous Idaho resort at Christmas time on a skiing vacation and stayed as a member of the staff of the Sun Valley News Bureau. His specialty is ski-action photography.

In addition, he shot movies for Pictorial Research Inc., when Pictorial made a wide screen production for Todd-AO.

TWO BUG-EYE CAMERAS—one weighing 200 pounds and one 20 pounds—were used to make the picture which will be shown as a short with "Oklahoma."

In the film made at Sun Valley, the 200-pound camera, on a sled, followed skiers downhill so that the audience will have the sensation of skiing down Baldy Mountain. Stephens skied with some of the scenes, and helped choose locations for other scenes. The camera was originally designed to be worn strapped on with a harness. Stephens felt safer carrying it where he could get away from it in case of a spill. However, the spill never came.

A member of the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club and Skrid and Finne Ski Club, the Long Beach photographer is known for his ski action pictures taken at Snow Summit and Big Bear Lake, as well as water skiing pictures.

LONG BEACH Camera Guild will have another travel program Wednesday evening in Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Kyle Holmes will show a short movie on the Great White Throne. A. H. Martin will show color slides taken on a recent trip to Europe.

WINNING FILMS will be shown and trophies awarded at the annual banquet of the Southern California Assn. of Amateur Movie Clubs at 6:30 p. m. April 28 at the Petroleum Club, 4365 Atlantic Ave. Films have been judged by the Northern Council. This is the big event of the year, an inter-club contest of the best movies.

Zinnias thrive throughout entire summer to brighten the outdoor garden and to color indoor arrangements.

GARDENS

These Are Sun Lovers

By Bob Gilmore

WARM WEATHER is on the way, and you can expect the temperature to keep on rising for the next few months. Not all plants are capable of flowering when the mercury moves into the higher brackets. Yet your garden need not be without color just because the sun is at its peak. Proper plant selection will keep your landscape glowing all through the summer season.

The zinnia should be high on your list. These annuals love warm, even hot weather. They are natives of Mexico and are very much at home throughout this area. Some are as small as a button, others are large as a dinner plate. Their color range is quite complete and dozens of distinct types are available. Zinnias are sun lovers and will prove highly colorful both in the outdoor garden and indoors as cut flowers.

Marigold will also perform well during the next few months. Both French and African types are available. This classification is somewhat misleading for both come from Mexico and the region south to the Argentine. Generally speaking, the main distinction is a matter of size of both plant and flower. The African types grow taller and Double hollyhocks are among beautiful perennials to enhance gardens. They reach peak in mid-summer.

Perennials Bloom Early

By Walter Finch

JUNE GARDENS, most beautiful of the year in northern states, almost wholly rely for their delightful displays upon hardy perennial flowers. These same perennials do well in gardens of the Long Beach area where their period of bloom commonly is earlier and longer.

Since early blooming perennials are fully mature when spring arrives, they can develop their flowers much faster than an annual, which must grow to maturity from seed, before it flowers.

A perennial plant lives for years, returning each year to greet you, an old and welcome friend. Yet most can be grown from seed as easily as vegetables, provided they are started in the spring and given the same care as vegetables during their first year.

THE COMPLETE garden should have annual and perennial flowers, for each has its contribution in beauty to make during the garden year.

Not all the perennials flower in June. By choosing early, mid-season and late varieties it is possible to obtain a "succession of bloom" which will insure in your garden a constant display from earliest spring until autumn of these lovely flowers, which are usually the garden headliners during their season.

HERE ARE SUGGESTIONS taken from the long list available of perennials that can be grown from seed:

Blue—Anchusa myosotidmora, 1 ft., April-May; Anchusa Dropmore, 5 ft., June-July; Delphiniums, Pacific Hybrids, 5-6 ft., June; Linum perene, 2 ft., May-August; Platycodon, 2-3 ft., June-September.

Yellow — Anthemis, 2 ft., all summer; Coreopsis, 2 ft., all summer; Gaillardias, 2 ft., June until fall.

White — Arabis, 1 ft., April; Shasta daisies, 2-3 ft., June-August; Boltonia, 4-5 ft., July-October.

Red and Pink - Hibiscus, 3 ft., August-September; Gaillardia Burgundy, 2 ft., June until fall; Pyrethrum, 2 ft., June; Dianthus plumarius (clove pinks), 1½-2 ft., June; Columbines 2 ft., June; Double Hollyhocks, 5-7 ft., July.

SEEDS ARE AVAILABLE of many other perennials, as well as biennials, which live two years, and can be grown from seed by the same simple methods.

Like the hardy vegetables, seeds of hardy perennials can be sown as soon as the ground has been prepared. Sow seeds in rows, as you sow radishes. When they begin to crowd, thin them out, moving excess plants to other rows. Give them the same care in feeding, cultivating, and watering as you give vegetables, and by fall you will have substantial clumps with heavy roots, ready to move to permanent places in your garden.

What we call "gummosis," a gummy substance oozing out through the bark of trees and shrubs . . . especially peach trees . . . can come from different causes. Frequently, however, it is due to irregularity of watering; to letting your tree become too dry and then, to offset your neglect, giving it too much water. It's the same as though you, yourself, fasted for several weeks and then suddenly ate a big meal. The sap channels in the tree become shriveled from lack of moisture and then, when much water is poured through them suddenly, something has to "give" and that something is the bark, which breaks.

If you use what we call the "basin" method to water your fruit trees, be sure to put plenty of bean straw or other humus into the basin before the hot weather arrives. This will hold the moisture you give to your trees and keep it available to the fiber roots during the hot days.

Garden Tips

GARDENING TIPS for the week . . . Make certain that your dahlias and mums are well supported with adequate stakes. Often the plants grow taller than originally anticipated. Both dahlias and mums have a tendency towards top-heaviness, especially if disbudding is kept at a minimum.

Annual plants now in flower should be picked frequently. The seeding process utilizes a great deal of the plant's strength that otherwise would be diverted into producing more flowers.

Newly seeded lawns should be kept constantly moist until the young grass plants are well established. Apply frequent light applications, not heavy downpours.

Sun Lovers

produce larger blooms, often measuring five inches across.

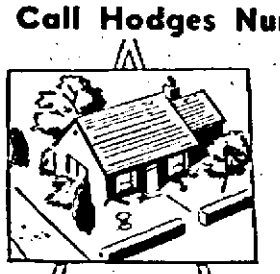

FRENCH MARIGOLDS are more dainty than their so-called African relatives. Many varieties rarely ever grow taller than six or eight inches and as such are well qualified as edging and bedding plants. One of the most interesting members of this group is the Midget Harmony which is ball-shaped and may be raised as a pot plant. Colors run to orange, gold and yellow.

Alyssum is a low-growing annual of fast growth and great ease of culture. The plants tend to re-seed themselves and will prove an almost permanent part of your landscape. Most varieties have a fairly restricted color range, including only shades of white and lavender. One of the most interesting is known as Carpet of Snow. The plants spread across the ground at a height of about two or three inches. The flowers have an intense shade of white, thus providing a beautiful white carpet for an outdoor living room.

FOR A BRILLIANT show of color, try the portulaca, often recognized as the sun plant or Moss Rose. Both single and double-flowered mixtures are available. The plants are low-growing and spreading in habit. The color range is dazzling with tones of white, pink, red, yellow and purple. The stems are often reddish in tone. Within certain limits, the hotter the sun the better your portulaca will grow.

Other varieties that should do well during the balance of the summer season include gaillardias, gazanias, gerberas, statice, salvia, geraniums, linum, nicotiana and mesembryanthemum, also known as iceplant.

County Fair first prize was awarded hooked picture by Darlene Lerwold, whose crafts assist crippled and needy.

One-Woman Welfare Bureau

DARLENE LERWOLD, a nurse who lives at 15721 S. Stevens Ave., Bellflower, comes close to running a one-woman welfare bureau.

In the last eight years in Bellflower, Long Beach, Council Bluffs, and Omaha, she has given 50 braces and nine wheelchairs to patients, largely polio victims, who needed them.

And she has made the money for the braces and wheelchairs by making and selling hooked pictures and rugs, nylon and fiber flowers, and the like. Now she is making Easter rabbits and chickens from styrofoam balls and chenille.

Her "Mr. and Mrs. Currier Go to Church," a snug couple in a sleigh, won first place for hooked pictures at the last Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona. A pansy rug took first place for hooked rugs, and a floral picture took fourth in its field.

"I contribute all the materials and my time," she says. "I dye the wool. I can get 26 tones of one color."

IN ADDITION to wheelchairs and braces, Darlene Lerwold regularly remembers persons in the Iowa School for the Deaf at Council Bluffs, the Christian Home in Council Bluffs, Hattie B. Monroe home for crippled children in Omaha and the Masonic Boys Home in Omaha.

"I also make layettes for unwed mothers and occasionally hospitals call on me for layettes for patients who do not have them," she says.

She has a daughter, Mrs. Don Meredith of Lakewood, and two grandchildren, Myke, 4, and Kathye Jean, 3.

Philatelic Find

A PHILATELIC find, hidden in an old desk since 1903, will mean at least $1,000 to its owner, Mrs. Cameron Craig of New York.

The stamps, an unused block of 25 of the 1848 one-cent Broadway post office locals, were given to Mrs. Craig by an uncle who had discovered them in his grandfather's desk.

Mrs. Craig had no idea the stamps were worth that much when she sent them for appraisal and verification to the Philatelic Foundation in New York.

After the uncle died, Mrs. Craig went through his papers and found a 1912 edition of Scott's Catalogue. This reminded her that she had the block of old stamps and that's when she sent them to Miss Ethel Harper at the Philatelic Foundation.

The Broadway locals have a bright history in themselves. Started by James C. Harriott in 1848, the service carried letters throughout the city and to the post office at one cent for each letter or parcel carried.

EINAR PETERSEN
The Wives Love Him

"Wives who cook and do the dishes,
"Should be granted three good wishes,
"A grateful mate, a well-kissed cheek,
"A Talk o' the Town dinner every week."

THAT LITTLE poem is printed on the menu of Einar Petersen's Talk o' the Town restaurant, 3980 E. Ocean Blvd. The words delight all the wives who read them because there's nothing they'd rather do than dine with Einar Petersen EVERY night, if their husbands would permit it.

Petersen, who took over as Talk o' the Town host owner last December, treats his patrons to wonderful food, prepared with painstaking care and served with polished professional techniques. He features mouth-watering charcoal broiled steaks, all sizes and varieties to fit all appetites; sensational prime rib of choice Eastern beef, au jus, and splendid sea food and poultry selections.

Those entrees are offered on complete dinners guaranteed to please the most finicky diners. Included are a fresh shrimp appetizer, choice of delicious onion soup or soup du jour, a big salad with croutons and choice of beverage; baked or French fried potatoes, toasted cheese rolls, choice of beverage and choice of dessert, including superb Danish apple cake. Dinner prices start as low as $1.85, complete, and range up to $3.25 for the prime rib and $3.95 for a choice 12-ounce filet mignon. Among the nice extra touches are free cigarettes and after-dinner mints, presented with the check.

PETERSEN has been a familiar figure to Long Beach restaurant-goers for years. A veteran of three wars, he formerly operated the Hotel at the Lafayette Hotel and Einar Petersen's Army & Navy Club.

The Talk o' the Town, recommended by the Hillsway restaurant guide, serves dinner daily from 5 to 11 p.m. and from 3 to 10 p.m. Sundays. Talented Bill Clark plays the piano nightly.

NOW! Train your dog to obey whistle commands!

Saves your voice

Especially effective at a distance. Makes it easy for you to maintain constant, uniform tone—a "must" for dog training. Your dog will learn to recognize it as a symbol of authority.

A real dog training aid!

You use normal training methods, only give commands with the Surechamp Obedience Whistle instead of your voice. Your dog will learn to understand and take direction at whistle command. For instance—one whistle blast can mean "hold"; two, "come"; and so on. The whistle is like the kind used in official field trials. Made with a special-type warbler for easier response and longer life. It is yours free—with purchase of every specially marked package of...

A PRODUCT OF GENERAL MILLS

Surechamp Dog Food

CONTAINS MORE PROTEINS FROM MEAT, FISH, AND LIVER, POUND FOR POUND, THAN ANY LEADING CANNED DOG FOOD.

SPECIAL BONUS!

WHEN YOU BUY A 25 OR 50 LB. BAG
YOU GET A FREE DOG LEASH
IN ADDITION TO SURECHAMP OBEDIENCE WHISTLE

A 36"-long leash—just right for walking your dog or training him to heel. Double-strength, braided cord. Metal parts of tough, treated brass, will not rust. Snap-on collar clasp has a two-way hinge. This quality leash is your extra bonus—in addition to whistle—for buying either of the large, economy size bags of Surechamp.

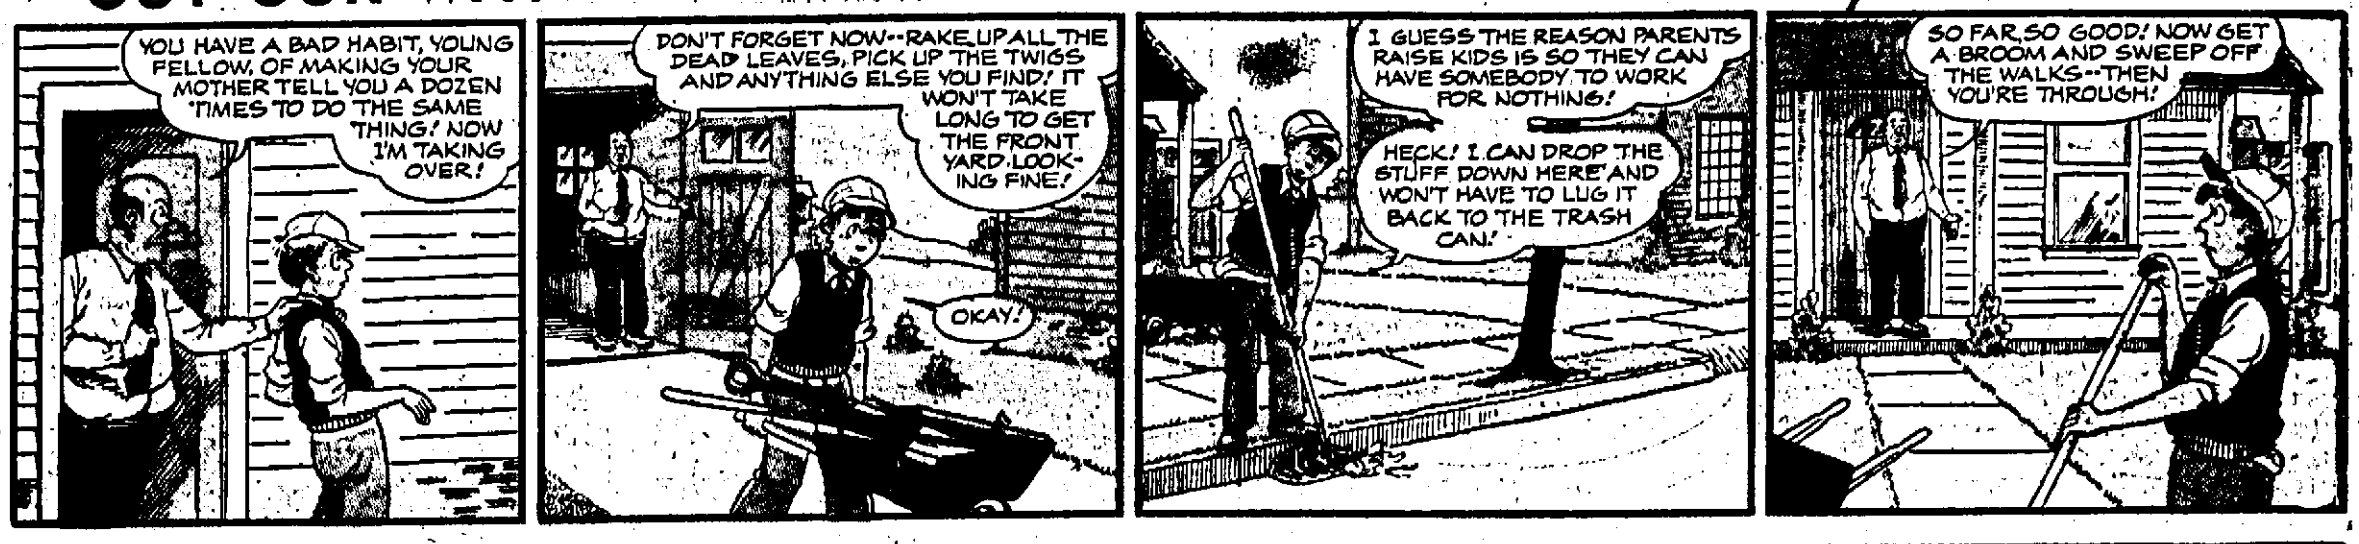

Extra whistles available for 25¢ plus the blue weight circle from a package of Surechamp. Send to General Mills, Inc., Dept. 185, 623 Marquette Ave., Minneapolis 2, Minnesota.

PRISCILLA'S POP

by AL VERMEER

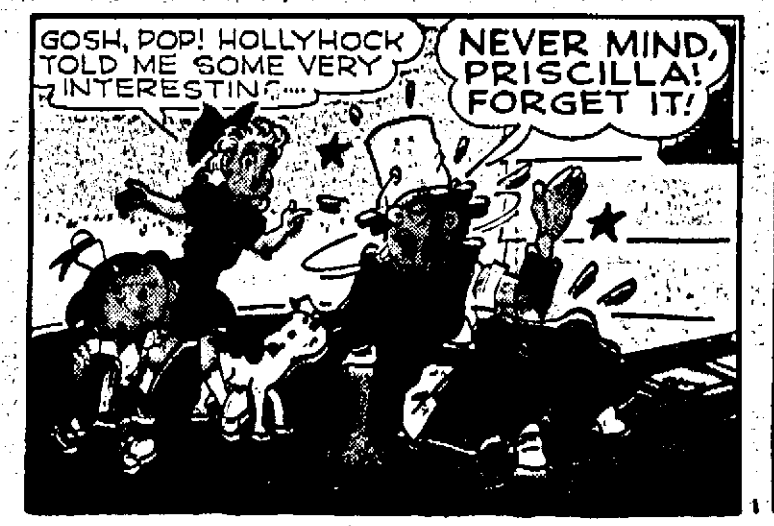

With more years of research...more study and experimentation...more major contributions to dental hygiene during the past 79 years than any other company in the world, COLGATE—WORLD LEADER IN TOOTHPASTES—NOW ANNOUNCES

COLGATE

BRISK* FLUORIDE TOOTHPASTE

Contains the ONLY FLUORIDE proved in 10 years of clinical tests

HARDENS TOOTH ENAMEL, MAKES TEETH STRONGER

starts working instantly

TO DEFEAT DECAY

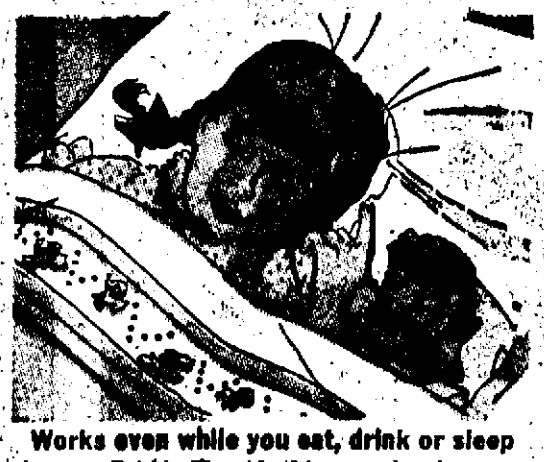

Scientists proved this Fluoride

And Brisk's Fluoride is the only Fluoride proved in 10 year clinical tests...the same fluoride now being used successfully in water supplies...the same dentists use successfully to reduce decay. That's why this same fluoride, so widely approved by medical, dental and governmental authority, is now in Brisk.

Benefits both adults and children

Brisk's Fluoride/85, Colgate's exclusive new formula, helps protect all permanent teeth whether in adults or children over six. Brisk's Fluoride is instantly released . . . works on contact as you brush your teeth . . . strengthens tooth enamel as no other decay-preventive ever could.

Works even while you eat, drink or sleep

because Brisk's Fluoride/85 not only gives you wonder-working Fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel, but provides a second, tested decay-fighter that starts working instantly . . . keeps working all day against the formation of decay-acids. Unless you get Brisk, you cannot get the benefits of Fluoride/85.

Only BRISK has FLUORIDE/85,

gives extra protection Fluoride alone can't give... works best where you need it most

Brisk's Fluoride actually concentrates in weak or "soft" spots where decay usually starts — combines with tooth enamel, becomes part of the tooth itself — thus protects as no other decay-fighter can. And Brisk's new, stay-active decay-fighter reaches into tight crevices between teeth — into food-traps where decay acids form — starts working instantly to defeat a major cause of decay.

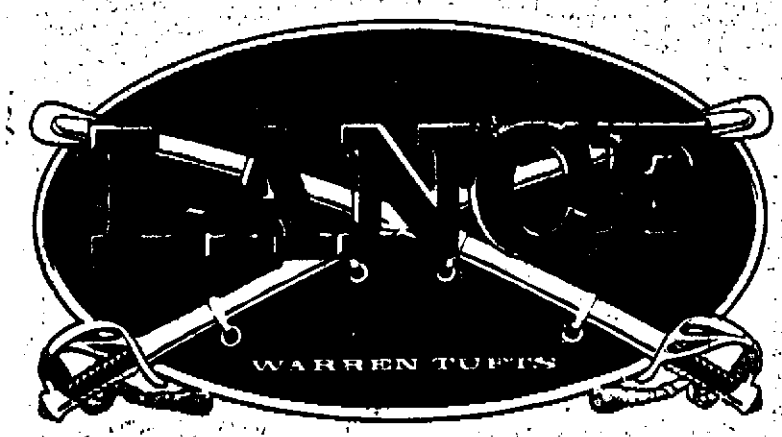

WONDERFUL FLAVOR!

Helps keep breath fresh all day!

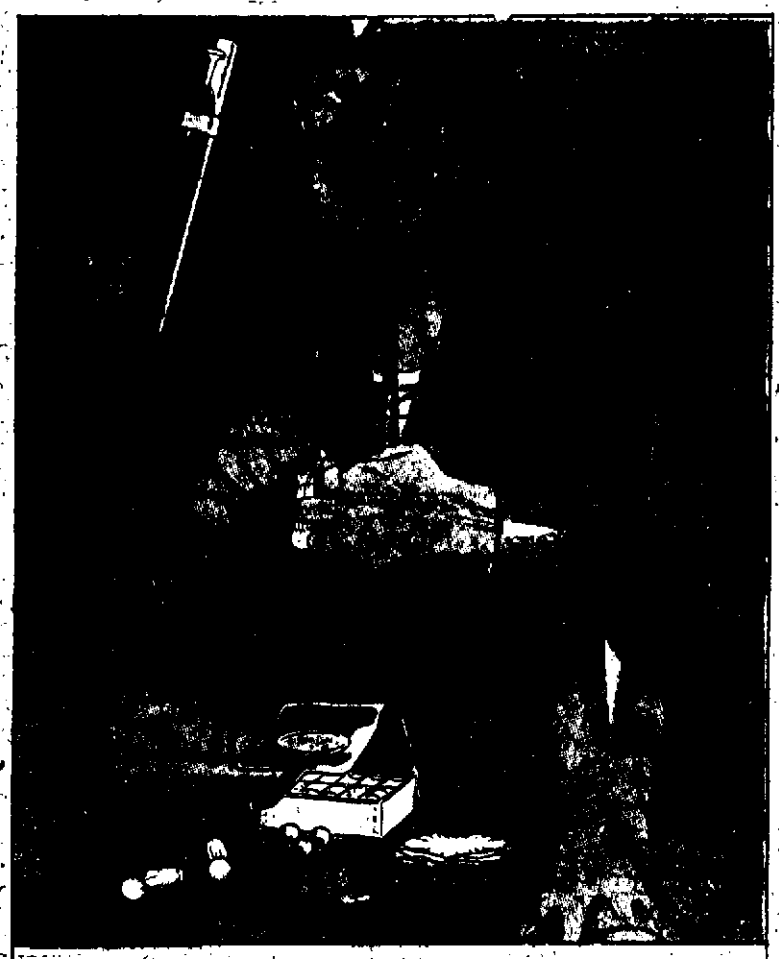

And there's no "tinny" aftertaste with new Brisk! Your mouth tastes sparkling cool and sweet! Brings out all the natural whiteness of teeth!

BLACKFOOT

Twelve hours have passed since the brush with the Blackfeet. Blaze and the Arapaho guide have failed to rendezvous.

Fearing the worst, Lance retraces their escape route and two miles downriver comes across the lifeless form of his guide.

The body is secluded from varmints and Lance continues the vain search for Blaze.

At noon, thoroughly sick at heart, he gives up. And Lance's plight is desperate . . .

He is alone in hostile and unfamiliar country, without horses or supplies. Mountain men have nightmares about such predicaments, for the odds are a thousand-to-one against survival. Lance takes a long gamble . . .

In the afternoon he picks up the trail of the Blackfeet who have his horses and tracks them 'til they camp at dusk.

Somehow he must reclaim those animals . . . . .
